"A meeting of this nature could assign responsibilities and direction, and possibly establish a committee from the Mayor and Council President to seek help from our Congressional delegation in Washington in processing these grant applications.

"I believe we ought to address ourselves to this project forthwith."

Tobin elaborated on his list of project possibilities:

"Why should we spend our money to lease a central maintenance garage when we can renovate and add to the existing Public Works garage with these federal funds?" he said.

"The city is renting space for Veterans Services, the Council on Aging and other municipal offices all over the city. Why not a new public building like the JKF Health Center if the money is available?

"Isn't it time to explore a new cardiac care unit in City Hospital or a place where Senior Citizens can have their own meals rather than the Drop-In Center or the function rooms of the housing developments?

"The Congress has 30 days to set up guidelines for the program and we will have 60 days after that in which to apply. Isn't it time to call a 'team back' to talk about ways that we can expedite our application?

"There is the possibility of several millions of dollars for Quincy, depending upon how many projects are approved. But even if we make 15 or 20 applications and only score on five we would be revitalizing the city in a positive vein at no cost to the taxpayer."

Tobin said he contacted City Auditor Charles Shea early this week and had him get in touch with Congressman Burke's office for a list of categories of projects for which the money is available. He said he talked to Burke's office several times himself.

"Burke assured me that he is standing by, willing and able to devote his energies to help Quincy and any other community in his district to obtain the maximum amount of money available," said Tobin.

"But he cautioned me that to be eligible we would have to move as expeditiously as possible. This is what I am doing. I don't want Quincy to be left standing by while other cities reap the benefits of this bill."

Business Leaders Hail MBTA

Mayor LaRaia said the Tuesday night meeting "was requested by community leaders, Larry Curtin of the QCA was one. I authorized the meeting in City Hall as Mayor but I did it at the behest of the community leaders.

"We will discuss the latest happenings in regard to the proposed station in South Quincy and the alternatives that are still available to us to prevent construction of the station."

Kiley's request for a cooperating task force read like this:

"Now that the South Quincy station complex has been funded and problems in the South Quincy area have been identified by the environmental impact statement, the MBTA is looking forward to working closely with Mayor LaRaia and other city officials so that the project, when completed, will be compatible with the needs and desires of the community.

"I have directed the MBTA staff to consider very carefully all of the key issues that have been raised prior to the federal funding of this project.

"Mayor LaRaia is cognizant of the concerns of the South Quincy community and I, therefore, urge that he appoint a task force to work with the MBTA staff. Through such a joint effort, I believe that we can confront to design and engineering problems before us and resolve them to the satisfaction of all concerned."

While declining to comment specifically on Kiley's request, Mayor LaRaia said he was "pleased that the MBTA recognized that citizens' input is needed. I think the community leaders have made higher authority aware of the problems of the people of South Quincy."

Not all reaction to the UMTA's decision to fund construction of the station has been negative.

Jack Conway, the realtor who is president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, called it "the most important public works decision made for the South Shore in this decade."

Said Eric Swider, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce:

"We will hold an informational meeting for the members very shortly in regard to the timetable for design and construction of the station and the probable course to be taken by the ramps leading to the Southeast Expressway.

"We also plan to work with members and business establishments in South Quincy that will be impacted by the station to help them with property acquisition procedures and relocation of their businesses."

Swider said only about three or four businesses will be affected. He added that 90 to 95 percent of the Chamber's "interested" membership supports construction of the station, which is scheduled to be ready for service on the Red Line in 1979.

The first census was taken in the United States in 1790, and 3,929,214 people were counted.

Youngsters Convince Mayor Of Need For New Playground

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Charles A. Ross announced plans to convert five acres of city-owned land off Sea and Palmer Sts. into a new playground and baseball field.

The Mayor's disclosure came after a meeting with four youngsters from Germantown and Adams Shore, who convinced him of the difficulties arising out of sharing their pasture ball field with a herd of cows.

The boys were Bill Bleakley, 14, of 5 Norfolk Ave.; William Wareham, 13, of 104 Palmer St.; Joe DeGuste, 15, of 30 Broady St.; and Bill Leaman, 15, of 13 Chesley Rd.

INTERNEES PAMPERED

John B. Powers of Quincy, quartermaster-adjutant of the Mass VFW, suggested that Italian prisoners of war, who were called "internees" since Italy quit fighting, were being pampered in America and should be sent back to Europe to fight the Germans.

In a letter to Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, Powers said: "While Mr. Average Citizen is walking, using crowded trains, trolleys and buses, Italian internees are enjoying special bus and auto sightseeing tours.

"While our own labor battalions are getting ordinary GIchow at the point of labor, the internees are conveyed back to their camps for two hot meals a day.

"There is no such shortage of manpower in Massachusetts that justifies paying 80 cents a day for labor to internees, who should be in their own country taking up arms against the Nazis."

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

Let's Make Best MBTA Deal We Can

Now that the Urban Mass Transportation Administration has made a positive decision on construction of the South Quincy MBTA station and work is underway on preparing the South Braintree station site, it is important for the leaders of the divergent groups to get together to obtain the best possible deal we can for our area.

Lots of time, effort and energy could be potentially wasted on court efforts to halt this badly needed transportation project. The same time, effort and energy could be invested in making sure that the project is well-planned, architecturally attractive, well-landscaped and effectively buffered.

Concern has been expressed by Braintree residents that the station might deadend rapid transit for the South Shore in their community. The MBTA Masterplan calls ultimately for an extension to either Weymouth or Brockton. Brockton officials have said they want the MBTA Red Line to come to their community. That's understandable. It makes infinite economic sense. Our effort now should be one of making sure that the Central Transportation Planning Staff of the Office of Transportation and Construction make the Brockton extension an active part of their plans. We might even consider helping Brocktonians organize to develop their own pro "T" extension lobbying effort.

Flooding has been a South Quincy and Quincy Center problem for hundreds of years. This is our opportunity to secure an expedited solution to that problem. We should all work together in demanding that the Corps of Army Engineers, the MDC, the MBTA, and the DPW coordinate their every action so that the proper flood control systems can be put into operation simultaneously with the construction of the MBTA facility, the ramps and the Upland Road extension.

Local traffic has been perceived as a problem. We support the proposals that limit the accessibility of automobiles entering from the Expressway only to the Parking Garage and not to local streets. At the same time, an expanded Upland Road extension will allow South Quincy to become more of a suburban neighborhood once again by eliminating much of the Quincy Center-bound traffic from their sideroads and funneling it all onto that main route. South Quincy residents have an exciting opportunity to participate in planning the effort that will undoubtedly increase the value of their homes by making for less traffic, more greenery, less noise and congestion.

Loss of tax revenue from the relocation of several businesses only need be a problem if we allow it to. It could be an opportunity. Quincy has long toyed with the idea of getting into the industrial park business and has lots of acreage throughout the community which is well-suited for that use. Here are several businesses that could be the nucleus of such a development.

Furthermore, businesspeople in Quincy have believed for years that getting the "T" out of Quincy Center and securing Upland Road extension construction were keys to the revitalization of Downtown. Central business district revitalization should mean more revenue for the city.

The South Shore community - all 75,000 who commute to work on a daily basis and those that benefit from that commuting and the wages brought back here - will be well-served by this MBTA extension.

All things considered, UMTA would have never approved this proposal if it weren't such a natural transportation decision; and the Dukakis administration would have never labeled it as the most important rapid transit extension in the MBTA system if it weren't exactly that. While litigation might add years to its ultimate realization and would assuredly inflate the cost of construction by 15 percent per year, it will do little to change the need for this service nor the absolute correctness of the decision.

Let's work together now to make the best deal we can for our area - we deserve that.

Mayor's office dated June 10, that analyzed the funding of positions last year as opposed to the Mayor's budget, there was no change in the Purchasing Department with respect to positions.

"However, on June 30, the Mayor recommends that these three positions be added to the Purchasing Department.

"I believe that the taxpayers ought to know what happened between June 10 and June 30. I believe further that the evidence is quite clear that these are political appointments and not those made to benefit the taxpayers of this city."

Raymondi noted that the Mayor's office has disputed the charge of adding employees to the city payroll "during these difficult financial times."

"I have been in office approximately seven months, however, and I can document at least a dozen new positions not including the hospital which has many new positions by itself that have come from the Executive of this city," Raymondi said.

"I do not believe that the city can afford this luxury and I call upon my fellow colleagues on the council to defeat the appropriation for these three positions that is pending in committee."

Snug Harbor Pupils Win Medals

The first annual gold medal awards for perfect attendance have been given to 19 pupils at the Snug Harbor School. The awards went to:

Cathy Macauley, kindergarten; Susan Stanton, grade one; Karen O'Neill and Marjorie Porter, grade two; Lisa Kasparian, Deborah Thurston and John Peterson, grade three; Kerry Dooley, Michael Flynn, Kristen Dever and Susan Megnia, grade four.

Lori Wright and Cindy Lamberti, grade five; Glen Straughn, John Bacon and Michel Zumwalt, grade six; and Richard MacDonald, Cynthia Mitchell and Mary Ann MacDonald, special class.

Pins also were distributed to those pupils with good attendance records.

Committee Plans Memorial

For William F. Ryan

A committee to plan the William F. Ryan Memorial held its first meeting recently at the John F. Kennedy Health Center to make preparation for a fitting memorial to honor the city's first full-time recreation director.

Members of the committee expressed the hope that the dedication of the Black's Creek Boathouse can be held on the first anniversary of Ryan's death.

Gerard A. Coletta Jr., vice chairman of the Park and Recreation Board and a long time associate of Ryan, is chairman of the committee.

Other members include: School Committee Francis F. Anselmo, a member of the board; City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond; Board Chairman Joseph E. Burke; Katherine G. McCoy, former board secretary; Executive Secretary Richard Koch; Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers, Assistant Directors Frank Brillo and Barry Welch; Earl Vermillion of Happy Acres Day Camp; and Lionel Buckley of the Recreation Department staff.

S.S. Area $10,000 Fund Raising Drive Continues

A $10,000 fund-raising drive for the Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore area is continuing through August.

William J. Trifone, President of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc., is general chairman.

Executive Director Arthur Ciampa, noted the drive is being conducted in non-federated communities.

Trifone said volunteers are still needed to help with clerical work. Anyone wishing to help is asked to contact CP Headquarters, 105 Adams St., Quincy [479-7443] between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Trifone said services and programs offered by the agency for individuals with multihandicaps are limited only by the financial resources available.

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc. provides the following services:

- A Treatment Clinic at 105 Adams St., Quincy, providing speech, physical and occupational therapies administered under the supervision of a Medical Director who is a skilled pediatrician. Psychiatric and psychological evaluations are performed by a staff psychologist.
- An Adult CP Class meets once a week in the evening at the Lincoln Hancock School, 300 Granite St., Quincy, and offers courses in arts and crafts, education, recreation and socialization.

- Summer Residential Camp facilities for CP children and adults are available at Camp Jabberwocky on Martha's Vineyard, Camp Sea Haven in Newburyport and Camp Jollee in Goshen.

- The organization also sponsors a Developmental Day Care Center for multiply handicapped cerebral palsied children up to 6 years of age. Purpose of this program is to prevent or reverse institutionalization of children who have severe disabilities. Total restorative services, in addition to early childhood education and stimulation, are provided to each child. The center is open five days a week from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

- A new program called Project OPTIMUS funded by HEW - Bureau of Education for the Handicapped - operating under the directorship of Joseph Bleiberg, Psychologist, and Arthur Ciampa, Executive Director, serves infants 0-3 with a clinic-based intensive stimulation program, a home-visitation program, and a respite program to give parents relief from full-time care of their child.

Quincy Track Club Back In Action

The Quincy Track Club is back in full swing following the untimely death of its founder, director and coach, Frank Kelly, and more than 150 took part in last week's meet at Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The club cancelled the weekly meet two weeks ago in tribute to Kelly, but the club will continue with Mrs. Kelly succeeding Frank as club director. Jeff Hennessy will continue as club manager and statistician and will conduct the weekly meets together with meet directors Janice Kelly, Frank's daughter, and Paul "Doc" Doherty.

"Some kids thought the club was all over with because of Mr. Kelly's death," Hennessy said. "But people have worked to put back the pieces and everyone has put too much time and effort into the club to have it fold. The club will continue and progress the way it has in the past."

"Mr. Kelly was deeply involved with the club's development and we hope to fulfill his desires to have many of the boys and girls take part in outside meets at Holy Cross and many other sites." The club membership for this year has surpassed 300.

The club is still seeking more girls in the 9-11 age group and boys and girls in the 14-15 age group. Anyone interested in joining can sign up at the stadium any evening after 6. Events tonight (Thursday) include 60-yard hurdles, 220, 880, two-mile, high jump, discus and javelin.

One of the stars of last week's meet was 12-year-old Denise Santo, originally from Quincy, who moved to Milton last fall. She set a record in the 12-13 age group long jump of 15 feet, 4 1/2 inches, smashing the old mark of 14-11 1/2 held by Karen McCarthy. Her previous best in this event had been 13 feet. Denise also broke the record in the 100, easily winning in 12.6 seconds. The old mark of 12.9 was held by Loretta Garrigan. She also anchored the winning relay team.

Although her real love is track and field, Denise is a fine all-around athlete. She also plays organized softball and basketball and likes to skate.

Another standout last week was Rich McCarthy, a quadruple winner in the 12-13 year old bracket. He won the 100, mile and long jump and anchored the winning relay. Mike Gallagher set a record in the 14-15 shot put with a toss of 46 feet, half inch using a 12-pound shot. Ginny McIntyre tied a three-year-old record in the girls' 12-13 shot with a toss of 22-5 using an eight-pound shot.

BILL OF RIGHTS

In keeping with the spirit of this Bicentennial year, Medicaid residents of Intermediate Care Facilities (ICFs) have been given a "Bill of Rights" by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. ICFs are nursing homes whose patients don't need round-the-clock skilled nursing care. Among the provisions of the new regulations, which reflect comments received from state officials, nursing home, and the general public are:

Residents have the right to refuse treatment as well as to refuse to participate in research projects.

ICFs must set up resident grievance committees.

Information on services and charges must be supplied in writing to residents.

Residents are not required to perform services for ICFs.

When agreed to by the resident, such services may be performed for therapeutic or diversional purposes.

This information has been brought to you as a public service by NABORHOOD PHARMACY, 406 Hancock St., No. Quincy.

OUR SERVICES INCLUDE:

24 hour emergency service, Charge accounts, Family prescription records, Year end tax records, Delivery service, Insurance receipts, Hospital supplies for sale or rent, Open 7 days a week, 8-10. Phone: 328-3426

Junior Baseball

HN Legion Blasts Rotary, In Playoff Opener, Keohane's Wins Pennant

Houghts Neck Legion, which won the Quincy Junior Baseball League's American League title with the best record in either league, opened the playoffs with an easy 13-3 win over Rotary, a team which made a great charge down the home stretch to make the playoffs.

Houghts Neck clinched the win with a seven-run fourth inning. Marty McLaughlin had two successive home runs and a double to pace the attack. Tom O'Connor had two singles and Glenn Oriola had a double and single, Eric Green a triple and Steve White, Sean Houlihan, Dick Comeau, Mike Notorangelo and Jim McPartland also had hits. McLaughlin pitched an outstanding game and was given excellent support.

For Rotary Bob Mathews had a home run and single, and Jim Sacchetti a double and single.

Meanwhile, Keohane's won the National League pennant with a 16-6 record and in the final game edged Colonial Federal, 4-3. John Balzano pitched six innings but had to leave with the score tied, 3-3. Balzano struck out 10 and gave up only three hits, two of them coming in the fifth inning. Pat King finished up to get the win.

Keohane's scored the winning run in the seventh on a wild pitch, Paul McCabe scoring.

Keohane's nipped American League champion Houghts Neck, 1-0, as Brian Reale hiked his record to 9-0 with a one-hitter. He struck out 12.

O'Connor pitched a strong game for HN, also allowing only one hit as he suffered his first loss of the season.

The lone run came in the fourth inning. With Reale on first and Balzano the batter, he ran the count to three and two and O'Connor's next pitch was ball four. Reale and Balzano pulled a double steal and when the throw to get Balzano was wild, Reale scored the winning run.

Firemen Win Babe Ruth American League Pennant

Firemen Local 792 baseball team won the Quincy Babe Ruth League's American League pennant for the second year in a row with a come-from-behind 12-4 win over Morrisette and now chase its second straight city title.

The playoffs are underway with the top three teams in each league competing. Both Firemen and the National League champion, the Police Club, drew first round byes.

In the opening playoff series Gino's faces Sons of Italy and Bryan VFW meets Barry's Deli in the best of three series.

Greg Maddar pitched seven-hit ball in the Firemen's title-clinching win. He walked three.

Morrisette had a 3-0 lead in the fifth inning and had held Firemen hitting until that inning when the champs broke loose. Artie Roberts, Maddar, Ray Coscia, Jim Flaherty, Greg Oriola and John Sullivan all had hits which, combined with a walk and an error, accounted for six runs. Firemen then continued their barrage in the sixth with another six runs.

The Police Club finished up with a 3-2 squeaker over Hancock Bank to end up with a 20-2 record, easily the best in either division.

Tom Brennan raised his pitching record to 7-0 as he hooked up in a fine duel with Dave King. Each allowed only two hits.

Brennan struck out three and walked two while King had four strikeouts but hurt himself with eight walks.

Larry Baker hit a two-run homer for Police following a single by Fran Donovan. The champs won the game in the final inning when Gary DiNardo reached on a fielders choice and John Costigan walked with two outs. Donovan reached on an error and, in a disputed play, DiNardo scored the winner from second base.

Bobby Biagini had both Hancock hits and played a fine game behind the plate.

Margaret Ryan Recreation 'Leader Of Week' Third Time

Margaret Ryan has been named Leader of the Week for an unprecedented third time by the Quincy Recreation Department announces Director Robert K. Beniers.

Miss Ryan, leader at LaBrecque Playground, is a former MVP on the Quincy High School gym team. She is now majoring in nursing at Boston State College. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ryan of 35 Darrow St., Houghs Neck, she has worked for the recreation department for the past five years.

Helen Johnson, water safety instructor at Avalon Beach is one of the few waterfront people to win this award. Miss Johnson is also a Quincy High graduate and is now attending Boston University. She works at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School pool during the winter program. This is her first year working for the recreation department.

Legion Baseball

State Playoffs Underway Saturday

The American Legion state baseball playoffs will get underway Saturday with a four-team double elimination tournament at Adams Field and either Morrisette or Quincy will represent Zone 6 in the post-season event.

Morrisette lost a chance to clinch its 20th zone title Monday when it was upset by Weymouth, 2-1, at Adams Field, leaving Quincy with a chance. Morrisette again sought the clincher Tuesday night at Cohasset and was due to finish the regular season Wednesday against Wollaston. Quincy played Hingham Tuesday and Cohasset Wednesday and still had a tie game with Hingham to replay, if necessary.

In the round-robin at Adams, Quincy or Morrisette, Braintree, Walpole or either Needham or Wellesley will compete. Games will be played Saturday and Sunday at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. and single games Monday and Tuesday, if necessary, at 8 under the lights.

Pat Gibbons was a hard-luck loser for Morrisette Monday as his record dropped to 7-2. Morrisette's bats were silenced in a well-played game which took under an hour and a half.

Gibbons gave up six hits, four of them infield hits. Morrisette was held to four hits, a triple by Steve McKinnon and singles by Chuck LoPresti, Paul Messina and Gibbons.

Wollaston, which celebrated its first win of the year Sunday night [3-1 over Randolph], was walloped, 12-5, Monday by Braintree, which clinched the Zone 6-C championship.

Wollaston hit the ball well with Josh Alberti having a double and single and Tom McBride, Steve Cook and Mark Nagle two singles each, but the pitching was off as Braintree scored four runs in the first and then clinched things with six in the fifth.

Softball League Playoffs Underway Monday

The Quincy Softball League, completing a number of important makeup games this week, will open the playoffs Monday night with the first place teams playing the fourth and the second place teams meeting the third in each league.

Going into some vital games last night [Wednesday], two teams, Rouillard's and Wells Grille, had clinched playoff berths in the American League and County Line, Kelly's and Beau's Place had made it in the National League.

In the American League Walsh's, K. of C. and Noble's still had a chance, while Wheeler-Dealer, Palmer Pub and Alumni Cafe were in the running for the fourth National League playoff spot.

County Line walloped National runnerup Kelly's, 18-4, while Kelly's came back to top Palmer Pub, 14-4, in games during the past week.

Beau's clinched third place in the National. Wheeler-Dealer and Palmer Pub met last night in a crucial contest. Friday at 7:45 at Welcome Young Field Walsh's and Noble's will clash to break a fourth place tie in the American League.

Red Carpet finished in last place in the National League but came along strong last week with a 12-9 win over Palmer Pub and a 19-3 romp over Quincy Point Cong.

Upland Road Extension On Agenda

Chamber Meeting To Discuss S. Quincy MBTA 'Coordination'

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a meeting today [Thursday] at 4 p.m. in the Conference Center of the South Shore National Bank to discuss a "coordinated approach" to the South Quincy MBTA Station to make sure Quincy will benefit.

Invited to the meeting by Andrew T. Walsh, chairman of the Chamber's Quincy Business Council, were representatives of the Mayor's Task Force, the Legislature, the Mayor's Task Force, the City Planning Department and Congressman James A. Burke's office.

On the agenda are the schedule of construction, plans for reconstruction of Town Brook, relocation of business establishments, the Upland Road extension, Red Line extension beyond South Braintree and other issues of concern to the business community.

The Mayor's Task Force, suggested by MBTA Chairman Robert R. Kiley, has not yet been named but Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, still expressing opposition to the station, said last week he will appoint one to work with the MBTA.

At the same time, LaRaia named a committee to examine the legal moves left to the city to prevent construction of the station.

Appointed were Veterans Services Director Pasquale DiStefano, Rep. Joseph E. Brett, City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, Laurence Curtin, former president of the City Council, and Bernice Mader of the South Quincy Civic Association.

The Urban Mass Transportation Administration in Washington dealt opponents of the station a stunning blow two weeks ago when it approved a grant of $21 million to the MBTA for construction of the station.

Bacteria Count At Beaches 'Very Good'

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board, announces the bacteriological quality of city beaches from June 1, through July 27, "has been very good".

The Quincy Health Department provides the Park Department a weekly report of testing at the 13 beaches where swimming instructions are conducted by the Recreation Department. In 130 samples taken in the 10-week period, the 1,000 coliform count was recorded only three times and the remaining 127 counts were all good to excellent in quality, Koch said.

Records indicated in 1969 that the counts of over 1,000 allowable bacteria on city beaches was recorded on 35 occasions out of a total of 133 samples. The samples were taken from June 12 to Aug. 26, that year, in 12 weeks of water sampling.

Starting in 1970 and in each succeeding year the water quality has proved "very good", Koch said.

According to State Department of Public Health, the bacteriological quality of bathing beach waters indicates that sewerage or other hazardous substances are being discharged into the bathing areas and swimming areas; or that high bathing density has created a condition which is or may be dangerous to the public health.

1,000 per 100 millimeter is considered as a guide requiring additional investigation, survey or special analysis necessary.

Chlorination of street drains emptying into the beach area limited and reduced the use of the Moon Island sewerage treatment plant and chlorination of this general area may have all attributed to the reduction of water pollution during the bathing period since the 1969 season.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health reduced the coliform count from 1,500 that was allowable in 1968 to 1,000 allowable in 1969. This action results in greater protection to the swimmers.

Old Colony Low Bidder On Street Improvements

The Old Colony Construction Co. of Quincy is the apparent low bidder for a city Public Works Department project to repair various streets in West Quincy and Quincy Point.

Bids for the Community Development Project, which were opened Tuesday, showed Old Colony Construction low at $29,955.20. The other bids were:

Auto Excise Delinquents Owe City $1 Million

By TOM HENSHAW

A large number of Quincy car owners face loss of their driver's licenses if they don't pay long overdue auto excise taxes, some of them going back three years.

The total due the city is close to $1 million dollars.

"We have started a push on them," said City Treasurer and Tax Collector Robert E. Foy III. "We have given warrants to the deputies and they are starting with the overdue bills from 1973."

Foy figures that about three-quarters of the million dollars is "collectable," that is, the bills are not duplicates and the owner of the car really did own it during the billing period.

"We'll give the deputies a couple of months to serve the warrants," said Foy, "and then we'll go to the registry to suspend their licenses."

"It used to be the registry could only pick up the plates but a law passed a little more than a year ago gives us more clout with the license."

The auto excise tax can bring in about $2 million a year to the city. It is figured on the basis of $66 per $1,000 valuation of the car, which decreases to 90 per cent in valuation after one year, 60 per cent after two years, 40 per cent after three, 25 per cent after four and 10 per cent after five where it remains for the life of the vehicle.

Quincy issues about 60,000 auto excise bills per year, averaging about $42-44 each, according to Foy.

"I've seen some as high as $600 on a brand-new $10,000 car," he says.

Trucks are included among the taxed vehicles.

"They are a great source of income for the city," says Foy, "particularly the fleets maintained by a company like Jordan Marsh. Truck prices are quite high."

Mayor, Council Agree To Cooperate In Central Garage Leasing

The Mayor and the City Council agreed Tuesday to cooperate in the leasing of a central maintenance garage but the lessor, Reardon Realty Trust, was still left waiting for the first month's rent.

"The Mayor's people apologized for a breakdown in communications on their part," said Councillor Leo J. Kelly after a Tuesday morning meeting between officials of the LaRaia Administration and four members of the Council.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, who was not present at the meeting, declined to call it an apology.

"My people were conciliatory," he told The Quincy Sun, "but not to the point subservience. As to an outright apology, why should anyone apologize? No one's done anything wrong."

"It's just a case of protocol with the City Council. Some of the members were upset that they were not in on the process every step of the way."

Mayor LaRaia signed a lease July 1 with Reardon Realty Trust to lease for one year at $62,955.96 a garage at 64 Field St. to serve as a central maintenance facility for city-owned vehicles.

But nobody told the City Council about it so Kelly, who is

Paine's Future At Hospital In Doubt

Harlan L. Paine's future as director of Quincy City Hospital was in doubt at midweek.

Paine, who has held the post since 1962 with only a verbal agreement, asked the Hospital Board of Managers for a three-year contract at a special meeting Tuesday night.

Said Edward V. Cronin, chairman of the Board of Managers, prior to the meeting: "I would say he doesn't have the votes for it and he knows it."

Cronin said Paine asked to have his bid for a contract placed on the agenda but the director gave no reason for the request.

Paine met with Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia at noon Tuesday and the Mayor said:

"I think after tonight things will develop at the hospital. If the board does not approve the contract it is obvious there will be some changes made."

"If Mr. Paine is not satisfied to stay without a contract then he must have some other irons in the fire. He is a man of ability and experience."

No Gas Station For Winter St.

Residents of Winter St., Quincy Point, can relax.

There is no gasoline station going up at 60-70 Winter St. It's all a typographical error on the part of the Federal Energy Administration.

The FEA isn't going to send out a correction but Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy] says he would "like to make the announcement public that the FEA made a mistake and that no gas station has applied for any license on Winter St. in Quincy Point."

It all started when J. R. Sousa and Sons filed an application with the FEA to store in excess of 125,000 gallons of gasoline per month at a retail sales outlet, otherwise known as a gas station.

The notice sent out by the FEA roused Cerasoli's curiosity when it listed the address of the station at 60-70 Winter St., a site currently occupied by homes.

The FEA told him, he said, that the correct address should be 60-70 Franklin St., the location of a gas station already operating under the name "Gasland".

"Lord knows," said a relieved Cerasoli, "that one thing we do not need more of in Quincy Point is gas stations."

Aug. 10 Deadline For Service Academies Applications

Congressman James A. Burke announces that the deadline for submitting applications for nomination to the U.S. Service Academies is Aug. 10.

The academies are the Naval, Annapolis, Md.; Air Force, Colorado Springs, Col.; Merchant Marine, Kings Point, N.Y.; and the Military Academy, West Point, N.Y.

"The academies offer an excellent education and the opportunity to serve as a Commissioned Officer upon graduation," Burke said.

Single men and women between the ages of 17 and 22 are eligible to apply. All applicants must be assured of high school graduation by June 30, 1977. Consideration is given to high school rank, performance on the Civil Service Designation Examination and the SAT, as well as leadership potential as demonstrated in high school extra-curricular activities.

Bunker Hill Lane To Be Paved

Residents of Bunker Hill Lane, an unpaved road in West Quincy, can look forward to a new asphalt roadway in the near future.

Senator Arthur H. Tobin and Rep. James A. Sheets announce the MDC has awarded a contract for 450 feet of bituminous concrete paving on Bunker Hill

For an application and further information on a Congressional nomination to one of the service academies, write Congressman Burke at his Washington office: 241 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

The John T. Botti Company of Dorchester, low bidder, is the contractor. Total cost of the project is $4,336.

Besides the roadway, specifications for the job include an apron up to the horseshoe court parking lot and the construction of a loam burrow which the MDC will plant with grass seed this fall.

Tobin and Sheets said the new asphalt cover is the result of numerous complaints by Bunker Hill Lane residents concerned with the condition of the roadway.

"Bunker Hill Lane was a dustbowl during dry weather and a mud hole when it was wet," Tobin said. "This new pavement should solve the problem."

Work on the paving project is expected to begin shortly.

chairman of the Council's Public Works Committee, asked City Auditor Charles Shea to hold up payments on the lease until it could be investigated.

The problem between the Mayor and the Council was settled Tuesday morning with the appointment of a committee, made up of two representatives of the Mayor and five City Councilors, to weigh the lease against renovation of the present Public Works garage.

"I will continue to hold up payment on the lease until the first meeting of the committee, possibly at the end of the week or the first of next week," said Kelly. "We must move quickly because there may be federal money available for the garage."

George Reardon of Reardon Realty Trust was reluctant to take action to force the city to pay the first months rent of $5,644.75.

"Obviously there has to be some accounting," said Reardon. "Just what it will be is anyone's answer. I held the property four months without negotiating pending the city's plan for a central maintenance facility. So far I've received nothing."

"It's no good dealing with people vindictively, whether they agree with you or not. If the so-called opposition uses this to hamstring the city of Quincy, who benefits then?"

Reardon explained the lease calls for the city to pay $62,955.96 a year for the property, including about 150,000 square feet of macadam surface between Field and Broad Sts. and a 10,000 square foot cement brick, steel frame building built in June, 1973.

The total breaks down to $2,800 a month in rent, $2,392 a month in taxes and $5,433 a year [$452.75 a month] in fire insurance. That part of the rent charged to taxes will be returned to the city, a yearly total of $28,704.

"What it boils down to is this," said Reardon. "We are renting to the city four acres of land, a new building and $60,000 worth of new equipment for $2,800 a month plus insurance. Any real estate man will tell you that is a fair and adequate situation."

Reardon disclosed that the administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon had entertained two offers to lease the property for a central maintenance garage. Both of them were made prior to June, 1975, and both fell through.

The first lease proposal called for the city either to purchase the property for $650,000 or rent it on a monthly basis for $3,750 with the city paying heat, utilities, insurance and taxes and an option to purchase for $690,000.

The second proposal called for the city either to purchase the property for $650,000 or rent it for $5,000 a month during a five-year lease with the city paying utilities and insurance, with a tax escalation clause and an option to buy for $750,000.

Marvelous Husband Helps

Q. I started getting interested in Astrology five years ago through a neighbor of mine. Something is troubling me and I would like some advice. I was born on June 25, 1936 in Roxbury, Mass. at 12:01 A.M. in the morning [Cancer].

I have undertaken many projects in my married life but none as big as the present one. I opened my own shoppe on December 1, 1970 and my husband is backing me in this venture and I am wondering if I will be able to make a go of it? He is a marvelously wonderful husband and father and we have been married for fourteen years even though some say Libra [he] and Cancer [me] would never make a good match.

M.J.B.

A. Obviously Sun Signs are no basis for judging compatibility. Only a complete horoscope comparison can be accurate. It may interest you to know that your husband's Sun in Libra was in your Seventh House which is the part assigned to the marriage partner. Not having stated your husband's birthdate the other planets, etc. on his birth date are not available for comparison, but fourteen years of a happy experience indicates they must have been favorable to yours.

On the date that you opened your shoppe, the planet Jupiter was in your Eighth House [partners and others money] in very favorable aspect to Saturn in your birth First House and Ruler of your Eleventh House [your hopes and wishes]. The Moon was also in your Eleventh House applying favorably to your Saturn and to Jupiter in the sky on that day.

Of course the stars don't do it for you since much depends upon what you do or do not do but on the whole it appears to have favorable prospects especially with your husband's help and advice. You are probably aware of your own shortcomings, one of which is that you must avoid negative thinking. Avoid doubts and day dreams. Think positively and Good Luck.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Taking Vacation Without The Children? Leave Phone Number(s) Where You'll Be

Most parents take an occasional vacation without their offspring, putting the children in the care of relatives or a baby-sitter.

There is often something missing, however, from the lists of phone numbers and instructions they leave.

"Hospitals, including emergency rooms, must have the consent of the parents before they can treat a child," says Gail Garinger, hospital attorney at Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston. "Few parents think to leave written authorization for consent." In a life or death emergency, of course, a hospital will treat the child even if the parents can't be located.

However, treatment of the less pressing crises that are emergency room staples, such as accidents or reactions to insect bites and poison ivy, may be delayed.

"If there are 10 possible places that the parents might be, we try all 10 even if it means calling halfway round the world," says Ann Walker, manager of immediate care services at Children's. If they can't be reached, the hospital administrator must be contacted to give the go-ahead for treatment."

Diagnosis and treatment can also be hampered if the person who brings a child to the emergency room doesn't know the child's medical history.

"For accurate diagnosis," says Dr. Lawrence Johnson, medical director of the emergency room at Children's, "a physical examination must be supplemented by the doctor's knowledge of things like what allergies the child has, what diseases he or she may recently have been exposed to or immunized against, what illnesses run in the family, and whether the child has a chronic condition or is taking medicine."

This information is especially important in cases where the examination reveals what may be an illness in its early stages or a previously undiagnosed problem.

For babies and very young children, it may be necessary to know whether the pregnancy and delivery were routine or unusual, what medicine the mother took, and whether the baby's development has been normal.

Sample authorization for consent forms and medical history forms are available free of charge from Children's Hospital. To obtain copies, send a self-addressed stamped envelope [and specify the number of copies you want].

Other activities include Junior Achievement, social events and community projects.

Madeline Shipsey Appointed To Hearing Board

Madeline Shipsey, Quincy director of Social Services at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, has been appointed to the Massachusetts board of the Advisory and Planning Group for the Education of the Hearing-impaired.

She will serve as representative of social work for the group, which acts in an advisory and regulatory capacity for the educational needs of Massachusetts hearing-impaired children and youth.

She holds a Master of Science degree from Simmons College, where she served as faculty advisor. She has also been associated with Boston College School of Social Work, and has instructed at Northeastern University. She is both a past president of the Massachusetts chapter of the Society of Hospital Social Work Directors, and former national board member of the Society.

Foreign Economists Visit Quincy Historic Sites

Some 40 home economists from around the world who are in the United States for a convention visited Quincy recently and were given a window tour of the historic points of interest.

The group was met at the Adams National Historic Site by Mrs. Rudolf Oberg, registrar of the Quincy Historical Society.

Their names in the guest book at the Adams Academy showed them to be from Korea, Australia, Norway, Great Britain, Ireland, Sweden, Canada, Switzerland and Finland.

MEDICAL TRAVEL DEDUCTION

Here are some tax deductions you can take for medical travel to and from doctors or hospitals.

If you use public transportation or a cab, you can deduct the actual cost of travel [including a tip for the cab driver]. Normally, you are not required to show receipts; a doctor's or hospital bill giving the date of the visit [and the address] is sufficient.

If you drive your own car, you can deduct either seven cents per mile or the actual cost of gas and oil. Until recently, claiming the mileage allowance usually provided a bigger deduction. But now, soaring gas prices make it worthwhile to check on whether you'll do better deducting actual cost. Note that parking fees and highway tolls are deductible in addition to the mileage allowance or the actual costs.

Example: Each trip from your suburban home to a downtown dentist involves a round trip of 30 miles and a $2.00 parking fee. In addition to the dental fee, you can deduct $5.50 [50 miles times seven cents equals $3.50, plus $2.00] for each visit.

DOES YOUR BANK INSURE YOUR SAVINGS IN FULL?

Quincy Cooperative Bank does! The fact is, our Cooperative Central Bank's Insurance Fund guarantees your money's safety by insuring it in full, with no limit to its amount. We do this by choice, not requirement. And Massachusetts Cooperative Banks are very proud of the fact that no depositor has ever lost a single dollar since cooperative banking began almost 100 years ago. We think we have the country's best coverage, a fact that's recognized as a banking model nationally and internationally. Insured savings is one of the services we offer in the spirit of Josiah Quincy, Jr., the founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts and the man for whom our bank was named. One other thing's sure about insured savings:

WHICH QUINCY BANK IS CLOSED SATURDAYS? HINT: IT'S NOT QCB.

At Quincy Cooperative Bank, we believe people should take vacations. Not banks. That's why we'll be open each and every Saturday all summer long. Because when you're trying to relax, the last hassle you need is to have your bank closed. So come in and cash a check. Or make a deposit in your savings account. Or do whatever banking you have to do. We're ready. Every Saturday at every Quincy Cooperative Bank office, from 10 A.M. to 2 P.M. (Braintree 9 A.M. to 1 P.M.). We know for certain ...

Ian Sheridan, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Sheridan of 260 Pine St., Wollaston, was one of 50 high school students chosen to take part in a five-week Student Science Training Program at Shippensburg, Pa., State College.

Sheridan, a senior at North Quincy High School, studied environmental problems, doing research in the areas of air, water, soil quality and land use at an upper division college level under professors from Shippensburg.

Sheridan also received a Harvard Book Award, given to an outstanding junior class boy; and the history prize awarded by the Quincy Historical Society to the outstanding high school student of history.

He was a representative to Mass Boys State, vice president of the North Quincy High School chapter of the National Honor Society and plays the viola in the Quincy Symphony Orchestra.

John Reynolds Completes Navy Recruit Training

Navy Fireman Recruit John P. Reynolds, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Reynolds of 240 Beale St., Wollaston, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Orlando, Fla.

During the eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Among the subjects he studied, were seamanship, close order drill, naval history and first aid.

A 1973 graduate of North Quincy High School, he joined the Navy in October 1975.

Airman James White Security Course Graduate

Airman James M. White, son of Mrs. Alice L. White of 36

Ringmaster Vitagliano will be assisted by Gail Griffin, Kevin O'Brien, Ruth Corcoran, Connie Silver, Sean O'Brien, Lori Ryan and Roxanne MacDonald.

Massive Electrification Project At Nesco

A "massive electrification" project is underway in North Quincy.

It is the installation of an overhead catenary [suspended between two supports] system in the model railroad that goes 'round and 'round in the window of the Nesco store at 423 Hancock St.

The system was designed and built by Jacob B. [Jake] Pike, proprietor of Nesco, to add a new dimension of realism to the big, multi-level steam and diesel layout already in operation.

Pike operates an authorized service station for Lionel trains and is equipped to repair vintage as well as new models. Nesco offers a complete line of Lionel equipment and a variety of other lines for both "O Gauge" and "HO" fans.

His special interest is in antique toy trains, many of which are on display at the store.

The operating layout, including the new catenary system, is on display Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m.

George Tull May Run For Mayor

By HENRY BOSWORTH

If you're trying to keep track of potential mayoral contenders, circle the name of Atty. George Tull.

The former chairman of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers, is telling friends he's thinking about running next year. And, he sounds very serious.

Tull actually has been thinking of it for the past several months. And what got him thinking about it was the negative image that was being projected from City Hall.

But the turmoil that the LaRaia administration had been involved in then seems to have subsided considerably since. In fact since the North Quincy High School issue was settled, a relative quietness has settled over City Hall.

But Tull reportedly is still quite serious about tossing his hat in. And he's got a few influential supporters.

WELL, YOU'D have to say that Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin is a pretty good presidential picker. And he's now having some fun ribbing his State House and City Council colleagues.

The night before the Massachusetts Democratic primary, Tobin endorsed Jimmy Carter for president. He had met Carter at the State House and recalls:

"He impressed me by his warmth and as a real down to earth guy with a message."

Meanwhile, Rep. Thomas Brownell had endorsed Birch Bayh. City Councillor Paul Harold was campaigning for Morris Udall. Councillors Dennis Harrington and Leo Kelly were gungho for Henry [Scoop] Jackson. Jackson took Massachusetts and Udall did well here. And Tobin took a ribbing then. But now Tobin is doing the ribbing. And to show them he's really a good sport he's "inviting them to take a ride on Air Force One".

CITY COUNCILLOR Paul Harold is spending his vacation studying at Oxford University, England. Taking a course in city-planning at a special summer institute there. Hmmm! Wonder if he's getting ready for an eventual mayoral bid?

THE QUINCY CENTER Business & Professional Association has made Mayor Joseph LaRaia an honorary member. He's the first to be so honored.

THE NAUTICAL STRANGER with the funny accent obviously had a problem.

He was in the marine supply shop in South Boston seeking a certain type of English-made swivel pins and the only ones available were located by telephone in Cohasset. But how do you get from Southie to Cohasset without a car?

That's where Leslie Brierley, retired Quincy banker and yachtsman, stepped in.

Brierley was in the store in South Boston to pick up nautical supplies, too, so he volunteered to drive the stranger to Cohasset for the swivel pins.

The man turned out to be Paddy Gordon of Cardiff, Wales, sailmaster, rigger and purser of the British racing boat Kukri, which was in Boston as part of the Tall Ships display.

"We spent about six hours together," says Brierley. "I took him around Cohasset and Quincy, showing him the sights. He told me, 'This was the nicest day I've spent ashore on the whole trip.'"

When it was over, Gordon presented Mrs. Brierley with an insignia of his ship and the Brierleys sailed out to the Kukri and gave members of the crew Tall Ships plates and booklets.

"It was one of the nicest days I've spent, too," says Brierley.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "The trouble with being a leader today is that you can't be sure whether people are following you or chasing you."

READER SPEAKS OUT

Thanks To The Poor Guy Who . . .

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Just had a few thoughts about thank yous, and was thinking about the poor guy who busted his or her duff and never even got recognition for the efforts.

I was thinking particularly of the people who knocked themselves out here at the Herron Street playground, and I must confess I watched them from my front doorstep. I saw the clouds, heard the thunder and saw the lightning. I got hit once by lightning in Rome, Maine one year and I'm a little gun-shy even yet. My bride reminded me of this as I saw the flashes in the distance. She also reprimanded me for standing in the open doorway.

However, when it did calm down a bit I took my nephew's daughter over to the festivities and bought three bucks worth of raffle tickets, and at least made the scene while I could still maneuver.

I saw Paul Harold, Tobin, Koch, Delmonico, and a few other pols, and they are to be commended for their efforts, as well as the others, but I couldn't help thinking of the other guys who would say over and over again: "If they think I'll come here next year and bust my duff, and not even be recognized, they got another thing coming, just wait, I hope one of them asks me right now, I'll tell him off," so I thought maybe...

Appreciates NQHS Track Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On behalf of my staff and all my athletes, I want to thank you and especially Tom Sullivan, very, very much for your coverage of North Quincy High School cross country, winter track and spring track during the past season.

I'm sure Mr. Sullivan's reporting was a factor in our three state championships, and the publicity was gladly welcomed by all the boys.

Your efforts were appreciated by all of us and I again sincerely want to thank you.

Tension Mounts As Sacco-Vanzetti Execution Nears

By TOM HENSHAW

Tension gripped Quincy and other Greater Boston communities as the execution date drew near for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, radicals who were convicted of murder in the 1920 slayings of a paymaster and guard in South Braintree.

Quincy Police Chief Ernest H. Bishop ordered extra guards posted around the powder magazine at Sheep Rock in West Quincy, and the watch was doubled on the aircraft carrier Lexington, which was abuilding at the Fore River Shipyard.

Members of the Granite Cutters International Association struck for one day to protest the executions and their president, Constanzo Pagnano, sent a telegram to Gov. Alvin T. Fuller asking clemency for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Martin Rico of the Sacco Defense Committee and Arturo Giovanetti, a New York newspaper publisher, addressed a mass meeting of granite cutters at Malnati Hall in South Quincy, Rico speaking in English and Giovanetti in Italian.

Quincy Police denied persistent rumors that 1,000 sticks of dynamite had been stolen from Robert E. Teasdale's magazine but they posted uniformed men at the main gate of the Boston Sewage System in Squantum at the request of Boston authorities.

'I Don't Feel Like A Carpetbagger'

McCarthy: Burke's Washington Clout Exaggerated

By TOM HENSHAW

Patrick Henry McCarthy, intense and boyish at the age of 30, outlined succinctly the voters' choice between him and Cong. James A. Burke, the 18-year veteran he is seeking to unseat in the Sept. 14 Democratic primary in the 11th District.

"The voter will have to weigh the individual good that Jimmy Burke has done for a lot of people against the incredible votes that he has been casting down in Washington," McCarthy told The Quincy Sun in an in-depth, tape-recorded interview.

He also raised the following points:

- The cost of living in eastern Massachusetts is the highest in the continental United States and several times in the past year and a half Burke has voted for bills that would raise prices of gasoline, milk, bread, meat and cotton.

- Burke's clout as second-ranking member of the House Ways and Means Committee is exaggerated since he has been unable to turn it into job-producing federal spending in the 11th District while congressmen with less seniority have been able to do so.

- McCarthy doesn't feel like a carpetbagger, even though he has lived in the district only since February, 1975, because he has lived, worked and studied in Massachusetts for 13 years and did not move to Randolph simply to run for Burke's seat.

A text of the interview, edited for clarity and brevity, follows:

THE SUN: What is the meaning of your slogan, "Old Values, New Blood"?

McCARTHY: Old value to me means roll-up-your-sleeves hard work; it means honesty and honesty is a real issue. I don't mean just against Mr. Burke. Honesty is an issue for any office holder or anyone who seeks to be in office. We're just constantly being let down. Traditional values often are overlooked in the political process or sublimated or sometimes subverted by the process itself. There is a constant erosion on an individual who is in the political process to maintain ideals. A lot of people go into office with ideals and after a while the process somehow begins to drag them down.

THE SUN: Does this happen to all officeholders?

McCARTHY: I would say viewing the 435 congresspersons in Washington that there are Congressman James A. Burke will be the subject of an in-depth Quincy Sun interview in a future issue.

about 140 of all different political parties and views that seem to me to be very sincere and hard working, that don't seem to get pushed around by the lobbyists, that don't seem to be living or dying on whether or not they are going to get re-elected. Their main concern is trying to service people and represent them as best they can without being tied down to any one interest. I would like to be No. 141.

THE SUN: How can you tell who'll keep his values and who'll lose them?

McCARTHY: This campaign process is an imperfect vehicle for assessing that, the quick handshake, look in the eye, move on to the next person, doesn't really lend itself to real judgement. You can look for background. You can look for sincerity of approach. You can look for those character traits that come out in a campaign, active than other human beings, and they tend to go with the herd. There's very few individuals.

Gerry Studds is effective. Veteran congressmen scoffed at his intent to pass a 200-mile limit bill. They said it couldn't be done. He went along and did it. The coalition he built wasn't a coalition of 300 congressmen who cared about flounder, herring, sole and haddock. Maybe 100 congressmen cared about showing those Russians, since we're talking mainly about Russian trawlers, so he got people from Montana and Idaho and Nevada who would go to From the incumbents view you can look to how the person has performed; whether or not he has seemed to stand with the special interests or whether he has seemed to stand independently of the process as much as possible.

For example, when I say I'm a Studds, not a Burke, I look at Gerry Studds as an effective individual. But I also think he's an independent individual. He's not a "go along to get along" guy. He still works within the system, and just to pass the 200-mile limit bill. What impressed me about Gerry was that when the Coast Guard budget -- the method of enforcement -- was slashed he fought successfully to have it restored and in the time honored process was awarded a Coast Guard station at Provincetown. He's not a club member but he's still effective.

THE SUN: How can you be effective and not be in the club?

McCARTHY: By having the respect of your peers. The club is a word that we used loosely for a minute. We have to narrow it down a little bit. The club is when you go in every day and take your marching orders and if your marching orders from the Speaker or the Majority Leader are contrary to the interests of your district you genuflect and do it anyway.

THE SUN: But if you refuse to take your marching orders, how do you get anyone to do anything for you?

McCARTHY: It's not that kind of thing. Nobody in the leadership will ever ask you to do anything that you feel would not be in the best interests of your district if you stand up and speak. A lot of congressmen get to Washington and they're very comfortable going along. Congress is no different than kids in a classroom. They're human beings, perhaps a little more aggressive and socially their constituents and say, "I voted for this bill because I think it's time we stood up to the Soviet Union." Did Gerry Studds care? No. It was another vote to preserve the haddock and the sole.

THE SUN: You've been quoted as saying, "Cutting the cost of living; that's what this race is all about. Is that the big issue?"

McCARTHY: We here in Eastern Massachusetts endure the highest cost of living in the continental United States. It has been that way for a while and it won't change whether I go to Congress or not. But it's also significant that Congress in the last year and a half has cast several votes that directly affect the cost of living. They voted whether or not to raise gas prices 23 cents a gallon in new taxes. There was a bill on whether or not to raise milk prices six cents a half gallon. They also voted on whether or not to raise meat, bread and cotton prices. On each of these votes all other local congresspersons, Studds, Heckler, Moakley, voted "no". Burke voted "yes" on each of those. Now let's analyze each of those votes.

THE SUN: Let's just take the gas vote.

McCARTHY: Okay. Congressman Burke voted to raise gas prices 23 cents a gallon. Only 72 other congressmen voted that way in the entire House. Their argument was that if we raised the price of gas it would cut down on the use of gas. Some people would say it was a courageous conservation vote. I would argue that since Congressman Burke voted against strong action against Detroit for manufacturing gas-guzzlers and giving them incentive to produce more fuel-efficient cars that his vote did not show a real commitment to conservation but rather showed a commitment to solve a conservation problem by putting the burden on the fellow who has to drive to work or take his family on a vacation.

THE SUN: Do you mean Burke deliberately sat down and said, "Now I'm going to stick it to the little people?"

McCARTHY: What I'm saying is that perhaps Burke did not think this out clearly as to what he was doing. You have to remember that Jim Burke was the only Massachusetts congressman in April, 1975, to vote to send U.S. troops back to Vietnam. Let me point out the relevance of this. If Jim Burke was willing to send U.S. troops back to Vietnam in April, 1975, when there was so much evidence to cause people to reject that position, how does he approach other matters where there is a lot less information available?

THE SUN: Are you implying Burke is getting too old to think clearly?

McCARTHY: No. No. But I certainly don't agree with the voting conclusions of his thinking processes on a wide variety of areas. And I don't think his votes represent the broad consensus of opinion in our district. I would say that the issue in this campaign is that the voter will have to weigh the individual good that Jimmy Burke has done -- and he's done a lot of that for a lot of people -- against what people are labelling incredible votes he's been casting down in Washington.

THE SUN: Busing. Is that a peripheral or a basic issue in the campaign?

McCARTHY: It's hard to say. Jimmy Burke voted for forced busing 14 times in a row. Then, a couple of years later, after the damage was done, the situation turned around and now Jimmy Burke introduces himself as some kind of anti-busing advocate. What I say to people is terse and concise. I say electing Pat McCarthy won't necessarily stop the busing but it will stop the lies. And I'm speaking very directly about Jim Burke and the way he's approached this issue.

THE SUN: But what does that mean to a woman whose kids are being bused and she's worried about it?

McCARTHY: I can't in good conscience tell the voters that electing me is going to stop it. I worked with Joe Moakley to bring to the floor of the Democratic caucus the only vote that ever took place on a constitutional amendment against busing. It was hard work just to force the vote. It was defeated 2-1. To pass it would have had to be passed 2-1 by both the House and the Senate and ratified by three-quarters of the states. That is not going to happen and to hold up my candidacy as a vehicle for something that's not going to happen would really run counter to what my whole campaign is supposed to be about.

THE SUN: Burke has been in Congress for 18 years. That gives him a lot of clout. How would a freshman congressman make up for that loss of clout?

McCARTHY: In many people's eyes, this is the heart of the campaign. Burke is the No. 2 ranking member on the House Ways and Means Committee. Al Ullman, of Oregon is the chairman. He is younger and has more seniority and is facing no real stiff re-election challenge.

There are 12 congressional districts in Massachusetts. Our district ranks 10th out of 12, according to statistics developed by Ralph Nader's Congress Watch, in job-producing federal spending. In other words, congressmen with far less seniority than Mr. Burke are receiving for their districts far more per person spending. What do I mean by job-producing federal spending? I mean public works, transportation, defense, space, technology and development contracts; things that produce jobs. What don't I mean? I don't mean veterans pensions; I don't mean social security money; things that depend on who lives here and what their situations are, not on how aggressively a congressman has pursued something. I would argue that if Mr. Burke were high up in the Armed Services Committee, which handles research and development contracts; or the Public Works Committee, which dispenses funds for bridges, roads and dams; or even the Appropriations Committee, then he could make a strong argument that being high up there would be important to the district.

What does Mr. Burke do? He's on the House Ways and Means Committee which writes our nation's tax laws. I don't envy the people who have to sit in the House Ways and Means Committee room surrounded by all the morried lobbyists with the bottles of Jack Daniels and the Redskins' tickets and the cigars. Day after day they're there. The average citizen can't take three days off to testify on a bill like the president of Exxon and the president of U.S. Steel. These people are here and they make decisions. Recently a public interest tax payers lobby ranked all the congressmen on the Ways and Means Committee according to how frequently they voted for the average citizen. The Democrats as a whole averaged 60 per cent. Jim Burke scored 33 per cent. He cast two out of every three votes against the taxpayer in favor of the special interest.

Finally, I would say that Tip O'Neill has pledged in public print that he is going to throw out the whole seniority system so our argument may be somewhat academic even though Mr. Burke keeps pumping it.

THE SUN: You're originally from California. You moved into the district in February, 1975. Doesn't that make you a carpetbagger?

McCARTHY: I've lived in

CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE Patrick H. McCarthy and his wife, Diane, moved into Randolph in February, 1975, but not, says McCarthy, just to run against Congressman James A. Burke in the 11th District.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

William Delahunt Candidate For District Attorney

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has announced his candidacy for election to the post to which he was appointed last September by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Delahunt, who lives at 43 Myopia Rd., Wollaston, with his wife and two children, is a former Quincy City Councillor and State Rep. He is a graduate of Thayer Academy, Middlebury College and Boston College Law School.

He was recently singled out by the Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of the 10 Outstanding Young Leaders for 1976 for his reform programs as district attorney.

"During eight months in office," he said in his announcement, "I have made significant changes in the office of the Norfolk County district attorney.

"For the first time in the history of this county, I submitted a budget request which was reduced by 35% from the previous year.

"Jobs have been eliminated and expenditures reduced so that I cut my budget from one approaching $3 1/4 million to under $2,000,000.

"I cut the budget this year and I look forward to making further reductions next year also.

"I am also pleased that legislation which I sponsored to make all assistant district attorneys full time in Norfolk County was passed into law.

"The legislation, first of its kind in Massachusetts, means that assistant district attorneys can have no private law practice and must devote full time to criminal prosecution.

"This office is now better prepared than ever before to prosecute criminal cases.

"Our legal staff, recruited from 500 applicants by a 12-member screening committee, is one of the top criminal law staffs in the Commonwealth; and they are producing results.

"In January, 1976, for example, there were 2,000 criminal cases pending in Norfolk County.

"In January, February and March, this office prosecuted almost 800 of those cases, of which over 90% resulted in findings of guilty."

Delahunt asserted that he has given the police of Norfolk County a more important role in criminal prosecution through a "priority process".

"Local police," he said, "are continually asked which cases are more important to their community in terms of severity and the particular needs of their town.

"If criminal violators are disruptive of the general peace and tranquility of a town their cases become "priority prosecutions."

Massachusetts for 13 years. I've been serving the people of the state in one capacity or another since 1970 when I went to work for Atty. Gen. Quinn while I was going to Harvard. I ran Cong. Moakley's offices, commuting back and forth from Boston and Washington. I was class president at Boston College in 1963-64-65. I don't feel like a carpetbagger. When I came back from Vietnam I had a choice whether to return to the East Coast or go back to the West Coast. There was no choice at all. I wanted to come back here. I like the people. I like the atmosphere. I intend to stay here.

THE SUN: You were working for Moakley when you moved into Randolph. Why Randolph? Why not somewhere in Moakley's district?

McCARTHY: It was never my intention to stay with Joe Moakley. Whatever I did I felt that, as an aide, the congressional experience really could be fully absorbed in two years. I happened to spend just shy of three years. What encouraged me to stay was the fact that Mr. Moakley was moved from the Banking and Currency Committee to the most important committee in the House, the Rules Committee. I felt this provided a unique learning experience in terms of how Congress worked.

THE SUN: Why Randolph? McCARTHY: The simple thing was I was looking for a house. I looked in many different areas. I was going down to Washington to get married. I didn't want to go down emptyhanded. The last day I was up here I was shown houses in Randolph. I got one.

THE SUN: Did you give any thought to Burke's possible vulnerability when you moved to Randolph?

McCARTHY: I knew that I was interested in going into politics at some point and at some level. I did not think I would be going into politics immediately or start by seeking a congressional seat. I didn't really start looking closely at Burke until a lot of people started joking around saying, "Well, now you live in Randolph..." I started looking closer and frankly what I saw in terms of his voting record and performance in Washington didn't square with the impression of the nice guy, affable, do-a-person-a-favor person that was up here.

THE SUN: You've said you plan to spend about $84,000 on your campaign. Isn't that a lot to run for Congress?

McCARTHY: No, it's not. It's limited compared to other successful campaigns. Studts spent close to $200,000. Moakley spent $180,000. No, it's not a lot of money.

THE SUN: What would you feel most comfortable spending?

McCARTHY: Between $10,000 and $120,000. We're penny pinching.

THE SUN: Where do most of your contributions come from?

McCARTHY: Average people who have met me at coffee hours. The media contribution is $10. The average contribution might be as high as $25 or $30.

THE SUN: What's the biggest one you've gotten?

McCARTHY: $1,000.

THE SUN: Who from?

McCARTHY: The president of College Town, a clothing place in Braintree. Actually $2,000 because his wife gave $1,000, too.

THE SUN: What does he expect for it?

McCARTHY: Good government.

THE SUN: Are you sure?

McCARTHY: Honest. He doesn't even know if I can win. But his wife does and she's my fund-raising chairperson.

THE SUN: Have you turned down any contributions?

McCARTHY: Yes. I've turned down all cash contributions. You can accept them legally under $100 but I've turned those down, too.

THE SUN: Why?

McCARTHY: Remember we talked earlier about staying honest? I think it's a day to day process. I think you have to set high standards. Equally sincere and sensitive people have gone down the tube dishonestly. You have to build positive pressures against it. One of the positive pressures I have built is a vow that I would not accept any cash during this campaign. I've lived up to it and sometimes it has hurt. A friend of mine who is in statewide office said to me, "The first time people deliver literature for you and it is a hot day and they are all standing by the soda plate and expecting you to pick up the tab and you don't have any money that will be the day you will start taking cash." Well, people have stood by and picked up their own tabs for sodas. I don't want to be corny but that's the way it is.

Harrington Blames Inefficient Management For County Hospital Deficit

Inefficient management at the Norfolk County Hospital is costing taxpayers nearly $1 million per year, charges Edmund P. Harrington.

Democratic candidate for Norfolk County Commissioner, he said that "inefficient" operation of the Braintree facility has resulted in a $3 million deficit over the last three fiscal periods.

Quincy, being the largest municipality and only city in the county of Norfolk, has to shoulder the largest part of the burden, he said. In fiscal 1973-74, Quincy taxpayers paid $70,318; in 1974-75 Quincy paid $115,066; and in 1975-76 Quincy was forced to pay $139,474.09 -- a total of $324,858.36 in just three fiscal years, he said. Harrington said he believes that the failure of the present County Commissioners to publicize and correct these deficits is a great disservice to the taxpayers of Quincy as well as to the other towns in Norfolk County.

"The present Board of Commissioners has sat idly by while the hospital's deficit has climbed from $650,000 in 1974 to $1.2 million this year," he said, "and trends indicate that next year's figure will be close to $2 million."

Harrington said he is convinced the hospital on Rte. 37 in Braintree could be operated in the black by varying the types of care provided.

"The existing building and staff have the potential to become self-sustaining," he said, "but the management, particularly the County Commissioners as trustees, has failed to take any concrete action to balance the budget."

Harrington said he believes a qualified consulting firm should be called in to determine the best ways to eliminate the deficit.

"Expansion into care for such long-term chronic diseases as terminal cancer, spinal cord injuries and alcoholism took Middlesex County Hospital out of the red," he said. "I see no reason why we shouldn't be able to do the same in Norfolk County."

"The Norfolk County Hospital should be restructured into a facility that will pay for itself. At the present time, the cities and towns are assessed for the deficit, and that adds to your tax rate."

Quincy Junior All-Stars Breeze To 2 Easy Wins

The Quincy Junior Baseball League all-star team breezed to easy wins in the opening rounds of the annual Greater New Bedford Invitational Tournament and was one of seven teams among 28 starters to advance to the third round in the double elimination event.

Quincy scored five runs in the first inning and went on to wallop Newton East, 13-1, in its first game.

Chris Baker led off with a walk, Mike McNeice singled and Tom Richards walked to fill the bases. Tom O'Connor doubled for two runs and Steve Pecewich walked to again fill the bases. Scott Matthews tripled to right to clear the bases for a 5-0 lead. Quincy added two runs in each of the next five innings.

O'Connor and Eric Swanson shared the pitching and allowed only four hits. McNeice, O'Connor, Reale, Matthews and Kyle Morton had two hits each.

Quincy then belted Brighton Padres, 11-0, in a game which was scoreless until the fourth when Quincy scored the winning run. It then exploded for five in the fifth and five more in the sixth.

Paul Earle pitched for Quincy. In the fourth O'Connor singled and came around on errors for the winning run. In the fifth Morton singled and went to third on Earle's single. McNeice, Richards and Reale reached and when the dust had cleared, Quincy had a 6-0 lead.

In the sixth Earle, McNeice and Reale singled, Morton doubled and Bobby Flynn hit a towering three-run homer to finish off the scoring.

McNeice, Reale, Morton and Earle had two hits apiece to pace the 10-hit attack.

Quincy will next face New Bedford Nationals when play resumes Saturday.

Wollaston Hosts Cohasset

The Wollaston Legion baseball team, using only players eligible next year, will meet Cohasset, which will do the same, in a three-game series next Monday, Wednesday and Thursday nights at 8 at Adams Field.

At 7 the first South Shore-North Shore all-star basketball game will be played.

Coach of the South basketball team is Gus Andrews of Catholic Memorial, a former North Quincy High standout.

One of his players will be North Quincy's Rich Mahoney, a high scoring guard.

North Quincy's Dave Burke is one of the South's football coaches and he will have four of his 1975 North players, fullback Matty Constantino, halfback Brian Doherty, safety Jack Brifield and end Cooper Jordan. Another South 'star' will be John Riggs, tight end from Quincy High.

Basketball School At Maritime Academy

The Championship Basketball School, of which Bob 'Knobby' Nolan, coach at North Quincy High for 11 years, is one of the directors, will open its second season for boys in grades 5 to 9 Aug. 8-14 at the Mass. Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay, camp for the world champion Boston Celtics.

High school boys will attend from Aug. 22 to 28.

Nolan, who retired as North coach following last season, has Buddy O'Neil of Harvard and Leo Tyrrell, U. of Georgia scout, as co-directors.

The staff is headed by Coaches Tom Sanders of Harvard, Jack Leaman of U. of Mass., Joe O'Brien of Assumption, Bob Zaffelato of

B.C., Dee Rowe of U. of Connecticut, Harvard Assistant Mike Jarvis and Holy Cross Athletic Director Ronnie Perry, who had fantastic success as coach of Catholic Memorial High.

Two of Nolan's North Quincy aides, Ed Miller and Paul Bregoli, are on the staff as are Gus Andrews, Catholic Memorial; John Barros, Foxboro; John Boutin, Northeastern University; Al Cattle, Bishop Stang; Dave Crook, Braintree; Dave Crow, Natick; Jack Dowd, Northeast Regional; Dud Davenport, Sharon; Rico Cabral, Mass. North Quincy Koch District Presents Awards

The North Quincy District of the Koch Club closed its 26th season of summer activities Tuesday with the Annual Awards and Parents Night at Cavanagh Stadium.

The Junior, Intermediate and Senior Division of the Boys Baseball Leagues received attendance certificates and trophies were awarded to the championship teams.

Started in 1951 at Cavanagh Stadium in North Quincy with 44 boys, the Koch Club Boys baseball programs have increased to 1,000 boys participating in the North Quincy, Broadmeadows, West Quincy and Montclair Districts this year, while the girls program formed in 1952 with 12 girls expanded to 700 girls playing softball this year.

Richard J. Koch, founder and executive director, was emcee at Tuesday's program. Gary DeMole, North Quincy district director, introduced the coaches and made the presentations.

Following the completion of the Awards Ceremonies, ice cream was provided to the participants.

A brochure on the Flag was presented as a gift from Captain Richard Stratton, U.S. Navy, who was guest speaker at the 25th annual Flag Day Parade and Ceremonies. A copy of the Congressional Record with the 25th annual Flag Day Parade and Ceremonies of the Koch Club was also provided with the compliments of Congressman James A. Burke.

The West Quincy, Montclair and North Quincy Districts have completed their season of summer activities while the Broadmeadows District closing ceremonies are scheduled for mid-August.

Good Government Forum Presents Check To Harvey's

The Quincy Good Government Forum presented Frank Locke, president of Harvey's Salt Water Fishing Club with a check for $150 for the club's annual fishing trip for hospitalized veterans.

The money was raised at a wine and cheese party at the home of Councilor Paul Harold.

The committee in charge of the wine and cheese party included Lyn Deady, Judith LeFort, Patricia McLaughlin, Jeanne Myett, Kathleen O'Donnell, Barbara Hawley, Frank Myett, David Kerman and Walter Madden.

Morrisette Has Back To Wall In Playoffs

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, Zone 6 champion for the 20th time, had its back to the wall as it met Walpole Tuesday night in the four-team sectional playoffs at Adams Field.

Morrisette, which wrapped up the zone crown with a 17-3 record, topped Wellesley Sunday night, 6-2, while Baintree edged Walpole, 1-0.

In the games Monday, Morrisette, trailing, 1-0, from the first inning, tied the score in the ninth but Baintree scored twice in the 10th for a 3-1 win to take the lead in the playoffs. Earlier Walpole had eliminated Wellesley, 12-4.

Morrisette had to win Tuesday or be ousted from the double elimination tournament. A win would eliminate Walpole and pit Morrisette against Baintree again Wednesday night. Baintree would clinch the sectional title with a win in that game but a Morrisette [or Walpole] win would necessitate the deciding game tonight [Thursday]. All action is at Adams Field.

The survivor will move on to meet the winner of the New Bedford-Rockland series.

Monday Morrisette's ace Tim Clifford and Baintree's Kevin

Buckley hooked up in a brilliant pitching duel. In nine innings Clifford allowed six hits, struck out 15 and walked three. Buckley, who went all the way, gave up just two hits, fanned 10 and walked four.

Baintree scored in the first with two outs. After the first two batters struck out, Jack Casali walked, went to second on a costly balk and scored on Buckley's single.

Clifford struck out the side in each of the first three innings. In the second he turned the trick with men on second and third and no outs. Morrisette loaded the bases in the first and again with one out in the fourth but Buckley worked his way out of it.

In the bottom of the ninth Morrisette finally tied it when Mike McCormack, batting for Jim Maze, walked, Mark Giordani batted for Clifford and reached on an error and Chuck LoPresti collected the first hit of Buckley to drive in McCormack.

John Wilkinson pitched in the 10th for Morrisette and Baintree loaded the bases on two walks and an error on a bunt. Casali then singled home the two winning runs. LoPresti's strong throw from center field nipped the runner trying to reach third.

Sunday Pat Gibbons pitched six-hit ball to top Wellesley for Morrisette. The West Quincy team was blanked for three innings but exploded for four runs in the fourth. Dennis McGuire started it with a triple and Dave Perdios, Paul Messina, Jim Roberts and Maze followed with singles. The team added two runs in the sixth.

Morrisette finished up the regular season in fine style with an 8-3 win over Cohasset which clinched the zone title and an 8-0 romp over Wollaston.

Six runs in the second sewed up the Cohasset win as Tim Clifford pitched seven-hit ball for his eighth win. Morrisette had eight hits but the only player with two was Paul Jackmauh.

The wildness of Wollaston's young pitchers made things easy for Morrisette in the finale as they issued 12 walks and the champs scored five runs in the sixth inning without a hit. Chuck LoPresti drove in three runs with a single and two walks, Jackmauh had a triple and Sal Coscia had a double.

John Wilkinson, making his first pitching start, went six strong innings of five-hit ball for the win and Ron Donovan finished up.

Purpura, Roche FB Winners

In the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club Lee Purpura and Rena Roche shot low gross of 42.

Lou Cugini and Pat Tehan had low net of 30, Bob Donoghue and Pat Cugini had second net of 31, Dick Corbin and Dolly Nogler third net of 32.

There was a three-way tie for

McCaffrey and Alice Pagnano, Tom Tehan and Marie Corayer, Matt and Dot Smith and George Clate and Edna Phelps.

In the weekly women's tournament, a nine-hole event with all irons, Mel Corbin had low gross of 49. Pat Cugini shot low net of 36, followed by Mary Morrissey, 37; Rena Roche, 38;

Jo Hinckley, 40; and Dolly Nogler, 42. Alice Pagnano had the least puts, 15.

Events will include men's singles, men's doubles, women's singles, women's doubles, junior girls singles and doubles and junior boys singles and doubles. Juniors are 16 and under.

Oilers Host R.I. Kings Sunday

High Field.

Oiler Coach Paul Crowley will be depending heavily upon former Quincy High quarterback Ted Meyer, who sparkied in the team's opening day 32-7 romp over Manchester, Conn. Riflemen. Meyer gained 81 yards in five carries, scored the last touchdown and also got off a fine 45-yard punt.

Another Oilers' key is Kevin Cotter, aggressive guard from Quincy who played his high school ball at B.C. High.

● Quincy Junior League

HN Legion Takes Lead In Playoffs

Houghs Neck Legion, American League champion, took the lead in the Quincy Junior Baseball League playoffs winning its first two games.

Going into this week's games HN was 2-0, Keohane's [National League winner] and Rotary 1-1 each and Sears 0-2.

The championship game was scheduled for Tuesday night.

Houghs Neck, which had earlier topped Rotary, defeated Keohane's, 6-1, as Tom O'Connor pitched a three-hitter and hit a home run. Marty McLaughlin hit his third playoff homer. Frank McPartland had three hits, McLaughlin two and Mike Notorangelo, Eric Green, Dick Comeau and Glen Oriola one each. Comeau's was a double.

For Keohane's Brian Reale accounted for the only run by a homer, Bob Mallory had a double and Scott Thompson a single.

Keohane's defeated Sears, 4-2, with Reale the winning pitcher. He allowed four hits and struck out 11.

John Balzano had a double and single, Tom Corliss a double and Reale and Thompson also had hits.

Paul Earle was the losing pitcher.

Duane Donates Flagpole For William Ryan Memorial

The John J. Duane Building Wrecking Co. of Quincy has donated a flagpole to be used at the site of the William F. Ryan Memorial to be located at the Blacks Creek Boathouse, Merrymount Park.

The late Mr. Ryan, a pioneer in recreation for the city of Quincy, expanded the boating and sailing program until it won national awards.

In addition, the site will contain a large natural boulder with a proper inscription honoring the former director of recreation.

The dedication ceremony is planned for Sunday, Aug. 15. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, a former employee of the recreation department and a long time friend of Mr. Ryan will be the guest speaker.

A recent meeting of the committee was presided over by City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond. Other members attending were Gerard A. Coletta Jr., vice-chairman of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board; Francis F. Anselmo, a board member representing the school committee; Park-Recreation Board Executive Secretary Richard Koch; Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers; assistant directors Frank Brillo and Barry Welch, Earl Vermillion and Lionel Buckley of The Quincy Recreation Department.

Merrymount Beach Dedication For 2 Vietnam Soldiers

A section of Merrymount Beach will be dedicated Saturday [Aug. 7] in memory of Spec. 4/c James M. Walsh and Spec. 4/c George W. Underwood, two young soldiers from the neighborhood who died in Vietnam.

The dedication ceremony, sponsored by the Merrymount Association, will follow an anniversary Mass for Walsh at 9 a.m. in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Members of the Houghs Neck

Legion Post will serve as color guard and the guests will include Mayor Joseph J. LaRai, Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, City Councillor Leo J. Kelly and the Rev. Robert V. Meffan.

S.Quincy Civic Association

To Hear Hedges, Discuss MBTA

The South Quincy Civic Association will meet Tuesday, Aug. 10 at 7:30 p.m. at Walter Scott Hall, 34 Franklin St.

Speaker will be former Norfolk County Sheriff Charles Hedges who will also answer questions from the audience.

Also on the agenda is a discussion of the proposed South Quincy MBTA Station, announces Ernest Aristide, president.

Plans are being formulated to complete the official dedication and naming of the new park at Water-Pleasant Sts. The unit UFO committee [Unidentified Flying Objects] will report to the membership.

Raymondi Seeks Traffic Changes

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has requested that traffic signals at the intersection of Verchid and Franklin Sts. and Kendrick Ave., South Quincy, be changed from a flashing pedestrian light to a full-time red and green signal.

Said Raymondi in a letter to Edward Lynch, superintendent of Traffic Signs and Signals:

"I have received numerous complaints from residents in the area who feel that the lights in their present condition are not serving a useful purpose.

"Hopefully this change will make the intersection a safer one and one that will enable Vehicular and pedestrian traffic to flow more easily."

Pearce: 'No Time For Stalling'

S. Quincy MBTA, Flood Control Upland Rd. Extension Projects Urged To Get Going

By TOM HENSHAW

"This is not the time for stalling tactics," said Charles A. Pearce. "It is time to get going - now."

"Inevitably, it is going to happen, with or without our input. Both pros and antis had best forget their differences and combine forces to see that we get what is best for Quincy."

Pearce, who is president of the Quincy Savings Bank and a prime mover in Progress for Downtown Quincy (PDQ), spoke from the audience last week during a meeting of MBTA officials and local businessmen and political figures in the South Shore National Bank's conference room. The meeting was called by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Quincy Business Council chaired by Andy Walsh.

The discussions dealt chiefly with the Town Brook Flood Control Project and the Upland Road Extension, two issues peripheral to the South Quincy MBTA station, which Pearce called "inevitable."

Periodic flooding of Town Brook, which runs through the area of South Quincy in which the MBTA station and a 2,000-car parking garage is to be built, is one of the chief reasons the station is opposed by local residents.

A plan by the Army Corps of Engineers to control Town Brook has been in the works for several years. It would be made even more urgent with the building of the station that would aggravate the flooding problem.

"We can't postpone work on Town Brook for three years until the station is finished," said City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi. "If the construction is done and no work is done on Town Brook there will be an astronomical problem."

Raymondi, whose Ward 2 encompasses the area of the proposed station, is also a member of a five-person group appointed by Mayor Joseph J.

LaRaia to explore the possibility of a last ditch legal fight to kill the station project.

Initial contracts for construction of the MBTA's Red Line from Quincy Center to South Braintree have already been signed and the Urban Mass Transportation Administration has granted $21 million to build the South Quincy station.

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy] told the meeting that the long and tenacious opposition to the station on the part of Quincy officials and South Quincy residents has resulted in increased commitment to flood control by the state and federal governments.

Cerasoli said the final report by the MDC on the Town Brook project should be in the hands of the Army Corps of Engineers early next month and that Col. John H. Mason of the Corps has assured him he will recommend an early start on the work.

It is possible that Congress could appropriate the money [$20 million] next year and the flood control project would be completed before the MBTA station is built and the Upland Rd Extension is finished, Cerasoli said.

Quincy Planning Director L. Norman Lundin was not so optimistic about the Upland Rd Extension, which is designed to provide direct access from the Southeast Expressway in South Quincy to the downtown Quincy business district.

Since the extension will be tied in to the ramp system that will lead from the Expressway to the station, a number of businessmen at the meeting

LaRaia To Visit Neighborhoods

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has announced that starting next month he will make monthly visits to each of the city's neighborhoods to discuss issues and problems of special interest to their citizens.

The visits will be made on the second Tuesday of each month to predesignated locations.

seemed to feel that it would be part of the station-garage-ramp package.

"That's not so," said Lundin. "The ramps and the station are part of the package that the MBTA and the State DPW put together. The Upland Rd Extension is a city project which should be planned along with the other two."

"From a planning point of view it is best that Town Brook, Upland Rd, and the South Quincy station be integrated."

If the Extension is built concurrently with the ramps and station and "even if everything went right," said Lundin, construction could take as long as five years, adding, "I take the pessimistic view."

Jack Leary, the MBTA's project manager for the South Quincy station, told the businessmen that the station and ramps should be finished in three years.

Lundin said he is prepared to go forward with an Upland Rd Extension that would parallel the MBTA tracks from Quincy Center, then follow Penn St. to connect with the Expressway ramps as soon as the city gives the word.

"In the next two or three weeks we'll know what direction the city is going to take," he said.

Meanwhile, Mayor LaRaia said his anti-MBTA committee will meet within a week to discuss what it has come up with in the way of legal barriers that can be thrown in the way of the South Quincy station.

He said the committee would also have some input into the naming of a task force to cooperate with the MBTA in the South Quincy plan "since they are cognizant of problems in this area."

MAYOR LARAIA

"This is politically motivated..."

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council will hold a special meeting tonight [Thursday] at 6 p.m. to consider appointment of a "blue ribbon" committee to investigate certain appointments by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

The committee, proposed by Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, would also entertain the possibility of a change in the city charter to give the City Council the authority to review and confirm mayoral appointments.

The move came in the wake of disclosure that Daniel F. McGinley, who resigned Saturday only five days after LaRaia appointed him Cemetery Superintendent, had been under indictment for two years on two criminal complaints in Suffolk County.

Aftermath To McGinley Resignation

Raymondi Seeks 'Blue Ribbon' Committee To Probe 3 LaRaia Appointments

Raymondi also told a special meeting of the Council Tuesday night that McGinley was also the owner of Dan's Foodland, a store in Boston, that was the subject of an investigation by the Boston Finance Committee.

Raymondi said the Finance Committee reported to Mayor Kevin H. White that Dan's was a major supplier of footstuffs to the Suffolk County Jail which menus showed was not used to feed inmates although that was the purpose for which it was purchased.

The Councillor from Ward 2 also recalled two earlier LaRaia appointments who resigned after serving only briefly in their posts.

One of them, said Raymondi, was given a suspended sentence to the House of Correction for larceny and attempted larceny while the other resigned after the City Council refused to pay his salary.

"There are two issues," said Raymondi. "One, is the Mayor properly interviewing and screening applicants for jobs and, two, is there an all out effort being made to cover up the embarrassing facts."

"We ought to know where these people are coming from. Who is selecting them? Who is interviewing them? What kind of screening is going on? Are they being checked out by the police? Has the Mayor withheld information to avoid embarrassment?"

Raymondi noted that two long-term employees of the Cemetery Department Joseph Veloz and Tony Bruce, were passed over when McGinley was appointed. Veloz, acting superintendent for two years, has 29 years service and Bruce 24.

"This appointment," he said, "was purely political with no regard to quality, background and the individual's integrity."

"In his inaugural address last January, the Mayor called on all citizens to be ever vigilant and question each of his acts. Tonight I'm doing just what the Mayor called on me to do."

McGinley, 57, of 85 Sonoma Rd., Squantum, is scheduled to go on trial Sept. 20 in Suffolk Superior Court on charges of making false entry in a cash disbursement book and larceny of more than $100 as manager of Folsom's Market in Roxbury.

The indictments were handed down by a Grand Jury in 1974 and McGinley pleaded innocent to both charges during preliminary hearings in January and February, 1975.

"As far as I am concerned, whatever develops in this case is politically motivated," Mayor LaRaia told The Quincy Sun prior to the City Council meeting.

"It is just a continuation of the depth of feeling of some critics who seek to victimize any individual in order to get at my administration. I can accept criticism and difference of opinion. But I am also aware of when criticism becomes political.

COUNCILLOR RAYMONDI

"Is there an effort to cover up..."

"I have done nothing wrong but they just can't let a situation go by without making an attempt to get their hooks into Joe LaRaia."

"I have acted quickly and immediately to erase any cloud of suspicion that might hang over Mr. McGinley and this administration by releasing him after I became fully apprised of charges that had been pending for two years in a court outside this county."

"Out of consideration to him and his health I accepted his [Cont'd on Page 9]

TRULY GIFTED

Q. July 11, 1947 at 3:33 P.M. in Medford, Mass. was my birth date. I am interested in anything that you have to say about me. Since teaching is my profession I am wondering if I am particularly gifted in this area? Emphasize my good points!

G.C.

A. Undoubtedly you are a very efficient young lady, with the planet Jupiter in the Sign of Scorpio exactly on the Ascendant and in very favorable aspect to your Sun and Mercury. You are extremely sensitive to external conditions which gives you a certain insight into the desires of others and in combination with your excellent intellect and fine memory, you should be quite successful in life.

Your Mercury-Jupiter aspect indicates benefit from your education and fits well into an academic career. I am sure you are fully aware of all this and much more since you are truly gifted.

However, none of us are entirely perfect and if I may, I should like to make a suggestion or two. Try not to take things so personally, that is, do try to dissociate yourself from things and you will find that your feelings will not be hurt so often. Also avoid impulsive expression of your feelings although you may believe that you are expressing your thoughts.

You have considerable creative ability and, with your remarkable personality and personal magnetism, you should have success in influencing others. Opportunities should be open to you through most of your life.

You will need to be discriminating in your choice of friends or you may attract to yourself some who are peculiar, unreliable or troublesome and who may try to take advantage of you.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Wanted: Women Who Remember Fight For Suffrage

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Norfolk County Committee to Ratify the Equal Rights Amendment will hold a celebration Thursday, Aug. 26 to honor women who participated in the passage of the 19th amendment giving women the right to vote.

Women who remember the fight to ratify the amendment are asked to help the Mayor's Commission to compile a history of the women of Quincy and the South Shore.

On the 56th anniversary of the passage of the then controversial amendment, the Commission hopes to reaffirm women's commitment to participation in government.

Women with information about the suffrage movement during the early 1900's are asked to contact Rhonda Merrill at 773-1380.

STAMPING OUT MENTAL ILLNESS

Neglect and isolation. For years this was the fate of too many emotionally disturbed Americans in institutions. Then, medications discovered in the 1950's and 1960's opened the doors of mental institutions and let thousands of patients go home. But long-term follow-up care remained a dream for most. To spread the availability of mental health care, Congress a decade ago, launched a program for a nationwide string of mental health centers funded by federal money. Centers have since grown to 600 in all 50 states and have treated more than one million patients.

Every center must take a certain percentage of patients who cannot afford to pay. For a copy of the latest directory, giving the names, addresses of the centers nearest you, write to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C. 20402, and request by stock number 017-024-00449-9. The charge is 75 cents per copy.

Today's Women

Moving To Bangor, Me.

Joyce Baker Leaving Quincy, Honored At Farewell Luncheon

Mrs. Joyce Baker of Wollaston, active in political, educational, and historical circles in Quincy, was honored at a farewell luncheon last week at Hugo's, Cohasset.

She and her husband, Lawrence, will move to Bangor, Me., soon to begin a new business.

Born in Maine, Mrs. Baker moved to Quincy 13 years ago from Middleboro where she lived for three years.

During her years in Quincy, she served as chairman of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus, president of the Women's Federation, the League of Women Voters, the Quincy Women's Republican Club, and the Wollaston School PTA.

She also chaired the house committee for the Quincy Historical Society.

Mrs. Baker worked for former mayor Walter J. Hannon's campaign for state representative, and campaigned for the fourth Norfolk District seat herself in 1974.

She will attend the Republican National Convention in Kansas City next week, as a Ford delegate. Her husband will also attend.

During her term as chairman of the South Shore Women's Political Caucus, membership tripled and the caucus held meetings with women in the state legislature and representatives of presidential candidates during the primary election.

The caucus also held workshops on the meaning of political process and an information session on the Equal Rights Amendment.

With mixed emotions about leaving Quincy, Mrs. Baker said at the luncheon, held by the South Shore Women's Political Caucus, "I will never forget the warmth and support of the people I've met here."

The women at the luncheon presented her with framed sketches of United First Parish Church and the Adams Mansion as a memento of her years in historic Quincy.

'A Celebration Of Women' A Tribute To Abigail Adams

Quincy Heritage, Quincy's bicentennial program, has been asked to participate in "A Celebration of Women", a daylong dedication to the founding mothers' at historic Faneuil Hall, Boston, Aug. 26 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The program will highlight Abigail Adams whose plea, "Remember the Ladies" to husband John as he prepared to leave for the Continental Congress in 1775, is the theme for Women's Equality Day, Aug. 26.

Among the scheduled

speakers are Carol Burris, founder and president of Women's Lobby Inc. of Washington, D.C. and Florynce Kennedy, well-known feminist.

Abigail Adams T-shirts and buttons, especially made for this program by Ramona Barth, an active feminist and organizer of the Women's Day program, are on sale at the Quincy Heritage Visitor's Center.

Women and women's groups interested in participating in the Faneuil Hall program should contact Jacquelyn Bangs at Quincy Heritage.

Mary Vallier Appointed To National Mental Health Committee

Mary Lawson Vallier, R.N., M.S., of 84 Glendale Rd, Quincy, has been named by the National Institute of Mental Health to the Select Committee on Psychiatric Care and Evaluation for the Defense Department. The committee will assist in the areas of Quality Assurance and Utilization Review.

She will participate on a panel of consultants to develop criteria which will be used to assess the quality of care given to alcoholic patients under the Office of Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services [CHAMUS].

Mrs. Vallier is the clinical director of the South Shore Alcoholism Clinic without Walls, 77 Parkingway, Quincy. She is also a member of the Council of Advanced Practitioners of Psychiatric and Mental Health Nursing.

Whitwell St. Playground Cleaned Up, To Remain Open

The Whitwell St. Playground has been cleaned up and the damaged equipment repaired and will not have to be closed, announces Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board.

Closing of the facility was recommended three weeks ago by Recreation Director Robert Beniers, citing vandalism and minimal use, but the move drew enough protests from nearby residents to reach the ears of City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.

Koch reported the following results to Lydon:

"In the wooded area adjacent to Mason St. in the rear of the Whitwell St. Playground site, a Park Department work force of temporary employees, under supervision, was assigned to cut and remove the heavy undergrowth, raise the trees by removing lower branches and to perform a general cleanup of any glass, bottles, cans and debris in the area.

"The completion of this work

Raymondi Seeks S. Quincy Truck Restriction Study

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has requested a study of the feasibility of restricting trucks and other commercial vehicles on Hughes, Lurton and Pembroke Sts., South Quincy.

Raymondi noted in a letter to Capt. Roy Cavicchi, chairman of the Traffic Commission, that some of the trucks using the streets are so large they break off tree branches and pose a hazard to youngsters playing in the residential area.

"I am going to introduce a City Council resolve requesting the Traffic Commission to study the feasibility of restricting commercial vehicles from these streets," said Raymondi.

Gerald Nobile Named To Board Of Registrars

Gerald Nobile of 102 Brook St., Wollaston, has been appointed Democratic representative on the Board of Registrars of Voters by Mayor Joseph J. LaRais, replacing the resigned William Scherer, who is moving out of state.

Nobile, operator of the Nobile Sporting Goods Co., is the second in his family to serve on the board. His late father, Vincent, was a member from 1967 to 1971.

project was performed during the week of July 26 and the total result was a beautiful tree grove with excellent visibility for police patrols in the area or parents allowing the children to and from the playground with the youngsters in sight.

"Past years have proved much more burdensome in the loitering aspect at the above designated playground facility, with boisterous teen-age gangs drinking during the evening hours, thus annoying the neighboring residents.

"When the playground was first constructed a number of years ago, the Little League baseball chain link backstop was vandalized; however, this year the only indication of vandalism was the slide, where the hand rails were missing, and during the thinning out and cleanup, both were found and were welded in place rather than the bolt type arrangement used previously.

"The general condition of the area is good with the playground fixtures in excellent condition.

"The Park Department carpenter has repaired the fence abutting the Whitwell St. entrance to the area, installing tie wires and securing the loose chain link. Plans are also underway to repair the chain link backstop at the ballfield by erecting a post to replace the missing one and installing and securing new chain link wire; completion of this will provide a total playground facility.

"A basketball court is located at the Cranch School yard, close by, serving those wishing to enjoy that specific activity. It has been found that separating facilities used by various age groups is appropriate on occasions. Some teen-agers tend to bully younger children if all recreation facilities are together oftentimes discouraging the youngsters from playing at the playground where teen-age activities are close by.

"The old foundation has been filled, eliminating a hiding spot and in compliance with a directive of the Park and Recreation Board, a sign will be erected 'Whitwell Street Park'."

Delegation Goes To Washington Seeking PW Funds

A delegation of city officials went to Washington Tuesday to get Cong. James A. Burke's advice on landing some $2 million in federal funds available under a public works and employment bill passed by Congress over President Ford's veto.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRais was to have headed the delegation but he chose to remain in Quincy to oversee possible cleanup of debris left from an expected visitation by Hurricane Belle, a visit that was narrowly missed.

Nevertheless, said the Mayor, "I intend to get every penny Quincy is entitled to under this act."

The delegation included City

Councillor Leo J. Kelly, Public Works Commissioner Vincent LoCicero, Planning Director L. Norman Lundin, City Auditor Charles Shea, Downtown Development Coordinator Paul Anderson and Arthur Casey, the Mayor's administrative aide.

They had a morning meeting scheduled with Burke and afternoon sessions slated with Sen. Edward W. Brooke and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

That's what our depositors received in interest for the year ending April 30th, 1976. We're very pleased about that, because that represents growth for our customers' savings, and for Quincy Cooperative Bank.

More and more people are opening accounts with us every year. There are good reasons for that — the kind of reasons that makes QCB the bank that reflects the beliefs of Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and the man for whom our bank was named. We hope that at the end of our next fiscal year, we'll have laid out $10,000,000 in interest to our depositors. We'd still smile, and we also know for certain...

EDITORIAL

S. Quincy Station: Let's Get Moving

Regardless of how you may feel about it, the South Quincy MBTA station is going to be built.

Opponents can continue to argue and work against it but that will not change the fact that there is going to be an MBTA station in South Quincy.

Both sides have been heard on the issue. The green-light has been flashed and the construction funded.

Now is the time for both sides to come together—and work together—to assure that Quincy gets the maximum benefit it can from the project.

This is a mammoth undertaking that includes not only the South Quincy Station and garage but the Upland Road extension and—just as important—involves an area which has had a serious flooding problem.

Now is the time to make certain the construction work is done the way Quincy wants it and that the flooding conditions are not worsened—but corrected.

This is no time for political grandstanding. It is time for political guts.

Any politician [or anyone else] who now pops up with some kind of delaying tactic may look at first like a hero to MBTA opponents. But he is really just being a politician.

He's kidding himself and he's kidding those who think he's Sir Gallahad on a white charger. What he's really doing is counting votes for himself—taking advantage of a controversial and emotional issue.

Because, deep-down inside, he knows the South Quincy MBTA station is inevitable. He may succeed in delaying construction but he cannot stop it.

And if he succeeds in delaying construction, what good is it? All he has done is raise the final price tag on the project. It will cost more when it is finally built and the taxpayers—including the opponents—will have to dig deeper into their pockets to pay for it.

Now is the time for city and state elected officials to help bring opponents and proponents together to be sure the South Quincy station, Upland Road extension and the Town Brook flood project are done "Quincy way."

Now is the time for political guts—and unity.

An informational meeting was held by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Quincy Business Council last week. In attendance were MBTA, city, state officials and members of the Quincy business community.

Rep. Robert Cerasoli, one of the early opposition spearheads, stressed that the Town Brook flood control project should have top priority.

He noted that much of the opposition to the South Quincy station was because of the flooding problems.

We agree that the flood control project is a priority must. It has got to be done before or during—but certainly not after construction of the station and Upland Rd. extension. Anyone who has ever had the terrifying experience of flood waters rushing into their homes and being helpless to stop it, would agree.

Perhaps the best overall summation of the entire project came from Charles A. Pearce, president of the Quincy Savings Bank representing the Progress Downtown Quincy business group. Asked for comment, he replied:

"Both the pros and the antis had best forget their differences and combine forces and see to it that Quincy has some input into it. [The South Quincy station project]. Inevitably, it is going to happen with or without our input.

"This is no time for stalling tactics. It is a time to get moving—now!"

We urge proponents, opponents and elected officials to do just that. Get moving—together. Now!

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS

With mass transit, the advantage is we don't worry about broken water pumps or tires that are going bald.

Nobody in modern times has matched Jimmy Carter's achievement of gaining a presidential nomination with so few commitments. That ain't peanuts in politics.

Hot air is free at a political convention but can get expensive if delegates choose to adopt it.

More effort seems devoted to finding the Loch Ness monster than in picking a vice presidential candidate.

A number of good congressmen may suffer for the hi-jinks of a few.

Mr. Kissinger's critics should be happy about one thing. He's out of the country a lot.

READER SPEAKS OUT

President Ford A Lefty, Too

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Has no one questioned you about the small cartoon on the bottom of Page 10 in the issue of July 22?

I thought President Ford was a lefty.

One of my daughters is left-handed so I have always had an interest in this biological oddity.

I still like the Sun as you always have so many articles of news that the Ledger does not.

Charles L. Murphy
122 Everett St.,
Wollaston

The cartoon is a syndicated "filler." Either the artist isn't as observing as Mr. Murphy or it was drawn before Ford became president.]

Cerebral Palsy Thanks RSVP Volunteers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

So many times we take for granted all the things that are done for us, and we at Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc. will never be able to give enough thanks to all the R.S.V.P. volunteers who for the last three weeks have donated hours on end to help us on a fund raising affair which is to be held some time in September.

Whatever was asked of them they did, and speaking for myself, not only did they put "youngsters" to shame, but they also taught us the true value of the meaning of the word "sharing." This has been my first experience working with Senior Citizens, and speaking for myself, I can only say to the ladies of R.S.V.P. - God bless you and thank you all for helping to make our fund raising affair the success we hope it will be.

It was my privilege and pleasure to have been associated with you all and I am looking forward to working and being with you again in the near future.

A special thanks again to the following ladies: Grace Smith, Marion Gorberg, Angelina Davenport, Adeline McGlone, Margaret Willard, Dorothy Groezinger, Helen Mosher, Margaret Bowen, Grace Parrotta, Isabel Tirrell and Mildred Moller.

Parking And The Privileged Few

By HENRY BOSWORTH

I have a pet peeve.

It's the apparent privileged character who can park his car under a "No Parking" sign, on a cross-walk or even on the sidewalk and not get tagged.

How come?

You'll see cars like that along Chestnut St., on Hancock St., on Maple St. and at the corner of Hancock and Maple Sts. in the downtown area almost any day of the week. Take a look.

Then trot down to the Hancock Parking area and see the cars down there tagged at expired meters.

Seems the motorist who leaves his or her car beside an expired meter is committing a dastardly crime.

But the privileged few who find a space on the street that doesn't have a meter can almost commit any parking violation and get away with it. Doesn't make sense.

You can imagine how frustrated and angry a shopper must feel to get a $2 tag in the Hancock Parking area then go over to Quincy District Court to pay the fine. And on the way pass illegally parked but untagged cars on Chestnut St.

Maybe that's why some shoppers don't come to Quincy as often as they once did. Or no longer come at all.

The streets in the downtown area are beginning to get clogged by illegal parkers.

How about a little consistency? Owners of cars illegally parked on streets are more serious violators than those in the parking areas. They cause congestion and accidents.

We somehow seem to have made the meter parker violator Quincy's Public Enemy No. 1 and let others do just about as they damn please.

QUINCY'S THREE BIG game hunters—City Solicitor Tom Williams, mayoral Executive Secretary Jack Salenius and Roger Hamel, the funeral director, are taking quite a ribbing.

The trio went bear hunting up in the wilds of Millenocket, Me., on the Canadian border. They were flown deep into bear country. And from the plane they spotted quite a few bears.

But once the plane landed, the bears disappeared. They didn't get close to even one. But the mosquitos got close to them. And all they came back with were mosquito bites.

FAMILY AFFAIR: We've noted earlier that Mary Pickering, Miss Quincy Bay of 1976, is the daughter of Miss Quincy of 1957 who won that title as Mary Joyce. But we now learn that this year's winner is also the cousin of Patricia Kelley who was Miss Quincy Bay in 1973.

DANIELLE deBENEDICTIS, Independent candidate for Congress in the 11th District, has opened her Quincy campaign headquarters at 4 Maple St., Quincy Sq. Phone number there, if you're seeking information, is 479-8272.

CHARLIE ROSS, WJDA announcer, has his left arm in a sling. Suffered a fracture in a fall down stairs. Did you know, by the way, that Charlie is the grandson of late Quincy Mayor Charles Ross and the son of Norfolk County Assistant Registrar of Deeds Charles Ross?

NAME DEPT: Mrs. Pat Knox of Colby Rd., North Quincy, is receiving "congratulations" from friends for her "appointment" as Jimmy Carter's Massachusetts campaign coordinator. Actually, of course, in line for that job is Mrs. Patti Knox of Detroit. Pat Knox of North Quincy is campaign coordinator for John McIntyre, running for state representative in the Third Norfolk District. Muses Pat, politically making the most of the similarity in names: "Thanks Jimmy, but I'm committed to John McIntyre."

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist and author says he had a good day at the golf course. Found three golf balls.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Lawyer Needed For Small Claims Court?

"Do I have to have a lawyer to sue in small claims court?" a worried Danvers man recently asked the Voter Information Phone.

"No," replied the ViPhone volunteer. Small claims court is a "people's court" designed to settle everyday consumer disputes in Massachusetts of up to $400. You are not required to have a lawyer to sue or be sued in small claims court. You may speak for yourself and present your own evidence.

This question is one of many now being received by the Voter Information Phone, a statewide free public service of the League of Women Voters Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund. Individuals with questions about government - local, state, or national - may call the ViPhone Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880; callers elsewhere in Massachusetts should dial 1-800-882-1649, toll free.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

Aug. 12-18, 1954 - 22 Years Ago This Week

It Was Protest Time

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy folk were of a mind to protest.

More than 75 residents of the Wollaston Beach area met in the Wollaston Unitarian Church Hall to register disapproval of a license granted to Darwin Molino of Somerville and his brother, Mario, of 25 Winthrop Ave., Wollaston, to open a Kiddieland amusement park at 825 Quincy Shore Boulevard.

On the motion of Councillor Alfred G. Helfrich, the City Council passed a resolution in opposition to a bid by Winfield L. Strout for a license to build and operate a motel at 845 Hancock St., across from Veterans Memorial Stadium. Strout ran the Winfield House Restaurant.

And the protests of nearby residents raised such a storm that the State Department of Public Works abandoned plans for a rest area off 654 Willard St., where tourists could park their cars and enjoy their picnic lunches at outdoor tables.

BRYAN KIDS WIN TITLE

Jerry Thornell pitched a three-hitter, struck out 11 and knocked in three runs with a homer and a single, as the Bryan VFW Post whipped South Shore Buick, 5-3, to win the Quincy Little League title, two games to none.

The Bryan Post team, coached by Eddie Dunn to a 19-2 season's record, fielded the following team for the final game:

YARRINGTON ANGERS VETS

George A. Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, roused the ire of veterans, particularly Commander George Tull of the Quincy Veterans Council, with the following paragraph in the QTA's monthly bulletin:

"This year the DPW will spend $2,027,400 of our money. There is no room in this department for crippled veterans, welfare cases, chronic alcoholics and other men who are either unable or unwilling to do a fair day's work for a fair day's pay."

QUINCY-ISMS

William R. Joyce, superintendent of the Quincy Post Office, observed his 50th anniversary as a postal worker... Arnold Haskell of 68 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck, manager of the North Quincy branch of the Quincy Savings Bank, was named chairman of the 1955 Quincy Red Feather Drive... Curtis Farms, 650 Adams St., had pot roast at 49 cents a pound, "alive and kicking" lobsters also at 49 cents a pound and Beechnut strained baby food four jars for 39 cents... The New Haven Railroad was considering making Quincy a regular stop for its trains to Cape Cod, provided the city could guarantee 35 passengers daily... Rev. Roland W. Nye, minister of the Wollaston Congregational Church, was the guest preacher at the summer union service of the Wollaston Methodist Church... Thomas Libby won the annual "mile" swim from Snug Harbor to Baker Beach with a time of 17 minutes... State Trooper Arthur G. Fralin of 78 Andrews Rd., Wollaston, received a $1,650 fellowship award from the Kemper Foundation for Traffic Safety to attend a nine-month course in police administration at Northwestern... "Knock on Wood", starring Danny Kaye and Mai Zetterling and "Little Fugitive", with Richie Andrusco, were on the new w-d-e-s-c-r-e-e-n at the Adams Theater... Albert L. Barbour of 396 Highland Ave., Wollaston, superintendent of Quincy schools from 1909-1920, died at his home at the age of 82... Mrs. Alice Northover opened the Granite Card Shop at 1432 Hancock St... The Quincy School Committee hired the city's first black teacher, Mrs. Celestine Dorch of Randolph, to teach art in junior high schools and grade schools... Mrs. Hazel D. Selby of 33 Waterston Ave., Wollaston, was re-elected to a sixth consecutive term as treasurer of the National Association of Women Lawyers at the group's Chicago convention... A strike was averted when the 80 employees of the Quincy Raytheon plant won a five cent an hour wage hike, raising the pay of machinists to $1.84 an hour and tool and die makers to $2.30 an hour... The Duggan Brothers North Quincy Garage had a 1948 Pontiac for $695 and a 1947 Ford for $350... Lefty George Denneen blanked the Hull Recreation team, 6-0, on two singles while striking out 10 as the Quincy Police Pals strengthened their hold on third place in the South Shore League... "Murder in Pastiche", a new novel by Marion Mainwaring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Mainwaring of 54 Weston Ave., Wollaston, was hailed as "unmatched in the history of the detective story" by the New York Times Book Review... Beverly and Patricia Cummings of 64 Lenox St., Houghs Neck, gave a demonstration of baton twirling on roller skates at the Weymouth Fair... Quincy Kiwanians held their weekly luncheon at the Old Colony Laundry, 100 Quincy Ave., and toured the plant with its president, Forrest I. Neal Jr... W. Edgar Wylie delivered his farewell address to campers at Camp Burgess, the Quincy Boy Scout Camp on Cape Cod, where he had been director for 20 years... He was planning retirement in March... Donald Murray of 64 Wall St., Houghs Neck, who lost a leg in World War II, dove into the water at Edgewater Drive Beach to rescue Ruth LeForest, 8, who was trapped by an unusually high tide... Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Bridgman of 42 Buckingham Rd., Wollaston, were attending the 38th annual Isle of Shoals Congregational Conference in Portsmouth, N.H... Quincy Market, 18 Chestnut St., was selling Pine Brook brook for $3.99 a fifth, Tropic light rum at $2.99 a fifth and Canadian Ace Ale, a six-pack for a dollar... Vincent Moscardelli and Martha Sage were co-chairmen of the Saturday night "Hi-Hop" planned by the Merrymount Association.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

Should Government Care About Profit?

"It is of no concern to me if the banks make profits or don't make profits." That quote is attributable to Carol Greenwald, the current banking commissioner of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Talking with the many businesspeople I see in my daily rounds, I get the impression that they feel that that statement could be attributed to virtually any employee of Massachusetts state government with whom they deal, as it relates to any form of business activity.

Profit is not a dirty word in Massachusetts, it is a non-word. It is of no concern to the captains of state whether the captains of business and industry make a buck or not. Maybe it shouldn't be, but unfortunately for Massachusetts there are too many other places that do care and create a profitable environment.

Massachusetts chartered banks in the main are captives of Massachusetts. The bulk of their deposits and loans are obtained in their immediate geography.

Carol Greenwald's attitude about banks is similar to the one Archie Bunker displays toward his wife, Edith. Why be nice to someone who needs you, is dependent on you, and will accept all the grief you can heap upon them.

The relationship between Nursing Homes and the State's Human Services operations is similar. Nursing homes here have become such captives of State government that they are virtually powerless, short of entering into bankruptcy and closing their doors to escape the ominous regulations, rate setting, short payment, non-payment and late payment procedures that have been standard operating procedure for the Commonwealth for so long that it has now become the correct way to deal with Nursing Homes.

We've experienced a situation recently where a

South Shore manufacturer needs a sewerage connection to continue business operations here. Their sewerage is employee generated and not a manufacturing effluent. If they receive the connection, they would assuredly increase employment. If they don't, they would continue to experience extraordinary disposal expenses, pollute the environment and be very tempted to move elsewhere. There is a simple solution to their problem, but it requires a decision to be made on the part of a state employee who has Bunkerism. "I really don't give a good — if the company stays here or not... If they leave, that's tough."

"If they leave, that's tough." There's the problem. Joe Bureaucrat thinks that he'll have his job no matter what. To hell with those slob that work in the plant that pay their taxes to pay his salary. To hell with the business that needs help in solving a problem.

Business' perceptions of the attitude of government toward them here is suffering from new levels of lowness. It was suggested initially, in the early days of the Dukakis administration, that the relationship between the Commonwealth and her job-providing businesses had no where to go but up... that the bottom had been reached and that the situation would improve.

But that was long ago, when the love affair and the honeymoon were still going on.

State government has a massive stake in being as responsive to business as it is to people. State government should conduct a massive economic education program "for its own" to help them better understand who pays the bills and the role that "profits" play in the whole routine.

resignation in terms of his health. He preferred to resign on that basis rather than be tried in the newspapers. I concurred with his decision.

"I did not know about the indictments when I appointed him.

"We ask all applicants for positions in this administration if they have any problems in the courts that could generate into bigger problems. I assure all my appointments that there are headquarters out there who will do anything possible to victimize them.

"Our check through the proper channels gave no indication of any violation of the law on the part of Mr.

McGinley. I believe that he himself thought there was nothing there since it involved a dispute between business partners more than two years ago.

"Mr. McGinley's case is just that, a dispute between two business partners, now defunct. It does not involve public business or any action that has occurred while he was serving temporarily as a public official. It is important that that be stressed.

"Indictments or charges are not crimes. That is what it is in Mr. McGinley's case. He has every right, as does every citizen, to due process of the law. He should not have to shoulder any additional grief over this situation until he has due process.

"As an officer of the court, Councillor Raymondi [who is an attorney] I am sure respects the right of every citizen to be judged in court and not by a flamboyant attack on his reputation. He has gone above and beyond in his treatment of this matter.

"An interesting question is this:

"When someone comes to work for the city of Quincy, how much information can be made available about that person? To what degree can we delve into his background without impairing his livelihood and reputation? That is an interesting question."

Mutton Minuteman On Exhibit At Council Chamber

A 5-foot-9, 150-pound Minuteman, composed of, not flesh and blood, but mutton fat and paraffin, is standing guard for the summer over the City Council Chamber in City Hall.

The Minuteman, complete with musket and colonial uniform, is the creation of Stephen Baker and Lawrence pounds of mutton fat to prepare the Minuteman, adding 38 pounds of paraffin to give it sturdiness, said Edmund Repucci, head of the Vo Tech Culinary Arts Division.

The figure won first place in the April Hotel and Motel Restaurant Association Show at Hynes Civic Auditorium in Boston.

Baker and Poupou used 112

The statue was presented to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia for City Hall by John Osterman, assistant superintendent for personnel in the Quincy Schools.

Bunker Hill Lane Improvements Completed

Rep. James A. Sheets and Senator Arthur H. Tobin announce completion of the road and beautification improvements to the section of Bunker Hill Lane, within the Blue Hills Reservation.

Sheets noted residents of the area have been trying to have this work done for three years.

He said he and Senator Tobin were pleased that MDC Commissioner John "Snecker", the project has finally been completed.

Lawrence Yerdon In American Arts 'Summer Institute'

Lawrence Yerdon, executive director of the Quincy Historical Society, has been chosen to participate in the "Summer Institute" in the American Arts and the American Experience sponsored by the Museum of Fine Arts and Boston and Yale Universities.

Yerdon, a New Yorker who was graduated from Eastern Nazarene College in 1970, previously worked at the Adams National Historic Site, Plymouth Plantation and the Woodward School.

Some 275 members and friends attended the recent opening of two exhibits at the Historical Society's museum and library in the old Adams Academy building.

The exhibits, entitled "Discover Quincy" and "Something Borrowed, Something Blue"—an exhibit of wedding dresses, are open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Burke At Quincy Office Aug. 20

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] will be at his office in the Quincy Post Office, 47

Washington St., from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Aug. 20 to discuss matters of a federal nature with constituents of the 11th District.

Civil Air Patrol Squadron Seeking A Bus

Congressional cuts in the Air Force budget apparently have left the Quincy Composite Squadron high and dry, which is a nice place to be if you're in a Civil Air Patrol airplane but not if you're in the treasurers office.

Anyway, the Composite Squadron is looking for someone to donate a 60-passenger bus to help haul cadets to take part in CAP activities in such places as West Point, N.Y.; Otis AFB on the Cape; the Sikorsky plant in Connecticut and the Air Museum, Dayton, Ohio.

"Congress appropriates money in the Air Force budget for the CAP each year," says Lt. Robert Dwyer, "but each year the amount is cut and by the time it filters down to squadron level there's not much left."

Two of the basic functions of the CAP are search and rescue missions for lost citizens and the pre-flight and flight training of cadets from the age of 13 up to age 21 or until they enter the Armed Forces.

"The CAP did 85 per cent of the search and rescues in the United States last year," said Dwyer. "That eats up money in gasoline and flight time trying to find parties who have crashed."

"About 80 per cent of the cadets enter the Armed Forces but it costs $10-15,000 a year to train 20-30 pilots to prepare them for the Air Force. Right now, they pay it out of their own pockets and are reimbursed by the Air Force when they quality."

If you don't have an extra bus around, the Composite Squadron will gladly take cash donations toward the purchase of such vehicle or some of the other pieces of training equipment needed by the cadets.

Donations may be made to the Quincy Composite Squadron, Box 773, Quincy, Mass. 02169

Playground Ceramic Exhibit In Quincy Sun Window

The annual playground ceramics exhibit will be on display Aug. 16-20 in the window of The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.

City Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers, said the exhibit will consist of pieces finished by children in classes conducted by Andrea Quinn and Mary Anderson.

The classes, conducted at Fore River Clubhouse, Quincy School and Lincoln Hancock Community School are sponsored by the Park-Recreation Board. They are free to all Quincy children from 8 to 16.

$9,608 For Elderly Activities

Quincy has received a grant of $9,608 from the State Office of Elder Affairs, it was announced by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

LaRaia said the money will go to further the Information and Referral Services of the Council on Aging and will expedite the city's efforts to get a Homemaker and Nutrition grant for the area.

Quincy YC 102 Years Young ever. The Quincy club hosted the opening day of Race Week racing Wednesday together with Braintree and will be host for Gala Night Friday.

There is a tradition of excellence to live up to by yachtsmen taking part in the 39th annual Quincy Bay Race Week which opened Wednesday for five days.

QBRW has been an outstanding success since it was established in 1938 by the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum clubs which formed the association.

In the years that followed, Town River and Wessagusset Yacht Clubs joined up to make the event an area success.

Edward P. Shaw of the Wollaston club was the first president. Other officers included Roy McPherson of Quincy, vice president; George Hey of Squantum, treasurer, and Arthur Leavitt, secretary.

Former Mayor-Senator Thomas S. Burgin was named honorary chairman and presided over the first year's activities. He provided a trophy for the Adams Class and his successor as honorary chairman, former Boston Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, set up another in 1939. He became governor of the state and was chief of the judges for the Marine parade in 1946 which had the largest number of entries.

In the following years the Merrymount club dissolved and was succeeded in membership by Wessagusset. Three years ago the Braintree and Metropolitan clubs were added to the association.

Among the prizes added to the competition are the Remick Trophies and awards in memory of James B. Findlay, Howard Gannett, John Reynolds and Fred Hunt.

Belle Departs, QBRW Goes On As Planned

By TOM SULLIVAN

QUINCY BAY RACE WEEK officers are, Treasurer Dave Maloney, Vice President John O'Neill, President Pat Conroy and Secretary Ed Simpson.

Hurricane Belle arrived on schedule early Tuesday morning but departed in plenty of time, hopefully, to allow the full Quincy Bay Race Week schedule.

Boatsmen throughout the South Shore and Greater Boston spent most of the day Monday bringing in their boats and Race Week President Pat Conroy was hopeful the boats escaped damage and that racing would start as scheduled on Wednesday.

"We were at first fearful that the schedule might be curtailed and that the opening day races would have to be canceled, but we now feel we can go ahead with the entire schedule," he said.

More than 400 boats and some 1,500 sailors are expected to compete in the popular annual water showcase and spectacular.

"Let's hope the weatherman cooperates with us. Last year he really fouled us up for the first time. In the previous 37 years no more than one day's racing had to be cancelled in any one year, but last year, after a good start the first day, racing was cancelled the next three days.

"As a result, the final standings were based on only two days of racing, opening and closing day."

Boys, girls, men and women of all ages will be among the competitors.

Racing is being held each day from one of the participating clubs. Racing got underway Wednesday at Quincy Yacht Club with Quincy and Braintree clubs as co-hosts.

Today [Thursday] Town River will be host at Wessagussett. Friday Wessagussett will be host. Saturday Metropolitan and Squantum clubs will be co-hosts at Wollaston and Sunday Wollaston will be the host.

Friday night the Gala Night will be held at the Quincy Yacht Club and Rendezvous Night will be held Saturday at Town River.

The colorful Marine Parade will be held Sunday, starting at 1:30 from Town River.

Rebuilding After Fire

Squantum Hosts Races At Wollaston

Since being organized in 1890, the Squantum Yacht Club has withstood the ravages of time, the hazards of ice, floods and hurricanes, and has been able to hold her own with the best of them.

Then came the morning of Feb. 22, 1976, a Sunday, that will long be remembered. The SYC members, as well as those of all other South Shore clubs, were stunned when one of the finest and oldest landmarks on the East Coast as well as one of the largest racing sailboat clubs in the country was ravaged by fire.

"When we recovered we became strong again," said Commodore Jack White. "We would not let this disaster throw us for long. We would keep our burgee flying. I had the firemen hoist the club pennant up the yardarm and ordered that it was not to be taken down. It was to fly night and day so that all who passed would know the Squantum Yacht Club was not lost. We were still in business and we will be for many years to come."

Special meetings were held and it was decided to rebuild the club on its present site. The club started on a three-part plan. Part 1 was the dredging, now completed. Part 2 is restoration of the pilings, and Part 3 will be the rebuilding of the clubhouse, now in progress.

Squantum will host its interclubs and Race Week racing at Wollaston Yacht Club.

"It would take a long time to list all of the people who are helping to do such a wonderful job," White said. "Regardless of how small the job is, it has to be done and is being done. The results will be a completed Squantum Yacht Club. We wish at this time to thank the many clubs and their members for their great assistance and support in our hour of need."

Ocean Racing Set For Saturday, Sunday

Ocean racing sponsored by the Quincy Bay Race Week Association will be held Saturday and Sunday to stimulate continued interest in the cruising type of sailboat.

The Frank F. Remick ocean race will be held Saturday in two fleets, so popular has this attraction become. Fleet 1 consists of boats from 26 feet overall length to 45 feet overall and Fleet 2 for boats from 17 feet waterline length to under 26 feet overall.

In 1959 the trophy was presented to the QBRWA by Frank E. Remick for competition between ocean racing sailboats. Because of the large number of boats competing it was decided to divide the race into two fleets. Remick presented the association with a second trophy for the Fleet 2 winner.

Last year James Zieff of Metropolitan Y.C. won the Fleet 1 honors and Richard Haley of South Shore won the Fleet 2 race.

The Bermuda Cup, a silver punch bowl, has been in the custody of Quincy Yacht Club for more than a half century. It was presented by the City of Boston in 1905 for a Boston to Bermuda race which was never held.

In 1911 the city again placed the cup in competition to become the permanent possession of the winner. That race was won by Hollis Burgess in his sloop Marie L.

Burgess made the Quincy Y.C. trustee of the silver bowl to be placed in competition. In 1968 The Quincy Y.C. presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition.

Last year's winner was Haley, following his Remick Fleet 2 win.

The Harry Warner Memorial Trophy race will be held Sunday after the start of the Boston to Bermuda Cup race. Taking part in this event will be cruising type trimarans.

Mike Conley was the 1975 winner.

In all the races the trophies will be held by the winners until Race Week of the following year when they will be returned to the association. An engraved keeper trophy will be awarded each winner for his permanent possession.

Sailors Vie For Handsome Trophies

A number of handsome and coveted trophies are awarded to sailors of all ages, boys, girls, men and women, during Quincy Bay Race Week.

The Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy is a perpetual award presented since 1966 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the late yachting editor who served more than three decades.

This trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. It is to be held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of its winner who is to be awarded a suitable keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Last year's winner was Lee Van Gemert.

The Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy was presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week.

This beautiful trophy presented in loving memory of a son who during his lifetime did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay is awarded to the yacht or yachtsman considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

It is annually to be suitably engraved and will remain in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club. A suitably engraved keeper trophy will be awarded the winner for his permanent possession.

The 1975 winner was Frank Carroll.

The Reynolds Memorial Trophy is a perpetual trophy presented to the QBRWA in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter of and skipper in the Day Sailer Class until his untimely death in 1965.

This beautiful trophy is to be awarded annually to the Race Week winner in the Day Sailer Class and is to be held by him until the Race Week of the following year when it is to be returned to the association. A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be awarded to the winner for his permanent possession.

Edward Leonard in the Hustler

Class was last year's winner.

The 1300 Trophy has been presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by Radio Station WIDA to demonstrate its great and cooperative interest in Quincy Bay Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior classes.

This beautiful trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

John Duplin was the 1975 winner.

The Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy is to be presented this year to the QBRWA by the Commonwealth National Bank of Boston. This trophy is to be awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is to be presented a suitably engraved trophy for his permanent possession.

The 1975 winner was Richard Partridge Jr.

The Morley Memorial Trophy is a perpetual trophy donated in memory of Robert Morley, a member of Town River Yacht Club and an able Snipe skipper. The trophy will be awarded to the winning skipper in the Snipe Class. It is to be held by the winner until Race Week of the following year and it is to be returned to the association. A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be awarded the winner for his permanent possession.

Joseph Petrucci was the 1975 winner.

The Howard Gannett Trophy has been presented each year since 1954 in memory of Howard Gannett, who served for more than 50 years as secretary of the Race Week Committee and was a member of the Race Week Committee from 1939 until his death in 1953. It is presented to the Race Week winner in a class to be selected by the committee.

Last year, John Dolbec was the winner in the Lazer Class.

The Quincy Heritage Trophy was presented for the first time last year for the best decorated boat in the Marine Parade.

The 1975 winner was Jerry Connors in the Cruiser Division. Details of the Harry Warner Memorial Trophy, the City of Boston Bermuda Cup and the two Frank E. Remick trophies can be found elsewhere on these pages.

WOLLASTON YACHT CLUB officers are Rear Commodore Harold Gilbert, Commodore Leonard Carvitt and Vice Commodore Richard Kelsey.

Town River YC Rendezvous Host

The Town River Yacht Club was born 65 years ago and has grown into a club which truly serves all its members.

The marina, moorings and small sailboat floats gives Town River a broad range of yachting enthusiasts. Its social events have always been enjoyed by members and guests and again this year the club will host Rendezvous Night Saturday and Trophy Night on Sept. 10.

Colorful Marine Parade Climaxes QBRW On Sunday

One of the most colorful yachting events will be the Marine Parade which will pass near enough to the shoreline to be viewed by many South Shore residents.

It will begin Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Town River Yacht Club overlooking Town River. Leading the flotilla of boats will be the Quincy police boat.

The parade will proceed past the Quincy Yacht Club and Nut Island, going through the West Gut; along Manet Beach, Post Island, Wollaston Beach, to the Wollaston Yacht Club.

AL Shaughnessy is chief marshal and Torey Montesi parade chairman.

As in the past trophies and prizes will be awarded and presented at a later date to the most attractively decorated power boats.

Invitations have been extended to all 68 yacht clubs in Massachusetts to participate.

Last year the award for best decorated cruiser went to Sandpiper, skippered by Jerry Connors of Germantown Y.C. The best decorated outboard was Lynn-Dec, skippered by Walter Rice of Braintree.

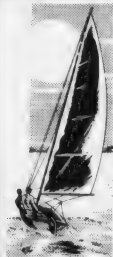

Town River had the most boats, 28, and Braintree was second with one less.

Gala, Rendezvous Nights Social Highlights

As usual, Race Week will be highlighted by two outstanding social events.

Gala Night will be held Friday at Quincy Yacht Club, senior yacht racing unit in Boston Bay, featuring a surprise program.

President Pat Conroy of the Quincy Bay Race Week Association, and Commodore Jerry Maguire will extend a cordial welcome to all members of the club and visiting yachtsmen and their guests. A special menu has been arranged to be followed by entertainment and dancing.

Aides to Commodore Maguire are Vice Commodore John Rounseville and Rear Commodore Albert J. Harvey.

The second social event will be the annual Rendezvous Night Saturday at Town River Yacht Club with dancing for skippers and crews.

Conroy and his staff of officers of the Race Week Committee will be assisted by Commodore Jim Conso and his staff in welcoming guests.

Memories of previous Race Weeks will be recalled as plans for another successful season in 1977 are discussed.

Wheeler Upsets County Line Rouillard's Sweeps Semi-Finals

The Quincy Softball League is in the midst of the playoffs involving the top four teams in the American and National leagues and the finals for the city title between the winners of both leagues are scheduled for next week.

The American League saw an outstanding battle between Rouillard's and Wells Grille for first place. Wells recently topped Rouillard's, 10-8, to bring about a tie for first but in a one-game playoff, Rouillard's exploded for 12 hits and a 22-13 victory.

Rouillard's had the best record in either league, 26-3, followed by Wells, North Quincy

K. of C. and Walsh's Restaurant, which barely edged Noble Sporting Goods for the fourth playoff spot.

Rouillard's quickly eliminated Walsh's in two straight, 7-1 and 25-7, in the opening playoff series. Ron Arria struck the decisive blow for Rouillard's early in the opener with a tremendous three-run homer. Other top batters were Richie Bopp, Kevin MacKinnon and Charlie Viola, who also starred defensively.

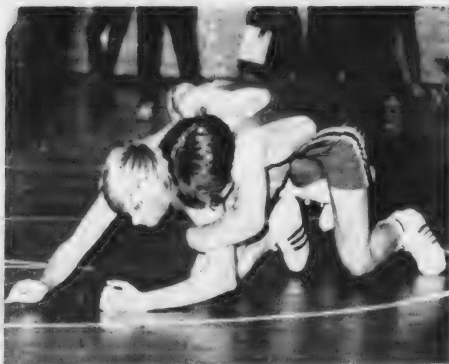

Wells and K. of C. split even in the first two games and the deciding game was scheduled this week to decide who will face Rouillard's for the AL crown.

In the National League County Line finished first, followed by Mr. Kelly's, Beau's Place and newcomer Wheeler Dealer.

Wheeler-Dealer pulled the upset of all upsets by ousting County Line in two straight games in the playoff opener, while Mr. Kelly also ousted Beau's in two straight.

All playoff games are being played at Rotary Field at the Quincy YMCA beginning at 6:30 p.m. All fans are invited free of charge to cheer on their favorite teams. The playoffs present the best of the slow-pitch softball teams.

Quincy Junior All-Stars Reach Quarter-Finals At New Bedford

Quincy's Junior Baseball League all-stars have reached the quarterfinals of the double-elimination New Bedford Invitational Tournament after splitting their third and fourth round games.

Twenty-eight teams started out in the annual tournament.

Quincy suffered its first defeat, 5-3, to New Bedford Nationals in a game under the lights last Friday but rebounded Saturday to defeat Portsmouth, R.I., 5-0. Quincy earlier had bombarded Newton East, 13-1, and Bridgton Padres, 11-0.

Brian Reale gave Quincy an early lead against New Bedford with a tape-measure home run in the second. Tom Richards followed with a double and came around to score when the relay was mishandled.

Paul Earle, making his second start in the tourney, protected the lead until the fourth when he tired and walked two batters. New Bedford followed with its first hit, a two-run triple and added two more runs for a 4-2 lead. New Bedford added another run in the fifth.

In the sixth Bobby Flynn reached on an error and Steve Pecevich doubled him home for Quincy's last run.

The win over Portsmouth featured an outstanding performance by Pecevich. Not only did he make an impressive debut on the mound by pitching a three-hit shutout, but he led the attack with a two-run double and single and scored two runs himself. Brian Reale chipped in with three singles and Richards and Mike Sullivan had other hits.

The tournament continues this weekend with the New Bedford Nationals the opposition again.

Austrian Wrestlers Too Experienced For YMCA Team

The Quincy YMCA wrestling team lost 10 out of 12 wrestling matches to a powerful Austrian Junior Wrestling Club last week at the Y.

The Austrian team, made up of eight Austrian junior national champions and four district champions, proved to be a little too experienced for the Quincy team.

The Quincy team had two disadvantages going into the meet. First was the Greco-Roman style of wrestling which was used in six of 12 matches. Greco-Roman style is wrestling limited to the upper part of the body. This style of wrestling in which the Austrians use most often is in direct contrast to freestyle wrestling which the Quincy team uses. The second disadvantage was International rules and scoring, which again is new and different to the "Y" teams.

The two wins for Quincy were in the U.S. Freestyle wrestling. Rich Sciarizzi pinned Johann Strum, and Gerald Oliver out-pointed Robert Prazmarer.

The actual winners were really all the boys that wrestled. This first of a kind International wrestling meet offered by the Quincy YMCA gave the wrestlers valuable experience which is not normally available to wrestlers in this area.

The exposure to both the Greco-Roman wrestling and the International rules and score give the boys from the Quincy YMCA a taste of what International sports and wrestling is like. Members of the Quincy YMCA wrestling team are Dan Madden, Ed Beck, Chris Pucelli, Butch Moutage, Rich Sciarizzi, Jim Wychinski, Tim Cahill, Gerald Oliver, Brian Kelly, Sam Gravina, Tony Luongo and Jon Barcelo.

● Legion Baseball

Morrisette, Quincy, Wollaston Face Rebuilding In '77

Morrisette Legion baseball team won the Zone 6 championship for the 20th time in 31 years this summer but a lack of pitching depth was largely responsible for it being eliminated in the opening round of the state playoffs.

Coach Ray Cattaneo's defending state and Northeast Regional titlists won the zone crown with a 17-3 record with Tim Clifford [9-1] and Pat Gibbons [7-2] accounting for all but one of the wins. John Wilkinson had the other.

In the playoffs Morrisette dropped a 3-1 10-inning squeaker to Braintree, with Clifford going a strong nine innings but going out for a pinch hitter in the ninth.

This loss, following a 6-2 opening night win over Wellesley with Gibbons hurling a six-hitter, proved costly as Morrisette, with three untied pitchers, Wilkinson, Ron Donovan and Mark Giordani, working most of the game, was topped by Walpole, 7-5 [Morrisette rallied for three runs in the ninth with two outs and nobody on] and was ousted from the double elimination tournament.

"These kids deserve a lot of credit and they really went down fighting," Cattaneo said. "Our lack of pitching depth hurt us but all the boys gave me 100 percent and I couldn't ask for any more from any of them."

Cattaneo loses some of his top players but will have 10 of his 18 players returning next year. "If some of our untied pitchers can get some valuable experience in high school next spring, we should do all right again," Cattaneo said.

Gone will be such stalwarts as Clifford and Gibbons, Steve McKinnon, one of the finest catchers in Legion ball; shortstop Paul Messina, third baseman Jim Roberts, outfielders Paul Jackmauh and Dennis McGuire and reserve pitcher Brian Corcoran.

But returning will be first baseman Mike McCormack, second baseman Dave Perdios, infielders Peter Niosi, Lenny Picot and Jim Maze, outfielder Chuck LoPresti, catcher Sal Coscia and pitchers Wilkinson, Donovan and Giordani.

LoPresti pitched at Sacred Heart High but played only in the outfield for Morrisette. With Wilkinson, Donovan and Giordani expected to see a lot of action in high school next spring, Morrisette's pitching depth should be much greater in 1977.

Quincy Post, which gave Morrisette a run for the title until the final week of the season [it finished on a sour note with losses to Hingham and Cohasset in its final two games], will lose a lot of players and Coach Gerry O'Leary and Manager George French will be on the lookout for good high school prospects.

Wollaston, which won only one game but lost several one-run decisions, had one of the youngest teams in Zone 6 and Coach Bob Jordan will have most of his players back in 1977. In order to give these returnees more experience, Bob arranged for three games this week with Cohasset, which also will use only boys who will return next season.

2 New Tennis Courts For Bishop Playground

Work is beginning this week on two additional tennis courts at Bishop Playground on Holbrook Rd, Montclair, and renovations to the baseball and softball field will begin when heavy construction work on the courts is completed.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board, reported that once the double tennis court's bituminous playing surface is installed and a 12-foot chain link fence erected the playground will have six outdoor courts.

Contracts for the work have been awarded to:

Derbes Brothers of Quincy, asphalt surface construction, $16,645; American Fence Co. of Quincy, chain link fence enclosure, $2,850; Delmonico Landscaping of Hull, rebuild and sod baseball and softball infield and seed outfield, $6,690.

Koch said in a letter to City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. that he has requested that school football and soccer activities scheduled for Bishop Playground this fall be transferred to another location to permit grass growth in the area seeded.

Police Club Edges Barry's In Title Opener, 2-1

The Police Boys' Club drew first blood in the final series for the Quincy Babe Ruth League city championship with a 2-1 win over Barry's Deli.

The title series was due to continue this week, weather permitting.

Police, which won the National League title with the best overall record in either league, and Barry's, which finished third in the American League but came on to advance to the finals, swept their semifinal series in straight games. Police ousted Sons of Italy, while Barry's shocked first place Firemen.

Fran Donovan pitched five-hit ball, struck out seven and gave only an intentional base on balls to spark Police over Barry's in the opening of the finals. Gary Earle was a hard-luck loser for Barry's.

Donovan drove in both Police runs with a single, one of his two hits. Billy Oakes and Larry Baker also had two hits each and Bob Mezzetti, Tom Brennan and Kevin McKinnon having one apiece. For Barry's, Earle, Bill Deitsch and Jim Mullen and Bob Tierney had the hits.

Police had won its opener over Sons of Italy, 5-0, with Brennan going all the way for his eighth win with no losses.

Donovan had a double and single, Catcher Bob Cronin had a home run and Baker, Brennan and McKinnon drove in runs. Brennan gave up only three hits, struck out four and walked one. Bob Hayes, Don Perdios and Lapsley had the only SOI hits.

Police completed the sweep with a 16-4 romp, pounding out 16 hits including a bases loaded triple and two singles by Donovan, three hits and three runs by Cronin, two hits each for Mezzetti and Brennan and other hits by Billy O'Connell, John Sullivan, Gary DiNardo and Baker. Mezzetti was the winning pitcher to make his record 7-1. Hayes had two triples and a single, Vespaziani two singles and Dunn a triple for SOI.

Earle pitched a one-hitter in leading Barry's to a 3-1 win over Firemen in their first game. Dave Austin had the only hit for Firemen. For Barry's Jim Deitsch and Mullen had the only hits but excellent baserunning and sacrifice flies by Jim Kenney and Earle won the game. Ray Coscia was the loser despite an outstanding effort.

In the deciding game Barry's won, 6-4, with Bill Deitsch the winning pitcher. He allowed six hits and struck out six. Mike Abboud and Earle had two hits each and Bill Deitsch and Tierney one apiece. Rich Ryan, Mullen and Bob Bolster starred defensively. Coscia had two hits for Firemen and Artie Roberts, Steve Notorangelo, Phil Caggiano and Dave Austin one each. Austin was the loser despite giving up only four hits.

Barry's had previously swept VFW in two games. In the opener it won, 6-0, behind Bill Deitsch's one-hit pitching. Earle and Kenny had two hits each and Abboud, Jim Deitsch and Bill Deitsch one apiece. Earle made two fine catches in centerfield. Leo Doyle had the VFW's only hit.

In the second game Barry's won, 6-3, with Earle pitching a four-hitter. Kenny drove in three runs with a triple in the first and scored on Rich Ryan's triple. Jim Deitsch, Abboud, Bill Deitsch and Earle each had a hit.

Silvester, Phelps Scotch Foursome Winners

In the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club, Bob Silvester and Edna Phelps shot low gross of 37.

Lou Cugini and Mary Donoghue had low net of 28,

Bob Donoghue and Amy Stearns shot second net of 30, Lee Purpura and Pat Cugini third net of 32, Ed O'Neill and Gail Hackett and Bob Silvester and Ginnie McCann tied for fourth net of 33 and Matt Smith and Dolly Nogler, Quentin McCaffrey and Mimi Purpura, Al Stearns and Eda Flate and Tom and Pat Tehan tied for fifth net.

Youngsters Golf Tourney Aug. 18-19

The Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor a Golf Tournament Aug. 18-19 for children of playground age according to Robert K. Beniers, director of recreation.

The tournament, an annual event on the Quincy recreation calendar is under the supervision of golf specialist Steve Paolucci.

Girls and junior boys will compete at Furnace Brook Golf Club on Aug. 18 while senior boys will tee off on Aug. 19 at the same location. Prizes will be awarded to the winners in each age category.

Archery Tournament

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board is sponsoring a season-ending archery tournament for children attending Quincy playgrounds, announces Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers.

The event, supervised by Mark Dwyer, will be conducted by age grouping and held on playgrounds throughout the city. The finals will be held at Merrymount Park, Aug. 20 at 9:30 a.m.

Burns Breaks 3 Records, Wins 5 Club Events

Shawn Burnes won five events, breaking records in three of them, to highlight the weekly Quincy Track Club meet last Thursday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. More than 100 members took part and there was keen competition.

Burnes won the boys 12-13 220, 880, 60-yard hurdles, discus and javelin.

Karen McCarthy was a triple winner including an outstanding 28.6 in the 220, the second fastest ever in the club and a record in the 12-13 age group. Mike Cullen broke the record in the 9-11 220, winning in 30.9 and Michelle Millane won the 12-13 880 with ease in 2:45.0, second fastest in club history.

Other record breakers were Linda Morash, javelin; Mike Gallagher, discus, and Jim Hanrahan, javelin.

The QTC will hold its third annual city championships at the stadium on Thursday, Aug. 26, at 6 p.m.

The club will also host the first annual Frank Kelly Memorial meet in honor of the late director and vice president and Saturday, Aug. 28, is the tentative date. Runners from all over New England will compete and joining the QTC will be the Dorchester TC, Roxbury TC and Cooper Striders of Boston.

Oliverio, Martinelli Recreation 'Leaders Of Week'

Two first year employees have been named Leaders of the Week by Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers.

Honored are Claire Oliverio of Faxon Park and Steve Martinelli of Beechwood Knoll.

Martinelli, who was named the most improved student while at North Quincy High School, attended Cushing Prep where he was named to the Prep All American team in basketball. He was also awarded the Bette Davis Award for being the best all-round athlete. He also played soccer and baseball. He will attend Elon College in North Carolina.

Miss Oliverio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Oliverio of 19 Silver St., attends Quincy High School where she stars in girls' sports. She starred in track, softball and volleyball. During the absence of the music specialist at Faxon Park Claire took over the musical leadership and the children had an enjoyable day.

MONEY TALKS

A Definition Of Money And Inflation That Gets Down To Earth

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

The book marts are full these days with texts on money and banking. They range from the abstruse to the simplistic, from the solemn to the sardonic.

None we have seen does the job of putting money in its essential perspective as does "A Primer on Money and Inflation", published in the Directors Digest as an excerpt from an occasional paper of the Committee for Monetary Research and Education, Inc., of Greenwich, Conn.

Its author is Dr. John E. Holloway, international monetary authority and former ambassador to the United States from South Africa.

The economic health of the world, Dr. Holloway contends, requires that 1. money be earned by production before it can be spent, and 2. there be a balance between the supply of money which, in effect, represents the potential demand for goods and services people desire and the supply of these goods and services.

He insists on a distinction between "earned" money and "unearned" money. Unearned money is produced when governments print money or when banks lend to clients by accepting promissory notes, thus creating checking account money -- in both instances without an equivalent production of goods and service.

"All inflation is caused by making money out of nothing or, in other words, paying with unearned money," Dr. Holloway declares. "There is no other cause of inflation. All other inflationary signs are effects. Only governments can create inflation... A general rise in the price level can be sustained only if the government -- or the banking system with the consent of the government -- creates unearned money to support the higher price level resulting from higher cost."

Dr. Holloway blames wars as the principal breeder of inflation by giving governments the excuse to spend unearned money with the promise to repay their debts with earned money after the wars are over.

If they can do this for wars, why not then for solving social problems? The error, he says, is in assuming that "limitless money" is the same thing as "limitless resources", which are simply not available. "Limitless money" has created a monetary system which has failed because it has lacked the elementary essentials of honesty and integrity.

We won't get back on track, Dr. Holloway contends, until the integrity of money is restored, the state and its citizens become fully productive, and the right of the state to borrow from itself is severely curtailed.

Brett Seeks Crackdown On Buzzing Motor Boats

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has complained to the Registry's Division of Marine and Recreational Vehicles about motor boats buzzing the shoreline in North Quincy creating a danger for young swimmers on the beach.

Residents of Quincy Shore Drive and Atlantic and Billings Sts., said Brett, have told him "that motorboats frequently coming too close to the shoreline are creating a hazardous condition for the many youngsters who use the beach and abutting ocean water in that area for recreational purposes."

"It has been pointed out to me that it is unlawful for motorboats to come in so close to the shoreline and the nearby residents request that the offending boat operators be made aware of the law and be warned to keep their vehicles out of the swimming area."

Youngsters Raise $340 For Jimmy Fund

Eight Wollaston youngsters raised almost $340 for the Jimmy Fund at a recent Jimmy Fund street carnival.

The organizers, all of Hamilton St., were Stephen and Michelle Hurley, Richard and James Milano, Marybeth Fasano, Kathleen O'Brien, John O'Leary and Joseph Beferio.

Highlight of the afternoon was the benefit appearance of Quincy standup comedian and clown, Johnny Sisson.

TWENTY SIX North Quincy High School ninth graders participating in the Quincy School Department's "Project LINC", learned about Massachusetts' government during a recent field trip to the State House. The students toured the Capitol building, viewed a session of the Senate and discussed with Senator Arthur H. Tobin the legislative process and some of the important issues now facing the General Court. Shown here are, front row, from the left, Joseph Long, a Quincy High School senior working as a volunteer research assistant to Senator Tobin; Senator Tobin, and Robert Troup, North Quincy High School teacher who organized the field trip. Second row, from the left, Maureen McGeary, Ellen Carli, Deborah Courts, Katherine Daly, Catherine Ceurvals, Colleen Connors. Third row, from the left, Jon Badger, Peter Doherty, Michael Bulman, Lynn Doherty, Eileen Butts, Ann Conley. Fourth row, from the left, Ed Campbell, Fran Barry, Henry Corcoran, Kurt Braun, Joe Cox, Brian Condon, Tony DePiero, Jim Burke. Fifth row, from the left, Larry Baker, Mike McGlinchey, Tom Reney, Matt Hemphill, Paul Cooney, Tim McCluskey. [Jack Leonard]

St. Joseph's Bible School Re-enacts The Last Supper

St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, held a two-week vacation bible school recently, to familiarize students with various old and new testament figures.

Arts and crafts projects included building individual Noah's Arks, baby Moses in a basket, the Holy Spirit as a dove, and a miniature church and chalice.

Highlights of the program were the closing Mass and a re-enactment of the Last Supper.

Program director was Fr. Robert Towner.

Arts and crafts were directed by Rosalie Paolucci, Barbara Grazioso, Gladys DiPietro, Betty Shea, Kay Pasquali, Carol Shaughnessy, Agnes Crosson, Angela Carroll and Sister Celestine Murphy.

Assistants were Bruce Perry, Ellen Corvi, Michale Shaughnessy, David Noonan, Kevin Jennette, Mary McBride, and Joanne McBride.

William Ryan Memorial Dedication Ceremonies Sunday

Final plans for the dedication ceremonies of the William F. Ryan Memorial at Merrymount Park have been completed, announces Gerard A. Coletta, vice chairman of the Park-Recreation Board and chairman of the Ryan Memorial Committee.

The dedication, scheduled for noon Sunday, will honor Quincy's first recreation director on the first anniversary of his death. Because the late Mr. Ryan was so involved in both boating and camping and recreation for the handicapped, an area including the Black's Creek' boathouse and the Happy Acres Day Camp will be named after him.

A flagpole will be installed in the boathouse area. A natural builder with an inscription will be placed in an area used by the handicapped day campers.

Earl Vermillion, Happy Acres Camp director will present a historical sketch of the late director. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon will be the guest speaker.

Mrs. Ryan, a teacher at Broad Meadows Junior High School, will present the flag given by the Veterans Administration and used at Mr. Ryan's funeral to fly at the site.

'Soul' Christian Science Bible Lesson Sunday

"SOUL" is Sunday's theme of the Christian Science Bible Lesson at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy.

The Responsive Reading is from Jeremiah 31: "Thus saith the Lord; Refrain thy voice from weeping, and thine eyes from tears: for thy work shall be rewarded, saith the Lord."

Church Service and Sunday School begin at 10 a.m., and on Wednesday evening a weekly testimony meeting is held at 8 p.m. Child care is provided.

Vacation Church School At Adams Shore Methodist

A daily Vacation Church School for youngsters in kindergarten through the sixth grade will begin Monday [Aug. 16] and continue for two weeks at the Adams Shore Community United Methodist Church.

Classes will be held Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon in the program which includes Bible study, films, crafts, games and a field trip.

There will be a program and picnic for parents and friends on the final day [Aug. 27].

Registration is still open and information may be obtained from the director, Mrs. Betty Allen, at 472-4295.

Psychological Aspects Of Being Sick

Explored At Nursing Home

The psychological aspects of being sick were explored in depth recently in the first of a series of educational programs for Greater Boston social service workers and resource coordinators at the Quincy Nursing Home.

The program was conducted by Dr. Bernard L. Busfield Jr., a prominent Boston psychologist who is the newly appointed medical director of the Quincy Nursing Home.

Also participating were Dr. and Mrs. Isidore Minkin of Newton, operators of the Minkin Family Nursing Homes, with which the Quincy home is associated; Mrs. Ila Williams, director of nurses at the Quincy Nursing Home.

Also Mrs. Virginia Brattan, nursing supervisor; Mrs. Martha Campbell of Milton, social services consultant; and Mrs. Doreen Rasteiro, social service worker, all of the Quincy Nursing Home.

Sheets, McCauley Bill Would Allow Cooperative Banks To Give Scholarships

A bill which would allow cooperative banks in Massachusetts to make charitable contributions and give scholarships was heard Monday by the committee on banks and banking.

The bill was filed by Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] at the request of Francis X. McCauley, member of the Quincy School committee and president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank.

If passed into law, the bill would extend to the cooperative banks the same rights of contribution given by the power of the legislature to the savings banks in 1975. Under this bill, cooperative banks would have the option of making such contributions with the approval of their board of directors.

Speaking on behalf of the bill at the public hearing were McCauley, Richard Haynes, representing the Quincy Public School System, and Jerry Girardi, an interested citizen.

The bill has been favorably reported out to the house floor. However, minor alterations in the wording may necessitate the delay in passage for two to three weeks.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

McDonald Cites Programs Expanded By Commissioners

An estimated near 400 persons attended a poolside cocktail party for County Commissioner George B. McDonald, hosted by former Dist. Atty. and Mrs. George Burke at their home, 174 Warren Ave., Wollaston.

Music was by the Bill Manning orchestra with entertainment by the M & M Sisters of Milton.

Burke introduced McDonald and cited his "years of dedicated public service, both as a Quincy City Councillor and as Norfolk County Commissioner."

Also introduced were elected officials from Quincy and the surrounding communities.

Mayor Joseph LaRaia praised McDonald for his "devotion to duty," and recalled that he, McDonald and Burke were elected as new City Councillors together in 1960.

Also introduced was County Commission Chairman James Collins of Milton.

McDonald discussed the duties of a commissioner, noting that time spent on County business is increasing due to "expanding programs initiated by the County Commissioners for the benefit of the people of Norfolk County."

He cited:

The new Wollaston Golf

Course, protecting open space and expanding recreational programs; the county's Regional Solid Waste Program which he heads up; the new Quincy District Court House; new Dormitory-Cafeteria Building at the County's Agricultural High School.

An up-dated conservation program between various towns due to Norfolk County sponsored legislation; a brand new Tourism and Development Program which promotes business and industry in Norfolk County; a new Purchasing Department in the office of the County Commissioners to centralize purchases and reduce cost to the taxpayers of the County; the up-dating of various Courts due to increased business in the district, probate and superior courts.

Your County Commissioners are there to serve you, and with the present economic situation, must do all in their power to hold the line taxwise," McDonald said. "This year, with tax increases all around us, your County Commissioners reduced your assessment over $2 million, making ours the only Government this year to actually reduce taxes."

Paul Barry Candidate For County Commissioner

Paul E. Barry, 47, of 30 Dyrast St., Quincy, announces his candidacy for Norfolk County Commissioner.

Barry is a registered Democrat and is running in the Democratic primary.

In his announcement Barry said:

"The people of Norfolk County are entitled to an honest, effective and concerned administration in conducting county business. The county must be more responsive to the needs of the county. Programs, contracts, new projects, etc., must be effective and not disturbing to county residents."

Barry said he will work closely with civic groups, business organizations, interested citizens, and others to identify the real and immediate needs of the count and to develop and initiate programs to meet these needs. Concurrently a long range comprehensive plan must be developed that will anticipate, plan for, and meet future needs, he said.

Barry is married to the former Catherine Stewart, formerly of Milton and Hyde Park. They have eight children. Barry is the son of the late Edward Barry, former Assistant Clerk of Boston Municipal Court, and Grace Barry, former assistant to Dr. Charles Djerf of Quincy.

Barry was a candidate for Sheriff of Norfolk County in the last election.

Barry is a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks; Squantum Yacht Club of which he is a member of the board of directors; Montclair Mens Club; and North Quincy Knights of Columbus. He is employed at the Massachusetts Electric Company and is a member of the Utility Workers of America, Local 454.

McIntyre Would Jail Those Who Assault Elderly

A cocktail party attended by approximately 50 campaign workers was given recently at the home of John L. McIntyre, candidate for State Representative in the Third Norfolk District, comprising Atlantic, Montclair, Wollaston and Squantum.

Several issues were discussed, including McIntyre's intention to initiate legislation which would provide mandatory sentences for individuals convicted of assault on persons aged 60 years and over.

"These people have the right to walk and shop at their leisure, day or night, without the constant fear of attack," he said.

The committee to elect John McIntyre was formed, and Mrs. Patricia Knox of 56 Colby Road, North Quincy, was named campaign manager. Mrs. Knox has been politically active for the past 10 years. She was a fund raiser for congressman Joseph Moakley and Lt. Governor Thomas O'Neil.

Robert Dinsmore Campaigns Here For U.S. Senate

Robert E. Dinsmore, candidate for U.S. Senate, was scheduled to speak at a "Candidates Night" at Bryan VFW Post, Broad St., Quincy, Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Dinsmore, a practicing trial attorney in Boston, and a former Democratic Committee member, is a graduate of Boston Public Schools, Brandeis University, Suffolk University and Portia Law School. He lives in Milton with his wife Helen and their eight children.

Army Leaving

Koch Sounds Vandalism Alert At Merrymount Park

The Army is leaving Merrymount Park this month and Richard J. Koch, executive secretary Park-Recreation Board, feels that the Quincy Police, Fire, Water and Sewer Departments should be alerted to cover its retreat.

The installations left behind by the 187th Infantry Brigade at the U.S. Army Reserve Center, 100 Southern Artery, are an open invitation to vandalism, said Koch in a letter to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

If the area is deemed excess property by the Army, it is likely that it will be transferred to the General Services Administration and later back to its original owner, the Quincy Park Department.

"However," said Koch, "the Recreation Board and Park Department's immediate concern would be the abandoning of the site and its period of unoccupancy during the pending procedures of the property's disposition."

"Past history has proved that destructive vandalism and fires of undetermined origin occur where buildings and property remain unused for any length of time and, as a result, the surrounding area is in jeopardy of becoming a target for vandals and loitering."

"The fuel tanks have been drained and will corrode if they remain dry. Some type of appropriate liquid should be delivered to guarantee protection to the inner metal."

"The ultimate solution to the entire matter would be the expediting as quickly as possible the release and transfer of the 6.6 acres of land back to the City of Quincy Park Department, owners of the 73 acres surrounding the Army Reserve Center in question."

In the meantime, said Koch, the Police, Fire, Water and Sewer Departments should be alerted to protect the area from vandals and natural destruction.

Labor Council's COPE To Endorse Candidates Sunday

The COPE Committee of the Norfolk County Labor Council will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday [Aug. 15] in Shipbuilders' Hall, 480 Quincy Ave., Quincy, to decide the candidates to endorse in the coming primary elections.

All candidates are invited to attend and give their positions on legislation endorsed by organized labor.

After the meeting, the Committee will get together with Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] in the same hall at 4 p.m., a meeting to which all Democratic office holders and candidates are invited by Burke.

Fair Share - Webster PTA Discuss Traffic Safety

Quincy Fair Share and the Daniel Webster School PTA scheduled a public meeting last night [Wednesday] at 8 p.m. in the Quincy Legion Post Hall, Mechanic St. and Revere Rd, to discuss traffic safety around the schools.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond and Capt. Roy Cavicchi of the Traffic

Department were invited to attend to listen to parent pleas for stricter enforcement of speed limits and parking regulations and additional crossing guards at the school.

Parent's Night At Happy Acres Camp

The Quincy Recreation Department Happy Acres Day Camp had a Parent's Night Program scheduled for Wednesday at Happy Acres, Merrymount Park.

Earl Vermillion, camp director and Recreation Director

Robert K. Beniers were to be on hand to meet parents and to explain different facets of the program.

Smyth Named Cemetery Superintendent Council, LaRaia Move Toward Showdown Over Appointments

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council has moved another step toward a direct confrontation with Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia over the Mayor's appointments to high city office.

The Council's Oversight Committee, chaired by Councillor James A. Sheets, was scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. last night [Wednesday] to lay out guidelines for an investigation into three appointees who were forced to resign within days.

Sheets said he has spoken briefly with Mayor LaRaia and the Mayor "indicated he will cooperate with the investigators. We have no reason to assume that he won't cooperate."

Mayor LaRaia was a little more cautious.

"Leave it this way," he told The Quincy Sun prior to Wednesday's meeting, "when they [the committee] determine exactly what they are going to do I will be ready to respond."

"Any attempt to discredit any city employee will be discouraged by my office."

The dispute between the Mayor and the City Council erupted after the resignation of Daniel F. McGinley, who served as cemetery superintendent for five days until it was disclosed that he was under indictment on two criminal complaints in Suffolk County.

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, the chief critic on the Council of the Mayor's

NQHS Should Open On Time Says Creedon

North Quincy High School probably will open on time [Sept. 8] this fall - but it's going to be close.

"I'm not willing to say definitely," said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

The problem is that most of the building's utilities are being moved from the rear of the school to the front to make way for the $13.5 million renovation and addition project.

"We got off to a late start," said Creedon, "because the renovation issue was not resolved until June 11."

If the school misses the Sept. 8 deadline by one day, says Creedon, "we can postpone opening. If it turns out to be several days we can either take it out of vacation time or get special state approval."

The state requires that schools be open 185 days a year in order to qualify for full state aid.

"I don't think we're going to have to ask for state dispensation," said Creedon. "It'll be ready - mess that it is."

Board Meets Tuesday

DeFalco Leading Contender For Paine's Hospital Post?

The Board of Managers of City Hospital will meet Tuesday night [Aug. 24] at 7:30 p.m. to appoint a new hospital director, succeeding Harlan L. Paine, who still held the post as of last Tuesday.

The leading candidate to succeed him appeared to be Anthony DeFalco, former deputy governor of Massachusetts under Gov. John A. Volpe.

Edward V. Cronin, chairman of the board of managers, said Tuesday that Paine had not resigned but "if we vote someone else in then he is as good as fired. He had his chance and he didn't want to play ball with us."

Paine was not available for comment.

Paine, who has been hospital director since 1962, sought a three-year contract at a special meeting of the board Aug. 3 but, said Cronin, "he asked that his request be taken from the agenda."

"He has been notified of Tuesday's meeting," the chairman added. "It's up to him."

Cronin said the board is in the process of screening and interviewing some 40 or 50 candidates for the $32,500 post and the final selection will be made Tuesday night.

"We are leaning toward someone who will put the hospital back into better financial shape," he said. "We went into the hole last year."

Cronin acknowledged that DeFalco, whom he called "a sharp guy", was one of the candidates for the job.

He said former Gov. Volpe, now ambassador to Italy, had volunteered to appear before the board "to back up Mr. DeFalco's credentials."

MBTA Halting Bus Service To Brockton

The MBTA is halting bus service on Sept. 10 to Avon and Brockton, two communities that are outside the MBTA district.

Route 230 from Quincy Center through Braintree to Holbrook will then terminate in Brookville Square, Holbrook, near the Brockton line.

House Blast Probe Continues

A report from the State Chemists' office was awaited this week to give impetus to the Quincy Fire Department's investigation of an explosion that destroyed a house at 1144 Furnace Brook Parkway on Aug. 12.

The substance found in the house that blew apart at 6 a.m.

was believed to be gasoline and sent to the State Chemist for examination.

A man, identified as Robert McDonald, 30, of Somerville, was seriously injured in the blast and a second man was being sought by Quincy Police on suspicion of arson. He was seen running from the house.

145 Courses Being Offered At Quincy Junior College

Some 145 credit and non-credit courses will be offered this fall by the Quincy Junior College Division of Continuing Education.

All credit courses are applicable to the Associate in Science Degree. Among the College degree programs are Law Enforcement, Business Administration, Early Childhood Education, Computer Science, Electronics Technology, Liberal Arts and Secretarial Science.

Among the most popular courses are those in Accounting Psychology, Typing, Business Law, Introduction to Law Enforcement and Development of the American Film.

The Adams Chronicles will be repeated after a successful debut in the spring. Class meetings will be Wednesdays from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Because of the presidential election this fall it is expected that the Monday evening course on the American Presidency will attract many students.

There are 10 new courses being offered. They include Principles of Acting and Education of Young Children with Special Needs on Mondays; Introduction to Logic and Critical Thinking on Tuesdays; Introduction to Chemistry, Credit Management, Principles of Finance and Police Organization and Management on Wednesday evenings; and Social Anthropology, Real Estate Appraisal and Criminal Evidence and Investigation on Thursday evenings.

Non-credit courses range from brush up courses in the secretarial and business areas to courses in Astrology, Assertiveness, Antiques and Interior Decorating.

Richard T. Mula, Dean of Continuing Education, said the registration period has been expanded to two weeks to allow students more ease. Registration will take place from Aug. 30 through Sept. 1 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Sept. 2 through Sept. 10, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Over 200 At Memorial Dedication

William Ryan Eulogized As 'Man For All Ages, Physical Abilities'

The late William F. Ryan, director of recreation in Quincy for 20 years, was eulogized Sunday as a man who sought to provide the most diversified opportunities for the greatest number of people, no matter what their physical abilities.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon was the keynote speaker at dedication ceremonies for the William F. Ryan Memorial at Merrymount Park, attended by more than 200 people on the first anniversary of his death.

"Bill's goal," said Dr. Creedon, "was to strive to provide for the citizens of Quincy of all ages and conditions, the fit and the firm as well as the exception and the handicapped, recreational opportunities so that the greatest number of people could benefit from the widest, most diversified number of programs possible."

"Bill didn't succeed in doing this if success means that the goal has been reached. On the contrary, Bill was constantly striving to broaden his programs so as to identify and meet still another unmet need."

"A simple but profound definition of leadership is just that: The ability to identify and meet unmet needs. Bill Ryan was a leader."

An area of Merrymount Park, including the Black's Creek boating facility and the Happy Acres Day Camp for the handicapped, was dedicated in his name.

A natural boulder with a memorial inscription was unveiled by Mrs. William F. Ryan, a teacher at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

The boulder identifies the site as the William F. Ryan Recreation Area.

Mrs. Ryan also presented the flag given her by the Veterans Administration and used at her husband's funeral to fly on a flag pole at the site, a gift of William Duane.

Other speakers on the program included Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, and City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, chairman of the Council's parks and recreation committee.

The Rev. David F. Delaney, chaplain of the Quincy Fire Department, delivered the invocation, and a biographical sketch of Ryan's life was read by Earl Vermillion, director of Happy Acres Day Camp.

The color guard was provided by the U.S. Marine Corps unit at South Weymouth Naval Air Station and the pledge of allegiance was led by the youngsters from Happy Acres Day Camp.

Sunday, the final day of Quincy Bay Race Week, was dedicated to Ryan's memory.

2 Named Coordinators For Seniors Info Program

Loretta Ardini and Trixie Phelan have been named by Mayor Joseph J. LaRia as agency coordinators to keep the Senior Citizens information and referral system in operation until the state-funded Home Care Corporation comes to the South Shore.

The two women were the authors of a proposal under which Quincy received a $9,300 grant from the Mass Department of Elder Affairs to maintain the service to South Shore Seniors.

The proposed South Shore Home Care Corporation will provide services to Senior Citizens in their homes and communities that otherwise would be provided only if they were institutionalized.

QUINCY NURSING HOME residents recently celebrated the Bicentennial year with an old fashioned clambake. From the left are Mrs. Christine Pote, R.N. and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Marini of Quincy, residents of the nursing home.

But before any state or federal funds are awarded to the corporation, the communities involved have to come up with some local money. On the South Shore, Hull, Holbrook and Scituate have approved funds.

Molly Stanley is available to make home visits to Seniors in Quincy and, through this year's Community Development Block Grant, the service will be able to hire three more outreach workers for Atlantic, Houghs Neck and Southwest Quincy.

Desperate Hopes

Q. Desperately hoping you can help me. My daughter was born in Methuen, Mass. on September 7, 1954 at 11:58 A.M. on a Tuesday. We discovered that she has been experimenting with drugs [pot and pills]. She is a good looking girl, nice personality, good student, clean and helpful around the house but does tend to underdate herself. I am sure that knowing her horoscope will help us to help her, guide and understand her.

M.R.

A. At the time of your daughters birth, the Sign of the Zodiac Scorpio was on the Ascendant [rising]. Of all the twelve Signs of the Zodiac, this is the most curious of all. The planet Neptune [indicator of drugs] was in Libra and in the House indicating acquaintances and friends. She probably was tempted to experiment by or through an acquaintance.

Her Sun and Mercury were both in Virgo and her Moon and Mars were in Capricorn. These usually indicate a fine mentality capable of being objective and realistic. She has a keen sense of what is right and what is wrong. Instinctively there is a need to express the emotions freely and independently [Mars conjunct the Moon].

Her Venus conjunct her Saturn Raises the question as to whether she feels that as a child she was given sympathetic and loving attention from one or more of those close to her. She is somewhat sensitive and while easily hurt, may have tried to hide the hurt of resentment and withdrawn into herself or appear to underdate herself.

She also has secret suspicions as to the motives of those who love her which may cause them to feel irritated by her attitude. She needs much love and with proper handling, it is possible her experiments may be just that, since she does have a fine character.

Today's Women

56th Anniversary Women's Suffrage

'In Celebration Of Women'

Tea, Program Set For Aug. 26

All women are invited to a tea to celebrate the 56th anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment which assured women the right to vote.

Sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, the tea will be held at United First Parish Church, Thursday, Aug. 26.

The program will begin at 2:15 p.m. with special guests speaking on the suffrage movement. Discussing the relevance for today's women will be Janice D'Avignon, Coordinator of the Norfolk County Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment. Tea and pastries will be served at 3 p.m.

Said Mrs. Trudy Buckley, chairwoman of the Mayor's Commission:

"Since the tea is intended for the celebration of women, we hope that as many women as possible will attend. We would particularly like to honor our senior citizens who were living at the time the amendment was passed."

The Program, "In Celebration of Women" is planned to commemorate the women's suffrage movement, women's participation in government, and consider the relevance of the 1920 amendment for today's women. As special guests, women who remember the attitudes and activities surrounding the amendment are sought and should contact Rhonda Merrill at Quincy City Hall.

GERALDINE MURPHY of Quincy has been promoted to manager and designated officer in charge of the Baybank Norfolk County Trust Co., Avon office. A graduate of Msgr. Ryan Memorial High School in Dorchester, her most recent assignment has been assistant manager of the Bank's Chestnut Hill office.

Joan Moskowitz Appointed To Physician Assistant Board

Governor Michael Dukakis has appointed Joan Moskowitz, 30, of 108 President's Lane, Quincy, as a member on the Massachusetts Board of Approval and Certification of Physician Assistant Programs.

She has been a lawyer with the firm of Foley, Hoag and Eliot of Boston, specializing in health care regulation, for the past four years.

"I am very pleased to announce this appointment," Governor Dukakis said. "Joan Moskowitz brings to the Massachusetts Board of Approval and Certification of Physician Assistant Programs wide experience in the health field, outstanding ability and a commitment to health planning."

Prior to joining Foley, Hoag and Eliot, she was a law clerk with Nessen and Caspar of Boston, and the Massachusetts Law Reform Institute.

She received her B.A. degree Magna Cum Laude from Vassar College. She holds a masters degree in health planning from Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a law degree from Boston University School of Law. She also received a Fulbright Fellowship to India.

The Board of Approval establishes regulations for approval of training programs and reviews programs. It also issues guidelines for employment of physician assistants.

She will serve until April 30, 1978 in the unsalaried position.

KIDS AND TV VIOLENCE

The average American child spends more time in front of a television set than in the classroom. By the time he graduates from high school, he has witnessed the violent destruction of 18,000 human beings.

Here is the gist of his survey of 146 articles covering 50 psychological studies and involving 10,000 children with all kinds of family backgrounds.

Kids who watch lots of TV violence easily retain its worst points and often use aggression in the same way.

After a steady diet of mayhem, some children lose the capacity to be shocked or surprised by what they see.

The once-popular "catharsis" theory that TV violence offers a healthy outlet for natural hostilities and aggressions simply doesn't hold up.

The influence of television violence can be offset to a degree by letting youngsters know about the dire physical and moral consequences of violence.

Silvio Marini Remembers:

Ernest Pellegrini: Wood And Stone Artist

By TOM HENSHAW

It's rapidly becoming a lost art now because not many have the time and patience in the era of fast food and the faster buck.

But there was a time, and not that long ago, when eastern Massachusetts, particularly South Quincy, was a stronghold of talented, carefully trained men busily turning blocks of wood and stone into works of art.

One of them was Ernest Pellegrini.

Silvio Marini of 190 Federal Ave., South Quincy, an artist in wood and stone himself, was recalling Pellegrini the other day.

He came from Milan, Italy, around the turn of the century, penniless as most immigrants in those days but he found a job almost immediately for men of his craft were always in demand.

Silvio Marini's father, Donato, a granite cutter, brought him home to dinner and he liked South Quincy so much that he moved in there, much to the delight of the neighborhood youngsters.

Pellegrini set up a school in the basement of the old Lincoln School.

"First he taught us how to draw," says Marini who started at his school at age 12. "Then he taught us how to model. If he didn't like the way we did it he made us do it over five times, just the way they did it in the old country."

He went to work with the firm of Irving and Casson in Lechmere Square, Cambridge, and Marini, his protege, went to work there with him when he was 17, shortly after World War I.

Pellegrini's work carried him all over the country.

Perhaps his best known works are the reredos [altar screens] he carved for the Lawyer's Bay in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City and St. Mary's Chapel in the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C.

Alice Lawton, art critic of the old Boston Post, once called the St. Mary's reredos "the most beautiful ecclesiastical work ever done in this country."

Closer to home his work includes the crucifix in front of St. John's Church on School St. and the head of Christ in St. Mary's Cemetery in West Quincy.

Pellegrini was living in Orient Heights, East Boston, when he died in 1955. The penniless immigrant of 1900 left an estate of $150,000.

Marini is retired now, having spent the last 25 years of his working life as a machine assembler at Pneumatic Scales.

"Carving went to hell during the Depression," he says.

But he still dabbles in the art that Pellegrini taught him in the old country way.

He did the plaques at the Central Fire Station and Central Junior High School and the model of Reuben Grossman and his wife in the Vo Tech School.

And he still finds time to spread the gospel of Ernest Pellegrini.

High School Registration For New Residents Underway

Registration for students at the high school level who are new to the city is being held from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Mondays through Fridays in the guidance offices of Quincy High School, North Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Guidance counselors will register new students and assist them with educational or vocational planning.

Students or their parents may call the schools for an appointment or visit them in person.

Students planning to attend North Quincy High School should note that its guidance offices are temporarily located at the "Little Building" at the corner of Hancock and Hunt Sts. The temporary office site is due to the construction and renovation now underway at the main school building.

Meeting Aug. 24 On Faxon Park Rd. Signs

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond will hold a meeting Tuesday evening, Aug. 24, at 7:30 p.m., in the Council Chamber, City Hall, pertaining to the removal of "No Left Turn" signs at Faxon Park Rd and Faxon Lane. He said residents who are most affected by this situation, and other concerned residents, should plan to attend so that the matter may be discussed in detail.

Nursing School Receives $8,953 Grant

The Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing has been awarded a federal grant of $8,953 to help pay for student loans and scholarships during the 1976-77 academic year, it was announced by Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton].

The funds, given by the U.S. Public Health Service, represent $5,520 for loans and $3,433 for scholarships.

WE LAID OUT ALMOST $5,000,000 AND WE'RE STILL SMILING.

That's what our depositors received in interest for the year ending April 30th, 1976. We're very pleased about that, because that represents growth for our customers' savings, and for Quincy Cooperative Bank.

More and more people are opening accounts with us every year. There are good reasons for that — the kind of reasons that makes QCB the bank that reflects the beliefs of Josiah Quincy, Jr., founder of cooperative banking in Massachusetts, and the man for whom our bank was named. We hope that at the end of our next fiscal year, we'll have laid out $10,000,000 in interest to our depositors. We'd still smile, and we also know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Brook Hamilton State VFW Auxiliary Essay Contest Winner

Brooke Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hamilton of Holbrook, formerly of Quincy, was the grand prize winner of the VFW ladies state auxiliary bicentennial essay contest.

She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Shea of 33 Grossman St., South Quincy, and Mr. and Mrs. John McDougall of 228 Beale St., Wollaston.

Her essay, entitled "Pride In Our Past: Faith In Our Future", was read by state chairman Margaret Pensak to more than 900 members of the auxiliary during the state convention.

Brooke is a fourth grader and was awarded a $100 savings bond and a bicentennial medal for her essay.

Jim Pansullo Honored By Heart Association

Jim Pansullo of Wollaston, news reporter and radio announcer for WEEI has received a plaque from the American Heart Association, Southeast Massachusetts Division for his service as Campaign Chairman during the 1975-1976 Heart Association Educational and Fund Raising Campaign.

During the past fiscal year, the public donated the largest amount ever received by the Division.

Before joining WEEI, Pansullo was affiliated with WHDH Television and Radio and with WCVB Television. He is a graduate of the University of Hartford and of the New England School of Drama.

He lives in Wollaston with his wife, Betty-Jo, and their two children.

Steven Costello Aided N.Y. Bicentennial Maritime Activities

Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Steven F. Costello, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Costello of 89 North Bayfield Road, North Quincy, was one of the 3,700 Coast Guardsmen who supported the Bicentennial maritime activities in New York Harbor on the 4th of July weekend.

Costello and fellow Coast Guardsmen were responsible for providing emergency assistance during the International Naval Review and "Operation Sail '76".

As a member of the Support Center at the Coast Guard Station Governors Island, New York City, Costello helped host official visitors from government, business and civic organizations who came to the island to view the marine parade. His command provided press assistance, traffic control, medical service, crowd control, parking and police services. In addition, his command provided charts for the sailing vessels and instructions for docking.

Due to the presence of 10,000 pleasure craft on hand to view the events, the Coast Guard responded to more than four times the usual amount of distress calls for a normal summer weekend.

A 1974 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School, he joined the Coast Guard in September 1974.

Friday - Bus will leave the Center at 12:30 p.m. for a tour of Logan Airport in East Boston.

Mary Travers will be at the Neighborhood Center with information on the Senior Citizen services that are available.

Applications are being taken Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 12 noon for the Atlantic Self-Help Home Improvement Paint Program.

A United Fund Benefit

Learning How To Lip Read Makes Life Easier For Hard Of Hearing

No longer are many Quincy residents reluctant to talk about being hard of hearing.

Reason is a United Way of Mass. Bay agency, the Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing, the agency which trains volunteers to teach lip reading to the hard of hearing.

Through this agency Maryanne Will, a former member of the Peace Corps of 224 Bellevue Rd, Squantum, and her mother, Marie, have taught 12 people the importance of learning how to lip read.

"The people came to the class, held in the function room of the Quincy Savings Bank and sponsored by the Quincy Senior Citizens for 10 free lessons," Miss Will said.

Asked how she became interested in the program Miss

Will said both she and her mother wanted to do some volunteer work. We heard of the Boston Guild for the Hard of Hearing and its course for volunteer lip readers. We took the course and learned that one of the first things we should teach the hard of hearing is that we must face the person with a hearing problem. We must face them directly and on the same level whenever possible.

"We also learned that we must teach people that they shouldn't be afraid to admit they are hard of hearing. We taught them that we are all lip readers to some extent and that we must make them feel comfortable in learning to lip read."

"We found that once the lip reader realized that the problems she faced, particularly the problem of talking on the telephone, was the same problem faced by others in the class they found it easier to communicate with us and with their classmates. When they got to know each other they even kidded about their problems."

One woman said until she went to this class she felt "out of things. I couldn't hear on the telephone and I couldn't hear what people were saying so I just never used the phone and I never entered into a conversation. Now, having just finished my lip reading class I talk to my friends and relatives both on the telephone and in person."

"These women who volunteer their time to help us learn to lip read are wonderful," a 60 year old woman said.

Morrissey Names Campaign Chairman, Treasurer

Jeanne Davis of Lansdowne St., Squantum, has been named chairman and Charles G. Smith of Hollis Ave., North Quincy, treasurer, of the Committee to elect Michael W. Morrissey State Representative.

Morrissey, who lives at 88 Colby Rd., Atlantic, is a candidate for the Third Norfolk District seat held by Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] for the past 18 years.

The Morrissey committee is planning a number of coffee hours and cookouts with a fund-raising dance scheduled for July 27 at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

QJC Offer Course In Non-Profit Management

A course titled "The Management of a Non-Profit Agency" will be offered by Quincy Junior College beginning Sept. 14 at 7 p.m. as part of its Division of Continuing Education Program.

The non-profit course is geared for persons involved or interested in or desiring to enter non-profit/social service, endeavors.

The course will be conducted by Robert Hassey, Director of the Norfolk CASE Project at Quincy District Court and former Executive Director of Survival Inc. of Quincy.

Topics to be covered in the course include a history of management science, concepts in modern management, similarities and differences between profit and non-profit management, particular issues in non-profit work, financial record-keeping, community relations, and fund raising.

Tuition for the 10-week course will be $20 for Quincy residents and $25 for non-residents. Registration will be from Aug. 30 to Sept. 3. For further information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at Quincy Junior College at 471-9200 or 471-2470.

Steven Sines Promoted To Airman First Class

Steven J. Sines, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Sines of 32 Malvern St., Houghs Neck, has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Sines, a security police specialist at Loring AFB, Maine, is assigned to a unit of the Strategic Air Command. He is a 1973 graduate of Quincy High School.

EDITORIAL

The Appointments Probe

Three recent appointments of Mayor Joseph LaRaia have erupted into another Quincy furor.

We hope it is not going to turn into a political stampede and that the City Council, especially, keeps its "cool".

The fact the mayor has made questionable appointments since taking office is worthy of being looked into.

There are logical questions to be asked and he should furnish the answers. The public has a right to know how certain people come to be appointed to certain jobs financed by public funds.

But let's not run amok and turn the city upside down. Frankly, some of the suggestions being proposed in the City Council regarding these and future appointments bother us a little.

We're not too keen over the idea of creating a "blue ribbon" citizens committee to investigate past appointments and/or to recommend ordinance or charter changes tying a mayor's hands in making future appointments.

Another we cannot get excited over is to make appointments of all department heads subject to City Council confirmation or to review by a citizens committee.

A suggestion that a citizens group serve as a nominating committee for appointments sounds too cumbersome.

Another idea to change the charter to weaken the office of mayor and strengthen the office of City Council leaves us cold, too.

There is no reason to meddle with Quincy's city charter. There is nothing wrong with the charter. The problem is there are times when there may be something wrong with the men who serve under it.

A strong chief executive with the City Council holding the purse strings and serving as his check is a good form of government.

The City Council has an Oversight Committee which is its investigative arm. If the mayor's appointments are to be looked into, that is where the matter belongs.

The Oversight Committee's hearings on the appointments should be open to the public.

But let's not tamper with the charter.

Involving citizens committees with mayoral appointments may sound nice and democratic but it is also a way for government to get bogged down. And how can you really keep such a committee pure and free of politics?

Councillor Daniel Raymondi has every right to demand an investigation. Just as Mayor LaRaia had when he was a councillor and pushed for a probe of cemetery department irregularities a couple years ago.

Coincidentally and ironically—it is the same cemetery post and a resignation that has kicked up the present ruckus.

Back then, Mayor Walter Hannon accepted the cemetery superintendent's resignation but Mr. LaRaia, then a City Councillor, demanded a full investigation.

Now, Mr. LaRaia as mayor has accepted a cemetery superintendent's resignation and Mr. Raymondi has demanded a full-scale probe.

Today Mr. LaRaia is charging Mr. Raymondi with "political motivation". Back then, others were charging Mr. LaRaia with the very same thing.

We stressed back then that a man is innocent until proven guilty. There were mountains of newspaper headlines in the cemetery department probe two years ago, but when it was all over, they produced a relative molehill of wrong.

The mayor's most recent appointment is under indictment. But an indictment is still only a vehicle for bringing someone to trial. We still stress that a man is innocent until proven guilty.

And, while we are stressing that, the Mayor and his administration certainly should not be judged until all the information on the appointments has been gathered and made known. The Mayor should be given the opportunity to respond and tell his side of the story. His side of the story should be told. The public is entitled to know all the facts.

But it still seems a little unusual that in seven short months there could be three questionable mayoral appointments. The odds normally would be against it happening.

We would like to know who recommended them—and why. The mayor should answer that.

We also suggest that in the future the police department be asked by the mayor's office to run routine checks on all municipal appointments.

Meanwhile, let the city charter alone. We didn't change the Constitution even after Watergate.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Can I Register

To Vote

Before Age 18?

"I will be 18 on Sept. 3. Can I register to vote now?" a caller recently asked the VOTER INFORMATION PHONE.

"Yes, you can," the VPhone volunteer replied, "as long as you will be 18 before the state primary Sept. 14."

State law provided that you may register for the next election if you will be 18 years old on or before Election Day. Since the next election in Massachusetts will be the Sept. 14 state primary, anyone who is a U.S. citizen, a resident of Massachusetts, and will be 18 on or before Sept. 14 may register now.

The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

The Community Services Administration has awarded Quincy Community Action Organization, Inc., $23,500 to continue providing its services for the next three months, announces Congressman James A. Burk.

SUNBEAMS

Wow! What A Tax Bill!

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Howard Gunnison, the Quincy federal director [Wickens and Troupe] complains about the way real estate taxes are skyrocketing.

He owns two acres of land in Maine and just received this year's tax bill. His total bill, get this: 72 cents! [Honest].

Howard's "upset" because last year his bill was only 68 cents. So he's got to come up with four cents more this year.

And he's afraid he may soon be paying as much as 80 cents a year.

And if it ever gets to $1...well...he may have to sell!

CHARLES HENNESSEY of Merrill Ave., Wollaston couldn't get to his granddaughter's wedding Saturday, so the wedding came to him.

Hennessey is a patient at Quincy City Hospital and couldn't be on hand at St. Ann's church for the wedding of his granddaughter, Anne Esdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Esdale of Norfolk St., Wollaston to Michael Podolski, son of Judge and Mrs. Alfred Podolski, of Dedham. So after the wedding, enroute to their reception at Braintree, the bride and groom and other members of the wedding party stopped off to visit him.

SPEAKING OF WEDDINGS, Arthur Casey, Mayor LaRaia's administrative aide, surrendered his freedom Sunday. He and pretty Cheryl Volpe of Copeland St., were married at St. Mary's church. City Hall friends gave the groom a "farewell" party at Walsh's Restaurant a couple nights before.

RALPH MAHER informs us he is no longer associated with the committee to elect Alley E. McInnis Jr., state representative in the Third Norfolk District. Says he is bowing out as finance chairman "for personal reasons including ever increasing business commitments."

WILLIAM BRABIZON JR., 20 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brabizon, [she's the City Council's Girl Friday] has returned home after a year and a half in Germany with the Army. He's returning to civilian life and plans to go to Northeastern University's Law Enforcement School. [That makes us feel a little older. He was one of our early Sun carriers].

WELL, you'll have to say that young Mike Morrissey is really getting around in his campaign for state representative in the Third Norfolk District. During Quincy Bay Race Week he had a Turnabout out on the water with a sail proclaiming: Vote Morrissey.

NICE GESTURE DEPT: The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association held a cookout recently at Pageant Field. While there, Jack Kerrigan, owner of the Quincy Baskin-Robbins ice cream parlor, noted a group of Happy Acres youngsters bedding down for an overnight camping. Jack passed out a couple hundred coupons for free ice cream cones to them.

THE MINUTEMAN statue in the City Council chamber could become a problem. It is made of mutton fat and paraffin. A creation of the Quincy Vo-Tech School, it won first prize in the Restaurant Association show in Boston last April. That was last April. The statue, it is feared, may soon start melting or smelling—or both.

SMALL FRY DEPT: Youngsters think cigarettes are society's worst invention. And rank automobiles as villain No. 2.

Well, that's what a survey of school children grades three through six in Olathe, Kan. shows, reports the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Seventy per cent said cigarettes should never have been invented. Sixty per cent condemned cars. Because, said the youngsters, both take lives, disable, and pollute the air.

Other culprits on the youngsters' blacklist: Thirty per cent opposed airplanes for high fuel consumption and pollution, and 20 percent were against alcohol and drugs. And, believe it or not, 10 per cent were against dishwashers and 10 percent even nixed television.

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS

By Senator Snuffy

It's not just TV series and politicians falling short of expectations from time to time. Hurricane Belle also qualified.

The way some Republicans behave at Kansas City one would think they're Democrats in disguise.

Embarrassment for a chief executive is having veto after veto overturned. Ask Governor Dukakis.

Starting salary for cops in some cities is now above $15,000 which is in the neighborhood of what a commissioner used to get.

Some amateur gardeners with an overflow of vegetables now understand what agricultural experts mean by over-production.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

Mammoth Torchlight Parade To Support NRA

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy was preparing for a mammoth torchlight parade in support of the National Recovery Administration [NRA], a set of business codes designed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt to help bring the country out of the Depression.

"The first major engagement in the Great War of 1933," it was called by Newell A. Clark, who was styled a "general" in the NRA's penchant for military terms. Anna N. Swenson, a typist at NRA's Quincy office, was called "captain of the keys."

The parade, organized to show that Quincy is solidly behind employers and businessmen who subscribe to the NRA code, is to move down Hancock St. to South Quincy, then back to Merrymount Park for a mass meeting.

Parade marshal will be Commander Jerome L. Sullivan of the John A. Boyd Camp, United Spanish War Veterans; and honorary marshal will be Commander Frederick H. Bishop of the Massachusetts GAR.

Meanwhile, Mrs. T. L. Williams of 74 Edwards St., Quincy Point, won $10 first prize in a contest to select a slogan for the Quincy NRA with "NRA Saves USA".

Contest judges were Mayor Charles A. Ross, Miss Annie Prescott of the Quincy Patriot Ledger and William D. Shields of the Quincy Evening News.

COPELAND CLUB WINS

Jack Kulson pitched a four-hitter and struck out 10 to lead the Copeland Club of West Quincy to a 3-0 victory over the Hingham Town Team. The lineup for the Copelands, managed by Jerry Hughes, included:

Grogan lf, Pellegrini 3b, Bennett 2b, Pettiti cf, Sullivan ss, Hughes lb, Ballou rf, Duffy c, Kulson p.

FORE RIVER BRIDGE PAY SCORED

A delegation representing skilled and unskilled workers met with State DPW Commissioner Frank T. Lyman to protest wage scales set by the state for construction work on the Fore River Bridge.

George Oster, president of the Quincy Central Labor Union, said the state scale was set at 45 cents an hour or $13.50 for a 30-hour week for unskilled workers and 55 cents an hour or $16.50 for a 30-hour week for skilled workers.

He pointed out that Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes had ordered wage scales of 50 cents an hour and $1.20 an hour on all construction projects involving federal funds.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

Bottle Bill Won't Eliminate Slobs

Bicycling the secondary roads of the South Shore and Cape Cod is my primary form of exercise. Subsequently, I have become an expert on roadside litter, and especially broken beer bottles.

I've seen enough slobes use the highways as their trash can so that my first inclination about a proposal to outlaw non-returnable beverage containers is to support it.

My logic here, of course, is faulty. The correct thing to do is to outlaw slobes.

The facts provided by the bottle and can industry suggest that the two states that have succeeded in adopting legislation placing a mandatory deposit on beverage containers -- Oregon and Vermont -- have failed miserably in achieving their stated objectives and success of the bottle and can referendum here on November's Ballot will do little more than insure higher beer and soda costs and less selection within months after it becomes law.

Forced returnables in Oregon were supposed to cut litter by 90%. In the first year, bottle and can litter went down 10%, and litter having no relationship to beverages rose 12%.

Non-returnable and returnable bottles showed up in the litter in the same ratio as their market availability. This helps to prove that a deposit won't turn a slob into a good citizen. And since half of all litter is paper in the first place, the total effect in Oregon was increased litter.

Some 165 people in Oregon lost their jobs directly as a result of beverage container companies closing or laying off, and $6 to $8 million in beverage sales were lost from people who just stopped buying.

The Vermont experience is shorter but no better. Packaged beer sales dropped by 23% or 1.6 million cases in the first year. The price to the consumer increased by 15 cents a six-pack, and there is a 30 cent deposit which apparently many people are willing to forfeit for they treat their returnables like non-returnables.

Returnable bottles, which are of a sturdier variety, cost more to make. Oil and natural gas are used in their manufacturing. Less expensive disposable bottles are made in a coal-fired process. Coal is cheaper and more abundant so disposables are more energy conserving. A truck carrying canned beer versus bottled beer can haul twice as much because of weight of the glass vs. aluminum so twice the energy has to be used to deliver equal amounts of beer or soda in glass vs. cans. Cans, by the way, in Oregon and Vermont, are nearly unavailable because of their unreliable character.

The consumer, over a long period of time, has clearly voiced the desire to consume beverages from non-returnable containers. The vision of cheaper beverages, energy savings, less litter, new jobs handling returnables, kids' piggy banks filled with nickels, as promised by proponents of this referendum, are a shattered myth. That is unless the people of Oregon and Vermont are substantially different than Baystaters -- and I doubt that.

The idea sounds fine. So did Prohibition. However, the root cause of our national litter problem is not convenience packaging -- it is the person -- the slob -- whose lack of respect for himself, his fellow citizen, and his environment allows him to, without a pang of conscience, consider the highways, by-ways, and damn him, the bike paths of America as his own personal garbage can.

LIVING TODAY

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

'Loving The Woman In His Life'

There's no way that a woman trying to live a total life can do so unless the man she lives with is a Total Man. The sense in which we're using the word "total" needs defining. It means feeling fulfilled within oneself ... a comfortable and satisfying relationship with the partner ... an absence of longing, loneliness and inhibition ... freedom to express one's feelings and ideas with impunity ... the joy of living an exuberant life. Each individual must determine what is "total" to himself for a full and happy life. To have a full and happy life, I am suggesting that a Total Woman needs a Total Man.

There are 43,000,000 single people in this nation. While some may feel "total" in many ways, the rise of singles groups, Personals in classified advertising, computer dating, and various kinds of meeting opportunities indicate that single people have need for other people to enjoy the full and happy life. Many of these people have been severely hurt in previous relationships in marriage, where they could not be a Total Woman and Total Man. Now they seek a companionship where they can. In too many marriages it's impossible to be a total person.

Here's Mary, who is trying to be a Total Woman to Frank. She's affectionate and loving ... concerned for Frank's feelings and needs ... married nineteen years and for the last ten the relationship has been marked with verbal fights, angry threats, and short periods of separation. Frank was enmeshed in a business which involved personnel and financial problems which kept him constantly worried. He couldn't enjoy anything... spent all his evenings at his office ... literally shut Mary out of his life. While he fought against business failure, his personal life was failing. As much as he wanted a full and happy life, it was impossible with this man. At this interval in his life, Frank simply was not receptive to a Total Woman, because he was not a Total Man.

Or ... take Jennifer, married to Joe, good looking ... thinking he's God's gift to women ... flattering to other women ... neglectful to Jennifer ... unable to make responsible decisions ... unwilling to do any chores around the home. How is Jennifer going to be a Total Woman to Joe? She can't. Nor can she change Joe. He has to come to terms with himself before he can make himself receptive to a Total Woman.

The Total Man [my book under preparation] is being written for the purpose of helping men to know what a Total Man really is ... and to help men to know how to become The Total Man.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Good Citizen Participation Necessary

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In answer to inquiries regarding my script aired on WCVB, Channel 5, Thursday, July 29, 1976, it is as follows:

Good American government demands citizen participation. So it is indeed sad that millions of Americans won't bother to vote this year. But the Guzzi bill, endorsed by Channel 5 is no cure for the problem. Ease of voter registration does not arouse devotion to truth and justice. Laziness does not challenge corruption.

The situation changes, however, when people use the polls to improve government. Then, they exercise their franchise. Last November, Quincy's municipal election elicited the greatest voter participation in the city's history. The turnout was 73% rather than the large 68% predicted, by the City Clerk.

The significance of the vote was that citizen involvement did not end on election day. Concerned citizens maintained a 24-hour, 19-day vigil over the police, who were guarding the sealed safe, containing the ballots. On the last day of the recount, errors were discovered. 6 bloc's of 50 votes each, did not belong to the incumbent mayor. So, the city administration was overturned.

The right to vote is more than a give-away prize, awarded by legislation. It is a distinct American privilege. Beyond voting, every citizen owes the country a vigilant watch and close scrutiny of its public servants.

Eastern Nazarene College Receives Grants For Scholarships

A grant by the Permanent Charity Fund, Inc. has been awarded to Eastern Nazarene College, Wollaston, for scholarships to be given to graduates of Massachusetts community colleges and junior colleges.

Scholarships in amounts ranging from $100 to $1,000, based upon demonstrated financial need, will be given to new transfer students from Massachusetts two-year colleges. These awards are renewable for a second year at Eastern Nazarene, which is still accepting applications for junior college transfers and student aid.

The initial grant, in the amount of $4,000, to be matched by $1,000 of Eastern Nazarene scholarship funds, will be increased to accommodate both renewals and new scholarship awards in the second year. The Permanent Charity Fund plans to continue the program through 1980.

This new program of transfer scholarships was undertaken with discretionary income of the Permanent Charity Fund for a four-year period in the hope that it would strengthen the educational interchange between two-year colleges and independent four-year colleges. The intent is to help the colleges and the students to test the usefulness of greater access to the full array of the educational opportunities in the Commonwealth.

Established in 1915, Permanent Charity Fund is the endowed community foundation for Greater Boston. Its endowment of approximately $70 million represents the gifts of more than 150 Bostonians since 1915. Each year the Fund makes grants totalling about $3.5 million to agencies and institutions involved in education, health, social welfare, recreation and cultural activities in the Boston area.

Few Cancellations

39th QBRW Goes Smoothly After Bad Weather Threat

Prospects early last week were not bright for the 39th annual Quincy Bay Race Week with the threat of Hurricane Belle, but things worked out extremely well and all officials were delighted with the results.

"I was afraid on Monday we might have to cancel at least the opening day's races because of the hurricane threat," Race Week President Pat Conroy said. "But the storm fortunately weakened, there was little or no damage and everything went off on schedule."

The only races canceled during the week were the outside line and the Green Fleet races on Saturday. First a squall fouled things up and when it cleared there was absolutely no wind, necessitating the only cancellations of the week.

At midweek the only race results not known were the ocean races, the Boston to Bermuda race and the two Remick races.

A year ago the weatherman put a damper on the 38th Race Week when racing had to be cancelled for three days and the final standings were based on only two days of racing. It looked bad again this year until Belle decided to give everyone a break.

The annual Trophy Night will be held Sept. 10 at Town River Yacht Club when all prizes will be awarded. All winners and guests are invited to attend.

Track Club Members Qualify For Nationals

In just two years the Quincy Track Club, largely through the efforts of late director, Frank Kelly, has become a recognized organization throughout New England and especially in the Boston area.

In three championship age-group meets, the Junior Olympics, U.S. Youth Games and Jesse Owens Track Classic, eight QTC members qualified by winning their events and three others took seconds or thirds.

In the qualifying meet for the Junior Olympics held in Randolph, Patty Miceli, a 14-year old entering the ninth grade at Central Junior High, won the shotput in the girls' 14-15 age group with a toss of 29-3, a personal best for her. She was invited to the AAU sectional meet in Syracuse, N.Y.

In the Jesse Owens meet held at Boston University's Nickerson Field, Joanne O'Leary, a 12-year old entering the eighth grade at Central, won the long jump in the 12-13 age bracket with a leap of 14-8. She will travel to Philadelphia for the national meet together with other Boston area winners. Teammate Linda Morash placed third at 13-10.

The Quincy club had its best showing in the Youth Games tryouts at White Stadium. Six members came away with first place trophies, one placed second and one third.

Dan McIntyre led the group by winning the 14-15 440 at 55.1. Danny was a member of last winter's championship North Quincy High indoor track team and of Atlantic championship ninth grade team. A year ago he was selected the QTC's MVP in his age group.

Mike Gallagher, a 15-year old entering his junior year at North Quincy, won the shot with a fine toss of 49-1/2. Mike also is an outstanding discus thrower and took part in the Class B state meet which North Quincy won.

Jim Bellafatto, entering his junior year at Weymouth South High, won the high jump at 5-11.

In the girls' events, Linda Cellini won the 100 in the 14-15 bracket at 12.0 and also took third in the long jump. She attends Abp. Williams High.

Loretta Garrigan, a 13-year old attending Atlantic Junior High, won the high jump at 4-6 in the 12-13 division. She was an age-group MVP for QTC last year, was unbeaten junior high city champ in the 50 and high jump and anchored the undefeated relay team which set a city record.

Laurie Clarke placed third in the high jump in her division but was later declared the winner when the first two girls were disqualified due to an age mixup. This is Laurie's third appearance in the U.S. Youth Games and she also competed in the Jesse Owens Meet a few years ago.

Joanne O'Leary was second in the long jump and Tommy Pound third in the 14-15 half mile.

Sue Stamos, Sarale Cobban Recreation 'Leaders Of Week'

Two North Quincy High School graduates have been named "Leaders of the Week" by recreation director Robert K. Beniers.

Sue Stamos, who graduated in 1973 and who is the leader at O'Rourke playground earned the honor with a fine crafts display, a unique design of team uniforms and two girls district championships.

Sue is in her second year at

Oilers To Meet Merrimac

The Randolph Oilers, buoyed by four Quincy players, will host the Merrimac Valley Colts in an Eastern Football League game Sunday at 2 p.m. at Randolph High School field.

Two of the team's mainstays, quarterback-halfback Ted

Meyers and guard Kevin Cotter, both from Quincy, have been joined by two other Quincy players. Mike Moriarty, who specializes in punt and kickoff returns, rejoined the squad last week, and newcomer Ed Sylva, an aggressive guard, has joined the team.

25-2 Record

Police Club Wins 3rd Babe Ruth Title

The Quincy Police Boys Club won its third Babe Ruth League championship in four years with a three-game sweep over Barry's Deli in the playoff finals.

The Police Club set a league record this season with a 25-2 record. The team won its last 20 games, never before accomplished in the league.

The Police nipped Barry's, 2-1, in the opening game with Fran Donovan the winning pitcher.

In the second game the champs won by the same score with Tom Brennan picking up the win to make his record 9-0. He allowed only two hits, struck out five and walked three. Barry's pitcher Bill Deitsch was also outstanding as he gave up three hits, struck out six and walked three.

Bill O'Connell had two hits and Brennan the other for Police. Ace Abboud had a single and Ryan a double for Barry's.

The third and deciding game was loosely played with Police winning, 8-7.

Bob Mezzetti was the winning pitcher and gave up only two hits but he walked 10. He struck out eight. The Police collected eight hits, four by Larry Baker, a double and three singles; a double by O'Connell and singles by Kevin McKinnon, Donovan and Mezzetti a single each off losing pitcher Gary Earle. Deitsch had a triple and Tierney a double for Barry's.

The Police team, sponsored by the Quincy Police Betterment Association and coached by Dick Laracy and Assistant Shorty Donovan [they have an 88-22 record over the last four years], had outstanding pitching from Brennan, Mezzetti [8-1], Donovan [5-1], O'Connell [1-0] and John Sullivan [1-0].

The catching was done by 14-year old Bob Cronin, considered one of the best in the league, backed up by Mezzetti.

The infield comprised

McKinnon at first base, O'Connell at second, Donovan at shortstop and Brennan at third. John Costigan, a 13-year-old, filled in when Brennan, Donovan or O'Connell pitched. The infield had 16 double plays and three of the players will be back next year.

Rounding out the team were 13-year-olds John Sweet, infielder; Ron Pettinelli, outfielder, and Bruce Tobin, pitcher.

Wrestling Tourney Saturday

A wrestling tournament will be held Saturday in the Quincy High gym under the direction of Quincy High Coach Carmen Mariano.

Boys entering the eighth grade or lower will weigh in from 9 to 10 a.m. and wrestle from 10 to noon. Boys entering grades 9 through 12 will weigh in from 10 to noon and begin wrestling at noon.

The younger boys, eighth grade and lower, will enter free of charge. Entry fee for the high schoolers will be one dollar. Spectators are welcome free of charge.

Catalano 2nd In 6-Mile Scituate Race

Quincy High Track Coach Joe Catalano for the second straight year finished second in the six-mile road race last Saturday in Scituate sponsored by the South Shore Dartmouth Club and the Scituate C. of C.

Marty Levenson, North Quincy High star, placed ninth in the annual race in which 103 runners started and 91 finished. The race was won by Bruce Bond of New Canaan, Conn., who will be entering his junior year at Princeton. Finishing in 29 minutes, 45 seconds, he pulled away from Catalano at the three-mile mark. Catalano's time was 30:45. Levenson did the distance in 33:48 as he finished ahead of last year's winner, Peter Kuchinski of the North Medford Club.

Koch Broadmeadows District Awards Night Thursday

The Broadmeadows District of the Koch Club Boy's Baseball and Girl's Softball Leagues will hold its 15th annual Parents and Awards Night tonight [Thursday] at 6:30 p.m. at Broadmeadows Junior High School Field, Calvin Rd.

Trophies will be awarded to boys and girls based on their attendance and certificates will be presented to boys and girls in both leagues who have demonstrated reliability and continued attendance during the season.

A brochure on the flag will be distributed to each boy and girl, compliments of Captain Richard Stratton, U.S. Navy, who was guest speaker at the 25th annual Flag Day Parade of the Koch Club. A copy of the Congressional Record recording the event will be presented to each member attending as a Bicentennial souvenir.

Ice cream will be distributed during the evening for the boys and girls attending the event closing out the 15th year.

The Koch Club of Quincy is celebrating its 28th anniversary. The Broadmeadows District was founded 15 years ago by Anthony T. Delmonico, Broadmeadows District Director. Delmonico has been associated with the Koch Club for 17 years.

The Broadmeadows District, since 1964, has annually awarded $100 each to a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School. These scholarships, have totaled $2,600. of the $7,000 presented by the Koch Club since 1959. The Koch Club, in 1973, on the 25th anniversary of the organization, established a long range scholarship fund that will begin in 1998, the 50th anniversary of the Club, guaranteeing perpetual annual scholarships. The 25th anniversary events brought $3,000 for the project and the North Quincy and Broadmeadows Districts donated $1,000 each.

The Broadmeadows District since 1962, annually participated in the Christmas programs, including food baskets, toys, and Santa's visits to shut-in children.

Delmonico will be emcee for the Boy's Baseball Awards and Mrs. Gerry Delmonico will conduct the introductions of the Girl's Softball winners. Richard J. Koch, Executive Director of the Koch Club, will be the speaker.

2 Wollaston Girls In Youth Commission Basketball Games

Two Wollaston girls have been selected to play on the Boston basketball team which is competing in the U.S. Youth Commission Games which began yesterday [Wednesday] at Harvard and run through Monday.

Fourteen cities from all parts of the country have sent teams.

Denise Jay, 15, of 249 Highland Ave., and Nancy Smith, 14, of 83 Haviland St., were selected from a group of more than 90 girls from the Greater Boston area. Ten girls 15 and under have made the Boston team following two months of workouts. Alfreda Harris, coach at Roxbury Community College, will coach the Boston Team.

Denise will be a junior at Abp. Williams next month and is starting at guard. She has started every game for two years at Williams and has averaged more than 14 points a game.

This summer in Boston Neighborhood League competition, she has led her team in scoring several times.

Her teams at Abp. Williams have compiled a 19-1 record over two years while qualifying for the state tournament both years.

She also plays softball and had two four-hit games this spring. Nancy will be a sophomore at Williams this fall and played at Central Junior High in Quincy. She started every game since the seventh grade and her teams won three successive city championships while she led the scorers each year. A straight A student, she time and again will ignite her team with a steal and driving layup, a running jump shot or a perfect pass.

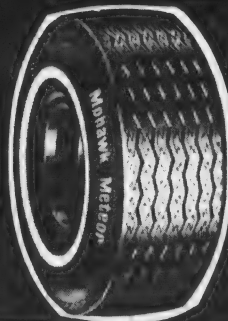

She was the state foul shooting champion in her class two years ago and, like Denise, is a softball player, starting at shortstop for Central.

Crusader Basketball, Soccer Camps Open Next Week

The annual Crusader Basketball and Soccer Camps, operated by the Eastern Nazarene College coaches, will be held next week at Long Lake Acres in Naples, Me. The basketball camp is for boys 12-17 and the soccer camp for boys 9 to 12.

ENC Basketball Coach and Athletic Director Jim Smith is the basketball director and overall camp director. He is assisted by ENC Asst. Coach Dr. Jerold McCloy and Don Constantino of North Quincy, a teacher and former 1000-point scorer at ENC.

Ron Bradley, who gained his fame at ENC in basketball, is the soccer director and is assisted by Steve Shoff, head coach at Weymouth North High School and a former ENC standout, and Bill Mauger of the Bridgewater Youth Soccer Association.

Bradley makes his bow as ENC soccer coach this fall.

This is the fourth year for the Crusader Camp.

"This is more than just basketball and soccer," Smith said. "It is also a camping experience designed to develop character while playing the game the boys enjoy most." The camp has its own private sandy beach and many other features.

Swimmers Rack Up 432 Miles

Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers reports swimmers at the 13 city beaches have accumulated a grand total of 432 miles after five weeks of participation in the Red Cross sponsored, "Swim and Stay Fit" 50-mile swim program.

Leading is Elm Street Beach, directed by instructors Nancy Ellis and Eileen Feeney, with a total of 117 miles. Setting the pace for Elm Street and leading all the city swimmers is Jean Callow with 16 miles.

Other swimmers doing well are Marie Bowen with 12 miles, Nancy Callow and Laura Grande with eight miles each.

Runner up beach group is Avalon under instructor Helen Johnson with a total of 63 miles. Leading swimmers for Avalon are Dave Noonan and C. Wood with 10 miles each.

In third place with 55 miles is Fenno Street with leaders Janice Costello and Diane Dunn.

Williams Returns To Fenway For Jimmy Fund Game

Red Sox Hall of Famer Ted Williams returns to Fenway Park Tuesday night to throw out the first ball for the Jimmy Fund game between the Red Sox and California Angels.

The last time Ted was at Fenway was as manager of the Texas Rangers.

All Red Sox proceeds of Tuesday's game will be donated to the Jimmy Fund for the fight against cancer in children.

Another highlight of the City Tennis Tourney Saturday

The sixth annual city tennis championship tournament will begin Saturday, with the draw being posted at the Vo-Tech courts Friday evening and all day Saturday.

Deadline for entries is Wednesday [Aug. 18]. Applications must be returned to tournament director John Franceschini at 26 Main St., or to the Recreation Office, 1120 Hancock St.

Past winners have been:

evening, starting at 7, will be a three-inning softball game between Boston area radio-TV sports personalities and a team of Boston area sportswriters. Clif Keane, former Boston Globe sportswriter and now host of a weekly talk show on WMEX, will manage the radio-TV team and Larry Clafin, Herald American columnist, will handle the writers' team.

The Sox open a home stand Friday against the A's and it will be the annual Mass. Elks Night. Sunday will be state of Vermont Day with Gov. Thomas Salmon leading the fans from the Green Mountain State and throwing out the first ball.

Council, LaRaia Move Toward Appointments Showdown

appointments and the initiator of the investigation, asked the Mayor to refrain from making any further appointments until the probe was finished.

Mayor LaRaia responded by naming former City Councilor J. Vincent Smyth to the vacant post of cemetery superintendent on Tuesday.

"If any further vacancies occur they will be filled," said the Mayor. "It is the prerogative of the Mayor's office under the city's charter."

Councilor Sheets said the Oversight Committee would have four items dealing with the investigation on its agenda for the Wednesday meeting.

First it will decide who is to investigate. Will it be the Oversight Committee itself? Will it be a blue ribbon committee of citizens? Or will it be a combination of the two, with citizens participating in the deliberations of the Oversight Committee? If citizens do participate, how many and how will they be selected?

Second, said Sheets, "I will ask the committee to come up with the formulation of some positive objectives. What do we hope to attain? What will be the end product of the investigation? We hope to recommend to the City Council certain corrective actions."

Third, he said, "we want to identify the areas of inquiry concerning mayoral appointment procedures. Each Councilor will suggest areas in which he wants to inquire. That doesn't mean we can't open new areas but we must identify the areas in which to begin."

Fourth, said Sheets, "we should accept the appointment of a liaison man from the Mayor's office, someone to serve as the Mayor's contact. In my opinion he should have the right to ask questions at the hearings and speak on behalf of the administration."

Sheets was uncertain as to when the actual investigation could get underway.

"I prefer to get started right away," he said. "But if we have to wait five or six days to select participating citizens then we probably would not be able to get started until next week."

"I'd like to see the whole thing wrapped up by the end of September. I can anticipate two meetings a week, perhaps three, if necessary, once we get rolling. I want to get the job done. I don't think it's wise to drag it out."

Mayor LaRaia said he probably will designate his executive secretary, John Salenius, to act as liaison man between the Mayor's office and the investigating committee.

Asked if he felt that the City Council's assault on some of his appointments is political, the Mayor said:

"I think I've said enough on the subject. Put it this way: Let the chips fall where they may. Let the actions of the City Council be judged by the public."

"If Mr. Raymond's wants to conduct an investigation, that is his prerogative. He is entitled to a response to a rational question. But I don't feel it is necessary to hold inquisition on one individual."

"Let his [Raymond's] actions as City Councilor be judged by the public. I feel what he has done is above and beyond what is necessary to resolve any problems that have come between my office and the City Council."

"What can I say? It was my decision to appoint Mr. McGinley. It was my decision to accept his resignation. But I don't want to rehash all that again."

Actually, the City Council, at Raymond's urging, wants to investigate three LaRaia appointments that ended in quick resignations. The other two involved:

• James C. Short, who was named retail store coordinator Jan. 5 and resigned Jan. 16 because, the Mayor said, he lacked the real estate background needed for the federally funded job. On April 22, Short was convicted of larceny and attempted larceny in connection with the job but after his resignation.

• Stephen N. F. Anderson, who was appointed assistant director of Quincy City Hospital March 29 and resigned May 9 after the City Council refused to appropriate $5,551 to pay his salary through June 30. He said he resigned because of "constant bickering between the Hospital Board and the Mayor's Office."

The dispute between the Mayor and the Council reached a peak during a special meeting of the Council last Thursday night at which Raymond demanded the investigation. A partial transcript of the discussion follows:

COUNCILLOR DANIEL G. RAYMONDI:

"I believe it is time for the Mayor of this city to face the issues he can avoid no longer. He has thrown innuendos and character attacks and rhetoric at me in the last few days and he has yet to address the issues that I presented last Tuesday."

"I ask the Mayor if he is defending a system of his appointments. Is he saying there is nothing wrong with a procedure that has produced at least three major blunders within a seven-month period? Is the Mayor satisfied with his record of performance in this area? I know that I'm not."

"I think it's time we take some action."

"The Mayor has accused me of listening to others. I suggest to the Mayor and his administration that the only people I'm listening to are the many disgruntled city employees who are sick and tired of being embarrassed by some of these appointments and the people I represent who find it shocking that people with this kind of background receive $20,000 a year jobs in the city."

"How many times must the Council — as we have done in two out of the three circumstances — how many times must we not investigate? How many times under the guise of cooperation and coexistence and not to rock the boat have we not gone into the issues we know we must face when the time has come. I suggest at this point we have gone too far and the time has come."

"The people want answers to the questions that I asked Tuesday evening. The questions are: Where are these people coming from? Who is hiring these people? Who is recommending them? What, if any, application is filled out? What, if any, screening procedure is taking place? What kind of followup procedures take place? The people want answers, not rhetoric."

"The reasons why I favor the alternative [a blue ribbon citizens committee] but I don't reject the other two... I feel that this citizens committee is the most appropriate. A citizens committee may recommend that we establish a screening committee or a nominating committee to review all mayoral appointments; maybe a charter change, perhaps to take the power of appointment away from the Mayor and place it in the hands of the City Council. A charter change would require citizen participation."

"[I suggest] a citizens committee made up of five citizens from this community to be picked by Council President Tobin. We could have a period of time when people made their recommendations to the Council President and he would have the selection on his own. We need the ideas of the people who live in this city. Are these people shocked as to what has been happening? I believe they are."

"These issues are too important to be clouded with political rhetoric. I don't believe that the Mayor could attack the integrity or the responsibility of and objective, responsible citizens group, who pay taxes in this city, who are concerned with the operation of this administration and who feel as deeply as I do about the city of Quincy."

"The Mayor can attack me. I'm in political office. He can attack my integrity, my background, my family relationships, whatever. But I don't believe the Mayor can hide from the responsibility of facing the issues when he is confronted by a citizens committee that demands some answers to the questions that I asked."

COUNCILLOR DENNIS E. HARRINGTON:

"I believe it is tantamount to a charade for any suggestion other than the Oversight Committee to investigate this matter. If there is to be a special blue ribbon committee I say fine, but I'm not willing to give up my responsibility nor am I willing to have my duty done by any committee. If a committee is appointed I will object to it so long as the investigation goes on. Any councilor who does not choose to sit with me and bear the responsibility of his office can answer for it."

COUNCILLOR JAMES A. SHEETS:

"I believe the time to take action is at hand. But one question I have to ask the Councilor: If we are going to set the guidelines; if we are going to mark the boundaries; if we are going to indicate who is or is not going to be interviewed; then we are in fact injecting ourselves into the process; we are in fact controlling indirectly and directly in some cases the action of that committee. I cannot understand how that committee would not be criticized as being politically operated, although perhaps not politically motivated."

COUNCILLOR WARREN A. POWERS:

"I suggest that the Council look to the future to appointments that may be made from this day forth; that maybe we should have a charter whereby the City Council would have the power to review and confirm the appointment of department heads so that there would be an opportunity for all the elected officials to participate in the selection process. Right now, legally speaking, we don't have that right or that authority."

"I think if we're going to look to the future, if we want to participate as a City Council, then we should look to a basic change in our structure of government and we should look toward that for the future to make a stronger City Council and maybe a weaker executive."

COUNCILLOR RAYMONDI:

"If we could get some objectivity from the Mayor's office, I wouldn't care who conducted the investigation. I think the issue is that important."

"The Mayor does not address himself to the issue that his administration, perhaps through no fault of his or his administration, has hired some people and he has had problems with some of these people. The problems are documented. They're not denied. Nobody's casting aspersions. But I think it's time that if there is a problem we must look into the problem and take corrective action. If the committee finds that there is no problem, then fine."

"The other side of the coin is that after the resignations were announced there was an attempt not to give the full reason why these people resigned. Maybe the Mayor had his own reasons for not giving the reasons. But I must have a full explanation. We've gone through it once; we've gone through it twice; we've gone through it three times. I don't want to sit here in the City Council and go through it a fourth or a fifth time... If this happened in a business, whoever hired these people would no longer be working in the business. But these people who made the basic decisions to hire these people are still working for the city."

COUNCILLOR JOHN J. QUINN:

"You say we have to take this out of the political arena. Every single thing that is done in this Council chamber is a political decision; it involves emotions; it involves personalities; it involves all the facets of life."

"We should look at the issue as it is. The practice of hiring employees; how to correct that particular problem, if that in fact is the real problem. As far as the personnel that has been involved in hiring and leaving city employment in the past, that is over with. The issue at hand is how to correct that type of problem in the future."

"I concur with Councilor Harrington that this issue and the subject matter that has been raised by Councilor Raymond should be referred to the Oversight Committee. The committee meetings should be held here in the Council chamber open to all the people."

COUNCILLOR LEO J. KELLY:

"I have heard in the streets for the first time the remark that Quincy is a dirty city, or words to that effect. I've never believed it. When someone says that I get so mad I almost want to strike that person. It just infuriates me almost to the point of tears. I love this city and I've found nothing wrong in it in the three years I've been in government."

"As far as the charter goes it seems to me it is a working charter. It has proved itself in the three particular cases that have come up. I believe one person never really got on the payroll. Another lasted a week. The other one probably a matter of a few days. The charter works."

"It is my feeling that it belongs in the Oversight Committee with all nine councilors who were elected to handle the dirty ones and the good ones and not pass on the obligations given to us by the people who elected us here."

COUNCILLOR ARTHUR H. TOBIN:

"We have sat through some troubled times. I don't think this is any time to run and shirk our duty. I don't intend to. What troubles me is Quincy's pride. Where are we going from here?"

"We sat together through a very sensitive time during the cemetery investigation. I was requested by the Mayor, then a city councilor, to convene the Oversight Committee at that time, which I did. The chairman and members of that committee took much abuse. What bothers me is that this could happen again."

"We sat here during the recount of a very close mayoral election. We sat here during the first incident discussed by Councilor Raymond. We sat through the hiring and the leaving of the young man who was hired at the hospital. And now we're sitting through this unfortunate incident. When you put them all together it doesn't put the great, historic City of Presidents in a favorable light."

"If you walk the steps of Beacon Hill or walk through the city and you serve in public office you are the brunt of a lot of jokes, referring to the cemetery investigation, the recount, stealing elections, you've heard all this. There's nothing new."

"There are three orders before us this evening and I could support any one of them. I tend to support the distinguished councilor from Ward 2 [Raymond]. I take no pride in authorship as being president of the City Council to appoint a special blue ribbon committee. What bothers me is that the young councilor already has been the subject of a personal attack. We could see more of this in the future. That's why I tend to lean toward an independent citizens group."

"I think every question raised here tonight has been legitimate. I think it has been a healthy discussion, much needed on this Council. I do take issue with the word 'charade'. I don't believe it is a charade. I take issue with another statement. I for one never want to see a weak executive of this great City of Presidents. Never."

"If these orders are referred to the Oversight Committee, which I have no objection to, I intend to offer an amendment. I would request the chairman of the Oversight Committee to include citizens participation in that committee, whether it be at the subcommittee level or whether they be ex officio members. I'm talking about the same type of citizen participation that Councilor Raymond is demanding. I think he should receive it to take it out of the pure realm of politics."

"I'm very sensitive to what has happened to this City Council in the past — the name-calling, the innuendos, the character assassination. I do come to the defense of the councilor from Ward 2 at this time... I have had my disagreements with that gentleman. But at this particular moment on this day at this time I think he stands 10 feet tall. I think it was an unwarranted attack on his character and integrity."

"The young man seeks no personal glory. There is none to be gained by anyone. Anyone who thinks that he can get involved in issues like this to build a foundation to seek higher office is fooling himself. Anyone that would suggest that Councilor Raymond is even thinking of this is unworthy of further comment."

"I am concerned if we don't heed the words of Councilor Raymond that we should have citizen participation. I think you're opening this Council up to name-calling, vendettas, politics, what hunts and so forth and I ask you to consider this very carefully."

"This is not a period in our history when we should be sitting here attacking the chief executive of our city. Heaven knows, he needs our help more now than ever before. We don't get ahead in this life by stepping on someone else. Anyone in public office who wishes to get ahead, do it on your own merits. You don't get ahead, attacking others."

Hospital Now Has Atomic Scanner To Check You

A new $115,000 nuclear scanning device, the Baird Atomic System 77, has been installed at Quincy City Hospital's Radiology Department.

The instrument is considered to be one of the most modern in nuclear medicine studies of the human body. It is extremely valuable in preoperative and post-operative diagnosis. A spokesman for the X-ray department said the machine can complete most procedures in a much shorter period of time with a greater degree of comfort and safety to the patient.

Computerized for data retrieval and analysis and equipped with a color television camera and magnetic information storage device, the "Multi Crystal Gamma Camera" makes it possible to view many internal structures and functions of bodily organs, which standard X-ray equipment may not.

Diagnostic evaluation of such entities as brain strokes, blood vessel flow, cardiac function, the extent of cancer spread, the severity of heart attacks, and evaluation of liver abnormalities are but a few of the functions performed by this machine.

Radioactive isotopes injected into the blood stream allow the television camera to monitor the blood flow into the brain, heart and kidneys. This process, called "dynamics", enables the doctors to compile vital up to the minute data on patients and allows them to assess improvement or potential deterioration in the patient's condition very early in the course of illness.

The nuclear scanning device can also trace radioactive isotopes which are directed to certain parts of the body, which are then photographed and isolated for analysis. This procedure, called "static imaging", is used for diagnostic study of the liver, lungs, bones, thyroid, brain, heart and kidneys to name just a few regions. According to a spokesman for the hospital, this machine provides unprecedented speed, accuracy and versatility in the field of clinical nuclear medicine.

Eugene Zupkofska Assigned To Keesler AFB

Airman Eugene F. Zupkofska, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. Zupkofska of 10 Watkins St., Wollaston, has been assigned to Keesler AFB, Miss., after completing Air Force basic training.

During six weeks training at Lackland AFB, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

Zupkofska will now receive specialized training in the avionics systems field. He is a 1975 graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical High School.

FR Bridge Environmental Impact Study Hailed By Chamber

The state DPW's decision to proceed with an environmental impact study in connection with replacement of the Fore River Bridge has been hailed by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber called it "a necessary step toward realization of a project we have considered a priority item for several years."

The Chamber's Bridge Replacement Action Team has been working for several years toward replacement of the present Fore River Bridge between Quincy and Weymouth to provide a wider opening to the sea from General Dynamics Shipbuilding Division.

Over the past year the team has urged the state DPW to approve the environmental impact study. Team members believe that such a study would show that the environment surrounding the bridge and shipyard would not be adversely affected by construction of a new bridge.

Chamber President Jack Conway, said the study should be expedited so that the next step toward solution of the bridge bottleneck may be taken. "A new Fore River Bridge is vital to the economy of the South Shore," he said, "not only in terms of advantage to General Dynamics, but to the area's total economic picture."

An Economic Impact Study carried out in 1974-75 confirmed the fact that there is economic justification for replacing the bridge. Conway said that the consulting firm that conducted the economic study very likely would be called upon to undertake the environmental investigation.

The next step toward replacement hopefully would be a study of the actual bridge design he said.

Conway pointed out that as far back as 1953, when Bethlehem Steel owned the shipyard, officials expressed concern over the small size of the bridge opening.

General Dynamics says millions of dollars in ship contracts will be lost unless a wider bridge is constructed to enable them to bid on the larger ships envisioned for the future.

From the beginning, Conway said, every elected official as well as every candidate running for office promised support for replacing the bridge, but very little of that support was forthcoming.

However, he noted, state Senators Allan R. McKinnon [D-Weymouth] and Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy] have lent their full support to efforts of the Chamber's Bridge Replacement Action Team. Many business and civic leaders on the South Shore have also helped.

Delahunt Seeks $18,000 Grant To Evaluate Law Enforcement Programs

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has filed an application for an $18,000 federal grant to participate in a new program to evaluate the effectiveness of Norfolk County's law enforcement programs.

The purpose of the program is to hire specialists to develop new and refined techniques for evaluating and improving various federally funded programs.

"The Norfolk District Attorney's office has been receiving nearly $100,000 per year in federal funds for District Court prosecutors," said Delahunt. "These funds will help us take an in-depth look at that program as well as many other facets of our office.

"It will give us an opportunity to take an objective, critical view of our operations and make improvements where they are called for. Our office is very pleased to have been designated one of only a few agencies throughout the country to submit a proposal."

permits."

If the Corps recommends that the dredging be done, the project would require Congressional authorization, and Burke said that he would use every resource at his disposal to shepherd the project through the authorization process.

The silting in the Fore River past the General Dynamics yard channel may soon be remedied, according to Congressman James A. Burke.

Several weeks ago, Burke asked the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin a study of the condition of the river between the shipyard and the mooring area beyond the Quincy Ave. bridge.

The Corps has complied with that request, and will begin a navigation study "as soon as [their] manpower capability

Utility Union Leaders Oppose Public Power Authority

Top labor leaders representing over 5,000 Massachusetts workers affiliated with the Utility Workers Union of America unanimously endorsed opposition to the establishment of a public power authority.

National representative

Daniel Madden announced that the endorsement came after a day-long conference of the Utility Council on Monday, Aug. 9 at the Sheraton-Tara Hotel, Braintree.

Council is made up of utility workers unions which represent

Escaping Sewage Gas Cause Of Nut Island Odor

The source of an unpleasant odor emanating from the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant has been traced to the escape of sewage gas from one of the digester units and has been corrected.

Elimination of the problem was reported by MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker in letters to Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy] and Mrs. Lois A. Murphy of 135 Sea Ave.,

Houghs Neck, the lady who raised the stink about the stink. "It is sincerely hoped that this odor incident has not caused you undue inconvenience or embarrassment and the superintendent of Nut Island has assured that safeguards have been put into effect to prevent any similar recurrence," said Snedeker.

"As you are most likely aware, the MDC is well along on a program for the immediate rehabilitation of existing plant facilities in preparation to the forthcoming comprehensive updating of the Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant.

"The latter phase if to be implemented with the passing of pending legislation which will authorize and finance the project."

Happy Acres Ends Season Friday

The William F. Ryan Memorial Happy Acres Day Camp program will conclude Friday, announces Recreation Director Robert K. Beners.

Tuesday was Turnabout Day with campers and counselors switching places. William Pine was camp director for the day, taking Earl Vermillion's position. Kenny Jackson replaced director of recreation, John Sledge replaced assistant director of recreation and Arthur Hill as assistant director of recreation.

An unbirthday party was held Wednesday to celebrate everyone's birthday at once.

A cookout is planned for today [Thursday] and an apprentice group of players from the South Shore Music Circus will visit the camp Friday.

Final event of the week will be the closing circle when the campers participate in a community sing-along before saying good-bye to their summer camp friends.

Many Boat Owners Eligible For Tax Refunds

Thousands of motor boat owners are eligible for a state tax refund that they probably don't know about, says Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy].

It is the eight and a half cent gasoline tax which goes into a special fund for public access and boat launching facilities that was eliminated in the recently passed state budget.

"All the taxes now go into the general fund," said Cerasoli. "It is clear these funds will no longer accrue to the development and maintenance of the public access."

"If the gasoline tax is not used for highway purposes individuals can file a refund request for the tax money and collect it back from the state.

"People who are eligible for these tax refunds should not let this money go to pay for other programs that will not benefit them."

Cerasoli suggested that boat owners contact the State Department of Corporation and Taxation, 100 Cambridge St., Boston, 727-4373 or 727-4748 and ask for Form GT-9-N.

"Your gasoline sales receipts must be dated, show the name of the dealer and the Massachusetts registration number of your boat and must be filed within six months of the purchase," said Cerasoli. "Refunds of less than one dollar will not be made."

McDonald Thanks McGee On Solid Waste Bill

Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald has expressed gratitude to State House Speaker Thomas W. McGee [D-Lynn] for his help in moving solid wastes legislation through the House.

The bill was subsequently pocket-vetted by Gov. Michael Dukakis but, McDonald added in a letter to McGee:

"I was heartened by your willingness to get the re-filed legislation out early so as to override a veto should it become necessary."

McDonald said the County Commissioners have difficulty understanding the veto "since the program provides local option and is supported entirely by the users costing the state absolutely nothing."

"Anyone close to the problem knows it will be some time before the State Bureau of Solid Waste Management has a solution so it sees that assistance from any source should be most welcome."

Free Boat Service To Islands For Community Groups

Free boat transportation to the islands of Boston Harbor for non-profit community groups is available through the State Office of Environmental Affairs, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has reminded.

The program was begun by Environmental Secretary Evelyn F. Murphy to encourage an awareness of the Boston Harbor Islands State Park.

Non-profit groups who wish to arrange a trip to the islands should request forms from Brownell's office or from Gilbert Bliss, chief of recreation, Department of Environmental Management, 100 Cambridge St., Boston 02202.

Once a group receives a special group use and transportation permit certifying its eligibility, the date and time of its trip can be arranged through Bay State Spray and Provincetown Steamship Co., Long Wharf, Boston.

32 Quincy Youngsters Receive 4-H Certificates

Thirty-two Quincy youngsters received 4-H Certificates of Achievement in Oceanography when the program was concluded recently.

The certificates signify that the participant completed a four-lesson mini program on Oceanography which was offered to the children of the community by the Norfolk County 4-H Extension Service in cooperation with the Quincy Recreation Department.

Those who were awarded certificates are:

Larry Leonard, Joseph

Crafts Display At McIntyre Mall

The annual display of crafts completed by children on Quincy playgrounds will be exhibited on McIntyre Mall today [Thursday] and Friday according to Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers.

Paula Coughlin, supervisor of Arts and Crafts will be assisted by crafts specialists Debra DiNardo, Regina Kelly and Carol Mahoney. Beniers said the awards will be presented to children on each playground whose work is judged to be the best. Awards will be made to both boys and girls.

LaRaia To Go Before Council On Appointments

By TOM HENSHAW

Embattled Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia goes before the City Council's Oversight Committee at 6 p.m. tonight [Thursday] to explain his appointment of three persons who later resigned under fire.

The Mayor agreed to appear and answer questions put to him by members of the Oversight Committee following five days of meetings with Committee Chairman James A. Sheets to discuss ground rules.

The meeting with the Mayor was suggested by City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. after the Oversight Committee had gotten bogged down in its efforts to initiate a full scale investigation demanded by Councillor Daniel G. Raymond.

The Oversight Committee is made up of the City Council as a whole.

In announcing the Mayor's appearance, Sheets said:

"The Mayor has agreed to appear before the Oversight Committee at 6 p.m. Thursday to answer questions concerning his recent appointments to superintendent of public burial places, assistant director of the hospital and retail stores coordinator.

"The meeting will be conducted basically in an unstructured forum with each councillor able to formulate and ask as many questions as he desires.

"The chairman will ask only that 4th questioning be completed in one job category before having the Oversight Committee move on to the next category.

"If at any time the questions [Cont'd on Page 10]

Quincy Tax Rate Over $184?

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has indicated that Quincy faces a tax rate increase of more than $25, the figure that was kicked around last spring when the City Council was considering the Mayor's budget.

"I don't want to speculate or alarm people," Mayor LaRaia told The Quincy Sun, "but we do have real problems financially this year.

"Revenue has not been fully determined yet but, based on a normal situation, I'm not that optimistic at all.

"Receipts have fallen short of the estimated figures projected when we began the fiscal year July, 1975.

"When it is confirmed by the state and the auditor, there will be little or no balance in the excess and deficiency account, which has been used in the past to offset the tax rate for the coming year."

The Quincy tax rate for 1976 is expected to be announced early next week, the Mayor said. The current rate is $159.90 per $1,000 valuation.

Screening Committee Expanded

Paine's Fate Postponed

The City Hospital Board of Managers will hold a public hearing next Wednesday or Thursday [Sept. 1 or 2] to decide Harlan L. Paine's fate as director of the hospital.

Board Chairman Edward V. Cronin said the hearing date would be set at a meeting of the managers last Tuesday night.

At the same meeting, Cronin said, the three member committee set up to screen applicants for the job of Paine's successor would be expanded to include the Board of Managers as a whole, with himself as chairman.

The move was made in response to criticism of the appointment of the three-member screening committee, which consisted of Hugo Fabrizio, as chairman, Mrs. Syria Mayo and Charles Ross Sr.

The original purpose of Tuesday's meeting was to name Paine's successor in the $32,500 post. One of the leading applicants was Anthony DeFalco, once state secretary of administration and finance under Gov. John Volpe.

Paine, amid charges of political manipulation by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, has refused to resign.

"If the Board of Managers wishes to fire me," he said, "they will have to vote on it."

"Let the record show those members who are willing to prostitute the hospital for political purposes."

Mayor LaRaia said he planned to attend the Tuesday night meeting to confer with the Board about three surveys of the hospital's finances that have been done recently by accounting firms.

He said he planned to take no part in the discussion about the hospital manager.

"That's the Board's decision by law," he said. "But they have my support on any change in management."

Business Climate Good

Downtown Area

'Not Slipping', Says QCBPA

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has come to the defense of downtown Quincy and the administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

The QCBPA target was an editorial in the Patriot Ledger which detected "signs of deterioration ... signs of slippage" in the downtown shopping area.

The editorial added that the LaRaia administration was "giving more attention to outlying areas rather than downtown."

Bernard N. Reisberg, president of the QCBPA, denied in a statement that the Quincy Center business district is deteriorating or slipping.

"At present," he said, "we have one vacancy on Hancock St. proper comprising of a small store of approximately 2,500 square feet.

"The recent Grant's vacancy in our parking area has been a national happening; in fact, Quincy's Grant's was one of the most successful money-makers in this national chain.

"Unfortunately, it had to abide by the orders of the whole retailer which went bankrupt.

"Even so, the owners of this property are currently engaged in remodeling and we hope to see it occupied in the not-too-distant future.

"The closing of Gilchrist's, another big vacancy, was caused by its management which is attempting to consolidate.

"Through the dedicated efforts of Alfred F. Colella, retail store coordinator, the unrented and unoccupied spaces

Sun's 'Historic Quincy' Issue Cited In Congressional Record

The Quincy Sun's highly acclaimed "Historic Quincy" issue has been cited in the Congressional Record.

Congressman James A. Burke has placed several of the articles from the 32-page June 17 supplement in the Congressional Record.

In doing so, Burke declared:

"Mr. Speaker, while our Nation is celebrating its 200th birthday, Quincy, Mass. is celebrating its 351st. The Quincy Sun, one of the finest weekly newspapers in the country, recently observed these two occurrences with the publication of a special edition entitled, "Historic

"Over the next few days, I will be bringing to your attention excerpts from this Bicentennial salute to the birth place of John Adams and John Quincy Adams."

The articles are reprinted in the June 25, June 28, and June 30 issues of The Congressional Record.

The articles, written by Sun staffer Tom Henshaw include: an introduction to Quincy, the First Railway, First Iron Works, the General Dynamics Shipyard and Massachusetts Hummock.

Fourteen thousand extra copies of the "Quincy Historic" issue were printed and distributed in cooperation with Quincy Heritage and the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council.

Ten thousand of those copies were presented through Quincy Heritage to Quincy public elementary school children to be brought home.

Four thousand are being placed at tourist information booths and other strategic locations for incoming visitors by the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council.

The Sun also printed extra copies of the issue as souvenirs of this bicentennial year. Copies are still available at The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

Full-Time Day Programs Still Available At QJC

There is still room for students who want to enroll in a regular fulltime day program at Quincy Junior College.

Associate Degree programs still available to entering students are Law Enforcement, Business Administration [concentrations in Accounting, Management, Marketing and Retailing], Early Childhood Education, Computer Science, Electronics Technology, Secretarial Science [legal, medical and executive] and the transfer oriented Liberal Arts curriculum.

The one year pre-nursing program is also still open to those who need preparation for entrance into nursing schools.

Those who are interested in part-time day studies can also be admitted at this time. A special part-time day schedule can be arranged for homemakers with school age children.

Classes begin Sept. 13. For more information about Quincy Junior College programs call Dean Saluti at 471-2470.

FORE RIVER BRIDGE STUDY - State DPW Commissioner John J. Carroll signs contract providing for preparation of a Final Environmental Impact Statement and Project Development Report for the Fore River Bridge. Witnessing signing are David Loveless of the Boston Whaler; David Dwyer of General Dynamics; State DPW Chief Engineer Robert Tierney; Werner Tikkanen and Perry Lord both of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas, Inc., the contract consultants. The $99,583 state funded contract to be completed in six months, will "analyze the engineering feasibility and environmental impacts that may be associated with the replacement of the Fore River Bridge." Purpose of the replacement would be to enhance the viability of the General Dynamics shipyard, for production of large tankers and off-shore drilling rigs.

Sees No Anti-Litter Solution

Chamber Opposes Deposit On Soft Drink, Beer Bottles And Cans

The Board of Directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce opposes legislation which would require a deposit on all soft drink and beer bottles and cans.

The imposition of such a deposit requirement will be put before the voters as a referendum question on the November ballot. Previous attempts to enact such legislation have failed.

The Board, in announcing its position on the deposit legislation, said members felt the purpose for which it was framed-elimination of the litter problem-would not be achieved by law alone.

The Board also expressed belief that "passage of such a concept in this state would do little more than duplicate the experiences of Oregon and Vermont. It said:

"The result in Massachusetts would be the same as in those two states; an increase in the cost of bottled and canned beverages by 10 to 20 percent, unemployment in the bottling industry and a dramatic reduction in the sales of canned and bottled beverages.

"Reports from Oregon indicate that roadside litter has not measurably declined as a result of their 1972 law.

"In Vermont, beverage prices increased 15 cents per six pack over and above the 30 cent deposit to cope with handling and other expenses associated with the returnable containers."

Board members agreed wholeheartedly that the problem of litter of all kinds has reached crisis proportions in Massachusetts. However, they feel that a bottle deposit law is not the solution to the problem.

A stricter enforcement of existing anti-litter laws should be undertaken, they said, with heavy penalties imposed on violators. This should be coupled with a statewide effort to provide trash receptacles at critical places as an incentive to reducing littering and waste.

"It makes sense for us to be moving away from a 'throw away society', but it is disheartening to see that, as a practical matter, the idea has not worked in Oregon and Vermont, the board said.

"It is impractical and impossible to impose rules and regulations for which there is a minimum public acceptance. It is a decision to be made by the individual and it calls for massive education rather than another law."

Plans Underway For Ruth Gordon Cultural Center

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has disclosed plans for a regional cultural center, probably located in Quincy, dedicated to Wollaston-born actress Ruth Gordon and supported by people from 13 South Shore communities.

A drive for funds to build the center will be kicked off with a banquet on Saturday, Oct. 30, which is Miss Gordon's 83rd birthday.

The weekend has been designated Ruth Gordon Weekend and will be climaxed by the Bicentennial Ball Oct. 31, the final big event on the Quincy Heritage bicentennial schedule.

Joseph Freedman, special consultant to the Mayor for the project, said that a 48-member committee, 24 of them from Quincy, will be formed to direct the program.

Half of the membership of the committee will come from the neighboring towns of Milton, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Scituate, Hull, Cohasset, Norwell, Hanover, Holbrook, Randolph and Canton.

Representatives of only three of the towns [Hull, Scituate and Randolph] showed up for a preliminary meeting with Mayor LaRaia Monday but the Mayor said he was not discouraged by the small turnout.

Freedman said it is hoped that the other towns will accept the idea and name two members, a man and a woman, to the committee by Sept. 10.

Mayor LaRaia said he has talked to members of the business community and "the degree of support I got was an indication of the necessity of such a cultural center."

Raymondi Favors U.S. Funds For FR Circle

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has expressed his support for a proposal to use federal funds available under the Public Works Employment Act to landscape and sod the Fore River Traffic Circle in Quincy Point.

Said Raymondi in letters to

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Planning Director L. Norman Lundin:

"We should make this area as attractive as possible with all available federal funds so that the already overburdened homeowner may be able to enjoy the fruits of this project without suffering the impact on the local real estate tax."

The proposal to apply for federal money to landscape and sod the traffic circle originally was made by Forestry Supt. John F. Koeigler.

Mound St. Beach Project To Start

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli reports he has been informed the city will begin work on the Mound St. Beach project immediately after Aug. 31.

Cerasoli said he was told by the Planning Department the work will take approximately one year to complete.

"This project will certainly enhance the Quincy Point area

Much In Common

Q. I was born on June 20, 1947 at 9:30 A.M. in Lowell, Mass. and my husband was born in Lowell also, on February 1, 1947 at 2:30 P.M. We have so much in common, including dispositions, personality and temperament that I would be curious to find out if our Ascendant Signs could be the same or possibly another factor in the STARS that link us together.

P.D.

A. In 1955 a book was published describing research into Astrology by the famous Swiss Psychologist, Carl G. Jung, entitled "Synchronicity as Acausal Connecting Principle", in which he stated it was prompted by his decision to investigate the empirical basis of Astrology. Much of his research was based on married couples and their Moon - Sun relationships. Of all the possible aspects he found the greatest attraction and probability of marriage was when one person's Moon was in conjunction aspect with other person's Sun.

Your husband's birth Moon position was in conjunction aspect with your Sun's position, both in Gemini. In addition, your Moon was in your husband's First House close to his Ascendant, another excellent aspect for compatibility plus, your Venus [love] in favorable aspect [trine] to his Sun and Mars. Obviously your charts have much in common but they are not exactly alike.

Your Ascendant is Leo and your husband's is Cancer [your Moon and Mercury are there]. Your Sun is in Gemini [his Moon is there]. Your Seventh House [marriage partner] is Aquarius, your husband's Sun is Aquarius.

His Mercury is on the cusp of your Seventh House and "ruling" your Eleventh House indicating fulfillment of your Hopes and Wishes. Your husband's Venus is in your Fifth House [affections] and in favorable aspect to your Leo Ascendant. Have many more years of a happy romantic marriage.

Memories Of Women's Suffrage At First Parish Tea

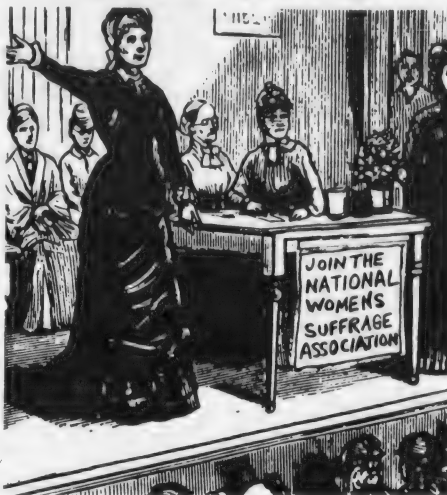

In Celebration of Women

Memories of the women's suffrage movement will be featured at a tea sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women today [Thursday] at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.

The program, "In Celebration of Women" will begin at 2:15 p.m. with opening remarks by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia. An account of the events leading to the passage of the 19th Amendment which gave women the right to vote will be presented by Mrs. Alicia Coletti of the Women's Commission. To highlight this account, a video-taped interview with Olive Kindlund of Scituate recalling her memories of the attitudes and activities surrounding the Amendment will be shown.

Mrs. Janice D'Avignon, Norfolk County Coordinator of the Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts State Equal Rights Amendment will speak on the relevance of the 1920 Amendment for today's women. Songs related to women's history sung by Marilyn LeBlanc will close the program.

Tea and pastries will be served at 3 p.m. During the tea, interested women may also view a film on the women's suffrage movement. All women are invited to attend.

A TEA celebrating the 56th anniversary of the passage of the 19th amendment giving women the right to vote will be held today [Thursday] at United First Parish Church, starting at 2:15 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

DIET AND DIVERTICULOSIS

By age 45, nearly a third of all Americans develop diverticulosis, a usually mild disorder that starts when bubbles or tiny pockets of mucous membrane about the size of a pencil eraser push out from inside the intestinal wall. If the pockets become inflamed and perforate or rupture, it then becomes diverticulitis, a painful and potentially dangerous ailment. Some 3,000 people die each year from the complications.

Nobody knows the exact cause, but some researchers now believe diet plays a role. A clue can be found in the eating habits of rural Africans, who seldom get diverticulosis. One thing such people have in common is their diet, which is rich in "fiber" — the parts of whole grains, vegetables, fruits, and nuts that resist complete digestion.

Such diets create "bulk" in the intestines which acts as a natural laxative. The form of fiber that is cheapest and more effective than fruits and vegetables for this purpose is unprocessed bran, which should be washed down with water, milk or fruit juice.

Public Discussion On Equal Rights Amendment Set For Sept. 1

A public discussion on the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment will be held at the Adams Shore Public Library Wednesday, Sept. 1, at 7:30 p.m.

All persons interested in learning more about the Amendment or working for its ratification are invited to attend.

Conducted by Christine Heeg, Quincy Coordinator for the ERA, the discussion is planned to provide information on all issues surrounding the Amendment as well as to organize for the fall activities related to the ERA. Volunteers for such activities as literature distribution, precinct captains, coffee hours are sought and urged to attend.

The educational session is intended to create greater understanding of the Equal Rights Amendment which will appear as Question One on the Nov. 2 ballot. It is designed to assure equality under the law for all people and reads: "Equality under the law shall not be denied or abridged because of sex, race, color, creed or national origin."

Persons interested in working for the ERA and unable to join the discussion are asked to contact Mrs. Heeg.

'Buckwatchers' Registration Starts Aug. 30 At QJC

Registration for "Buckwatchers", a Quincy Junior College community education course focusing on money and its effects on other aspects of life, will begin Monday, Aug. 30, at the Junior College.

Kay Buck, financial counselor, will be the instructor.

The course tries to help people identify their goals and to put their financial resources to better use.

Sections on insurance, investment, and record keeping and savings will also be included in the course.

Time will also be reserved for individual problems, questions, and interests.

The course will meet Tuesdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., starting Sept. 14.

For further information and an evening division brochure contact Dean Richard Mula, at the Junior College, 471-2470.

Diabetic Who Lives Alone Cannot Survive On 'Tea And Toast'

Living on tea and toast might be the bill of fare for many people who live alone but for the diabetic who lives alone, living on tea and toast "just can't be done."

So says Mrs. Ruth S. Dobbie, R.N., director of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, an agency of the United Way of Mass. Bay.

One of the most important things a diabetic must learn is "the importance of diet," she says.

Citing the case of Mrs. Anne Nelson, [not her real name], a recent Quincy Hospital patient, as an example, Mrs. Dobbie said that after her hospitalization Mrs. Nelson was given her diet by her physician. "She then had to be taught not only the importance of diet but how she must cook her food.

"In addition Mrs. Nelson had to learn personal hygiene, particularly foot care.

"I learned to give myself insulin, something I never thought I could do and I am sure

I never would have done it without my nurse from the Visiting Nurse Association," Mrs. Nelson said.

Once Mrs. Nelson was able to prepare her own menus and give herself insulin the Visiting Nurse's duties were over, Mrs. Dobbie said. "However, a constant check is kept on Mrs. Nelson and if she ever has any problems she feels free to call the VNA."

Mrs. Dobbie said that the planning of diabetic diets and the teaching of giving insulin is done many times by both the Quincy and Braintree Visiting Nurse Associations.

Other types of home care include the visits to a young mother home from the hospital with a new baby, the care of a wheel chair patient or the instruction to people recuperating from serious operations on the care of an incision.

While the Visiting Nurse Associations are agencies of the United Way and do receive United Way funds a charge must be made, Mrs. Dobbie said "due to the continual rising costs of the over 165 agencies in the United Way and the fact that for those unable to pay for services adjustments have to be made whenever possible."

MONEY TALKS

Little Change Over 8 Years In Where Our Money Goes

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Despite the fact that personal income in the United States doubled between 1967 and 1975, Americans continued to make pretty much the same distribution of this income as they did eight years ago.

Figures provided by the Department of Commerce and the National Consumer Finance Association reveal that total personal income rose 98 percent from $629 billion in 1967 to $1,245 billion in 1975.

Shelter, including housing, house operation, and furniture continued to absorb the largest single portion of total personal income, accounting for 22 percent in 1975 as compared with 21 percent eight years ago.

Savings, which have always represented a small share of personal income in the past, did manage an increase of one point from 6 to 7 percent in the period. This represents an increase of almost $50,000,000 from the $37,740,000 saved in 1967 to the $87,150,000 put away in 1975. Discounting inflation over these years and a rising consumer price index, it nevertheless indicates that American savers added almost $24 million in real dollars beyond what they saved in 1967.

Little difference is evident between 1975 and eight years earlier in the percentage of personal income going for personal taxes [13%], food [17%], transportation [10%], interest payments [2%], and the miscellany of other consumer outlays [23%]. Expenditure for clothing declined from 7 to 6 percent.

Personal income rose by 8 percent in the United States from 1974 to 1975, according to the Department of Commerce. The western half of the country enjoyed increases in excess of the average, the eastern half registering advances below the average. The Far West led the nation with a 10.1 percent gain, followed by the Southwest [9.8%], Plains [8.7%], and Rocky Mountains [8.6%]. The Great Lakes registered 7.3 percent, the Midwest 7.3 percent, New England 7.2 percent, and the Southeast 6.7 percent.

Ranges by states were from 33.6 percent in Alaska and 17.2 percent in Nebraska to 3.9 percent in Idaho and 4.5 percent in North Dakota.

Figures for the first five months of 1976 reflect a 9.6 percent gain in personal income over the corresponding period last year. With economists predicting a continuing trend, Americans should generally be enjoying a financially healthy year.

6 Quincy Youths Accepted At Maritime Academy

Six Quincy youths have been accepted for appointment as cadets at the Massachusetts Maritime Academy, announces Rear Admiral Lee Harrington, Academy president.

The Academy, founded in 1891 and located at Buzzards Bay on Cape Cod Canal, offers two four-year curricula, leading to a Bachelor of Science degree in marine engineering and marine transportation.

Graduating cadets are eligible to become a licensed officer in the U.S. Merchant Marine, or obtain a commission as Ensign in the U.S. Naval Reserve or Coast Guard. The training includes an annual two-month cruise on the Academy's 489-foot, "Bay State", a former Navy attack vessel.

The six Quincy youths are Leo E. Barbon, Baxter St.; Robert E. Carmody, Myopia Rd.; William G. Carroll, Victoria St.; David A. Lorman, Gordon St.; Charles H. Reynolds, Sea St.; and John R. Taylor, Manet Ave.

Barbon played in the Quincy High band, concert orchestra and marching band. He won awards and ribbons for cross country competitions, and received certificates for advanced life-saving and water safety projects. He is a Boy Scout, second class, and is on the Quincy Bay Race Week committee.

Carmody played soccer and hockey at North Quincy High. He is a Boy Scout with first class rank.

Carroll was captain of the football team at Archbishop Williams High and also played on the basketball and track teams. He is a member of the Catholic Youth Organization.

Lorman was on the football and track teams at North Quincy High and a member of the school band. He also belongs to the Boy Scout organization.

Reynolds was on the football team at Quincy High. He is a member of the Town River Yacht Club, Holbrook Sportsman Club, Quincy YMCA, and the Boy Scouts.

Taylor was a member of the Rifle Club at Quincy High, and also the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. He is a Naval Reserve Sea Cadet, the CYO, and the Boy Scouts.

Ford By A Landslide--In England!

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Most of the so-called political experts [we've called them so-called ever since Truman upset Dewey] believe Jimmy Carter will roll over Gerald Ford in November.

But in England, it would be just the opposite.

So reports City Councillor Paul Harold due back this week, from studying at Oxford University--where he took a course in city planning at a special summer institute.

While over there he sent back this report: "If the British were voting for President of the U.S., Ford would win by a landslide. Everyone I've talked to favors Ford over Carter."

His report, incidentally, arrived before Ford won the nomination over Ronald Reagan.

The British could turn out to be more political savvy about this Presidential race than our so-called [note that word again] political experts.

Harold also reports he sat in on the final day session of the House of Commons and notes he found it "quite different from the Quincy City Council."

Wonder how he meant that?

QUINCY'S FIRST LADY of the theater, Ruth Gordon, was appearing in her new play "Ho! Ho! Ho!" at Stockbridge the other night and Mayor Joseph LaRaia went out to see her.

After the play they got to chatting. And he reports she told him, "You know I always read my Quincy Sun." Miss Gordon gets The Sun by mail at her New York apartment.

Thanks for the plug, Ruth, and Your Honor.

A CHAMPAGNE-BUFFET reception for Norfolk County Commissioner George McDonald will be held Sunday, 7 to 9 p.m. at Peter's Landing, Quincy.

AND, a campaign kick-off reception for Alley E. McInnis Jr., candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, is set for tonight [Thursday] at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collins, 116 Landsdowne St., Squantum.

Co-Campaign Chairman Michael Regan reports former City Solicitor Richard McCormick will serve as finance chairman for the McInnis campaign. Tickets for the reception may be obtained by calling McCormick [479-8801] or Mary Collins [328-0233].

ONE OF OUR all-time favorite Quincy police officers, James MacKay is now living at the Quincy Nursing Home. Jim was one of the most able, kindest and fairest of law enforcement officers we ever met while covering the Quincy police beat for The Ledger some years back.

Jim sends along an old faded newsclipping which contains some other familiar and popular names in an incident that almost sounds like something out of an old Keystone Kops movie.

He and Officer Philip Grady had rounded up a gang of Dorchester youths swimming nude in Cashman's quarry. And while they were waiting for the patrol wagon, an old model-T Ford with 1933 plates on it came zooming through the woods. The operator didn't have proper papers, so he was bagged too.

Jim decided to drive the old car back to police headquarters following the patrol wagon loaded with the youths. And, soon found out as he bounded down Break Neck Hill, the car which had no top or hood, also had no brakes.

The car was quickly catching up to the patrol wagon in front of him. Jim tried to check the speed of the runaway car by throwing it into second, first, reverse.

Phil Grady, on the back of the wagon, had to leap into the cab to escape getting hit by the car. Officer Walter McKenna put a burst of speed into the wagon to get away from the car.

Meanwhile, the old car started to come apart in Jim's hands. The choke came off, then other dashboard gadgets, one by one. Finally the car coughed, sputtered and died rounding a corner. Officer James Sullivan happened along, leaned on the front of the car and--the radiator came off in his hands. Jim decided to call for a tow.

SMILE DEPT: Bob Palmer and the boys at A & T Movers, Independence Ave., came across a life-sized female mannikin the other day. They dressed it up in a short skirt, put it out near the street and raised one of the hands in a hitchhiking pose.

You'd be surprised how many guys stopped to pick "her" up.

and subsequent answers are of such a sensitive nature as to affect the reputation of any individual, the chairman will ask to go into executive session to protect the integrity of everyone involved.

"On Wednesday night at 5:30 p.m., the Oversight Committee will meet and the chairman will make the committee aware of this forum and the guidelines and hopefully we will recess the meeting to reconvene Thursday at 6 p.m. at which time Mayor LaRaia will appear.

"The chairman indicates further that he will not allow the meeting between the Oversight Committee and the Mayor to become a shooting gallery. We will as a committee attempt to get at the facts surrounding these appointments in a mature, constructive and responsible manner.

"The chairman would also indicate that the Mayor has been fully cooperative at each step of the procedure which has led to the Mayor's willingness to appear before the Oversight Committee."

Sheets told The Quincy Sun that the Mayor will be the only person to speak before the Oversight Committee tonight and the committee as a whole will decide if it is satisfied with the Mayor's answers.

"Before we call anyone else we will wait to evaluate the questions and the responses," he said. "It is not beyond the realm of possibility that we will go further with the investigation."

Mayor LaRaia said that during his meetings with Sheets "I told them I would rather meet with them and discuss their questions publicly."

"My administration started out by inviting public scrutiny of our actions," he said. "We not only accept it we welcome it. We go on the theme that government has to be treated openly.

"The only drawback is that it can become bogged down in minute detail and petty criticism over and above the real issues.

"I don't expect that the City Council will ask any questions other than what deals with appointment procedures, which do not differ from those of any previous administration.

"We have from the start of this administration asked for resumes from as many people as possible so that they could be fitted into the slot in the administration that best meets their background.

"As far as dealing in personalities goes, that is something I will not do. I see no need for it at this meeting."

Raymond's demand for an investigation came after Daniel F. McGinley resigned his five-day-old appointment as cemetery superintendent when it was disclosed that he was under indictment on two criminal complaints in Suffolk County. Earlier, James C. Short quit as retail stores coordinator after 11 days for the stated reason that he lacked qualifications and Stephen N. F. Anderson resigned as assistant director of the hospital after six weeks when the Council refused to appropriate money to pay his salary.

The original Raymond's order before the Council called for a probe by a "blue ribbon" committee of citizens but the Council amended it to an investigation by the Oversight Committee with participation by a selected group of citizens.

The Council was debating the method of selecting the citizens last week when Councillor Lydon suggested that direct questioning of the Mayor might more quickly elicit the answers the Council wanted.

A partial transcript of the Oversight Committee meeting follows:

COUNCILLOR LYDON: Has anybody gone to the Mayor and asked him for an explanation of why he had done this? Is that too simple?

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: I don't know who has that authority. I don't. I don't believe the Council President has that authority either.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: I have no problem writing down five names or going to the various groups in the community and asking them for a selection. But is it too simple a thing to go to the Mayor and ask: Did you make a mistake? Would we get the explanation? Could we sit down with the Mayor and ask him simply? Councillor Raymond has asked for an explanation of the three appointments. This is what he is asking for.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: That's precisely what we are attempting to do. The objective of this committee will be to sit down, along with the citizens who are part of it, with the Mayor or with the Mayor's designee and ask these questions in public and the answers will be given in public. We're trying to devise some mechanism for that because as a City Council we have certain procedures that we have to follow by virtue of the fact that we are legally structured and constituted.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: Someone says that if we undertake it as a City Council that it would be a whitewash, a witch hunt. I don't look at it that way. We've stressed it before that the members of this Oversight Committee are perfectly capable of handling this type of situation. I say, as a committee, why not ask the questions directly and get the answers directly versus the continual hashing and the involvement of more and more people and not getting the answers and dragging the issue out. And this is my question to the chair: Would it be possible to direct to the Mayor the question and request a response as to why these appointments were made?

COUNCILLOR RAYMONDI: I think the only appropriate way to ask the Mayor is in public session by a meeting of the Oversight Committee whether there be citizen participation or not. I personally believe that citizen participation would add to the objectivity. Councillor Lydon might not think it is the best way. I do. When the facts were brought to my attention I didn't feel it was my responsibility to the people I represent to go into private session and try to work this matter out. I felt the issue had become so serious that we must have a public and open and objective discussion. Subsequent to that there were things in the papers that attracted attention so strongly that I thought we should have some citizen participation to look at it objectively. Keep in mind that it was the Mayor himself on Jan. 5, 1976, who called on each of us to scrutinize each and every appointment. That's all we're doing.

COUNCILLOR HARRINGTON: I'd just like to point out that it may be a little difficult to decide what areas [to investigate]. There's obviously three areas at least that merit investigation. But I don't know who would suggest that they are the only ones. We have not been made aware by angels of mercy that these three things happened. We don't know how many there are -- three, four, five, or whatever. We were made aware of one instance by a Quincy Police investigation. We were made aware of the second instance by the Hospital Committee failing to pay someone for 12 weeks until his resignation. We were made aware of the third instance by information made public by Councillor Raymond. I don't know how many the Hospital Committee missed or how many Councillor Raymond missed or how many the Quincy Police missed. If we're going to have an investigation of appointments then I would suggest it is not a practical thing to restrict it to three jobs or three individuals.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: While there are three obvious areas of input that would not preclude the possibility of going into other areas should those areas become known. I'm sure you're not saying that because we can't identify them all we should forget those that happened.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: A little while back I made the suggestion and I'm making it again now that we go directly to the Mayor or request that the Mayor come before the Oversight Committee or his designee to explain these three areas.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: That's what we are attempting to do but we have to order that process.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: The process still involves citizen participation and this is the direction the Council is still taking. My question is: Can we not get the answer by directing the chair to call before the Oversight Committee the Mayor or his designee for an explanation of these three areas. I think it's simple.

COUNCILLOR TOBIN: Councillor Lydon's statement has some merit. Possibly we could as a committee ask the Mayor if he'd like to sit down with us, just the committee and the Mayor, to answer the particular question as to how several appointments were made. We might have a member of the press with us or we go in alone. I think we owe that courtesy to the Mayor to go to him and ascertain if we can get the answers. If we're not satisfied, we can go on with the investigation with citizen participation.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: I would stress that it be open, either in results being announced through the Council or the press being invited or whatever forum the Council decides on. But I think we should get some answers to the public fast as opposed to weeks of Oversight Committee hearing ad infinitum.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: [to Asst. City Solicitor Fleming:] If this committee were to meet with the Mayor how would the open meeting law apply to that meeting?

FLEMING: I don't think you'd be discussing legislative questions. This might be an area where the open meeting law does not apply. I would reserve the right to inquire a little deeper into the open meeting law.

Record Heat Closes City Hall

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Charles A. Ross ordered City Hall closed at 1 p.m. when the temperature soared to 97 degrees at noon Friday, Aug. 27, breaking the old record for the day set in 1881 by six degrees.

Mrs. Frank Bartlett of 85 Sharon Rd., Atlantic, went the new record several degrees better, reporting a reading of 125 degrees on a shaded thermometer on her back porch.

SEEKS SEWAGE PLANT

Rep. Avery W. Gilkerson [R-Quincy] filed a bill in the State Legislature that would authorize the state to construct a sewage disposal plant to replace the one at Moon Island and charge the cost to the city of Boston.

The action came after Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash warned swimmers the pollution in some parts of Quincy Bay, which he blamed on the Moon Island plant, had reached a critical point due to two days of calm weather and smooth seas.

An angry Gilkerson also said that he will introduce an order at the next meeting of the Quincy City Council to enable Quincy to sue for a restraining order that would prevent Boston sewage from befouling Quincy waters.

TAX RATE DOWN

The Quincy Board of Assessors announced that the tax rate for 1934 will be $26.60, down 20 cents from the previous year. An increase had been expected due to a rise in welfare payments and reduced income from outside sources.

KNIGHTS TAKE OPENER

Charlie Fallon's bases-loaded double in the eighth inning was the crucial blow as the Quincy Knights defeated the Squantum AC, 9-6, in the opening game of the final round of the South Shore League playoffs. The lineups:

Quincy Knights - Al Caprio ss, Bob Holland 3b, Carl Leone cf, John Kelleher 1b, Charlie Fallon c, Web Durant rf, Pryor Hall 1f, Warren Mills 2b, Joe Mulligan p.

LOW BID IGNORED

The Schoof Committee awarded a contract to supply 2,800 tons of soft coal to the Sheppard Coal Co. of Quincy, which submitted the second lowest bid of $14.25 a ton.

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard said the Committee bypassed the Granite City Coal and Oil Co., whose low bid was $13.86 a ton, "in the best interests of the city." The Committee discussed the bids in closed session.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

30 Years Later--A Bridge?

The Massachusetts Department of Public Works recently announced that it is proceeding with an Environmental Impact Study relative to the replacement of the Fore River Bridge.

The cost of the study, close to $100,000, will be accomplished by Parsons, Brinkerhoff, Quade and Douglas - the same consulting firm that provided the lead role in doing the Economic Impact Study for $293,000 in 1974-5.

The Economic Impact Study of 1974-5 should not be confused with the Svedrup and Parcel study of 1973, which dealt with potential alignments for a new bridge.

The 1974-5 study was outstanding because it confirmed the fact that there is economic justification for replacing the bridge. In all probability, at some point in the near future - 10 to 12 years out - the 5,500 manufacturing jobs at the Quincy Shipbuilding Division of General Dynamics and 5,500 other jobs in the retail and service sector of the local economy supported by those manufacturing jobs will be in jeopardy if the size of ships that the yard can bid on is limited by the opening under the bridge that connects the Fore River Basin to the sea.

Shipyard officials first stated their concern with the size of the opening when the yard was owned by Bethlehem Steel in 1953. Every elected official and every candidate running for political office since 1953 has pledged support for efforts to solve this bottleneck to future opportunity. We've lost countless ship contracts since 1953 and millions of hours of employment for failure to take action when we should have... in 1953.

The cost of bridge replacement during that period has, due to inflation, escalated from under $5 million to over $30 million, and now another $50,000 study will conclude what we all know to be the case - that the environment surrounding the Shipyard will not be impacted by the Fore River Bridge replacement because it is simply a replacement of a bridge with a bridge.

You may wonder why all these studies are necessary. If you do, you're not alone. To suggest they are a stall, I think would be an unfair and unreasonable assessment. To suggest they are "make work" projects to keep consultants busy would be flying in the face of everything government stands for; and to suggest, heaven forbid, that politicians since 1953 have been stringing us along is unforgivable.

If the environment impact study is not derogatory, then an economic update to "determine if earlier forecasts were correct and are still valid" is planned. The approximate cost here is $25,000. If the economic update is okay, then we get to the serious business of doing the $3 million design effort required to construct the new bridge. This will take 12 months to complete after its approval.

Before, however, the construction of a new bridge could take place, another $25,000 study "evaluating the potential shipbuilding market as it pertains to bridge dependent ships, pertinent developments in the energy field, continuing interest and ability of General Dynamics to compete, and other relevant impacts which would validate or negate earlier forecasts" must be conducted.

If the above sounds like an exercise in frustration, you better believe that it is. Most of the members of the Chamber's Fore River Bridge Replacement Action Team, who have been working to secure this replacement, are products of an action-rich, decision oriented society. Most of the folks we're encouraging to push this project forward are more comfortable collecting information than making decisions.

At some point, in about 1983, we're going to stick up the nicest $5 million bridge you've ever seen for $50 million, and we'll all be as self-congratulatory about it as you can imagine. We'll hail it for what it is - the salvation of 11,000 jobs for the South Shore - and the officials of the time, who made the tough decision, will rise to accept the applause of the grateful - just 30 years after the need was identified.

LIVING TODAY

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

Work . . . A Way Of Life

As I counselled with one young man, 24, who was running into conflict with his mother over the demands that he get up, get out, and go to work, he expressed the idea that he felt it was parents' responsibility to provide a home for their children. "How long?" I asked. "Well, maybe until they're in their 30's," he said. I said, "Why not their 40's?" This young man had been raised so protected from any work, any responsibility, that his whole being was withdrawn from the realities of life. This is what his father had done to him, over-riding his mother, because "I don't want my boy to have to work like I had to when I was a boy." He had literally deprived his son of this important part of his character, the dignity of work. For the Total Man work is a way of life.

Let the mother and father who have created this problem for their son, and for themselves, not blame each other, but reach a joint decision, that for the good of all, a change must be made. Discuss the situation with the son, firmly, but kindly. Offer assistance in getting a job, or creating one, if it must be the painting of the house, the making of the gardens and beautifying the landscaping of the home. Since he hasn't learned to organize his life, help him. Then put teeth into your demands. Vascillation and "it would be nice if you did", and the "Why don't you?" kind of suggestions won't get the job done. Demand, firmly and kindly. Do not tolerate being used by your own son. He will not love you nor respect you if you do. The Total Man must work.

Your son learns to work best as a little boy. But if he didn't learn early, teach him now. If a boy doesn't learn to work and enjoy work, he will be a misfit throughout his life.

In Colonial days there arose a problem concerning work. Capt. John Smith's rule was "Those who don't work, don't eat." Life was simple then by our standards, but that principle might turn to advantage in some homes.

Again, let there be agreements regarding the work of the home and the contribution which each member of the family is to make, both regarding chore responsibilities and money. For fathers or mothers to become servants to their children is not love... it's weakness.

Fathers who grew up in the depression years who knew only poverty, low wages and hard work, felt fortunate to have even the $9.00 per week job. But to throw this at today's 18 year old is useless. Such conditions do not exist now and it's unrealistic to use the 1930's as an example to our sons. However, earning one's way, being responsible for one's self, and taking pride in a job well done, are timeless principles.

I hope you're getting those messages across to your son.

Services Held For Anthony J. Venna, 76, Welfare Commissioner

High city officials of the past and present attended the funeral Monday of Anthony J. Venna, who retired in 1969 after 31 years as welfare commissioner of Quincy. He died Friday at his home at the age of 76.

Mr. Venna worked as a shipfitter at the Fore River Shipyard for 16 years before he was named by Mayor Charles A. Ross to administer the WPA program in Quincy at the height of the Depression.

He was appointed welfare commissioner by Mayor Thomas S. Burgin in 1938.

The city delegation at a funeral Mass at St. John's Church was headed by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, Sen. Arthur H. Tobin, former Mayor James R. McIntyre and former City Councillor Angelo Bizzazzoro. Also in attendance were former City Council President Laurence Curtin, former Sheriff Charles Hedges, Domenick Guarcello of the Knights of Columbus, and Frank Moran of Norfolk Superior Court.

Msgr. John E. Mullarkey, a West Quincy native and retired pastor of St. Pius V Church in Lynn, was the principal in a concelebrated Mass at St. John's. He was assisted by Rev. John Tierney, Rev. Joseph Connolly and the Rev. Leo X. Lynch.

Mr. Venna leaves his widow, the former Allen Puskala, a son, Richard A. Venna of Quincy; a daughter, Mrs. Shirley J. Gibboy of Quincy; a sister, Anne Venna of Quincy; and four grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home, 1 Independence Ave.

Frances McDonald Elected Women's Vice President Catholic Alumni Club

Frances McDonald of 50 Baker Ave., Quincy Point, an elementary music specialist in the Quincy public school system, was elected women's vice president of the Catholic Alumni Club International, at the club's recent annual convention in San Diego.

First woman president of the Boston Catholic Alumni Club in 1974-75, she is only the second member of the Boston club ever elected to national CACI office, and the first woman so elected from the Boston club.

She has served the Boston

CAC and the Eastern Regional and International groups of the club during the past 10 years. One of her more outstanding duties has been as director of the Boston CAC Choral Group which has sung at 18 nursing homes and hospitals yearly in the Greater Boston area.

As Woman's Vice President of CACI, her duties will include assisting the president and furthering community service activities throughout the U.S. This will include charitable work with children and the elderly. The CAC Choral, in combination with the Boston Catholic Action Committee, won the CACI Community Service Award in 1974.

Ms. McDonald holds a BS. Ed. from Lowell State Teachers College and a M.E.D. from the University of Maine.

The Boston Catholic Alumni Club, a religious, social, cultural and charitable organization and one of 60 such clubs throughout the U.S. and Canada, is currently celebrating its silver anniversary. Its membership is open to single Catholic college graduates and registered nurses.

Wollaston Lutheran Nursery School, which will begin sessions Monday, Sept. 13, is now accepting applications for the fall term.

Children four years old on or before Jan. 1, 1977 are eligible.

Class sessions are held Monday through Friday from 9 to 11:45 a.m. Further information may be obtained by calling 773-5483 any day Monday through Friday between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

YMCA Leaders Enjoy Cape Cod Outing

Quincy YMCA leaders and their advisors were guests at the Falmouth home of David Faulkner, a former member of the Quincy Y who is currently performing with a trio at the Yankee Clipper, a restaurant in Sandwich.

Faulkner, who started at the Quincy Y's Camp Burgess at the age of eight and moved up to a Camp Counselor Post before going to college, said the outing was a way of repaying the YMCA for what he received over the years.

The day included a 5-mile run over Sandy Neck Beach in a dune buggy.

Officers elected for the coming year included: Cathy

Maguire, president; Carol Gallagher, vice president; Donna Lydon, secretary; Mary McDermott, treasurer; and Renee Houde, chaplain.

Advisors are Jackie Whitcomb and Sue Kinney.

what can we do about people who are no longer employed by the city? How may we use their names in discussions? What do we tell those citizens who we charge with participation? Do we leave them out there on their own? What if they get sued? What if their homes get attached? I don't know. I'm not trying to confuse the issue. I've practiced law in this town for eight years. I don't know what you can say about somebody up here without getting sued. There's no one in this room that knows until it's tested in court. I would suggest it's a dangerous, assignment. In fact, if I wasn't an elected official of the city, I would like to represent some of the people whose names are going to be used. I would suggest it might be more reasonable to adopt the suggestion of the Council President, first suggested by Councillor Lydon. Councillor Lydon said that the meeting, if not open, should be open in its results. I thought that was a good way to put it. I think that the press can be there. I think we should ask the Mayor; then we should decide if we're satisfied. I'd rather do that than spend three, four, or five weeks in a battle of press releases. In all deference to the executive branch, there is a temptation to be clever when you're under an inquiry. There is a temptation to be evasive. And there's a good solid reason - to protect your butt. I don't think any of it is going to produce an answer that the public wants. I think we should ask the Mayor.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: Would the Councillor care to put that in the form of a motion?

COUNCILLOR LYDON: The motion is that the Oversight Committee as a body meet with the Mayor to discuss the three areas in question with regard to the political appointments made and to further make public a record of the results of the meeting.

COUNCILLOR TOBIN: I think we're going to have to define the appointments. It could mean the last junior clerk at the Hospital. I think it should be further defined to read the three appointees who have resigned and then we could pinpoint the people. We could name the positions but I would caution about naming names. The Council ought to state the particular position, the budgetary position and then a resignation from the position. Those three.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: The three positions ... I don't know the exact titles of them. Could we find those out?

CITY CLERK GILLIS: Superintendent of public burial places, retail stores coordinator, assistant director of the hospital.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: Would you read the amended motion?

GILLIS: The Oversight Committee as a body meet with the Mayor in the three areas in question in regard to the three appointments he recently made as follows: 1. superintendent of public burial places; 2. retail stores coordinator; 3. assistant director of Quincy City Hospital, who have resigned and further make public record of the results of this meeting.

COUNCILLOR RAYMONDI: I feel the issue is public. If the Mayor can come before this committee and we can ask him questions, fine. I'm not going behind any closed doors to have any discussion with anyone. I believe it's a matter for open public discussion. I believe there are people around this table with integrity. I don't have the slightest bit of misgivings about having them conduct the interview. I'm not afraid of having the Mayor come here and explain some situations. I'm not going into his office. As far as I'm concerned I'm going to conduct the investigation right here.

COUNCILLOR TOBIN: Evidently, we were being misled here. I thought we were trying to narrow this down to get the answers. I thought that all the councillors were intent on seeking out truthful answers. If any member hesitates in moving in that direction, then I think it's totally unfair to suggest that Councillor Lydon tried to maneuver it behind closed doors. It was only a suggestion on the direction to go to get some specific answers. If any members of this Council feel they do not wish to go to the Mayor's office I think in deference I must defend Councillor Lydon. I think he ought to withdraw the motion.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: I'm prepared to withdraw the motion. However, I would say to Councillor Raymondi, we've been sitting here for just about one hour trying to get things rolling, trying to get some answers to the specific questions you put out. I've always been direct. I've not asked the Mayor personally as to why he made these appointments. I personally would like to have that opportunity. I certainly have indicated in the motion that the discussion be open. Councillor Raymondi, in order to get the ball rolling, do you personally have a recommendation to this motion as far as the openness of this meeting so we can get some answers? I would support you on that.

COUNCILLOR RAYMONDI: I believe there are members on this committee who don't want to go through what I feel we must go through. And I can understand that. It's not an easy task. I feel we have a public responsibility to begin as immediately as possible and go through the process in open session so people can sit there and watch and listen and make suggestions relative to questions and answers. To make the results public, I don't think that's enough. Results were made public some months ago. The results were that this Council would not investigate. I'm not going to be satisfied with that kind of one sentence result in the local newspaper.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: One of the problems which we have now involves the question of whether or not the Mayor is going to come out here in public session and address the Council or whether members of his administration will come out here and answer questions for the Council. It seems to me that before the Mayor would commit himself he would have to know the areas of questioning and some idea of the questions that are going to be asked. If this committee wants to charge the chairman with responsibility of contacting his honor the Mayor relative to those conditions under which the Mayor would sit down with the Oversight Committee and look into those areas, then the chair will do that.

COUNCILLOR LYDON: I think it's a sensible approach. Perhaps a motion to force the Mayor into an answer is not the right direction. Perhaps the direct approach of the chairman going directly to the Mayor to discuss a forum for openness is the proper approach. I would withdraw the motion and put it in the form of a motion to direct the chairman of the Oversight Committee to meet with the Mayor with regard to a meeting to discuss those three positions as mentioned, and to set the ground rules and form for an open meeting to get some answers.

COUNCILLOR QUINN: We have to begin somewhere. We have been going around and around and around here seeking mechanisms how to best go about this. If we can solve it in this manner it can give us the answer

Quincy, North Football Squads Start Workouts Monday

It has not been football weather, but that won't deter the Quincy and North Quincy football squads, which will begin workouts next Monday at 8:30 a.m.

Quincy Coach Hank Conroy, starting his 13th year as the Presidents' head coach, will follow his schedule of past years, but construction work at North Quincy will force second-year coach Dave Burke to alter his practice plans.

Conroy, who will have one new assistant coach [John Skladany will return to college to work on his masters degree], will lead the Presidents in morning drills from 8:30 to 10:30 at Faxon Field with pads, breaking for lunch and drilling without pads from 11:30 to 1:30.

Returning will be assistants John Bogan, Mark Conroy and Peter Chella. At this writing no one had been officially named to replace Skladany.

Burke, a Quincy assistant coach for 11 years, made a triumphant return to North, his alma mater, last year and led the Raiders to a 9-1 record and the co-championship [with Brookline] of the Suburban League and a berth in the Super Bowl.

"We lost our locker room and part of the gym at North Quincy and will be forced to bus to Veterans Stadium to dress and will work out at Pageant Field [above Adams Field]," Burke said.

Dave will conduct workouts from 8:30 to 10:30 with pads and will hold brief afternoon drills without pads.

He will also have one new assistant and he certainly will be no stranger to Burke. Jack Raymer, a former Quincy lineman, who has been an assistant coach for Quincy's sophomore team, assisted Burke with the sophs for several years. Returning will be assistants Tom Fitzgerald, Ken McPhee and the dean of all coaches, Ted Sadowski.

Both teams will be playing in the Suburban League for the third year but will open on Sept. 18 with non-league games. Quincy will host Dedham at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 1:30 and North will entertain old rival Milton at the stadium at 10 a.m.

Legion, Babe Ruth Teams To Host Montreal Clubs

Two baseball teams from Montreal will visit Quincy to play a series of games with Quincy Legion and Babe Ruth teams over the Labor Day weekend.

Wollaston Legion has agreed to play and it is hoped Morrisette's Zone 6 champs will also play. Peter Niosi, who heads Quincy's Babe Ruth League program, will have his teams in competition, also.

The games are scheduled for Adams Field Sept. 3, 4 and 5. On Friday, Sept. 3, the 13-14 year olds will play at 6 p.m. with the 15-17 year olds playing under the lights at 8. Afternoon games will be played on Saturday, the 4th, and Sunday, the 5th.

"We got the idea when we went to Montreal in April to play hockey," said Beverly Reinhardt, whose husband Dick coaches Quincy's state champion Donnelly's Midget A team. "It is a good trip for them and we hoped to make it an annual event. To my knowledge, it is the first time something of this sort has taken place."

It has become a tradition for youth hockey teams from this area to visit Canada and then entertain the Canadian teams, but it is something new in baseball.

Frazier Named NU Sub-Varsity Grid Coach

Ralph Frazier, head football coach at North Quincy High from 1969 to 1974, has been named a coach of the Northeastern University sub-varsity football squad.

Frazier, a North Quincy graduate, will be assisting another former Raider standout, Bob 'Bo' Lyons, the Huskies' head coach.

Quincy and North Quincy have always been well-represented on the Northeastern grid teams and this fall will be no exception.

Lyons lost North Quincy's Tom Burke, one of his top running backs, but returning will be sophomore halfback Preston Carroll of Quincy, who figures to be a starter and is being depended upon heavily by Lyons.

Another returnee will be Jim French, junior linebacker from Quincy.

Newcomers will include three promising freshmen, Matty Constantino, fullback from North Quincy; Mike Holleran, quarterback from North; Cooper Jordan, end from North, and Jeff Little, end from Quincy.

Brett Buckley Wins Junior Golf Tournament

Brett Buckley of the Fenno St. playground has won the junior division of the annual recreation department golf tournament open to playground youngsters from ages 8 through 12.

Pat Hardiman was second and Ed McDermott finished third in the competition held at Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Peter Gavagnano of Whitwell Playground had the lowest score for any nine holes in the tournament with a 40 and won the senior boys' championship by four strokes over Kevin O'Hanley of Stoney Brae. Finishing third was Brian O'Hanley, Kevin's younger brother.

Nancy Smith of Wollaston repeated as the girls' senior champ with a fine 50 for nine holes. Elaine Galvin of Bishop was the runnerup.

Janet Colclough of Beechwood Knoll was the junior champion in the girls' division.

Winners will receive Oscar type trophies. Second and third place finishers will receive ribbons.

Mary Reyenger, James Lamie 'Leaders Of Week'

Two leaders from the William F. Ryan Memorial Happy Acres Day Camp have been chosen as Leaders of the Week by recreation director Robert K. Beniers.

Mary Reyenger, a Quincy High and Quincy Junior College graduate, also holds a degree from Bridgewater State with a major in special education. She has been at the camp for nearly 13 years. She has served as a volunteer leader for many years while for the past five years she has been a member of the staff.

For the past two years she has been in charge of the adult members at the nationally honored camp for the handicapped.

James Lamie, a Quincy Vocational Technical High School graduate, has been a volunteer for three years prior to being hired as a staff member. He works with the boys groups but also rides the bus as a volunteer monitor and works overtime without remuneration. He is now in his seventh year at the camp.

Annual Nautical Day At Ryan Memorial Boathouse

The 21st annual Nautical Day sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department will be held today [Thursday] at the William F. Ryan Memorial Boathouse on Black's Creek from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The program will consist of races for children in different age categories with events in rowing, sailing and some novelty events. Ribbons will be awarded by waterfront and boating assistant director Barry J. Welch who will be emcee.

The event is open to all Quincy youngsters who have already participated in the program at the Ryan Boathouse. Welch said picnic tables will be available and that children should bring their lunches.

Frank Kelly Memorial Track, Field Meet Saturday

The Quincy Track Club will sponsor the first Frank Kelly Memorial Track and Field meet Saturday at noon at Veterans Memorial Stadium in honor of the club's late vice president, director and founder who died suddenly July 13.

The meet is being organized by Wayne Lumpkins, honorary QTC member and coach of the Roxbury Track Club; Jerry Lynch, Boston Youth Games coordinator, and Dennis Hursey, coach of the Bay State Striders Track Club. They are being assisted by QTC staff members.

Admission to the meet will be 50 cents.

The meet will be broken up into the following age groups: Bantams, 9-11; Midgets, 12-13; Juniors, 14-15; Seniors, 16-17, and open, 18 and over. The Bantams will start at noon and the next age group will start at 1 p.m.

Events will include the dashes, distance races, hurdles, jumping and throwing events and relays.

A five-mile road race will begin at 12:30 in the stadium. The age groups for the road race are 14-18, 19-29, 30-39 and 40 and over.

Medals will be given to the first three finishers in each event. Clubs from all over New England are expected to compete. Cost is 50 cents per event and a dollar for the road race. The cost is $2 for a four-man relay team.

In a similarly set up age-group meet last year at the stadium, the QTC dominated the boys 13 and under division and the girls were edged by one point by the Mattapoisett Track Club, which will run again this year.

Track Club City Championships Thursday

The Quincy Track Club will end the regular season tonight [Thursday] with the windup of the annual city championships at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The meet got underway Wednesday night with the field events. All running events will be held tonight starting at 6.

All QTC members have been urged to take part and engraved medals will be awarded to the top three finishers in each event. The highlight will be the presentation of MVP trophies to a boy and girl in each age group. Another feature will be the first Frank G. Kelly Memorial Trophy to the most dedicated boy and girl on the club.

In last week's meet Michelle Millane, 12, turned in a phenomenal performance as she set records in the discus and 880, throwing the discus farther [71 feet, 10 inches] than any club member in any age group. She also ran the fastest half mile in club history, a blazing 2:37.6. The previous mark had been 2:40.1 by Dottie Irvine when she was 15. Michelle tuned up for her performance by running a 5:31 mile in practice, far ahead of any girl in the city.

Other records last week were set by Karen McCarthy in the 220, Joe Irvine in the 880 and Mike Cullen in the 220.

St. Ann's Junior Girls Seek Boston CYO Crown

St. Ann's junior girls of Wollaston will seek the Boston Diocesan CYO championship Saturday and Sunday at McConnell Park, Savin Hill, when they face St. Mary's of Chelmsford.

The winner of this series will advance to the New England Tournament in Providence over the Labor Day weekend.

St. Ann's, representing the Quincy Vicariate for the third straight year, finished its season with an 8-0 record and in last week's semifinals defeated St. Agnes of Arlington, 4-2.

Joanne Rue pitched well and had four singles. Nancy Smith and Denise Jay, who played with the Boston basketball team last week in the U.S. Youth Games, had a single and double and two singles respectively. Patty Venna had a double and single and Ann Geribo two singles.

Strong fielding by Donna Shaw, Elaine Galvin, Margaret Shea, Sue Riley, Eileen O'Sullivan and Kathy Cogliano contributed to the win.

Earlier in the week St. Ann's had walloped St. Theresa's of West Roxbury, 12-4.

Meyer's 2 TD's Spark Oilers In Merrimack Rout

Quincy's Ted Meyer scored two touchdowns to spark the Randolph Oilers to a 37-0 win

Sunday over the Merrimack Valley Colts in an Eastern Football League game.

Meyers, an offensive standout all season, scored from the five in the second period and again from the 14 in the third period.

Quincy's Ed Sylva made his debut at guard and turned in a top performance, twice sacking the Colts' quarterback, and two other Quincy players, John Moriarty and Kevin Cotter, also were outstanding.

Another Quincy player, Pat Grimes, who played a year ago, is expected to rejoin the Oilers for Friday night's 8 p.m. game at Kelleher Field in Marlboro against the Marlboro Shamrocks.

3 Track Club Members Win U.S. Medals
Three members of the Quincy Track Club, representing Boston in the U.S. Youth Games last week at Tufts, won medals.
In the high jump Jim Bellafatto of Weymouth won in the boys 14-15 division.
Loretta Garrigan, a 13-year-old entering the eighth grade at Atlantic Junior High, placed second in the girls 12-13 high jump, and Mike Gallagher, 15, entering his junior year at North Quincy High, was second in the boys 14-15 shotput. Mike was in first place going into the finals but lost by two inches to an entry from Paterson, N.J.
All three received large engraved medals on a chain. Boston finished ninth with 44½ points as New York ran away with the team title with 233 points.

N.L. Eliminated In 3rd Round

Babe Ruth A.L. All-Stars Win Ontario Tournament

Two all-star teams from the Quincy Babe Ruth League and sponsored by Hugo Salvatore recently traveled to Kingston, Ontario, for the third annual OBA Bantam tournament.

Quincy's American League all-stars coached by Joe Wilkinson and Bob Dignan pulled a major surprise by winning the tournament with an 8-7 win over heavily favored Brandford on the 8-strikeout pitching of John Keaney in relief of Bob DuBois.

Mike Trubiano was the hitting star with three hits and Steve Picot hit a home run. Quincy, which trailed, 3-0, and 7-4, scored the winning run on a double steal, Billy Deitsch scoring. DuBois made the play of the game, throwing the potential winning run out at the plate from left field in the sixth.

Quincy had dropped its opening game to Windsor, Ont., 6-1, being held hitless. The losing pitcher was Mike Crowley.

The team bounced back to win its next four games for the title. In the second game Quincy nipped co-host Kingston B team, 3-2, on Leo Doyle's home run. Deitsch was the winning pitcher, allowing five hits, striking out 15 and walking two. Doyle also had a single and Trubiano, Al Singh, Pat Ennis and Deitsch also had hits.

Quincy then defeated the co-host Kingston A team, 7-4, on a three-run homer by Dave Austin. Austin was the winning pitcher with a four-hitter, striking out five and walking only one. Trubiano had three hits and Ennis, Keaney and Ed Marella one apiece.

In the semifinal Quincy walloped Scarborough, 10-2, as Keaney pitched a three-hitter, struck out 15 and walked two.

Singh had a long home run and a single, Trubiano again had three hits, Deitsch and Ennis two each and Steve Notorangelo and Keaney one apiece. Ennis was outstanding behind the plate throughout the tournament not allowing a stolen base.

Other members of the squad were Jim Kenny, Fred Palmer and Rick Schatzel.

Quincy's National League stars coached by Salvatore, Paul

McDermott and Bob Hayes were eliminated in the third round, 8-6, by Scarborough Bantams.

Dave King was the offensive star for Quincy with two triples and a single. Bob Howlett had two singles, Bobby Hayes a double and Chris Segalla a single. King was the losing pitcher.

Quincy dropped its opener to North York, Ontario, 9-5, with John Vespaziani, Mike Shea and Dave Lapsley having the only hits. Paul O'Toole was the losing pitcher.

O'Toole bounced back in the second game to pick up the win in relief of King as Quincy romped over St. Catherine's, 10-1.

Mike Shea, Brian Donovan and O'Toole had key hits to put Quincy ahead, 5-0. Vespaziani was injured when a ball glanced off his glove and came up into his face, causing him to miss the final game.

Other members of the squad were Paul McDermott, Brian Condon, Ron Prezioso, Paul Graham, Jim Dodd and Gary Stack.

Allison, Smith, Merrill Win Ocean Races

In the ocean racing, one of the features of the recent Quincy Bay Race Week, Bob Allison of North Quincy won the Fleet 1 Remick's Trophy race in his Country Road, followed by Serenity, Hightone, Cygnenoil and Tuff Ship.

The Fleet 2 race was won by Ray Smith of Cottage Park in his Gadget, followed by Cyclone, White Lightning, East Wind and Nirvana.

L. Gerald Marcus of Wellesley was the winner of the Boston-Bermuda Cup Race in his High Time, followed by Serenity, Spice, Mavrick and Shamrock.

Keith Merrill of Manchester won the Harry Warner Memorial Trophy Race in his Hydra.

Pakkala, Abell, Cunniff Tennis Tourney Winners

The fifth annual Sagamore Tennis Tournament was held recently at the new Wollaston recreation facility with 125 players starting in 10 age group events.

The results:

Men's singles: Pete Pakkala defeated John Resnick, 6-3, 6-2.

Men's doubles: Ron Abell Sr. and Grant Legg defeated Charles Peix and Larry Courtney, 6-4, 6-2.

Women's singles: Chris Cunniff defeated Rita Morash, 6-3, 6-2.

Women's doubles: Chris Cunniff and Hildy Gillis defeated Rita Morash and Carol Ofria, 6-3, 6-2.

Boys 16 and under singles:

Leo Bottary defeated Don McCarthy, 6-4, 6-3.

Boys 12 and under singles: Ron Abell Jr. defeated Toni O'Malley, 6-1, 6-1.

Boys 12 and under doubles: Ron Abell Jr. and Gary Durante defeated Paul Rinehart and Paul Ego, 6-1, 6-1.

Mixed doubles: Charles Peix and Debbie Zildjian defeated Chris Cunniff and Ed Riley, 6-2, 7-6.

Girls 16 and under singles: Margaret Clement defeated Sue Murray, 6-3, 6-2.

Girls 16 and under doubles: Gera Foy and Pat Miceli defeated Mary Loeb and Mary MacDonald, 7-5, 4-6, 6-2.

Wollaston Girls Shine In U.S. Youth Games

Two Wollaston girls, Denise Jay and Nancy Smith, were outstanding last week for the Boston basketball team in the U.S. Youth Games staged at Tufts.

Nancy scored 28 points in the team's four games and played the point guard extremely well. She scored 11 points against Washington and 11 against New Haven.

Denise had 26 points including 11 against New Haven. She had good games at the foul line, hitting on 10 of 13 shots. The Boston team finished with a 3-1 record, losing only to East Orange, N.J., 43-30, after having played two other games that same day. East Orange reached the finals.

Boston defeated teams from Washington, New Haven and Richmond, Va., before bowing to East Orange.

Both local girls expressed their enjoyment of playing against girls from other parts of the country and urged other Quincy girls to try out for next year's games which will be held in Hawaii.

Superstar Winners

The citywide Superstar competition has resulted in winners from four different playgrounds announces recreation director Robert K. Beniers.

Margie Ladas of Forbes Hill and Keith McNulty of Massachusetts Fields won the upper age division. Nancy Martin from Faxon Park and Bruce Bates of Adams Playground won the midget titles.

A.L. Babe Ruth All-Stars Edge Nationals, 5-4

The American League edged the Nationals, 5-4, in the annual Quincy Babe Ruth League all-star game last week at Adams Field.

The winners were managed by Ray Dunn and assistants Bob Dinan, Tony Oriola and Bart Caggiano. Managing the Nationals were Jack Kelley and assistants John Kelley and Dick Laracy.

The MVP awards were won by Ray Coscia of the American League and Bob Cuervals of the Nationals.

County Hospital Director Criticizes Harrington On Campaign Article

Dr. Donald A. Martin, director of the Norfolk County

Hospital in Braintree, has denied charges of inefficiency levelled against hospital management by Edmund P. Harrington of Quincy a Democratic candidate for county commissioner.

Dr. Martin said Harrington called him personally to say that he was misquoted in a newspaper article that said "Dr. Martin had met with the Norfolk County Advisory Board and falsified the inpatient count."

"It is something to call me personally, but in fairness he should have notified the papers who printed the article in good faith," said Dr. Martin.

The article appeared in many newspapers throughout Norfolk County.

The Quincy Sun, however, did not publish the article as it was distributed by Harrington but used a similar version in which Harrington charged "inefficiency" at the hospital resulted in a $3 million deficit over the last three fiscal periods.

In his reply to Harrington, Dr. Martin said the hospital wound up with only $683.20 in unpaid bills at the end of the fiscal year "and even this amount is due to the accounting practice of having to close the hospital books in a calendar date."

He said the hospital occasionally borrows short term funds to meet payroll and operating expenses which are repaid as soon as anticipated taxes or money owed by the state is collected.

This year he wanted to borrow $200,000, Dr. Martin said, but for some reason the County Treasurer insisted that he borrow $300,000. He referred to the County Treasurer as Harrington's employer.

Dr. Martin said:

"For years Norfolk County Hospital led the way in efficiency, care and preventive maintenance. Several years the hospital operated in the black and most other years operated close to cost."

"The candidate was informed of the dramatic change in TB [tuberculosis] treatment which had caused the hospital to change its entire patient structure to one of chronic pulmonary illness."

The changeover, he said, resulted in "a temporary closedown of one ward and a temporary decrease in the number of patients, resulting in a temporary loss of revenue."

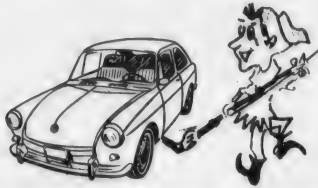

"The inpatient count is steadily increasing and it is very possible this year again will see the hospital ending the year in the black."

Dr. Martin said he "explained to the candidate that any time a hospital changes direction in its services there is always a temporary period of adjustment which causes loss of income and added expense for new equipment."

Dr. Martin added that he has been director of the hospital for 15 years and "never before has a candidate tried to make a political football out of the Norfolk County Hospital which has functioned for so many years as a model operation."

Duane Ordered To Stop Dumping Demolition Materials

The J. J. Duane Co. has been ordered to stop dumping demolition material on its property off Quarry St., West Quincy, and remove existing demolition material no later than yesterday [Wednesday].

The order was requested by City Councillor James A. Sheets who said he witnessed dumping on the property without approval from the Quincy Health Department, the Mass Department of Health or a public hearing.

Assistant City Solicitor Robert Fleming ruled that use of the Quarry St. property for dumping purposes is a violation of both state law and city ordinances.

Sheets said if the demolition material is not removed he will seek action in Norfolk Superior Court.

In a letter to Fleming last week Sheets said he had been "tolerant and patient with the activity on the Duane property off Quarry St. over the last year," but that his tolerance and patience were exhausted.

have been kept to a minimum. "Through the business acumen of Director Paul N. Anderson, the Quincy Downtown Development Office is trying to attract new businesses and innovative ideas to Quincy."

"However, this all takes time, especially when one considers our present economic condition which is much different than 1973, the year when the Hilgenhurst Report was published."

"The members of the QCBPA are quite unanimous in their opinions concerning the Downtown Development Office under Mayor LaRaia and wish to congratulate the Mayor in appointing Mr. Anderson and Mr. Colella to this office."

"Quincy is one of the few cities which is keeping pace with changing times and at present enjoys a business climate which rivals the most successful of retail centers including shopping malls."

Weymouth Rotary Club Plans Annual 'Big Band Night'

Weymouth Rotary Club will hold its 12th annual Big Band Night Friday, Oct. 8, at the Lantana, Randolph.

Earl Hannafin of Station WJDA, Quincy, is a member of the Big Band Night committee.

Traditionally held in November at the Surf, Nantasket, the evening of 30's and 40's music is the only money-raising event for the club.

John Savini and his 15-piece band will re-create the sound of all-time favorites like Glenn Miller, the Dorsey Brothers, Benny Goodman, Harry James and other big names of the big band era.

Proceeds from the performance will provide scholarships for junior high, high school and college students in Weymouth, and will also support a little league baseball team and a youth hockey team.

The Weymouth Rotary Club was formed in 1924 and has 96 members.

Current president is James O. Stevens. Co-chairmen of the musical evening are Richard Clifford and Jackie Nickerson.

Take Over Garage

A & T Movers Expanding Into Auto Repair Work

It started seven years ago with one truck and three men to load and move it.

Now it's a trucking company doing business around the world; it's riggers, metal fabricators and transporters of heavy equipment; and a full service garage, equipped to handle any car or truck, foreign or domestic.

The A & T Movers, operated by Bob Palmer at 245 Independence Ave., South Quincy, has taken over the Independence Texaco garage next door at 7 Independence Ave., just over the line in Braintree.

"We've had such success in the moving business," says Palmer, "that we're going to try to carry our thoughts over into auto repair."

"So many people have been paying high prices for work on their cars and have not been getting good service that I think there is room for an operation like ours."

"We have done a lot of moving work for elderly people and we'd like to offer them the same services in car repair."

"We realize that most of them live on limited incomes and Social Security and we will be able to offer them reasonable prices."

Palmer's new operation will be a full service garage, offering tuneups, mufflers, brakes, front end alignment and other jobs as well as retail sale of gasoline.

Palmer also owns the Deyeso Trucking and Rigging Co. and the Industrial Erection Corp., specializing in rigging, metal fabricating and transporting heavy equipment.

His original firm, A & T Movers, agents for American Red Ball Van Lines, was started in 1969 with Palmer, an 18-foot truck and two employees, Al Martell and Stanley [Nick] Estabrook. Both are still with the company.

In seven years it has grown to an organization with 27 pieces of equipment including 40-foot trailers, and a staff of about 50 people.

Two of its latest jobs included moving families to the Soviet Union and to Kenya in East Africa.

Palmer, who grew up in Quincy Point, lives in Braintree with his wife, Judi, and their three children, Robert, Robin and Scott.

Procter & Gamble Honored By Goodwill

Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Company of Quincy was recently honored by Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries during Goodwill's annual awards ceremony.

The detergent manufacturing company was cited by the nonprofit rehabilitation agency as its Subcontractor of the Year. Procter & Gamble has been awarding service jobs to Goodwill for several years, and Goodwill is now Procter & Gamble's custom packer in the east.

Handicapped and disadvantaged workers in Goodwill's subcontracting department process for Procter & Gamble anything requiring special handling, such as affixing labels to detergent cartons, and glass tumblers to cartons.

When Procter & Gamble ran a Soap special, Goodwill workers bagged the boxes and heat-sealed the plastic bags.

On an average, Procter & Gamble awards enough work to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries each year to keep the subcontracting department working twenty weeks a year.

62-Year-Old 'David' Takes On Goliath Daily

His name isn't David, but he confronts Goliath regularly -- 260 feet in the air.

And instead of a sling, he takes on the giant with today's sophisticated technology.

James Smith of Whitman, is the principal operator of the largest crane in the western hemisphere -- nicknamed Goliath -- at the General Dynamics' Quincy Shipbuilding Division. Goliath has a rated lifting capacity of 1,200 tons.

"I call this the hot seat," smiles Smith, grandfather of six and a crane operator for 34 years, pointing to the padded operator's chair in the well-appointed cab high above the two mammoth building basins the sawhorse-like crane straddles at the shipyard.

The chair is flanked on each side by panels full of instruments which control and record the movements of the three huge lifting hooks, the cab, and the crane itself. In front of it is a wind speed indicator, and just to the right a telephone and a shortwave radio Smith uses to communicate with the ground crew.

What's it like running one of the largest cranes in the world? "It's a tremendous feeling of power and a great sense of accomplishment," Smith explains. "You have to be alert all the time. Any lift you handle is usually worth hundreds of thousands of dollars."

The largest lift made so far with the crane was 900 tons -- a bow section of one of the huge liquefied natural gas tankers the shipyard is constructing. In addition, Goliath handles fully outfitted deck houses for the ships and 120-foot diameter, 850-ton spherical aluminum cargo tanks in which the ships will carry the gas.

"We can program positioning of a lift to 1/10th of an inch," says Smith proudly, indicating gauges which can be preset. The impulses are fed to a giant digital and analog control center 40 feet above the cab.

Is Smith scared up there? "No way," he answers. "This thing has more safety features than the presidential limousine."

For example, lights and buzzers in the cab warn Smith when winds reach 40 mph, and if he might be picking up an overload. Slightly higher winds cause Goliath to stop so that any suspended load may be gently lowered to the ground.

Smith, a 12-year veteran with General Dynamics, volunteered for the job. "I wanted the challenge of running this crane," he admits. To qualify, he had to take what he calls a "superphysical." "I had to run up and down stairs," he says. "Some younger guys couldn't even make it," grins the 62-year-old. The stair tests were for good reason. Should the elevator that lifts Smith to his cab break down, he'd have to tramp up 345 steps to reach his work station.

To learn how to operate the crane, Smith and three co-workers spent an intensive two weeks in Portugal last summer at the factory where Goliath was built.

When Smith descends from his lofty perch, he busies himself at home with carpentry, and he and his wife, Valia, visit a dog track occasionally. "We enjoy betting a couple of dollars, win or lose," he says. "It's our relaxation."

Smith pushes a button and shoves a lever forward. Goliath shudders slightly, then the cab begins to move out on its beam.

"They call this the Cadillac of cranes," he says, gazing at the Boston skyline almost 15 miles away. "And you know something? I believe it."

we are looking for quickly and then we can get on to more positive and constructive programs and problems that we have confronting us. If we can solve it in Step 1, why not do it. If we don't solve it there, then go on to Step 2, Step 3, Step 4.

CHAIRMAN SHEETS: The chair would indicate two courses of action. One is to consider the initial order that was under consideration before Councillor Lydon indicated that we should consider a more simplistic approach. We could also pass an order which would empower the chairman of the committee to sit down with the Mayor and determine the boundaries under which the committee could meet with the Mayor and ask questions of the Mayor. That particular order would not convey to the chairman the power to say yes or no but simply the right to discuss with his Honor the Mayor and report back to this committee and if this committee was not satisfied with the conditions then this body would go on with the investigation. I want to assure Councillor Raymond that I concur with his interest, with his desire, and I certainly feel that I want to be supportive of his position. If the committee feels that perhaps we could soften the approach and enable ourselves to proceed to our objectives with less conflict, with less friction, by first talking to the Mayor and attempting to determine the conditions under which we could ask for and receive answers, then the chair is going to do that.

QJC Evening Fall Courses Registration Set

Lt. Dean Reifenhahl Aids

In Evacuation Of 300 From Beirut

Navy Lt. Dean C. Reifenhahl Jr., 28, whose wife Francis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arey of 15 Minihan's

Lane, West Quincy, participated in the rescue of more than 300 American and foreign evacuees from Beirut, Lebanon. He is a crewmember of the aircraft carrier USS America which participated in support of "Operation Fluid Drive".

The refugees boarded unarmed landing vessels and were ferried to the amphibious transport ship USS Coronado. The extraction of the civilians from the beleaguered Lebanese capital was accomplished without incident and the evacuees arrived safely aboard the Coronado for transport to Athens.

In a message from President Ford, the task force was commended for its high degree of professionalism which contributed to the success of the operation. His ship is homeported in Norfolk, Va., and is currently deployed as a unit of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean.

Sheets Seeks Another Meeting With LaRaia

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council's initial attempt to investigate three abortive appointments by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia ended in a flurry of charges and countercharges last week but Councillor James A. Sheets is still looking on the bright side.

Sheets, chairman of the Council's Oversight Committee who is currently vacationing in Pennsylvania, said he will call another committee meeting for next Thursday [Sept. 9] night to decide where frustrated probes will go from here.

"The Mayor indicated he was willing to sit down in his office with the chairman and members of the committee and he also indicated he was willing to have his staff meet with people," Sheets said after conferring with John Salenius, the Mayor's aide.

"So it is my intention to persist in one form or another."

Sheets told The Quincy Sun he is still optimistic that the Oversight Committee, which is made up of the City Council as a whole, will be able to complete its investigation and come up with recommendations on appointment procedures.

"I'm going to take a very positive approach," he said.

"After examining the transcript of what was said at the Oversight Committee meeting the other night I'm convinced that it was a very productive meeting, notwithstanding the exchange that occurred between the Mayor and certain councillors.

"I think it identified some areas where definitely we can make recommendations for improvement. For example, in the area of the transition of power between one administration and another."

"It seems to me it's very important that the incoming administration be able to bring some people on to work as early as the first week in December so they can work with those people who are going out of office."

"I think a lot of problems are caused by the speed and urgency with which the administration is put together."

Sheets said he felt that last week's meeting was not really as vituperative as it seemed on the surface.

"If you look at the transcript," he said, "I think you'll find that at no point did the Mayor call the overall process an inquisition. In response to one councillor's line of questioning he said 'this is turning into an inquisition.'"

"I think the reaction publicly was much overdone. I think there is much reason to believe that we are going to be able to sit down and work our way through this whole situation."

"I want to emphasize that 90 per cent of that meeting was give and take with respect on both sides. I hope to build on that rather than allow the 10 per cent which was more negative to determine what we are going to do."

He said he has sent to councillors a letter suggesting that if they have more questions to ask in the probe they should forward them to him or to the Mayor's office where "I feel the Mayor would be willing to answer them."

Sheets said he will, at next

Buses will leave State St. South Monday through Friday for Quincy Center Station at 7:10 a.m. and every 30 minutes thereafter until 8:40 a.m.

The remainder of this schedule is unchanged.

The line serves St. Ann's Church in Wollaston, Norfolk Downs and North Quincy High School.

Weekday morning rush hour service on the route between Quincy Center Station and Germantown, via Sea St. and Oceanview, will be increased to a bus every eight minutes, instead of every 20 minutes. The line serves Quincy High School.

Buses also will be more frequent on the line between Quincy Center Station and Ashmont, via West Quincy and East Milton Square.

Morning rush hour service Monday through Friday will have a bus every 15 minutes instead of 20 minutes.

Mid-day service will have a bus every 30 minutes instead of every 60 minutes.

Late night service will be increased to a bus every hour instead of every two hours.

"Saturday" service will be operated on Nov. 11 [Veterans' Day].

"Sunday" service will be operated on Oct. 11 [Columbus Day], Nov. 25 [Thanksgiving Day] and Dec. 25 [Christmas Day].

The Fall timetable will be in effect from Sept. 11 through Dec. 31.

Tax Rate Setting Delayed 2 Weeks

The Quincy tax rate for 1977, which Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has predicted will be more than $25 higher than 1976, will not be announced for another two weeks, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The Mayor explained to five city councillors Monday night that the delay was necessary because City Auditor Charles L. Shea is on vacation.

Hospital Board To Meet To Discuss Paine Successor

The City Hospital Board of Managers will meet tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. to discuss their next step in the search for a successor to Harlan L. Paine as director of the hospital.

Paine, who held the $32,500 post since 1962, resigned last Thursday under pressure, saying "I felt that nothing could be accomplished by further resistance to the forces that wish to make a change at the hospital."

His resignation is effective Oct. 2.

Edward V. Cronin, chairman of the Board of Managers, said six applicants for the post are being screened by a committee made up of the Board as a whole. One of them is Anthony DeFalco, a former aide to Gov. John Volpe.

Extra Police Assigned To Southwest Area

City Councillor James A. Sheets has announced that additional police protection, including restored foot patrolmen, has been dispatched to the South and West Quincy areas.

The beefed up force, said Sheets, was "made absolutely necessary by the alarming number of housebreaks, car thefts and acts of vandalism that have threatened the safety of residents."

He said Police Chief Francis

X. Finn was able to send added protection to South and West Quincy because of $103,000 appropriated by the City Council to increase the number of uniformed policemen on the streets.

Tinson Rd. Subdivision Public Hearing Sept. 14

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Sept. 14 at 3 p.m. in the conference room of the Public Works Building, 55 Sea St., to consider a proposed subdivision of land on Tinson Rd. extension, West Quincy.

The subdivision would consist of six lots extending from the end of the present Tinson Rd. through to Buckley St.

Faxon Park Rd. Sign Question Sent To Traffic Commission

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond has been presented with conflicting petitions involving the "No Left Turn" signs at the intersection of Faxon Park Rd and Faxon Lane.

He's going to ask the Traffic Commission to see if it can mediate the dilemma.

Raymond held what he called "an extremely productive" meeting on the situation with some 25 residents of the Faxon Lane and Stanley Circle area.

"We discussed not only the 'No Left Turn' signs, but the overall traffic problem of the area as well," said Raymond.

"As a result of our meeting, I am prepared to request that the Traffic Commission study the feasibility of restricting traffic on Faxon Park Rd from entering Faxon Lane between certain hours of the day.

"This would not only have the result of maintaining the reduced flow of vehicular traffic on Faxon Lane, but it would also allow residents of the area to use Faxon Lane at certain times of the day, thereby enabling them to avoid the dangerous intersection at Quincy Ave. and Faxon Park Rd."

Quincy Rolls Out

Welcome Mat To N.Y. Visitors

Quincy organizations and individuals combined efforts to provide housing, enjoyment and entertainment for a visiting group, aged 14 through 16 boys from Williamsburg, Brooklyn, N.Y., over the weekend.

Arrangements for the Brooklyn Stars Pony League Baseball Team trip from New York were made by Miss Ann Yeomans, director of the New York Teams Recreation Program, and Mrs. Clara Yeomans of Quincy, executive secretary of the Quincy Conservation Commission.

The group arrived Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Yeomans, with Miss Ann Yeomans and Mr. Felix Lopez chaperoning the New Yorkers.

The Quincy Police Boys Club Babe Ruth League team, Quincy champs, edged the New York team, 5-4 at Adams Field, in a baseball game Saturday morning.

The George F. Bryan VFW Post invited the visitors to attend the Red Sox vs. Kansas City Royals baseball game Saturday afternoon with its members' children at Fenway Park. The out-of-staters completed the day by attending a pool party Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vallier, 84 Glendale Rd.

The Brooklyn squad lost a second close game Sunday morning to the North Quincy Koch Club, 7-6, and then traveled to Nantasket Beach

Sunday afternoon.

A farewell cookout was hosted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, Sunday evening, sponsored by the Quincy City Club.

Serving on the Quincy committee for the weekend visit were Mr. and Mrs. Vallier, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Moody, Mr. and Mrs. John Kane, Mrs. Alice Solari, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Peter Scheele and Ronald Kaufman.

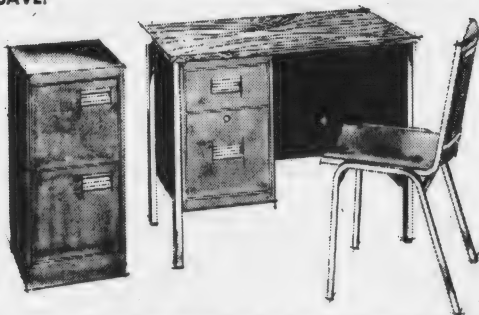

City Councillor Paul Harold and Kaufman, on behalf of Councillor James Sheets, officially greeted the visitors Friday evening and upon their departure, each boy was presented a packet of brochures on historic Quincy and Massachusetts, provided by Quincy Heritage.

NQHS Construction Work Affects Fall Sports Programs

By TOM SULLIVAN

Construction work for the addition to North Quincy High School has drastically changed the practice schedules of the Raiders' fall athletic teams and will have a decided effect on the boys' and girls' basketball games as well as the gymnastics and wrestling schedules during the winter.

Gym space and all locker rooms have been lost at North and considerable busing will be necessary this fall for the North teams.

The Raider football squad currently is busing to Veterans Memorial Stadium where the players dress and then go to Pageant Field to practice.

The soccer team also buses to the stadium to dress, then goes back to drill at Montclair Field or some other available field. However, this week the Raiders are working out at the Quincy field behind the stadium.

The cross country team isn't affected as it uses various streets to practice on. However, if necessary, the team will also be bused.

Although North's new soccer coach, Bruce Cochrane, said his team will play home games at the Quincy field, Athletic Director Carl Leone differed with him.

"North has had fantastic success the past two years at Montclair Field and I think the players want to continue playing there," Leone said. "However, if they want to use Quincy's field, it can be arranged."

The girls' volleyball team will go to the Lincoln-Hancock School to change and it will work out and play there.

The field hockey team will bus to Quincy High, change in the old high school and both the North and Quincy squads will go to O'Rourke Playground for workouts.

In the winter the North basketball team will play home games at Quincy Vo-Tech, using the gym when Quincy is away. The Raiders will practice at the Lincoln-Hancock School and will also use Vo-Tech on occasion.

"North was able to use the Eastern Nazarene College gym for practice last year while work was being done on the North floor, but Jim Smith [ENC coach and athletic director], who has been very cooperative, told me he had only morning hours available this year," Leone explained.

The girls' basketball team will change, practice and play at the old Quincy High gym, home gym for the Quincy girls.

The hockey teams will not be affected, as they change and practice at the Youth Hockey Association rink and the Boston Marina rink in Squantum.

Quincy Armory this winter will be a wrestling and gymnastics center with both Quincy and North practicing and holding their meets there. All equipment has already been sent there.

"We are leasing the armory and the National Guard has let us have it at a very reasonable rate," Leone said. "Capt. LeClair and Louie, the custodian, have been very cooperative and I want to thank them."

North's spring teams will follow pretty much the same schedule for changing into their uniforms and practicing as the fall teams. The girls' softball and track teams will bus to the old Quincy gym to change.

MDC Wants To Install Sewer Pipes In Fore River

The New England Division, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, has received a permit for installation of two sewer pipes in and across Weymouth Fore River at Quincy and Weymouth.

Colonel John Mason, head of the engineers in New England, reports the MDC seeks to install two 54-inch diameter sewer pipes in a trench in the river. The work would require dredging of 37,500 cubic yards of material.

Some of the material removed would be used as backfill over the pipe with the remaining material being disposed of at the "Foul Area" off Marblehead.

In accordance with Section 401 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972, the applicant is required to obtain all necessary local and state authorizations, including a water quality certificate from the state.

Extra Sensory Perception

Q. Being born on October 31, 1945 on a Wednesday in Boston, Mass. at 4:10 A.M., could my stars hold anything special in the future for me? Perhaps it could explain why I say something the split second before someone else does as if I were reading their mind or I will do something minutes before they will ask me to do it.

P.A.

A. At the moment of your birth the planet Neptune was very close to your Ascendant [cusp of the First House]. This usually indicates a potential for extra sensory perception, the ability to perceive beyond the normal five senses. Both planets Jupiter and Venus were also very close to your Neptune in the First House [in conjunction aspect] indicating an expanding of this ability.

Add to this a favorable quintile aspect of Mars and Saturn to Neptune and your Sun and Mercury in Scorpio [a Sign of keen perception] and the planet Pluto, the ruler of Scorpio, in very favorable aspect to both the planet-Neptune and the degree of Libra on your Ascendant, and it becomes very evident that you are gifted with an ability to transcend ordinary means of awareness. That is, at times you "tune in" to the thought waves of others or conditions that are in a state of forming but not yet completely materialized.

Your horoscope also indicates fine possibilities in one of the fine arts such as music, painting, literature, poetry, etc. You may want to consider developing your skills along some such line. The planet Uranus moving through your First House will make the conjunction aspect to both Jupiter and Venus, since it is the ruler of your Fifth House, it usually indicates exciting thrills through creativity. You are probably at your creative best in more ways than one.

Today's Women

At Mayor's Commission Tea

Similarities Between Women's Suffrage, ERA Movements Cited

The similarities between the women's suffrage movement in 1920 and the efforts to pass the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment were heard by over 100 women at a tea sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia opened the program at First United Parish Church last Thursday by saying he favored the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment but, "I do not believe it is a panacea, as it is presently constituted...it is only one more step forward for you on the road toward the status you seek."

He noted that some women require more than equal protection because of family circumstances.

Mrs. Alicia Coletti of the Women's Commission presented a history of the suffrage movement, noting that women of Massachusetts had the right to vote from 1776 to 1807 but lost it because it was not adequately protected.

Stressing the long difficult fight to regain enfranchisement, she noted many of the arguments used against suffragists, including concern for family unity and the fear that women would vote for prohibition. She cited the difficulties women still face today in public life, noting "There are fewer women delegates at the conventions this year than four years ago. They have been very slow to run for the legislature. In Quincy, there is only one woman in elected office."

A video-taped interview with two Scituate women, Val Jacobson and Olive Kindlund was shown. The 87-year old Mrs. Kindlund recalled that the battle to gain the right to vote was a long, hard one.

She questioned why some women today do not exercise that right. She also noted that women have been working for equal rights for more than a half century and still had a long way to go in obtaining them.

Citing many of the arguments used against suffragists, Mrs. Janice D'Avignon, Norfolk County Coordinator of the Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts Equal Rights Amendment, said that many of the same arguments are used against the ERA. They did not happen after women got the right to vote and will not happen with the passage of the ERA, she said.

She said few women realize the inequalities in the law today, noting that if a woman is widowed she must pay an inheritance tax on her husband's property, although it may be her own and that in a case of a divorce, the woman has no legal possession of any property.

She noted the continued disparities in women's pay but said that the ERA would benefit homemakers because for the first time, their work at home would be recognized and considered of economic value.

Stressing that the ERA only applies to issues which affect both men and women, she said it would have no effect on abortion, homosexual marriage or unisex toilets.

These have nothing to do with the ERA," she declared.

Although there are laws on the book which guarantee women's rights, they are not protected by a constitutional amendment. "For this reason, we need the ERA," she said.

1st Water Show At Lincoln-Hancock Pool Success

The first water show at Lincoln-Hancock Pool was "a huge success" reports Recreation Director Barry J. Welch.

The exhibition, entitled "Aquatic Splashdown '76" was held before more than 450 people with 150 children participating. Welch introduced Mayor Joseph J. LaRia who extended greetings from the city.

Many of the instructors exhibited their teaching methods to the parents and guests before children demonstrated their progress from non-swimmers through advanced swimmers specializing in water rescue and life saving.

After a synchronized water ballet by advanced beginners, intermediates and swimmers, there were stroke demonstrations and survival swimming.

A water ballet, featuring Linda Walker, a Quincy Recreation staff water safety instructor, concluded the festivities.

Recreation Director Robert

K. Beniers, presented ribbons to the following children in competitive racing:

Boys - age 6-7, Edward Nabstadt, John Rolaphela, Eric Quirk; 8, Christopher Veneto, James Starr, Edward Flynn; 9, Dean Vancelli, Raymond Tautvaisas, Kevin Golden; 10, Joseph Donough, Kevin Ryan, Richard Conroy; 11, Stephen Denelsbeck, Thomas Corliss, Scott Freeman; 12, David Grindle, Greg Freeman, Richard Durham; 13, John Swanton; 14 and over, Richard Coose, Edward Fenby, Paul Orlando.

League Of Women Voters Candidates Night Sept. 8

The Quincy, Braintree and Milton League of Women Voters will sponsor a Candidates Night Sept. 8 at 7:15 p.m. at Central Junior High School, Washington St., Braintree.

The League is a non-partisan organization which has as one of its prime goals a better informed electorate. All candidates slated for the ballot in November have been invited to attend. However, only candidates on the Primary Ballot will give brief addresses and answer oral and written questions.

The public is urged to attend the meeting, to better know where the candidates stand on important issues.

Babysitting Cooperative

To Meet Sept. 13

The Quincy Babysitting Co-operative will hold its first fall meeting Monday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Jules Schreiber, 10 Army Street, Randolph.

The Babysitting Co-op was formed to provide a service to mothers of young children. Hours of babysitting, rather than money, are exchanged by the members. Playgroups of pre-schoolers and a children's clothing exchange are sponsored by the Co-op.

For information on the Co-op, call Mrs. John Chase of 40 Filbert St., Quincy.

at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy. The weekly testimony meeting Wednesday begins at 8 p.m. Child care is provided.

WAWA Camp Fire Girls Visit Quincy Sun

Campfire Girls in the WAWA or Wild Goose group visited the offices of The Quincy Sun recently to view the workings of a newspaper.

The girls meet at St. Chrysostom's Church, and live in Wollaston and North Quincy.

WAWA members were: Susan Amendolare, Susan Barry, Diane Coulouras, Mary Johnston, Kristine Doran, and Ann Woodman. Kristine Doherty was absent from the tour.

Leader was Helen K. Doran. The girls first visited the editorial and advertising departments of the office.

They then toured the production department where they saw the story of their visit set into type on an IBM computer system. They also saw news headlines set on a Compugraphic 7200 photo typesetting machine.

They then saw a paste-up artist fix the story and headline in proper position on paste-up boards.

After a brief explanation of how The Quincy Sun is printed, the girls asked questions about what they had seen on their tour.

Before leaving the office each girl received a complimentary copy of The Quincy Sun.

Local Branch Office For MAPC Closer To Reality

Efforts by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce to obtain a branch office of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council for the South Shore may soon bear fruit.

Chamber officials met recently with MAPC President George B. Bailey and Executive Director Richard M. Doherty and Bailey told them MAPC is currently considering a plan to form subregional committee among its 101 communities.

The proposed committees, said Bailey, would be made up of MAPC representatives, community officials, organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce and interested citizens.

The subregional committee would meet on issues specific to the area and would act as liaison or advocate of the issues and concerns using Council resources.

"The plan is still in the formation stage," said Bailey, "and is yet to be approved by the executive committee but we are working toward that goal."

"We are very encouraged by the interest of the South Shore communities in increasing their participation."

MAPC is the officially designated regional planning agency for 101 cities and towns around Boston, working in the areas of housing, land use, open space, recreation, transportation and environmental protection.

Quincy Y Indian Guide Nation Elects Officers

The "Y" Indian Guide Massachusetts Nations of the Quincy YMCA has elected new officers. They are:

Al Julian, nation chief; Gerard Mullen, medicine man; James Mulloy, public relations man; John McLay, secretary treasurer.

Also elected as clan chiefs and medicine men were Tony Losordo and Paul Fahey of the Bear Clan; Brad Nelson and Ken Boyce of the Fox Clan; and Steve Bowman of the Wolf Clan in Braintree.

"Y" Indian Guides is a club program in which the companionship between father and son [6-8 years old] is stressed. The program is so designed that fathers are able to spend more time with their sons by meeting twice monthly with other fathers and sons in their own neighborhood.

Presently, the Massachusetts Nation has 8 tribes in the Quincy and Braintree area and is looking forward to enlarging to the Milton and Weymouth area along with other South Shore towns.

Any person interested in additional information about joining "Y" Indian Guides, is asked to contact William Johnson at the "Y" [479-8500].

DEAR SENIOR CITIZEN, HERE'S SOME FREE ADVICE THAT'S PRICELESS.

The Quincy Council on Aging and R.S.V.P. have put together a brochure with hints for the senior citizen. The Quincy Cooperative Bank gladly paid for its printing so that it could be distributed free.

These aren't just any hints, though. They have to do with your safety and protection. And if you remember them, you'll be safer in your car, on the street, on the subway. Just about anywhere. The brochure even tells you how to protect your money and property.

It's available free to all senior citizens at any office of Quincy Cooperative Bank, or at the Council on Aging, 1 Cliveden St., in Quincy.

We offer this advice in the spirit of Josiah Quincy, Jr., the founder of Cooperative Banking in Massachusetts and the man for whom our bank was named. Josiah lived in a day when senior citizens were more respected and revered than they are today. At QCB, we think they still should be, and we're doing our part. We know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

LaRaia Marks 44th, Launches Re-election Bid?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Mayor Joseph LaRaia marked his 44th birthday the other day at a clam bake at PAPA Field, Braintree.

He probably launched his campaign for a second-term at the same time.

An estimated 400 persons were on hand to salute the mayor and partake of lobster, clams, barbecued chicken, etc. Cost: $25 per head.

That would add up to an approximate $10,000 gross if my calculator is working. Allowing for the cost of the food, the net would still be several thousand dollars.

The speculation is that some of the net will go to LaRaia's 1975 campaign bills and the rest to "Campaign, 1977".

With all the controversy that has erupted during his first eight months in office, some might wonder if LaRaia will actually run for re-election.

The mayor's salary is $25,000. But the way things have been going, one way figures he must be spending $10,000 of it on aspirin.

Well, will he run again?

"I'm sure the mayor will run for re-election," says his executive secretary, Jack Selenius. "Nobody has asked him if he plans to run again, but it is assumed a mayor will run for a second term."

So, when you're listing potential mayoral candidates for next year, be sure to circle LaRaia's name.

HARLAN PAINE, who has resigned as Quincy City Hospital director after a stormy period with Mayor LaRaia and some members of the hospital board, will be honored today [Thursday] by hospital employees. A retirement tea is set for 2-4 p.m. in the hospital dining room. Frankly, we always thought Paine did a pretty good job during his 14 years as director. We wish him luck.

IF YOU THINK you see Red Sox pitcher Ferguson Jenkins around Quincy, you're right. Fergy is living here for the season.

And if you ask a group of youngsters who spotted him at a car wash on Copeland St., West Quincy, the other day, he's a great guy. When they recognized him, he took the time to chat with them and sign autographs for them.

SPEAKING OF THE Sox, Quincy's Sam Mele, wife Connie, and Ken Coleman and his wife, Ellen, were among those taking in the Tony Bennett-Count Basie Show at the South Shore Music Circus last week. Sam had a special interest.

He recalled he and Bennett grew up in the same neighborhood in Astoria, Long Island, and quipped: "I used to hear this guy for nothing at the corner bar."

"He's not bad for a Long Islander," Ken observed with a smile.

The former "Voice of the Red Sox," incidentally, has been the TV "Voice of the Cincinnati Reds" this season. [This season, how lucky can you get!]

AND SPEAKING OF THE South Shore Music Circus you certainly don't have to worry about anyone stealing your car while you're seeing the show. You couldn't swipe a helicopter out of that jammed parking lot.

JOYCE BAKER and her husband, Larry, have moved to Bangor, Me. where they will go into business. Joyce, a delegate to the Republican National Convention, has been active in political and civic circles in Quincy and in the Quincy Historical Society. She has left with the Historical Society several souvenirs of the GOP convention: Ford and Reagan buttons and placards which will go into the Historical Society's museum as part of its political memorabilia.

OBSERVATION [or suspicion]: I swear that some of the meters in the Hancock Parking area are on a "fast clock". Whenever I put money in them and give myself 10 extra minutes or so to get back, they're always "expired".

SIGN ON CAR: "I will give up my gun only when they take it from my cold dead fingers." [Aw' c'mon!]

THUMBNAIL THOUGHTS—

It would appear we went to a gosh-awful lot of expense and effort to determine there wasn't anything worthwhile on Mars.

Third World nations are following the time-honored "best" method to get money. Kick Uncle Sam in the teeth and the aid dollars flow in!

The FBI and CIA added a new element to "white collar" crime, officially sanctioned break-ins.

When someone starts a sentence with "Frankly," it's a good idea to keep your guard high.

The recession is over. Now we hear that Richard Nixon is financially secure.

Bloodhounds can detect a scent up to 10 days old.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

How Are SS Funds Invested?

"How are Social Security Funds invested?" a questioner recently asked one of our VIPHone volunteers.

The answer came from the 1975 annual report of the trustees of FICA, supplied to our office by the Social Security office: Social Security Funds do not need for current expenses on a daily basis are invested in interest-bearing obligations of the United States government, guaranteed as to both principal and interest by the United States.

This question is one of many now being received by the Voter Information Phone, statewide free public service of the League of Women Voters Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund. Individuals with questions about government - local, state, or national - may call the VIPHone Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

READER SPEAKS OUT

We Should Try To Be Better Americans

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As we start our third century as a nation we should all try to be better Americans.

We can do that by taking an active part in community affairs and in the political process either as a candidate or as an active member of a political campaign committee.

We of the DAV do not advocate the election of any candidate but we do believe all should vote.

This year we will elect a President for four years; and now is the time for those who are not registered to vote to register immediately.

We believe an active American is a good America, so be active.

QCA Discusses Zoning Petition

The Quincy Citizens Association was scheduled to meet last night [Wednesday] at 8 p.m. in the Montclair Men's Club to discuss a petition to the City Council relative to changes in the current Zoning Ordinance.

President Arthur M. Chandler called it "a c follow-up and continuation of the QCA's successful referendum drive last fall to establish a 10-story building height limit in zones with unlimited height."

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By TOM HENSHAW

Sept. 2 - 8, 1938 - 38 Years Ago This Week

Politics Hot For Primary Day, 1938

The sounds of politics filled the air in and around Quincy as Primary Day drew near.

Norfolk County Commissioner Russell T. Bates and Frederick A. Holbrook of Quincy, candidates for the Republican nomination for sheriff, nearly got into a fist fight over a Holbrook remark at a GOP rally in Milton Town Hall.

"Not only has the previous speaker [Bates] drawn a salary of $4,800 a year as county commissioner for 10 years," said Holbrook, "but he goes down to sing to the prisoners at the jail every Sunday morning for an extra $104."

City Councillor John W. Savage presided at a rally in Quincy High School for James Michael Curley, the former governor, congressman and mayor of Boston, who was seeking the Democratic nomination for another term in the State House.

On the same day, the incumbent Gov. Charles F. Hurley visited Quincy to present a $5,000 check to Herbert C. Towle of 262 Billings Rd, Norfolk Downs, who won it in a safe driving contest.

George E. Morey, city property manager, was granted a leave of absence to serve as Gov. Hurley's campaign manager, and Miss Mary E. Dunham was named chairman of the Quincy Women's Committee for Lt. Gov. Francis E. Kelly for governor.

SHORE RACE TIGHTENS

Bill Caskin pitched and batted the Braintree White Sox to a 7-3 victory over the South Quincy Brookside before 2,500 people at Kincaide Park, creating a virtual deadlock for first place in the South Shore League among Braintree, South Quincy and North Quincy with two games remaining.

Caskin, a lefthander who usually played first base, limited Brookside to six hits while striking out six and belting a double and a home run. The Brookside lineup included:

STADIUM DECLINED

The School Committee refused to accept control of Quincy's new $175,000 Municipal Stadium, built with WPA funds on the site of the old Pfaffman's Oval on Hancock St., leaving it in the hands of the Park Department.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, chairman of the School Committee, said the School Department had neither the manpower nor the equipment to maintain the field.

The Committee voted its "desire" to have Quincy and North Quincy High Schools play football in the stadium but it also failed to vote acceptance of legislation that would permit the schools to charge admission to the games.

Jim Pena pitched a two-hitter and fanned 12 to give the Brookside AC a 17-0 victory over Mass Fields Midgets and the WPA-Park Department championship... Brookside got 18 hits off Mass Fields ace John White.

'Will Campaign 6 Days, Spend $6 or $7 In Stamps'

Burke Confident He Will Win 10th Term By 4-1 Margin

By TOM HENSHAW

A supremely confident Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has told The Quincy Sun that he expects to defeat Patrick H. McCarthy, his challenger for the Democratic nomination from the 11th District, by a margin of better than 4-1.

He predicted he will poll 75,000 votes to 17,000 for McCarthy after campaigning only six days and spending "six or seven dollars in stamps".

In a tape-recorded interview with The Sun, Burke, who is seeking a 10th term in Congress, also made these points:

● McCarthy, whom he described as a Californian unfamiliar with the district, is "not adhering to the fair campaign code of clean practices" and is open to a libel suit over some of his campaign accusations.

● "As a ranking majority member of the House Ways and Means Committee, I'll be in one of the best positions in the nation to do something for the Northeast" and for Massachusetts, where the big issue is the economy.

● The people who resisted the South Quincy MBTA station lost the fight but won the war because, in return for the station, "they get support to take care of their flood control problems, which are far worse than the station."

A partial text of the interview, edited for brevity and clarity, follows:

THE SUN: You're 66 years old. You've been in Congress 18 years. Why are you running for another term? Why not take it easy?

BURKE: As you know, on Jan. 1, 1977, if I'm in the United States Congress, I'll be sitting next to the chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. The chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee is the third most powerful position in the government. When you're sitting next to the chairman you're called down to the White House about once a week and the President tells you what the nation needs. And sometimes before you leave you have an opportunity to tell the President what the Northeast needs, what the state needs, what your district needs. The biggest battle we have in Massachusetts today

Ed. Note: This is the second in a series of three in-depth interviews by The Quincy Sun with candidates for the 11th Congressional seat.

The first with Patrick H. McCarthy, of Randolph, opposing Congressman James A. Burke for the Democratic nomination in the Sept. 14 primary, appeared in The Sun Aug. 5.

Danielle deBenedictis of Milton, running as an Independent, is not a candidate in the primary election. Thus, The Sun's interview with her will appear after the primary election.

is the economy. We have approximately 200,000 people loafing. Because of some of the political mistakes we've made in the past, we've lost large installations. In fact, within a year, 35,000 people were laid off their jobs in Rhode Island and Massachusetts in the Defense Department. You can read the litany of jobs that have been lost as a result of the political cannibalism that has taken place in this state. We have to reverse that trend. In my position in the United States Congress as a ranking majority member of the House Ways and Means Committee, I'll be in one of the best positions in the nation to do something for the Northeast and that is what I intend to do.

THE SUN: What do you mean by "political cannibalism"?

BURKE: Political cannibalism is when you eat your own. And they've done that in this state. If I came from a southern state, I wouldn't even have an opponent. But up here in Massachusetts, when you get up to a position where you can do something, suddenly we have somebody come in from out of state and you wonder what's going on. I'm wondering what's going on.

THE SUN: What is it you're wondering about?

BURKE: Well, I haven't had time to study the methods of my opponent but I am hearing complaints from many groups throughout the district.

THE SUN: What kind of complaints?

BURKE: Complaints that he's not adhering to the fair

CONGRESSMAN JAMES A. BURKE was in Quincy recently to listen to constituents' problems in his office in the Post Office. campaign code of clean practices.

THE SUN: Would you give an example?

BURKE: I haven't had a chance to analyze all of them but I understand there's one circular with my picture on it with three members of Congress who have been convicted. I've never been tried in my life or accused of anything in my life yet my picture is on the folder with two or three men who have been convicted of crimes.

THE SUN: Do you mean he's implying...?

BURKE: I don't know what he's implying. I haven't had a chance to study these things over. But I think that he's not acquainted with Massachusetts. He comes from California. His home was in California until 1974.

THE SUN: He says he was here earlier than that.

BURKE: Yes, he was here. But his home was in California. And out there in Berkeley, Calif., they conduct that type of campaign. I don't indulge in those tactics. I believe in a clean campaign and if I can't be elected in a clean campaign then the office isn't that important to me. I refuse to get down into a pigsty. As I understand it he put out a story that I voted to raise milk prices, bread prices, clothing prices. His charges cite Congressman Burke's vote on Roll Call No. 73 which occurred on March 20, 1975, but it fails to mention that the roll call was on final passage of the Farm Bill following several votes in which the Congressmen clearly supported amendments to reduce consumer prices. The overall bill on which final passage was being voted was necessary to encourage maximum agricultural production during a time of rapidly expanding domestic and world wide demand. When the President vetoed that bill - and he's not honest in this - he doesn't point out that the Boston area congressmen, Burke, Moakley, O'Neill, voted to override the veto. Now, why didn't he mention the fact that the man he worked for voted the same way I did? Do you think that's being honest?

Milk prices: In December, 1974, I did vote to maintain assistance for small family dairies. This was a time when most of the small dairies were operating at a loss and an immediate threat existed that the major dairies would force them out of competition and take over control of the market. The bill was not enacted because the President pocket vetoed the bill. On March 20, 1975, an amendment was offered to the farm bill which would increase price supports on milk by five cents. Congressman Burke voted against the increase. He doesn't tell you that.

THE SUN: He leans heavily on your vote for a gas tax increase.

BURKE: There he tells the truth but he doesn't tell you the whole truth. He gives you the impression that we were going to raise the price 23 cents a gallon on gasoline.

THE SUN: Impression? He says it flatly.

BURKE: Oh, yes. But he doesn't tell you that if consumption rose by more than 5 per cent over the 1973 levels, which it is just beginning to do now, a tax would be triggered in to the amount of three cents and it would continue to rise gradually if consumption continued to rise. In other words, the demand for gasoline would have to keep increasing until the tax finally reached 23 cents a gallon. At the end of the year, 80 per cent of the tax would be rebated to the person who paid it. Is that a 23 cent tax? Of course, it's not.

THE SUN: What is the purpose of the rebate?

BURKE: The rebate is to give the rebate back to the working people who drive their cars back and forth to work; who have to use their cars to drive their families around....

THE SUN: Why tax in the first place if you're going to give it back?

BURKE: To get the people to slow down on the purchase of gasoline; to get them to slow down on using it and to use it in a prudent way. We've got a condition in this country today that we've got no real energy program. We are depending on more than 40 per cent of our imports of oil from overseas. The OPEC countries have formed an alliance and they are waiting. I predict to you that if we do not get an energy trust fund set up and action taken very quickly that within the short span of two years gasoline in this country will reach a price of a dollar or a dollar and a half a gallon.

Incidentally, on that 23 cent gas tax, we knew it didn't have a prayer. What we were trying to get was a three cent gas tax. But we had these bright young members of Congress who were setting the world on fire, who were sitting there shivering and shaking in their seats, afraid to set up a trust fund. The leadership said: 'Why don't we propose a 23 cent gas tax. We'll have a vote on it. We'll lose it. Then maybe when we get to the three cent tax later, they might have enough backbone to vote.' They're a lot of jellyfish. So there is no energy program in the United States today.

We have to have an energy program in this country. We should have had it last year. It's been kicked around over in the Senate for months. Unless we have some men of courage in office - I mean courage. I mean men who will stand up and cast a vote like I did on the Sikes matter. I've had 150 members of Congress come up to me and say: 'Jim, you had a lot of courage to cast that vote. I wish to hell I had the courage to do it.' There wasn't a scintilla of evidence before us, either for or against. We were presented a report 595 pages thick five minutes before the debate started. The debate lasted 18 minutes. Nothing was said either for or against. And then we were supposed to vote. They all wanted to go home and be recorded as being against sin. Suppose Mr. Sikes had been guilty of all the things he was charged with. Was that what the punishment was supposed to be? Were we supposed to hit him off the rear end with a feather duster? Was that 'the big courageous yes' vote? I say if what he is charged with is as serious as they say it should be

McDonald Reports County Seeking U.S. Funds For New Courthouse

Norfolk County Commissioner George B. McDonald announces the county is sending a letter of intent to the U.S. Department of Commerce noting the county's plans to apply for 100 per cent funding for a new Superior Court building under the new Public Works Employment Act. McDonald said that since the end of July when Congress overrode President Ford's veto of the bill meetings and discussions had been held with the architects for the project, representatives of the Department of Commerce, the Commonwealth's Bureau of Building Construction, Congressman James Burke and various state legislators concerning the project.

"We are very hopeful of funding," McDonald said. "We intend to file such an application as quickly as possible. In the meantime, we have given the notice of our intention to apply for funding and have also provided a copy of our preliminary plans."

McDonald added "we are also taking the necessary steps in the state legislature to obtain the necessary approval and authority to construct the new courthouse, but the bill we will be seeking will not require the expenditure of any county taxes."

McDonald said the Commissioners "were pleased to note the interest and concern" of Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt.

Harrington Opposes Another State Prison In Norfolk County

Edmund P. Harrington of Quincy, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner, has called on legislators to oppose any attempt to locate another State Prison in Norfolk County.

"Let's keep Norfolk County the County of Presidents, not the County of Prisons," he said. A proposal has been made by the administration of Gov. Dukakis to relieve overcrowded conditions in Walpole State Prison by placing another one in Dover. A state prison colony is also located in the town of Norfolk.

"It's about time the taxpayers of Norfolk County were given a break," said Harrington in a statement.

"The court costs involved with both Norfolk and Walpole prisons have been a burden on the taxpayers of Norfolk County in the past. To add another state prison facility would only increase the burden."

"Every time there is prosecution for furlough escapes, prisoner stabbings and riots at Norfolk and Walpole the taxpayers of Norfolk County have to pick up the tab."

Morrissey Discusses Area Problems At Squantum Coffee Hour

A coffee hour was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Davis, 41 Lansdowne St., Squantum for Michael W. Morrissey, Democratic candidate for State Representative in the Third Norfolk District.

More than 25 attending heard

Morrissey discuss area problems, especially the future of the Squantum Gardens Area. Morrissey pledged his support to work with local community associations and the city council to protect local neighborhoods from future development in that area.

Bernard Shannon Candidate For Senate

Bernard P. Shannon, a 44-year-old general contractor from Stoughton, has announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate to oppose Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in the September Democratic primary.

Shannon, president of Bayonne Construction Co., announced in a series of cross-state stops by air from Pittsfield to Hyannis which he called "a preview of the manner in which we intend to conduct our campaign."

"We believe people in every part of the state are equally concerned about the misrepresentation they are getting in Washington before the federal courts.

THE SUN: Mr. McCarthy has criticized your vote on the so-called Ross Perot tax refund amendment.

BURKE: Yes. He talks about my vote and he calls it the Burke-Landrum Amendment. It's not. It's the Landrum Amendment. I did not co-sponsor it. That's a falsehood. And he keeps repeating it.

THE SUN: Did you vote the way he says you did on the amendment?

BURKE: When I voted on that amendment the name of Ross Perot did not come up during the whole discussion by the staff or anybody on the committee.

THE SUN: Were you aware that Ross Perot might get a large refund...?

BURKE: No. I wasn't aware of that. But I was aware of it a few days later and then on the next vote I voted against it. I have never accepted a contribution from Ross Perot. McCarthy keeps saying that all but two members, I believe, of the committee accepted contributions. Well, if it was all but two, then I'm one of the two.

THE SUN: Are you acquainted with Mr. Perot?

BURKE: I've seen him testify before the committee. That's as far as I've seen him. He wouldn't know me and I wouldn't know him if he walked into this room now. But McCarthy would have me sitting on his lap. Incidentally, that's another one of the questions I'm raising. He's got my name signed to a check made out to Ross Perot for $15 million. I'd better not lose this fight because if I do I've got grounds for libel. The sky would be the ceiling. And that's the opinion of one of the smartest lawyers in this country. This man is a desperate man in my estimation. He just is not registering on the meter and he can't understand it.

THE SUN: Do you regard him as a serious threat?

BURKE: No, I don't.

THE SUN: How do you figure you'll do against him?

BURKE: We're shooting for 75,000 votes. We received 61,000 two years ago.

THE SUN: That was against Joe Tierney?

BURKE: Right.

THE SUN: How many votes did he get?

BURKE: He got 21,000. I campaigned for three days. We're going to double our time this year. We're going to campaign for six days.

THE SUN: How many votes do you think McCarthy is going to get?

BURKE: I give him maybe up around 17,000. I think Tierney was stronger than he is.

THE SUN: How much money do you plan to raise and spend?

BURKE: I wouldn't ask for a contribution from my brother for this campaign.

THE SUN: All your own money?

BURKE: If I spend any money it might be, oh, six or seven dollars in stamps.

THE SUN: How much did you spend in your last campaign?

BURKE: I don't know. I think it was over $30,000.

THE SUN: All in contributions?

BURKE: No. Part of it was my own money. About $8,500 I think.

THE SUN: Where did the rest come from?

BURKE: It came from all over. Labor organizations donated about $10,000. Then you've got your friends who send in $25 or $50. It's all on the record.

THE SUN: You seem to be dismissing McCarthy as a lightweight.

BURKE: I'm dismissing him as of now because he doesn't register on the meter.

THE SUN: What meter?

BURKE: On our poll meter. We have polled 2,700 people and he doesn't show on the meter. Oh, there's a lot of cute fellows around playing with him but they'll get the shock of their lives. I hope they spend a lot of money.

THE SUN: Mr. McCarthy has charged that the money you bring into the district is not the kind of federal spending that generates jobs. How do you respond to that?

BURKE: By the time people read your column they will have received a report from Washington from me. Just to give you an idea, an outline from the first page: $21 million for the MBTA extension, $520,000 for Quincy, $900,000 for Brockton, $7 million for Boston under the Public Works Employment Bill, $107,000 for the Mount St. Beach in Quincy. Have you got time to read these?

THE SUN: Perhaps we could read these later on.

BURKE: I've got a list of things here that would take me a half an hour to read. Over on this side, federal revenue sharing. I was the one who turned the House around on the revenue sharing. When it was defeated I prevailed upon Chairman Wilbur Mills—who he criticizes so much—to change his vote and change his attitude against revenue sharing. We got that bill out. As a result of it the cities and towns are getting this money. This Congressional district gets more federal funds than any congressional district in Massachusetts.

THE SUN: He says...

BURKE: I don't care what he says...

THE SUN: ... that the district ranks 10th in Massachusetts.

BURKE: He's dead wrong. And these figures here bear out the fact that he's dead wrong. I defy him to come up with figures for the other districts. He's talking through his hat. He doesn't know anything about this district. He's been on a few public payrolls, yeah, but that doesn't give him the bread and butter ideas of the district.

THE SUN: Will you meet him in a debate?

BURKE: After I analyze what type of a campaign he's been conducting.

THE SUN: How soon will you be able to do that?

BURKE: After I analyze what type of a campaign he's been conducting.

THE SUN: How soon will you be able to do that?

BURKE: After I analyze what type of a campaign he's been conducting.

THE SUN: How soon will you be able to do that?

BURKE: I'll do that Labor Day.

THE SUN: Then you'll meet him in a debate after Labor Day?

BURKE: If he's adhering to the fair campaign practices code, yes. I've never refused. But I'm not going to get into a mud-slinging or into a pigsty with anyone. He can wallow in it, not me.

THE SUN: If you win this time, will it be your last term?

BURKE: No. But I might only run five or six more times.

THE SUN: When the day comes, do any names come to mind as logical successors?

BURKE: I can think of a lot of young men in this district right now who would make good congressmen.

THE SUN: Who?

BURKE: Well, the state senator, Arthur Tobin, for one.

THE SUN: Any others?

BURKE: Oh, you've got Brian Donnelly over there on the Milton-Dorchester line. You've got Joe Manning; Joe Semens in Randolph; Sen. Joe Walsh in Dorchester; Rep. Finnegan of the Ways and Means Committee.

THE SUN: Any more from Quincy?

BURKE: Joe Brett would make a good congressman.

THE SUN: How about Jim McIntyre?

BURKE: Jim McIntyre polled the highest in our poll of anybody...on the people who didn't approve of our record, we asked 2,000 people, he got nine votes.

THE SUN: You mean if they weren't voting for you they would vote for Jim McIntyre?

BURKE: Nine of them said they would vote for Jim McIntyre.

THE SUN: How about the others?

BURKE: Arthur Tobin, I think, got seven. Timilty got seven.

THE SUN: What kind of a man would you like to see as your successor?

BURKE: He should have served at least one term in the legislative branch of the government. He should have had the experience of sitting around conference tables and committee and negotiating on legislation. Otherwise he'll go down there and they'll whiz them by him so fast that he could be there two years and not even know what happened.

THE SUN: How do you feel about the South Quincy MBTA station?

BURKE: I think this station is going to be a blessing in disguise.

THE SUN: In what way?

BURKE: We're going to get flood control money for it. It's going to run into quite a few million dollars. The people will be very happy with the station when they find out that by putting the station in they get support to take care of their flood control problems, which are far worse than the station.

THE SUN: Do you think opposition to the station spurred flood control?

BURKE: Yeah. We were able to get promises from federal agencies that they would focus on this problem.

THE SUN: So in some respects they won a moral victory?

BURKE: Yeah. They won. They lost but they won. As I say, it's a blessing in disguise for them because the flood control will be taken care of.

Albert Vasile Writes Oral Communication Text Book

Albert J. Vasile of Wollaston, an associate professor at Bunker Hill Community College, Charlestown has just completed co-authoring a text book on basic oral communication.

The text, subtitled "The Basic Practical Speech Guide" will be published by Winthrop Publishing Company of Cambridge, a subsidiary of Prentice-Hall, N.Y.

The book will be available for all community colleges, four-year colleges, business and technical schools in the U.S. and Canada in March of 1977.

The text, written in an informal and untext-book style, covers all aspects of basic speaking from giving "your first talk" to the last chapter "preparing for the job interview".

This is Vasile's first effort at writing a book. A member of the original founding faculty of Bunker Hill Community College he is starting his fourth year at the college.

Vasile was recently appointed Coordinator of Oral Communication Courses.

Vasile will assist the Department Chairman with his role of administrative responsibilities involving students and faculty specifically in the area of speech.

Vasile is also an announcer at WEZE, Boston and Chief Tour Escort for Columbus Tours of Boston and South Weymouth.

Vasile lives on North Central Ave., with his wife, Evelyn who is serving her second term as President of the Montclair PTA, and their two sons, Albert J. and Walter B.

Carl L. Leinonen, a 1973 graduate of Quincy High School, has been selected as a Surdna Foundation undergraduate research fellow for the 1976-1977 academic year at Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.

He is the son of Mrs. William E. Leinonen of 8 South Junior Terrace and the late Mr. Leinonen.

As a research fellow, Leinonen will participate in a project in which the faculty member is independently interested. The program is designed to engage the Surdna fellow directly and responsibly in a serious attempt to extend man's knowledge in his field of interest and competence. The Surdna fellow, as well as the supervising faculty member, is given credit for his contribution to new published material resulting from the research.

Leinonen, who is majoring in economics and government, will investigate "Intermediate Technology as an Instrument of Rural Development in Sri Lanka".

Geoffrey King Completes A.F. Training

Airman Geoffrey F. King of Cambridge has been assigned to Keesler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing six weeks of Air Force basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex. His wife, Maryann, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Friaoli of 289 Rock Island Rd, Houghs Neck.

King, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. King of Cambridge, is a 1971 graduate of Rindge Technical High School. He received special instruction in human relations during his basic training and will now receive specialized training in the Avionics systems field.

Delahunt Strongly Objects To Another Prison In County

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has registered "strong objections" to the establishment of another correction institution in Dover or any other community in Norfolk County.

It would result in an additional unfair expense to the taxpayers of the county, he said in a letter to Gov. Michael S. Dukakis.

"My office is responsible for the prosecution of crimes emanating from the correctional institutions in Norfolk and Walpole," he wrote.

"In the past few years, the number of cases has dramatically increased as a result of the furlough and work-release programs.

"In the past three years, there have been nearly 100 indictments returned by the Norfolk County Grand Jury relative to furlough escapes.

"In addition, there have been several costly trials of inmates involved in disturbances in these particular institutions.

"The latest incident at Walpole has resulted in six inmates being charged with serious felonies. The trials will be conducted sometime this Fall and will be extremely expensive to the taxpayers of Norfolk County.

"They will bear the total cost of such trials despite the fact that inmates are sentenced to M.C.I. Norfolk and Walpole for crimes committed throughout the Commonwealth.

"To further add to this burden by locating another correctional institution within the boundaries of Norfolk County would be unfair to the 700,000 residents of Norfolk County."

Quincy Man Heads

Aeromedic Operations At Carney

Cornelius Bulman of Quincy, an administrative career executive at Carney Hospital, has figured prominently in helicopter medical emergency situations.

The latest incident, was a drowning victim airlifted by the State Police helicopter from Thompson Island in Boston Harbor.

Bulman received an alert from the State Police Barracks in Framingham at 5:45 p.m. and by the time the helicopter dispatched from Norwood picked up the victim and delivered him to Carney at 6 p.m. Bulman had the landing pad lit, the fire fighting foam equipment manned, and had an emergency room team of a physician and two nurses ready to receive the patient.

Considered one of the key persons in the hospital after normal working hours, Bulman who is the administrative assistant for general services, is a trouble-shooter in many areas of the hospital's normal operations and functions.

Among his other duties, he counsels and assists the evening supervisors of all departments, serves as a problem solver, interprets the hospital's policy and protocol to visitors, promotes morale and harmony among employees in addition to prepared administrative reports.

Bulman has a thorough working knowledge of emergency procedures in helicopter operations, "brown-outs", fire-fighting and disasters.

Over 300 Compete

Track Club Dominates Frank Kelly Memorial Meet

More than 300 track and field enthusiasts from all over New England participated in last Saturday's first Frank G. Kelly Memorial Meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium and the Quincy Track Club dominated most of the age group events as well as the five-mile road race.

The club is now unofficially New England age group champions in Bantam boys and girls, Midget boys and girls and Junior boys.

The meet was directed by NEAAU chairman Ralph Colson, Dennis Hursey, John Jacoppo, Jerry Lynch and Wayne Lumpkins of the Roxbury Track Club.

Mrs. Irene Kelly, widow of the late QTC founder, vice president and director, in whose honor the meet was held and who was presented a bouquet of long stemmed roses by members of the QTC staff, publicly thanks staff members Paul Doherty, Mark Canavan, Jeff Hennessy, Bill Popsie, Harry Williams and Janice Kelly for their untiring efforts during the season. Thanks also go to Mr. and Mrs. DiChristofaro, Mr. and Mrs. Koberski, Mr. and Mrs. Garrigan, Joe Santo, Joe Canavan, Jack Mahoney, Rhonda Zoia, Denis Doherty, Cookie Guest, Bernie Levitsky, Maureen Kelly and Shirley Lumpkins for their assistance during the season and at the meet.

The meet concluded the QTC summer program. The club is planning to inaugurate a cross-country program in late September.

Quincy won the Bantam boys' title with 31 points, while Cooper Striders had 13 and Mattapoisset 5. Quincy's scorers: Mike Cullen, second in the 100 and long jump and third in the 220; Andy Levitsky, first long jump and third hurdles; Bob Mudge, second hurdles; Mike Bourikas, first hurdles; Frank Reynolds, second 440; Jim Flaherty, third 440; Mike Williams, Levitsky, Mudge and Reynolds, first in relay; Quincy B team, second. Cullen set a record in the 220 with a 29.6 timing and Levitsky received the Outstanding Athlete award.

The Quincy Bantam girls also won with 22 points to nine for Roxbury TC and six for Westerly, R.I., TC. Quincy's scorers: Theresa Biagini, first in long jump with a record 13-6 leap, and first in hurdles; Liz Wiot, second 100; Lisa Nolan, second hurdles and second long jump; Sheila Barrett, second 440. Theresa Biagini won the Outstanding Athlete award.

Quincy Midget boys won with 29 points. Westerly had 22 and Roxbury 10. Quincy's scorers: Shawn Burnes, first hurdles and long jump and second 440; Rich Lawyer, second 100 and third 220; Rich McCarthy, second high jump; Eric Fransoso, second hurdles; John O'Hare, third hurdles; Gerard McCormick, third high jump; relay teams, Quincy A second and Quincy B third. Burnes won the Outstanding Athlete award. Lawyer set a Quincy club record in the 220 at 27.1.

Also winning were the Quincy Midget girls with 19 points. Roxbury and Westerly had 12 each. Quincy scorers: Sue McLaughlin, second long jump and third high jump; Denise Santo, first long jump; Loretta Garrigan, first high jump; Liz Norton, second hurdles; Ginny McIntyre, third hurdles; relay, Quincy A third.

Quincy won the Open men's title with 33 points. Greater Boston TC had 10 and Maine TC eight. Quincy scorers: Harry Williams, second 220 and third 100; Jeff Hennessy, third 880 and second hurdles; Bart Petracca, first mile; Ken O'Brien, second mile; Paul Doherty, second shotput and third 440; Ed Colletta, third hurdles; Bill Popsie, second discus and third shot; Ted Koberski, third discus; Mark Canavan, second high jump.

Quincy scorers among the Junior boys: Mike Sullivan, first in 220 and 100; Dan McIntyre, first 440 [54.5 for new record], first long jump and second hurdles; Mike Gallagher, first discus and shot; Ted Koberski, second shot and discus; Jim Bellafatto, second high jump; Dan Flannery, second long jump; Joe Irvine, third 880 [2:20.5, new Quincy record] and third in the mile; relay team of McIntyre, Carroll, Flannery and Sullivan, first. McIntyre received the Outstanding Athlete award.

Quincy's Junior girls finished second to Mattapoisset with 26 points. Mattapoisset had 31 and Westerly seven. Quincy's scorers: Linda Cellini, first 100 and 440;

McGuire, Cochrane Quincy, North Soccer Coaches

Jim McGuire, one of Quincy High's best soccer players a few years ago and an all-league selection, has been named the Presidents' new head coach to succeed Ron Martin who, along with all the other Quincy and North soccer coaches, resigned over a number of issues.

McGuire, who also played with Quincy in the Boston Area League, went on to become a standout at Bentley College.

At this writing an assistant to replace Charlie McLaughlin hadn't been named.

North Quincy's new coach, replacing Lou Ioanilli, will be Bruce Cochrane of Hingham, who excelled at Hingham High and Eisenhower College in Seneca, N.Y.

Cochrane was a four-year letterman in soccer, a three-year tennis letterman and won a letter one year in baseball at Eisenhower. He captained the soccer team his senior year when he was named the team's Most Valuable Player. He was a goalie in high school but, as he put it, "I played everywhere but goalie in college." He also lettered for three years in high school in soccer and tennis.

North's new assistant coach will be George McCall of Quincy.

The North soccer team will have to bus to Veterans Memorial Stadium to dress, as the locker rooms have been lost due to construction at North Quincy High, and then bus back to North Quincy for workouts at Montclair Field or another available field.

—TOM SULLIVAN

Soccer Drills

The Quincy High School soccer team, under new coach Jim McGuire, began practice Monday and all interested candidates are asked to report to the Vo-Tech gym at 8 a.m. prior to the opening of school next week.

The North team, also with a new coach, Bruce Cochrane, is working out daily.

Quincy, Montreal Teams In Weekend Tourney Here

A group known as Sun Youth Organization from Montreal will arrive in Quincy Friday to take part in a Friendship baseball tournament with Quincy teams at Adams Field Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The series begins Friday at 6 p.m. with Pete Niosi's 13-year old Babe Ruth team going against Sun Youth Bantam team. The Quincy squad includes Greg Oriola, Bob Bolster, Danny Boyle, Rich Reinhardt, John Kavanagh, Mark Millane, Bob McCormick, Gary DiNardo, Dan Malloy, Bob Craig, Steve Healy and Tom McFarland. Assistant coaches are Paul Earle and John McDonnell.

Friday night at 8, Mayor Joseph LaRia will throw out the first ball for the start of the game between Wollaston Legion and Sun Youth Midgets. Wollaston players are Tom LaBlue, Josh Alberti, Bob Stevens, John Andrews, Al Cangema, Steve Cook, Mark Nagle, Ken Barrett, Bob Stock, John Houten, Steve Jaehrig, Nick Anastas, Roy Widman and Chuck McLean. Bob Jordan is coach and Gus Mariano and Carl Widman assistants.

Saturday morning at 10 it will be the Sun Youth Bantams vs. Quincy's 13-14 year old Babe Ruth team, coached by Joe Wilkinson and Bob Dinan. Quincy's roster includes Mike Abbound, Bill Foley, Steve Notorangelo, John Todd, Tom Canavan, Tony Camillo, Jamie Walsh, Andy Carrera, Bill Mullane, Bob Cronin, Tom Mullen and Jeff Giordani.

Saturday at 2 p.m. Morrisette Legion will face the Sun Youth Midgets. Morrisette's players include Chuck LoPresti, Dave Perdios, Jim Maze, Sal Coscia, Ron Donovan, Mark Giordani, Mike McCormack, John Wilkinson, Peter Niosi, Lenny Picot and Don Perdios. Ray Cattaneo is coach and Bill Corcoran, Connie Carozzi and Nick Malvesti assistants.

Morrisette and Wollaston Legion teams will use mainly boys who will return next year and many of this year's standouts will not be playing.

Sunday at 10 a.m. a 14-year old Babe Ruth League team coached by Jim Deitsch, John Belcastro and Howie Rock, will face the Sun Youth Bantams. Among those playing for Quincy will be Billy Deitsch, Bob Hayes, Dean Prescott, Steve Picot, Pat Ennis, Kevin McKinnon, Mark Messina, Bob Biagini, Joe Crifo, Bob DuBois, Paul O'Toole and Artie Roberts.

The final game Sunday night at 8 will pit Quincy's Senior Babe Ruth League team against the Sun Youth Midgets. Playing for Quincy will be Jerry Cronin, Brian Reidy, Paul Barry, John Collins, Tom Wilkinson, Dan O'Leary, John Fitzgerald, Mike Marella, Bob Schaezel, Rich Boyle, Jack Malloy, John DiNardo, John Keane, Bob Maloney, Mike Trubiano, Paul Graham, Steve Buckley and Dave Flaherty. Coaches are Fred Collen, Joe Wilkinson and Bob Dinan.

O'Rourke Wins 3 Playground Titles

Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers announces the winners in the athletic competition sponsored by the Park and Recreation Board.

O'Rourke playground took three titles.

Cathy Ilacqua's district five champs won the senior boys baseball championship defeating Wollaston 16-3. Winning pitcher for Squantum was Mike McCormack.

O'Rourke gained the city title in the junior division defeating Welcome Young 5-2 with Glen Oriola pitching the entire game. Ken White and Neil Shea were the batting stars for O'Rourke.

The O'Rourke senior girls softball team was also the winning city wide champion defeating Wollaston. Outstanding players for O'Rourke all season long were Ann and Winn Bertrand, Sandy DePolo and Karen Murphy.

O'Rourke won its third championship in the senior girls basketball division over Beechwood Knoll. Stars in the victory were Kathy Flaherty and Sandy DePolo.

Juniors girls' Janet Witham led Chapel playground to its first city title in history by defeating Faxon Park. Janet topped all scorers with 22 points.

Tennis Champs

Three Russell Park youngsters have won tennis championships.

The program sponsored by the Park and Recreation Board is open to those aged six through 16 who have participated in the playground program.

John Todd in the senior division, Tony O'Malley in the junior boys and Linda McDonnell in the junior girls all won the city titles for Russell Park.

Gera Foy of Beechwood Knoll won the senior girls championship. In the midget division Mike Connelly of Perkins and Kim Johnson of Feno St. were the victors.

Recreation Director Robert K. Beniers presented trophies to all winners at a field day held at Merrymount Park.

FLAME-RETARDANT TENTS
A 12-year old boy suffered extensive third-degree burns when a candle ignited the canvas tent and the sleeping bag in which he was camping out in his own backyard. About 5,000 injuries occur each year while campers are using portable cooking, lighting and heating equipment. Many of these mishaps could be avoided if more tents were flame-retardant. The University of Minnesota documented 75 tent fires that resulted in 119 injuries. 27 of them fatal. Involved most often were umbrella or cabin-type tents made of cotton which can burn in 40 seconds to three minutes. Actually, flame-retardant tents have been available for more than 30 years, and at least four states require those there to meet standards. However, only 30% of tents on the market in 1975 were flame-retardant. The Canvas Products Association International says most of its member tent makers now produce labeled flame-retardant products. Play it safe. Always use flame-retardant tents and sleeping bags and assume materials can burn unless they are so labeled. Police Boy's Club Edges Puerto Rican Team, 5-4

The Quincy Police Boys' Club baseball team, winner of the Babe Ruth League city championship, edged a team of Puerto Rican players from Brooklyn, 5-4, last weekend.

The New York team is playing a series of games in the Greater Boston area and enjoying sightseeing. The team includes boys 14 to 16, a year older than the Quincy team.

Ron Donovan was the winning pitcher, allowing four hits and striking out four. Larry Baker made a fine over-the-head catch in centerfield with the bases loaded in the fourth inning, then threw to second base to double up Rico Spavenda.

The game was won in the bottom of the seventh when Tom Brennan walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on* Bob Mezzetti's two-out single to right.

Fran Donovan and Kevin McKinnon had two hits apiece and Bill O'Connell and Mezzetti one each for the Police Club.

John Alicea, whose father is a scout for the New York Mets, played an outstanding two-way game for New York.

The Police Club finished its outstanding season with a 26-2 record, winning the last 21 games in a row.

Eileen Feeney, Nancy Ellis Recreation 'Leaders of Week'

Eileen Feeney and Nancy Ellis, swimming instructors at Elm Ave. Beach have been named leaders of the week by recreation director Robert K. Beniers.

Miss Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis who have operated the ski tow at Heavenly Hill for many years, has been with the recreation department for seven years. She is a Bridgewater State graduate and has done graduate work at Lesley College and Boston State College. She received her water safety instructors' rating at Camp Kianwanee in 1971. She also attended the camp in 1973 with a rating in teaching handicapped swimming.

Miss Feeney who attends North Quincy High School is a first year instructor after receiving her water safety instructors rating at Lincoln Hancock Community School pool this year.

Tennis Court Fees Revised At Wollaston Recreational Facility

Tennis court fees at the Wollaston Recreational Facility [the old Wollaston Golf Course] have been revised, based on court costs rather than individual rates.

Chairman Richard J. Koch said the new rates will mean a savings for those tennis players wishing to play doubles on the courts.

The new rates, approved by the county commissioners, are $2 per court from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for county residents and $3 per court for non-county persons. The evening rates are $3 per court from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. for county residents and $4 per court for others.

Located on Evans St. in Montclair, the 10 outdoor lighted tennis courts are the newest facilities of this type in the area.

The courts, with a 14 percent use in July when first opened, have increased to a present 34 percent use in the 12-hour a day, seven days a week operation at the site. The courts are utilized over 90 percent of the time in the prime 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. evening periods.

The new clubhouse facility, presently under construction, will be completed by Dec. 1, with landscaping to be undertaken in the spring by students of the Norfolk County Agricultural School under the direction of the teaching staff.

The major construction on the golf course has been completed and the site will be available for play in the spring of 1977 when the entire facility will be operational.

With open space at a premium, acquisition of the former Wollaston Golf Course was one of major conservation purchases by the county government. The 95-acre tract serves not only as recreation but open space and conservation. Approximately 60 acres are located in Milton and 35 acres in Quincy.

The total cost of acquisition and development, including 10 tennis courts, childrens recreational area, new clubhouse building and reconstructed golf course, is $3.5 million. However, $1.7 million is being provided by the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation with Federal Funds and the remaining $1.8 million is the cost to the county.

The county-owned facility offers winter recreation sites with hills for sledding and skiing and ponds for natural ice skating.

The facility is under the direction of the Wollaston Recreational Panel, including Koch, the permanent member. Others include: Philip E. Casey, appointed by Milton Board of Selectmen; Robert K. Beniers, appointed by the Mayor of Quincy; Henry D. Hersey, appointed by the county commissioners; William Kendrick, appointed by the county commissioners; Donald J. Laing appointed by the county commissioners, and John Shields, Milton Park Board chairman, by legislation.

12 Age Group Records Broken At Track Club Championships

Last week's Quincy Track Club club championship meet at Veterans Memorial Stadium provided some of the best competition ever.

Eight age group records were broken on the boys' division and four in the girls' division.

Rich Lawyer set a Midget record of 11.8 in the 100, Mike Cullen broke his own Bantam 220 mark at 30.2, Shawn Burnes continued to rewrite the record books with two more, a 60.5 in the 440 and 9.4 in the hurdles, Eric Riley set a record in the shot put, Jim O'Hare in the discus, Joe Irvine with a 5:33.6 in the mile and Vin Lorenzano with a 25.1 in the 220.

In girls' competition Theresa Biagini broke her own record with 10.5 in the hurdles, Karen McCarthy broke the Junior long jump record with a leap of 15-11 1/2 in her first Junior competition after turning 14 only two days before the meet, and Denise Santo equaled the Midget 100 record of 12.4. Distance phenomena 12-year-old Michelle Millane turned in an outstanding 5:48.5 in the mile. No girl has ever run a faster mile in Quincy.

Boys and girls who were in St. Ann's youth hockey and figure skating programs a year ago will register next Wednesday, Sept. 15, from 6 to 9 p.m. at St. Ann's Youth Center.

A registration fee of $2 and money for one month's ice time will be turned in with the registration or it will not be accepted.

New applicants, both boys and girls, will sign up with the $2 registration fee only and will be put on a waiting list.

Oilers Drill Marlboro, Face Plymouth Friday

The Randolph Oilers, 3-1 in the tough Eastern Football League, will face the powerful Plymouth Rocks [4-1] Friday at 8 p.m. at Plymouth-Carver High School Field.

The Rocks are coached by former Patriot players Len St. Jean and Rick Cash, who have a staff of four assistants.

Randolph, which features four Quincy players, scored twice in the last period last Friday to top the Marlboro Shamrocks, 20-6.

Eddie Sylva of Quincy recovered three fumbles, the first recovery setting up the initial touchdown in the first period.

John Moriarty of Quincy played an outstanding game, while Ted Meyer and Kevin Cotter, two other Quincy players, missed the game due to injuries but are due back for Friday's big Plymouth game.

QJC Again Offering 'Adams Chronicles'

By TOBY FELTON

Quincy Junior College will again offer the popular "Adams Chronicles" as a three credit course during the fall semester.

Originally offered for the first time last spring, it is a seminar/television course offered in conjunction with Channel 2 TV.

The Adams Chronicles traces the lives and contributions of four generations of the Adams family, from 1750 - 1900.

The story begins in a farmer's cottage in Braintree during the year of Braddock's defeat near Fort Duquesne, moves through the excitement of the Massachusetts' quarrel with the British, then enlarges first to the Continental Congresses in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New York. It proceeds through to the theater of world politics and diplomacy as practiced in Paris, Amsterdam, The Hague, London and St. Petersburg.

John Adams, the nation's first vice-president and its second president, upon retirement from public service, settled in his Quincy home [which he subsequently named Peacefield] where he wrote long letters and memoirs.

John's wife, Abigail, set the literary pattern for the women of the family, first as a young mother-homemaker-home manager, then as an observer from foreign posts alongside her husband. Later, back at home, she reported charmingly on her garden as well as the news of family, neighbors, and public affairs.

Charles Francis Adams, son of John Quincy Adams, wrote of his father: "He took to diary writing early and he took to it hard." No matter the quality, the Adams' penchant for writing persisted. Another son, Henry, countering his brother, wrote of his father: "[He] possessed the only perfectly balanced mind that ever existed in the family name."

Charles Francis and his wife, also named Abigail, bore four talented sons. The eldest, John Quincy II, deliberately broke with family tradition by becoming a Democrat and by abandoning what he described as "the vile family habit of preserving letters." Still, those of his letters that do exist are among the liveliest in the family archives.

The next eldest, Charles Francis II, was a fine historian who wrote volumes of letters, diaries, and histories.

When they were young, the third and fourth boys—Henry and Brooks—helped their father in his editorial work on the family papers. As an adult, Henry authored several books, two lesser known and one, The History of the United States, considered the best general history of the country written in the nineteenth century.

A niece of the four brothers once asked John Quincy II why her uncles wrote so much. He answered, "My dear, it amuses them."

The Adams' amusement became the nation's reward. And because of their prolific pens, Quincy Junior College will be able to share THE ADAMS CHRONICLES, an accurate glimpse of America from 1750-1900.

Broadcasts will be on Channel 2 for 13 consecutive weeks. Students will have a choice of attending seminars on Wednesdays, 5:30-6:30 p.m. at Quincy Junior College or Mondays, 5:30-6:30 p.m. at Braintree High School.

For more information about this and other Quincy Junior College courses call 471-2470 for an evening brochure.

Dennis Schuman Completes Basic Air Force Training

Airman Dennis M. Schuman, whose mother is Mrs. Julia R. Schuman of 64 Townhill St., West Quincy, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from Air Force basic training.

The airman, who studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations, is remaining at Lackland for specialized training in the security police field.

Schuman is a 1974 graduate of Quincy High School. His father, Joseph F. Schuman, lives in Westminster, Calif.

Dana Loeb Winner In State House Contest

Dana Loeb of Quincy, a student at Merrymount School, is among 100 winners of a State House contest conducted by State Secretary Paul Guzzi.

They were among 2,000 entrants in the second annual Children's Guide to the State House competition. The entries in the art or literary categories were submitted by elementary age children throughout the Commonwealth for eventual publication in a children's guide to the capitol building.

The contest, sponsored by the Tours Division of the Secretary of State's Office and the 16-member companies of the Life Insurance Association of Massachusetts was designed to "encourage younger school children to become familiar with the State House and Massachusetts history and then interpret it through art, essay and poetry," Guzzi explained.

The entries, which came from 100 elementary schools in Massachusetts, ranged from a full sized quilt done by an entire class to drawings of the interior and exterior of the State House as well as essays and original stories about government in action.

The winners were presented plaques and citations during an awards ceremony at the State House. Individual first prize winners received $25 savings bonds.

Council Probe Of Appointments To Continue

Thursday's meeting, make recommendations on what he believes to be the proper role of citizen participation in the probe, a suggestion contained in Councillor Daniel G. Raymond's original demand for the investigation.

The probe was begun on Raymond's motion following the resignation of Daniel F. McGinley, who served as superintendent of public burial places for five days until it was disclosed that he was under indictment on two criminal complaints in Suffolk County.

It was expanded to include the appointments of James C. Short as retail store coordinator and Stephen N. F. Anderson as assistant director of city hospital. Both resigned after brief terms in the posts.

The exchange that, in effect, broke up last Thursday night's hearing was between LaRaia and, first, Council President Arthur H. Tobin, and then Councillor Dennis E. Harrington.

After an angry exchange with Harrington, the Mayor called the hearing "an inquisition," set a deadline for further questioning and left with an invitation to councillors to come visit him in his office.

Selected portions of LaRaia's exchange with Tobin went like this:

TOBIN: Could you explain to the Council what background Applicant No. 1 [Short] had that he was slotted into the position of retail stores coordinator? Did he list his background on his resume?

LaRaia: I can't allude to what he indicated on his resume other than to say there was an opening in that position and it was important that we fill those positions in the Hall because of the tremendous demand on the personnel at City Hall.

TOBIN: Who determined that No. 1 had the qualifications to fill that position?

LaRaia: There were no guidelines for that particular position available. Let's say he was slotted on a temporary basis as a result of his background. The person was known in the community. He had worked for the Hannon administration as well as the McIntyre administration in other capacities.

TOBIN: What capacities?

LaRaia: I think it was in the public works laboring capacity. Body work.

TOBIN: He was a body worker in the former administration? He went from a body worker to retail store coordinator?

LaRaia: Again, this position was filled on a provisional basis whereby when the guidelines for the position came down and this particular person did not fit that position he was dismissed. He served two weeks on the job.

TOBIN: At any time did you have a conversation with any law enforcement official either on the local or county or state level relative to the background of gentleman No. 1?

LaRaia: The city solicitor, I think, has the answers to those questions. There was nothing, to my knowledge, against that individual.

TOBIN: When did it become known to you that gentleman No. 1 did not have the qualifications?

LaRaia: I think it was two weeks after he had served in that capacity.

TOBIN: Was it during or before or after it became known that law enforcement officials were investigating him?

LaRaia: I don't know anything about that. He served two weeks here and he left on the condition that since he did not have the qualifications federal funding would be jeopardized and he agreed to leave.

TOBIN: Was there any background done by your administrative aide doing the screening on gentleman No. 2 [Anderson]?

LaRaia: I'm sure it was adequately done.

TOBIN: No information that has come to the attention of the Council which I have in my possession this evening, none of this ever came to your attention?

LaRaia: There was nothing wrong with this man's background. We consulted the hospital that he worked with; the former mayor of that community, who is now a congressman didn't know of any problems other than what is typical of the problems that we have at our own Quincy Hospital. I'm not going to accept newspaper accounts of personality battles.

The Mayor said Anderson resigned as assistant director after the Hospital Board of Managers refused to pay him for the six weeks in which he worked.

Tobin continued to press the Mayor on the screening process used to select appointees, particularly the questions asked on their backgrounds.

LaRaia: I don't think it's important whether they were asked or not because the normal procedures were followed. They have to sign applications. We talk personally with the individuals. If a person has left something out of an application or has not admitted a particular situation in his background then it's up to us through normal channels, in time, if we come across this particular information, to make a decision. I took the initiative. I made a decision. In every particular instance here we're discussing people who have left the city service after I took the action.

Harrington also zeroed in on the appointment of Short, who was later convicted of larceny and attempted larceny in connection with his city job but after his resignation.

HARRINGTON: There was no screening procedure on Jan. 5 when you took office and Mr. Short was appointed retail stores coordinator. That's a fact, isn't it, Mr. Mayor?

LaRaia: When he came aboard there were no guidelines for the position therefore his qualifications for the job could not be determined. He was put on in a provisional basis. There was no particular screening on this position other than he worked for two prior administrations and he was known and recommended by people from all walks of life. I see nothing wrong with putting someone to work if they can serve in a useful capacity.

HARRINGTON: You say that you took the initiative to get rid of Mr. Short. Isn't it true, that Mr. Short was being investigated by the Police Department when he was in the employ of the city?

LaRaia: Not to my knowledge.

HARRINGTON: Not to your personal knowledge.

LaRaia: It is very possible a lot of things are being investigated that are not visible.

HARRINGTON: Mr. Mayor, you stated there were no violations of the public trust. In your own testimony before this committee here tonight you said that this particular gentleman had one major assignment and as a result of his activities in that assignment he was convicted in Quincy District Court... I would suggest that that is a violation of the public trust and I would suggest it's obvious that a person who was not screened should not have been employed. I asked you before the man was convicted just to admit it was a mistake to appoint him. It's never been admitted. Now that he has been convicted....

LaRaia: The councillor is entitled to his assumption. The fact is the man, while he served with the city, did not violate any public trust and he did leave for the particular reasons stated. I feel that we have nothing to gain by further discussing at length and in great detail what I feel has turned into an inquisition. Some of these questions legitimately you have a right to ask....

SHEETS: The Mayor has agreed to appear here this evening voluntarily and the last thing the chair is going to do is allow this meeting to degenerate to the point where one is calling it an inquisition and the others say we have to somehow object to the fact that he called it an inquisition. We're all adults. I can see no reason why we can't ask questions and get answers without having to go into the kind of exchange we just had.

LaRaia: Mr. Chairman, may I state that I will be leaving here at exactly 7:30. I've been here for quite a long time. I think I've answered as much as I can. I'll be free to answer these questions in my office. I think I've exceeded my responsibility as chief executive officer.

The Mayor exceeded his own time limit before the committee too. He remained until 7:43.

20 Percent Turnout Seen

Burke, Brett Challenges Local Primary Highlights Tuesday

Youth pitted against two veteran office holders - in Washington and Quincy - will highlight Tuesday's (Sept. 14) primary election here.

Congressman James A. Burke of Milton and Rep. Joseph E. Brett are facing enthusiastic, perhaps even stiff, opposition for renomination in Tuesday's (Sept. 14) primary election.

But despite the interest aroused by the challenges to Burke and Brett, a low turnout of voters is expected in Quincy, perhaps as low as 20 per cent of the 48,516 registered voters in the estimation of City Clerk John Gillis.

Burke, a 66-year-old veteran who is seeking a 10th term in Congress, is confronted by Patrick Henry McCarthy, a 30-year-old lawyer from Randolph, who has run the most zealous campaign Burke has faced since his first run in 1958.

McCarthy has attacked the Burke voting record in Washington, claiming that the Congressman has cast votes that have helped raise the cost of living in eastern Massachusetts to the highest level in the United States.

Burke has responded that his seniority on Capitol Hill would enable him to do more for Massachusetts than a first term Congressman McCarthy, whom he calls a California unfamiliar with the district.

The 11th Congressional District is comprised of Abington, Avon, Braintree, Brockton, Holbrook, Milton, Quincy, Randolph, Stoughton, Whitman as well as Wards 15, 16, 17 and 18 in Boston's Dorchester and Hyde Park sections.

School Bells Ring For Over 15,000

More than 15,000 Quincy public school students - first grade through high school - return to classes this week.

Official enrollment figures will not be known until Oct. 1, but it is believed enrollment in all grades will show a slight dip from the 15,426 counted a year ago.

School officials, however, expect an overall gain of approximately 1,500 in the entire public school system, including Quincy Junior College and the Adult Evening Program.

Students in the elementary and junior high schools plus those in high school grades 9 and 10 were back in school yesterday [Wednesday] while those in high school grades 11 and 12 return today [Thursday].

Quincy Vo Tech post graduate students will report

Monday [Sept. 13] and opening day for the kindergartens is Sept. 16.

Classes for both the day and evening divisions at Quincy Junior College start Monday.

Regular school hours are: Elementary schools - 8:35 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

Junior High schools - 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

High schools - 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

South Quincy MBTA Task Force Meets

A 16-member task force named by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia to advise the MBTA on the South Quincy station was scheduled to hold its first meeting last night [Wednesday] at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

Appointment of such a task force was requested by MBTA Chairman Robert R. Kiley to give local input into the plans to build the controversial station with its accompanying Town Brook flood control project and Upland Rd. Extension.

Named by Mayor LaRaia to represent the interests of South Quincy residents were Pasquale DiStefano, Albert Conti, Ernest Aristide, Maria Coffin, Laurence Curtin, Walter Nisula and Jenny Beatrice.

Representatives of the Quincy business community are Charles Pearce, Martha Reardon and Frank Remick, all members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; and Andrew Walsh, chairman of the Quincy Business Council.

The South Quincy business community will be represented by John Blake and Paul Kennedy and the City Planning Department by Director Norman Lundin.

Janet Poole and Janice O'Brien of the Quincy League of Women Voters will also be members of the task force.

Quincy officials who will sit as advisory members of the task force are Alfred Colella and Paul Anderson of the Downtown Development Office, Public Works Commissioner Vincent LoCicero, Edward Leone of the Engineering Department, Clara Yeomans of the Conservation Commission, Capt. Roy Cavicchi of the Police Traffic Division and Atty. Peter MacDonald.

Also Reprs. Joseph Brett [D-Quincy] and Robert Cerasoli [D-Quincy] and City Councilors James A. Sheets, Daniel G. Raymond and Leo J. Kelly.

Despite Probe Results

Sheets Charges Boston Garbage Dumped Here

By TOM HENSHAW

"I believe," said City Councillor James A. Sheets, "that Boston garbage has been dumped in West Quincy for years.

"If anyone doubts it, let them talk to people who live around the dump and watch the trucks come off the Expressway from Boston."

Sheets, whose Ward 4 includes the dump, made his comments in the wake of a police investigation into illegal dumping and other irregularities in the operation of the facility.

The two-month probe, initiated by Sheets, was completed last week but the final report was not made public as of Tuesday. However, it was believed to contain no criminal charges.

Sheets said: "It is my belief the report will indicate that Boston garbage has been dumped here illegally."

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia said changes already are being made in procedures at the dump, not necessarily because of the investigation.

"We are in the process of instituting strict controls," he told The Sun.

"I am in full agreement that we should make changes as soon as possible to realize as much financial return as possible to the city of Quincy."

"I have offered Councillor Sheets and Commissioner Vincent LoCicero any help we can give to tighten up accountability in operation of the dump."

"The current practices have been carried on up there routinely for the past four years so it will take time to make the changes."

Indications are that a number of firms, some of them from Boston, have been dumping rubbish in the Quincy facility while listing it as "fill" on the manifest.

There is a fee for dumping rubbish while fill is accepted without payment.

The investigation was begun June 7 by Quincy detectives and their findings were reviewed by Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt, who said there was "no evidence of criminal wrong doing."

Sheets, who has been the watchdog of the dump since he was elected to the City Council in 1973, said he would have no further comment on the situation until he read the police report.

The councillor brought suit against the administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon two years ago to prevent the city from combining garbage and trash in the pickups for the dump.

The suit was lost but it resulted in better covering for the facility.

"We have had no citations from the State Department of Public Health since then," said Sheets.

Quincy Sun 8 Years Old

The Quincy Sun is eight years old with today's issue and will begin its ninth year as "Quincy's Own Weekly Newspaper" next week.

It has been a year of more growth and expansion.

The Quincy Sun was established in September, 1968 as a community oriented newspaper concentrating on Quincy news and Quincy people.

We have expanded our news coverage considerably in the past eight years, and will continue to do so. Today there is more Quincy news, sports, photos and features in The Sun than any other newspaper.

And that's a fact.

In the coming year there will be more.

The Sun has grown not only in news coverage but in circulation and advertising content - especially this past year.

And The Sun has greatly expanded its commercial printing division, producing high school, college, and other newspapers, newsletters, brochures, flyers, ad-books, stationery envelopes, etc.

We recently set up a new camera department and this month will be installing new photo typesetting equipment to augment our present equipment.

The new equipment will enable us to mechanically produce a better newspaper and to further expand our commercial printing division. The Sun is a paid circulation newspaper published by The Quincy Sun Publishing Company, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

As we begin our ninth year we want to again sincerely thank you - our readers, and advertisers - for your support and encouragement these past eight years, and special thanks to our growing army of faithful newscarrers. You are all as much a part of The Sun as we, the staff.

Thank you, most sincerely,

Chamber Urges Industries Be Active In MDC Sewage Treatment Discussions

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce urges industries in the Metropolitan District Commission region to take an active part in discussions of the roles and regulations that will govern future use and costs of the agency's sewage treatment facilities.

Jack Conway, Chamber president, called for such participation after a recent meeting, during which industrial environmental experts explained the problems that might arise and suggested plans for possible solutions.

"Because the MDC already is studying proposals for sewer use ordinances and rate schedules," Conway said, "it was agreed to seek out representatives from affected industries who would meet with MDC officials for discussions of their concerns."

Speakers on the panel, sponsored by the Chamber, were Jerry McDermott and Kevin Hopper, environmental engineers for Procter & Gamble's Cincinnati plant and Kenneth Watson, manager of environmental control, Kraft/Sealtect, Chicago.

McDermott said "industry does not want a free ride." But, he emphasized that representatives of commercial interests should work for systems that will be fair to householders, business establishments and industries alike.

"They should make sure that they pay only their fair share of the use and administrations costs," he said.

Watson said that without participation by industry, the MDC ordinances may not reflect "an equitable treatment of the business sector."

Among other things, he said, there should be no costly duplication of community sewage treatment facilities. There are some industries that will contribute only compatible wastes, biodegradable substances much like those discharged by households.

"At the same time," he said,

"we recognize that some plants will produce non-biodegradable wastes that must be put through a pretreatment process before being discharged into the sewage system."

"The soundest approach is for fewer treatment plants, with those facilities being managed by professionals."

Attending the special meeting were: Joseph Holland of General Dynamics; William Blakemore, Holbrook Sewerage; William Bowes and Kenneth Thode, Procter & Gamble, Quincy; Elmer E. Brittle, Sealtest Foods; Lee H. England, H. P. Hood; Robert White, Hendrie's; Roger R. Earle, Armstrong Cork; Garry DeMartino of the Greater Lawrence Chamber of Commerce and Joseph S. Fitzpatrick, Greater Boston Chamber.

QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS NOTICE

The Quincy Public Schools today announced a free milk and free meal and reduced price meal policy for school children unable to pay the full price of milk and meals served in schools under the National School Lunch, School Breakfast Program and Special Milk Program. Local school officials have adopted the following family size-income criteria for use in determining eligibility.

INCOME ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA FAMILY SIZE AND GROSS INCOME SCALES

Family Size [All members of Household]	Maximum Gross Income For Free Milk and Free Meals	Maximum Gross Income For Reduced Price Meals
One	$0 to $ 3,680	$ 3,681 to $ 5,730
Two	0 to 4,830	4,831 to 7,530
Three	0 to 5,980	5,981 to 9,320
Four	0 to 7,130	7,131 to 11,110
Five	0 to 8,190	8,191 to 12,770
Six	0 to 9,240	9,241 to 14,410
Seven	0 to 10,200	10,201 to 15,910
Eight	0 to 11,150	11,151 to 17,390
Nine	0 to 12,010	12,011 to 18,740
Ten	0 to 12,870	12,871 to 20,090
Eleven	0 to 13,730	13,731 to 21,430
Twelve	0 to 14,590	14,591 to 22,770
Each Additional Family Member	860	1,340

Children from families whose income is at or below those shown are eligible for milk and meals free or at reduced prices. In addition, families not meeting this criteria but with other special hardship conditions due to unusually high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 percent of income, special education expenses due to the mental or physical condition of a child, and disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply. Further, children having parents or guardians who become unemployed are eligible for free or reduced price meals or for free milk during the period of unemployment, provided that the loss of income causes the family income during the period of unemployment to be within the eligibility criteria. Should your income or family size change, contact the approving official.

School officials may for cause verify the information on the application, and that deliberate misrepresentation of the information may subject the applicant to prosecution under applicable State and Federal criminal statutes.

Parents should clearly understand that every meal served in schools is subsidized to a greater or lesser degree by State-Federal reimbursements. Those lunches served at full price are subsidized as well as those served free or reduced. Therefore, there should be no reluctance to apply for either a free or reduced price meal. If your family size, and gross income is within the "Income Eligibility Criteria" for free or reduced price meals, we urge you and all eligible parents to fill out the application. The intent of these programs is to improve the nutrition of all children.

They may do so by filling in the application forms sent home with a letter to parents. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. In certain cases foster children are eligible for free milk and free meals or reduced price meals regardless of your family income. If you have such children living with you and wish to apply for such milks and meals for them, please file a separate application for each child, and indicate amount of State support only as income.

Under the provision of the policy the Principal in each school will review all applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the official, he may wish to discuss the decision with the approving official on an informal basis or make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision to Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Superintendent, Quincy Public Schools, Quincy, MA 021-0100.

Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy and a complete copy of the policy is on file in the office of the superintendent of schools where it may be reviewed by any interested party.

The policy also provides that there will be no overt identification and/or discrimination against any child because of his race, sex, color, national origin, in the operation of the child feeding programs.

Application forms for the Free or Reduced Price Meals have been sent home to all the parents of children in the city or they may be obtained from the following agencies:

McCauley Urges Mayor To Back Tightening Food Service Rules

School Committeeman Francis X. McCauley has urged Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia to support two school committee rules additions proposed by him to tighten up the operation of the Food Support Services Center at the Lincoln Hancock School.

In a letter to the Mayor, McCauley pointed out that over $9,000 was spent during the last school year on full course breakfasts and lunches for school department administrators and coordinators, most of whom are in the $25,000 - $43,544 salary bracket.

McCauley expressed dismay over the mayor's support of an amendment sponsored by School Committeeman Charles T. Sweeney to authorize School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon to continue the breakfast and luncheon practice.

In his letter to the mayor, McCauley wrote, "earlier this year, you were rightly critical of increased school department costs. I hope that your support of the Sweeney amendment does not indicate a change of position concerning the need for strict controls over school department spending."

The rules additions were to be acted on at Wednesday night's School Committee meeting.

New City Hall, PW Facility, Parks Head U.S. Funding Requests

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia says the list of public works projects to be proposed for federal funding will be headed by a new City Hall complex, the central maintenance facility and improvements to parks and recreation areas.

Timetable for the proposals to be made to Washington is currently being drawn up by Planning Director L. Norman Lundin.

"The criteria that will be given priority," said LaRaia, "are the length of time needed to finish the project, the number of people to be employed and the direct effect it has on the local economy."

North Quincy Firm Wins $578,435 Contract

The Quincy Corp. of North Quincy has been awarded a $578,435 contract for structural and drainage repairs to the Longfellow Bridge and its Cambridge and Boston approaches on the MBTA's Red Line. Quincy's was the lowest of four bids.

Raymondi Critical Of Zoning Board Permit

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has expressed disappointment over the Zoning Board of Appeals change of heart in allowing a special permit to construct a building at 22-26 Mechanic St., Quincy Center.

In a letter to Board Chairman John J. McKenna, he noted that the Board denied the permit

May 13 on grounds it would be detrimental to the public good and would nullify the intent of the zoning ordinance.

"Within a matter of a few weeks," Raymondi wrote, "the petitioners were back before the Board for a new hearing on substantially the same facts."

"Now the Board finds that this property is not subject to flooding nor detrimental to the public health, safety and welfare and a special permit is granted."

"It would not only appear that the decisions are contradictory but that the final decision of the Board appears also to be in conflict with the facts that were presented at the public hearings."

Raymondi said residents in the area are concerned about the effects the new construction would have on the flooding problem along Town Brook.

Sheets Charges Boston Garbage Dumped Here

urging, recently boosted the fine for illegal dumping to $200 per violation for outsiders using the dump.

The most recent investigation, said Sheets, "is part of the ongoing effort to make sure the dump is operating properly."

"During our efforts," he added, "we have had complete cooperation from Commissioner LoCicero in providing each and every record that we have requested."

"Once I read the report and evaluate it there is no question in my mind that there will be positive and constructive changes made in the procedures for operation of the facility."

Mayor LaRaia was irritated over the fact that most of the investigation was conducted by Police Chief Francis X. Finn without his knowledge.

"I was aware since Commissioner LoCicero came aboard in February of the need for a review of procedures in dump operations," he said.

"But the police investigation was not known to me at the outset, not until two or three weeks later."

"I feel strongly that when a department head is being questioned on an investigation of this nature any chief executive should be apprised of the cost and purpose of it."

"When I found out about the investigation, I told the Chief to complete it."

"He got my endorsement to finish it but I told him at the time he owed me the respect of my office to inform me."

Mayor LaRaia said he directed Chief Finn to inform him of any investigation of a city employee made in the future.

Quincy Junior College Offering Courses For Women

Quincy Junior College this fall is offering some courses of particular interest to women.

Survey of Women Writers/Women in Literature is being offered as both a credit and non-credit course. The course will encourage reading and discussion of the female experience as it is reflected in literature. Among the topics the class may cover could include growing up and growing old, female, motherhood, creativity, passivity, marriage and madness.

Two non-credit courses designed for women are Body and Mind Awareness for Women and Assertiveness Training. The first course emphasizes personal growth through breaking the patterns of mind/body tightness. Assertiveness Training will help women become aware of their needs and how to achieve these.

For more information about these and other Quincy Junior College courses, call 471-2470 for an evening brochure.

Women's Political Caucus Plans Backyard Bazaar Sept. 18

The South Shore Women's Political Caucus will hold a Backyard Bazaar Saturday, Sept. 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the home of Gloria Noble, 14 Myopia St., Wollaston.

There will be tables for sports equipment, clothing, books, records, glassware, furniture and knick knacks. Anyone who wishes to contribute items should call her at 472-5613 or Norma Gacia at 479-3498 to arrange for a pick-up of the items on Saturday Sept. 11.

Additional tables will be arranged for plants, baked goods and crafts. Caucus members will staff the tables throughout the day. One area will be set aside for pamphlets and other materials concerning the Equal Rights Amendment. The South Shore Women's Political Caucus supports the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment which is Question 1 on the November ballot.

The Caucus is a branch of the Massachusetts and National Women's Political Caucus and is dedicated to the increased participation of women in politics. The South Shore chapter meets monthly at the Hollow Restaurant in Quincy and will hold its first meeting of the year there Monday, Sept. 27. Jane Ford chairwoman and Carol Mahoney, co-chairwoman extend an invitation to all women on the South Shore to attend the opening meeting and the bazaar.

YMCA Women's Fitness Salon Dedicated In Memory Of 4 Women

The Board of Directors of the Quincy YMCA, special guests, and members participated Wednesday in ceremonies dedicating the Women's Fitness Salon honoring Dr. Emma S. Tousant, Mabel L. Swensen, Mabel M. Winsloe and Kathryn L. McDougall.

Peter G. Ruscitto, President of the Quincy YMCA, presided at the dedication. The invocation was given by Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El, Quincy. Ruscitto, in his welcoming remarks, said he was pleased to be a part of the first expansion program since the YMCA was built 21 years ago. Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia brought the greetings of the City of Quincy and expressed his support of the YMCA and the programs that are offered to the South Shore communities.

W. Gordon Clark, chairman of the House and Grounds Committee, thanked the Committee and staff for the "fine cooperation" received in the construction of the addition. He particularly praised Arthur Pinel who volunteered countless hours assisting with the new construction.

Executive Director, George H. Ramsden Jr., said:

"The Quincy YMCA has led the way in family-type programming and just as Dr. Emma S. Tousant was the first woman to become a President of the YMCA, we are now the first YMCA to have such a modern and up-to-date women's health salon dedicated to the service of its female members.

Ramsden thanked Pinel, a member of the Board, for his assistance during the construction of the wing and Donald Brownell, Associate Executive Director, "for his many hours of dedication and concern."

EMMA S. TOUSANT

Mrs. Robert L. Blair, chairman of the Women's Committee, dedicated the new Women's Health Salon to the memory of Dr. Tousant, a former board member who, she said, "was always a staunch supporter and whose influence and ideals to the ideals of the YMCA will be felt for many years to come."

The first floor locker room area was dedicated to Mabel L. Swensen, who served on the Board of Directors from 1955-1969 and "who was a loyal and dedicated worker for the Quincy 'Y' for 23 years." Mrs. Blair noted she was instrumental in raising $45,000 for the auditorium at the building at 79 Coddington St. She was also Chairman of the Women and Girl's Committee and served with distinction.

The second floor exercise area was dedicated to Mabel M. Winsloe who although never an active member of the association was cited for making "a very generous contribution to the women and girl's program by the establishment of the Winsloe Trust." Her interest in the Quincy YMCA was influenced by Dr. Tousant.

The Women's Health Club area was dedicated to Kathryn L. McDougall, who from her early youth actively participated in YMCA programs. She was the daughter of Floyd Folmsbee, General Secretary of the Quincy YMCA, when it was located on Washington St. and during the time of the building of the "Y" on Coddington St. She began her full-time work for the association in 1951 and was serving as Administrative Assistant at the time of her death in 1975.

Ruscitto, expressed his appreciation to the many persons that have contributed time and money to assure the completion of the Quincy YMCA Figure Salon.

He particularly praised the trustees of the King Family Fund, Winsloe Trust, Permanent Charity Fund, Godfrey M. Hyams Trust and the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Benediction was given by Rabbi David Jacobs. Following the dedication ceremonies, refreshments were served by the Women's Committee. In charge of refreshments was Mary Tull assisted by Trudy Conboy.

The Women's Fitness Salon features one of the most modern and up-to-date health spas in the area. The facility includes a Finnish dry heat sauna, sunken whirlpool bath, large exercise area and extensive body toning and exercise equipment. Programs that will be offered to service Salon members are mini-courses in yoga and slimnastics, as well as individualized figure and exercise consultation. All the regular "Y" programs are also open to Salon members.

The public is invited to the Open House now through Sept. 17. Guest passes for the use of the facilities are available.

'Child Abuse' Topic For S.S. West Children's Council

"Child Abuse and Neglect" is the subject of the first meeting of the fall season of the South Shore West Council for Children to be held Tuesday (Sept. 14) at 7:30 a.m. at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

Following the program, which will include a film and a panel of speakers, there will be a council meeting to discuss the direction and focus of the council for the coming year.

The council is a citizens' association which reviews children's services and programs in Quincy, Milton and Randolph, assessing the needs of the children and making recommendations for funding of programs.

It sponsors an information and referral service available to any parent, child or professional worker seeking information on problem solving assistance in the area of children's services.

YOUNG ACCIDENT-PRONES

If you are a young man between the ages of 15 and 34, watch your step.

According to the Institute of Life Insurance, accidents - not disease - are by far the leading cause of death in the above age group. For example, at ages 15-19, the loss of life from accidents is 12 times that from cancer and 40 times that from heart disease. Between 20 and 24, accidents cause 10 times as many deaths as cancer, and 25 times as many as heart disease.

Not until ages 35-44 does the relative importance of accidents as cause of death diminish, and this is more a reflection of the rise in cardiovascular disease and cancer than of any reduction in the number of accidents.

So if you want to stick around long enough to find out what middle age - and old age, for that matter - is like, take care.

Quincy Diet Workshop Free Open House Week Of Sept. 13

The Quincy Diet Workshop will hold a free Open House during the week of Sept. 13. Locations are:

Temple Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., Monday 5:30 and 7:30 p.m. and on Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

Atlantic Memorial Church, 136 Sagamore St., Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Wednesday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The Diet Workshop will present to the public its four-way approach to dieting.

The four-way approach: "Feel Good" diet, exercise, nutrition and behavior modification.

"Recent government studies have shown that most Americans are eating too many 'junk' foods and 'empty calories', and as a result, their health is suffering," a Diet Workshop spokesman said. "The Diet Workshop, recognizing this problem, for years has been giving its members a knowledge of basic nutrition along with instruction in exercise, behavior modification techniques and balanced diet. This Open House will give the public an opportunity to hear in detail more about this program which has helped thousands to lose weight, learn new eating habits and 'feel good!'"

Featured speaker on Tuesday morning at Temple Adas Shalom and Wednesday morning at the YMCA will be a Wollaston woman, Shirley Haynes, who lost 140 pounds. She will tell how she overcame a lifelong struggle with a weight problem.

Men, women and teenagers will be welcome to join at the conclusion of the Open House and at future meetings.

FEATURED SPEAKER at the free Diet Workshop Open House Tuesday, Sept. 14, at 9:30 a.m. at Temple Adas Shalom, Adams St., Quincy, and Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 9:30 a.m. at the Quincy YMCA, Coddington St., will be Shirley Haynes, of Wollaston, who lost 140 pounds. She will tell how she overcame a lifelong struggle with a weight problem. The public is invited.

6 Quincy Women On Lesley College Dean's List

Six Quincy women were named to the dean's list at Lesley College, Cambridge for the spring semester, 1975-76, the college recently announced. They are:

Barbara Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David S. Walker; Cynthia Newton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newton; Joanne Knass, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. Benedict A. Knass; Eulalia Rodrigues, daughter of Cesar O. Rodrigues Jr.; Cheryl

Robertson, daughter of Margery Robertson and Amy Pearlstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Pearlstein.

Registration Underway For City Women's Fitness Program

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board announces that registration is now underway at the Recreation Office in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., for the fall session of the Women's Body Fitness program.

The Women's Fitness program is instructed by Mrs. Anita Argyropoulos and consists of a 10-week program of fitness. Mrs. Argyropoulos utilizes the concepts of Isometrics, Isotonics, Yoga Theory, Modern Dance and Ballet while instructing the group.

There will be two programs which will begin Sept. 15, and continue on Wednesdays and Fridays for a period of 10 weeks. One program will be from 10-11 a.m. and another from 11-12 a.m. at the Fore River Club House.

There is a fee for the program, and a limited number of registrants will be accepted. Therefore, registration will be on a first come, first serve basis.

Weight Watchers Offers More Help For Problem Eaters

Six new "eating management techniques" are being added to Weight Watchers' "Personal Action Plan", a behavior modification program that was introduced in the fall of 1975.

According to Elaine Robin, area director in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, the new techniques will be offered in local classes beginning the week of Sept. 13.

The Personal Action Plan consists of a series of printed guides, called "modules", that help the overweight person face and overcome various crises and obstacles in weight reduction. The plan stresses individual behavior patterns within the framework of the weekly Weight Watchers meeting and provides members with a take-home guide to follow each week.

Titles of the new modules are: How to Evaluate Your Own Success; How to Schedule Your Eating Urges; How to Manage Cooking and Cleaning Up; How to Meet Some Special Challenges; How to Change Some Important Ideas About Yourself; and How to Use the Principles of Rest, Relaxation, and Resistance to Manage Eating Binges. The initial set of modules, which addressed such problems as eating out, shopping wisely, and getting help from loved ones, is now in use in Weight Watchers classes throughout the United States and Canada and will continue to be part of the Personal Action Plan.

ELAINE ROBIN, Area Director of Weight Watchers, displays the six new "modules" that will be offered in local classes beginning the week of Sept. 13. The modules are part of Weight Watchers' Personal Action Plan, a behavior modification program designed to help the overweight overcome obstacles to weight reduction and develop new eating patterns.

"In order to change eating patterns," Mrs. Robin said, "a person must fully understand his own eating habits, and the modules help him to do this. For example, in 'How to Schedule Your Eating Urges', the module points out that, contrary to popular belief, people don't usually eat automatically. There is a series of steps which lead from thoughts about food to bites and swallows. Therefore, we ask members to record their eating times on a chart provided in the module. By studying their chart, members can begin to change their eating patterns to conform to a schedule they choose.

"The module outlines four steps that will put eating urges on schedule: 1. Choose convenient times to eat each day of the week; 2. resolve to eat at the times you have chosen and only at those times; 3. plan your betweenmeal eating as carefully as you plan your meals; and 4. keep a careful record of when you eat."

All the modules were developed and tested by Dr. Richard B. Stuart, Director of Motivational Research and Development for Weight Watchers International, Inc., and the author of six books, including Slim Chance In A Fat World, and numerous articles on behavior modification.

North Quincy Catholic Women Open With Mass, Dinner

Mrs. James Pinkham, Program Chairman, and Mrs. Thomas Condon, President of the Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy, announce the program schedule for the 1976-77 season.

Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Cornelius Heery tonight [Thursday] at 6:30 p.m. in the Sacred Heart Chapel, followed by a catered dinner, under the direction of Mrs. James Pinkham and Mrs. Richard Stevens. Musical entertainment will be by the "Sweet Adelines".

On Oct. 14 a Special Christmas Bazaar Workshop for the Sacred Heart School Fund Drawing and Christmas Bazaar will be held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bernard J. Doherty and Mrs. William Moore. Members and their guests will be shown how to make the many items which are to be sold at the Christmas Bazaar Nov. 5-6.

At 7 p.m. on Nov. 11, a Mass in memory of deceased members will be offered in Sacred Heart Chapel. Mrs. Edward DiRamio will present "A Night at the Movies" following the business meeting.

The Christmas Party Dec. 9 will feature the "Clancys". Mrs. Lois Wilkinson and Mrs. Walter Berlo will serve as chairman.

A "Whist Party" is planned for Jan. 13, 1977. Mrs. John Nestor and Mrs. Thomas Picard will serve as chairmen for the first meeting of the new year.

Mrs. Henry Leschmier and Mrs. Daniel Flynn will hold a "Wine, Cheese, and Music Party" Feb. 10. Miss Marilyn LeBlanc will provide the musical entertainment.

On March 10 an Irish Night with a catered corned-beef and cabbage dinner will be served. Mrs. Donald Rogers will be chairman of the evening. Entertainment will follow the business meeting.

A "Garden Party" sponsored by a market will be held April 14 under the chairmanship of Miss Dorothy Gilbride and Mrs. John Cunningham.

A "Reception to New Members" will be held on May 12 with Mrs. William Moore, membership chairman, honoring all new members. Mrs. Stephen Yovino will then present "A Nostalgia Night of Music".

On June 9 there will be a mass celebrated in the Sacred Heart Church followed by a catered dinner under the direction of Mrs. Barbara Carl.

Save Gas and Money ...

The Dump Probe And The Rift

A police investigation into alleged irregularities in the operation of the city dump and illegal dumping has apparently produced no evidence of a criminal wrongdoing.

This, despite the fact, that the sanitary landfill facility reportedly is filling much faster than projected estimates. Some will continue to insist, however, that trucks collecting rubbish from outside the city are managing somehow to "sneak" their loads into the Quincy facility in violation of a city ordinance. And, have been doing it for sometime, they contend.

But Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt indicates he is satisfied the two-month investigation was complete and finds "absolutely no evidence of criminal wrongdoing."

And that would seem to end it.

But does it?

There is a sidelight to this investigation that points up once again, the rift between Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Police Chief Francis Finn.

The Mayor says that Chief Finn launched the probe in June at the request of Councillor James Sheets—without Mr. LaRaia's knowledge. It was sometime later, he said, that he learned the investigation was underway. He said he confronted Chief Finn who confirmed the investigation was being conducted.

The Mayor says he does not blame Councillor Sheets for seeking the probe but is irked that Chief Finn did not let him know he was carrying it out.

"A department head [Finn] is responsible to me," he declared.

The Mayor has ordered the police chief to notify him of any future investigations involving city departments or city employees.

And, it was also discovered that the Mayor has ordered Chief Finn to wear his uniform while on duty. For years, Quincy's police chiefs and others elsewhere have worked in street clothes.

The Mayor and the police chief have been feuding ever since the Mayor assigned a police lieutenant to serve as his liaison over both the chief and captains.

Frankly, we think this is all getting to be quite ridiculous.

Out of courtesy, the Mayor should have been informed of the dump investigation in advance. By not informing the mayor it almost seems like the investigators expected to find wrong-doing in the mayor's administration in connection with the operation of the dump. And did not want to "tip" their hand.

But it is hard to believe that an investigation such as this could be carried out in complete secrecy. The Mayor indicates it was weeks before he found out about it. His pipelines must be plugged. Reports of the investigation had been circulating on the street for some time.

The police chief, we feel, erred in not informing the Mayor of the probe. It smacks of disrespect for the office.

The Mayor, we feel, is wrong in ordering the police chief to wear his uniform. It smacks of childishness.

The unfortunate part of it all is that the taxpayers who dig into their pockets to pay the salaries of city officials and employees, get shortchanged when the chief executive and a department head do not get along. It quite possibly affects their respective performance.

Even if they have a strong dislike for one another, they owe it to the resident and taxpayer of Quincy, to make a little sacrifice to cooperate in the best interests of the city.

The city has enough problems without creating more, with a personal feud. Personal feelings should not get in the way of performance of duty—especially when a near 90,000 other people are affected.

Public Invited To Ruth Gordon Center Meeting

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has invited persons interested in the proposed Ruth Gordon Cultural Center for the Arts and Humanities to a "think tank" meeting at City Hall next Thursday [Sept. 16] at 7:30 p.m.

Ideas for the project are being solicited from individuals and organizations throughout the city. Anyone interested in the meeting should get in touch with A. Fred Lane, executive director, at Quincy Heritage, 472-1776.

The Mayor will announce within a week the names of the people to be involved in the planned Ruth Gordon Weekend [Oct. 30-31], when the Quincy-born actress will be honored on her 80th birthday.

At the same time, members of the proposed South Shore Cultural Commission, who will plan the regional cultural center dedicated to Miss Gordon, also will be announced.

Bloodmobile Saturday For Joseph Collins

A bloodmobile will be at the Quincy Vo Tech School gym Saturday [Sept. 11] from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. to accept donations for Joseph Collins, director of the Quincy Detox Center, who is a patient at the Sidney Farber Cancer Center in Boston.

Appointments can be made by calling 472-2700.

"Joe's illness requires treatments that include blood transfusions," said Richard Murphy of the Detox Center. "He would like to be able to replace the blood he uses so it will be available to others."

Collins, 44, who lives at 109 Oxbenbridge Rd., Wollaston, is a co-founder of the South Shore Halfway House. A graduate of North Quincy High School where he was active in sports, he is a member of the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

How Long Can Court Keep

Traffic Records?

"How long can a court keep records on a minor traffic violation?" a caller recently asked the Voter Information Phone.

The ViPhone volunteer answered. Indefinitely, there is no time limitation. However, the court record can be sealed at the request of the individual. Application for forms is made to the Commissioner of Probation in the area of the court with which the individual is dealing. Taken into consideration before the decision is made to seal the records are the following: the length of time that has expired, the nature of the violation, and the absence of any other violation during the interval.

This question is one of many now being received by the Voter Information Phone, a statewide, free public service of the League of Women Voters Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund. Individuals with questions about government - local, state, or national - may call the ViPhone Monday through Friday, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. the number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

SUNBEAMS Coming: More Women In Politics

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Quincy now has only one elected woman city official and has had very, very few of them down through the years.

But the girls [I'm still prejudiced about calling girls, girls, and men, men, instead of persons] may soon change all that.

Now that they have their liberation movement in high gear, look for them to really make a move along the political front.

Right now, Quincy's only female elected office holder is School Committee woman Patricia Toland who won the seat last year in a spirited race.

There have been three or so other women elected to the school board in past years but considering there are six seats available, that's hardly anything to go out and buy a new dress to celebrate about.

And, since Quincy became a city back in 1888, only one woman has been elected to the City Council. That was the quite distinguished Edna B. Austin who retired [undefeated] in the late 1950's.

I covered many a City Council meeting while she held the office and, in my book, she was one of the finest councillors Quincy has ever had.

You always knew where the lady stood. She didn't straddle issues—she faced them head on. She spoke her mind—whether or not it would cost her votes in the next election. And although she was outnumbered 8-1 by men in the council, she never backed down. And, they respected her.

Personally, I have always hoped to see another woman of her caliber in the City Council. I think Quincy would be a better city for it.

That may come in the near future.

The Massachusetts League of Cities & Towns, for example, notes that more women are running for, and winning elective office.

Some 49 newly elected women selectmen, city councillors and aldermen have taken office in the state in the 1975-76 elections. This ups to 126 the total number of elected women municipal officials.

And, 70 per cent of them, have never before held any elective office.

In Quincy, we are almost certain to see more women as candidates in future municipal elections—probably starting next year.

Women have long played important back-stage roles in political campaigns but are now ready to move to center stage.

Any male who snickers at that, should take a look at Quincy's voter registration figures. Women outnumber men voters. Something like 26,000 to 21,000.

I still don't go for that Ms. stuff, but I'll drink to "Madam Councillor" if another one like Edna Austin comes along.

SOMEONE suggested the other day that the real reason Congressman James Burke started campaigning so late in the primary season was that he hasn't had opposition in so long that it almost slipped his mind.

The veteran Burke hasn't had a Republican opponent since 1966 and, except for a token run by Joseph Tierney of Boston last time out, he has been untested in the Democratic primaries since 1958, the first time he ran.

You're a political old timer if you can name the last Republican to run against Burke in the 11th Congressional District. [It was James L. Hoffer of Quincy].

You're a real old timer if you can name the Democrats who opposed him in the 1958 primary.

[They were Francis H. Foy and David J. Crowley of Quincy, Michael A. DeSimone and Edward J. Dwyer of Boston, Peter Fallon and Hollis M. Mosher of Milton, William A. Connell Jr. of Weymouth and Richard E. McCormack of Braintree.]

And you're a real, real old timer if you remember when James Michael Curley himself represented Quincy in Congress from the old 10th District.

JOHN DENNEEN, who holds the rank of lieutenant and the title of "Mr. Nice Guy" retires from the Quincy Police Department, Sept. 30 closing out a near 41-year career. He'll be 65—but doesn't look it. John who lives on White St., West Quincy, joined the department in December, 1935. [Where did the time go!] He was promoted to sergeant in 1946 and to lieutenant in 1962. For many years he was a detective but retires as commander of the Uniform Branch day shift platoon 1.

LOUISE DUART of Furnace Brook Parkway makes an appearance on ABC's Jimmy Osmond Special Friday at 8 p.m. She's a member of a new rock group, Captain Kool and the Kongs. She plays the part of "Nashville". She'll also be on the Krofft Super Show the next morning and Saturdays after.

Louise graduated from Quincy High School in 1968 where she was "class actress" and "class comedienne".

A COCKTAIL PARTY for Michael Morrissey, seeking the Democratic nomination for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, will be held at the home of his campaign manager, Charles Kane, 50 Warwick St., Friday night. Tickets available by calling 328-7946 or 328-6039.

SMILE DEPT: From the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "It seems that the only person who ever got his work done by Friday was Robinson Crusoe."

QUINCY'S
YESTERDAYS

By TOM HENSHAW

Sept. 9 - 15, 1921 - 55 Years Ago This Week

Tax Rate $36.40
(In 1921, That Is!)

Mayor William A. Bradford announced a $36.40 tax rate for 1921, an increase of $4.20 over that of 1920 and more than double the rate set five years before in 1916.

Bradford, serving his first term as Mayor of Quincy, said the tax boost was due to conditions beyond the control of his administration.

Razing of the Housing Corporation's dormitories on Chubbuck St. and the sale of the Quincy Mansion School to Eastern Nazarene College helped to reduce the tax base, he explained.

SIX VETS REPORT

Only six veterans were among the candidates for the Quincy High School football team reporting to Coach Frank Mitchell at Pfaffman's Oval.

They were Capt. Guild, Listman, Woodworth, Bassett, Neal and Guinan.

Games were scheduled with Marblehead, Newton, Rockland, Waltham, Milton, Plymouth, Natick, Weymouth, Boston Latin, Thayer Academy, Brockton and the Alumni.

ARBuckle PICTURES BANNED

Mayor Bradford issued an order banning the showing in any Quincy Theatre of motion pictures starring the comedian Roscoe [Fatty] Arbuckle.

Arbuckle was under indictment in California for manslaughter in the party death of movie starlet Virginia Rappe.

The manager of the Quincy Theatre cancelled a showing of an Arbuckle picture at the Mayor's request.

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

The Other Side Of The Bottle Battle

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Eric Swider's Aug. 19 column addressing the consequences of an enacted returnable bottle and can law is a collection of distortions, half-truths, and unsupportable assertions. He cites "facts" supplied by industry opponents on litter reduction and employment consequences that contradict the conclusions of every government survey ever published. It is time to set the record straight:

By voting Yes on Question 6 this November, Bay State citizens will enact a Massachusetts Bottle Bill that will re-institute a modernized version of the efficient way we used to purchase beer and soft drinks here in Massachusetts - with a minimum nickel deposit on returnable containers. This law, modeled after the Bottle Bill presently on the books in Vermont and Oregon, will reduce unsightly litter and costly solid waste, conserve precious energy and preserve natural resources; costs also may be reduced since consumers no longer will be forced to purchase expensive, unwanted beverage containers, along with their liquid refreshments.

Industry opponents, particularly container manufacturers who stand to lose profits previously gouged from unprotected consumers and unsuspecting taxpayers, argue that the Bill's environmental benefits are "tough to quantify", and that "unknown numbers of jobs" may be lost should this measure pass. Unfortunately for them, the same facts and authorities which support the merits of the Bottle Bill undermine their unsubstantiated efforts to frighten Massachusetts voters with deceptive advertising schemes financed by immensely rich and powerful corporations from across the country, willing and able to finance their deception with a million dollar bankbook.

Let's look at the facts.

The environmental benefits of the "Bottle Bill" are demonstrated by a brief look at the historical record. FACT - In Oregon and Vermont, the two states that have passed similar laws, the volume of littered beverage containers is down 83% and 76% respectively. And so is the public's tab for litter collection: Vermont's annual state litter bill declined $40,000 upon passage of the legislation. With litter pick-up costing Massachusetts over $3,000,000 per year, the tax saving will be significant.

Solid waste problems in both states, which parallel Massachusetts' overflowing sanitary landfills and rising costs, also were reduced by eliminating most beverage containers from trash; Oregon, for example, virtually has eliminated beverage containers from trash. The energy conservation potential is also substantial, since use of recycled aluminum saves about 95% of the energy cost of initial manufacture; nationally, it is estimated that a bottle bill could save the equivalent of 2-4 million gallons of gasoline a day. With 60 billion throwaways manufactured per year, we could conserve many of the natural resources that are used in steel and aluminum can production.

Industry opponents essentially ignore or otherwise minimize these demonstrated consumer, taxpayer and environmental benefits, and suggest "other approaches", many of which we support, but none of which have the Bottle Bill's proven track record. They prefer to hide their desire for unnecessary profits behind the spectre of lost jobs, an understandable though reprehensible strategy, which acknowledges that few voters would fail to "Vote Yes on Question 6" if the opponents told them honestly, "the real reason why we want you to give up all the benefits of the Bottle Bill is so we can make more money by selling you more cans and bottles." Unfortunately, the few facts they cite, and the others they ignore, just don't support their self-serving claims.

With regard to jobs, for example, the plain fact is that passage of the Massachusetts Bottle Bill will CREATE jobs for Massachusetts, according to the independent and prestigious Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, which this past March reported in its monthly economic journal that between 87 and 1,380 jobs with an increased yearly payroll of between $900,000 and $10,000,000, would be created by passage of a Massachusetts Bottle Bill.

Think of it - in these troubled times, a bill that will boost our economy at the same time that it protects our environment. Moreover, according to the Federal Reserve Bank, these jobs would include a mix of high paying positions for those qualified to handle them, and lower paying entry level positions for the unskilled and the unemployed. Interestingly, while these facts undermine the opponents' major argument, they have not challenged one fact contained in the report since its release this spring.

Without a fact to stand on, Bottle Bill opponents are attempting to appeal to purely emotional arguments, a clever ploy which, fortunately, is doomed to fail. The "convenience of throwaways", they claim, "is one of life's few remaining pleasures", and consumers should not be forced "to forego this pleasure." This argument, of course, is factually erroneous; the Massachusetts Bottle Bill does not prohibit manufacturers from selling throwaway containers, nor consumers from buying them - it simply requires that all beer and soft drink containers have a minimum nickel deposit [in fact, as one critic has noted, it is the present system which coercively forces consumers to purchase and dispose of throwaways, whether they want them or not - when was the last time you saw a returnable in your local market?]

This argument will be rejected by Massachusetts voters for reasons more fundamental than its factual inaccuracy. It must be rejected because the day is long past when any of us can afford the price which industry induced consumption of precious resources creates when there is a simpler, less expensive alternative. We have all heard, perhaps too often, that our nation, with just over 5% of the world's population, consumes more than 40% of its resources. Massachusetts citizens know that "there is no such thing as a free lunch," and we would not pretend for a moment that implementation of the Bottle Bill will solve all of our problems. But as the facts reviewed in this article indicate, it will reduce litter and solid waste, saving dollars for consumers and taxpayers alike...painlessly, by returning us to a tried and true system that worked well in the past everywhere, works well in Oregon and Vermont today, and will work well here in Massachusetts next year.

Which is probably why groups as diverse as the League of Women Voters, Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, Association of Massachusetts Consumers, and the Massachusetts Audubon Society support the bill, and urge you to "VOTE YES ON QUESTION 6".

Aren't There Qualified Quincy Residents For Municipal Jobs?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We have heard lately that there is a growing demand that municipal employees reside where they work.

The City of Quincy hires employees from other localities. The latest is the one from Milton to work at the Quincy Hospital.

Also in the news recently, a man from Needham is being favorably considered as managing director of the same hospital.

Has not our fair city qualified residents for these municipal positions? I wonder if a public announcement of pending hirings might produce more Quincy residents to apply for them!

A 'Thank You' From Recreation Department

Editor, Quincy Sun:

As our summer recreation program comes to a close, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your help in keeping the public informed and up to date about various programs.

Much of the success of our programs can be attributed to the fine coverage you and the Quincy Sun has given us.

Recreation programs in the City of Quincy are many and varied. It is our hope to reach as many people as possible. Through your assistance you have made this a realization!

Tips On Submitting News Items

Here are a few tips to readers and publicity chairmen who submit social, church, fraternal and veterans organizational news items to The Quincy Sun for publication.

Deadline for all such items is Monday noon. This means they should be in The Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by that time.

Because of the heavy flow of news into the office and a space problem affecting all newspapers these days, we cannot guarantee publication in that particular week's issue. But items in first will be given priority.

News releases should be typed double spaced. If no typewriter is available, they should be printed. This is to avoid misspelling of names and garbling of information.

The name and telephone number of the person submitting the item should be included in case there are any questions pertaining to the information.

We are sorry but we cannot handle social-church-fraternal news items on the telephone.

Information should include the name of the organization, the event to be held, the date, place and time, name of speaker if there is one, full names of committee chairmen and committee members.

The Sun's policy is not to use nicknames.

Since The Sun is a community oriented newspaper, items concerning happenings in the city are given priority. But we are also interested in events outside of the city in which Quincy residents are participating.

We encourage you to submit news items regarding yourself or organization. That is what The Sun is all about.

But following the above tips will make it easier for us to do a better job for you. Thank you.

Capt., Mrs. Geoffrey Banfield Reassigned To N.Y. By Salvation Army

Captain and Mrs. Geoffrey P. Banfield, commanding officers of The Salvation Army Corps Community Center, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, have received notification of their new assignment.

Captain Banfield has been appointed Divisional Youth Secretary for the Western New York division with his office at the Army headquarters in Buffalo. His responsibilities will include supervision of all youth work for 26 corps community centers. Mrs. Banfield's responsibilities will include the Army's Sunbeam and Girl Guard program also for the 26 Corps Community Centers in the same area.

The Banfield's two year stay in Quincy will conclude Sunday evening, Sept. 29 at the Baxter St. Headquarters with a farewell service at 7 p.m. and a reception following. The public is invited to attend.

Successors to the Banfields will be Captain and Mrs. Allan Rustad who have been serving with the Army for the past five years in Indiana, Pa. There will be a public welcome service for the Rustads Sunday, Sept. 12 at 11 a.m. at the Baxter St. headquarters.

Chamber Puts Together Business Development Aid Kit

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has produced a Business Development Aid kit designed for use by its Job Expansion Team [JET] members in their efforts to help area firms grow, hire able personnel and expand their marketing potential.

The JET approach to aiding business expansion emphasizes the role that growth has in producing more and better job opportunities.

JET members, notes Chamber President Jack Conway, are all successful South Shore business people who are knowledgeable in their fields and fully aware of the problems facing the business community.

JET is committed to the establishment of a close working relationship between area business firms and the Chamber, Conway said. "Each member understands the needs of area businesses, can recognize the potential for growth and expansion and has the expertise to assist in the decision-making process."

The Chamber, in cooperation with the Norfolk County Tourist and Development Council, developed the JET kit compiling information from several sources into a useful and comprehensive marketing tool.

The kit furnished to interested businesses, includes step-by-step guidelines for obtaining loans from the Small Business Administration through the South Shore Economic Development Corporation, an affiliate of the Chamber.

Another section of the kit explains the services and information available from the U.S. Department of Commerce and the assistance offered by the New England Manufacturers Exchange.

The Commerce Department, through its office in Boston can supply data on the direction and growth in the retail, wholesale and service industries, the importing and exporting markets, and doing business with government procurement agencies.

The Manufacturers Exchange offers a new way for buyers to locate New England suppliers of manufacturing services and special products.

Also covered in the JET kit are the free services in employee recruitment and on-the-job training offered by the Division of Employment Security and the local offices of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act [CETA].

JET members in addition to their business expertise, have backup in all the Chamber resources, including Economic Profiles of 24 area communities and an up to date computerized inventory of all available industrially zoned land in Norfolk County and parts of Plymouth County.

JET members are: Chairman John Doody of the Arthur L. Doody Insurance Agency, Atty. Leon Aronson; Richard Barry, Hurley Insurance Agency; John Farmer, Hancock Bank & Trust; Atty. Paul Kaufman; David Nelson, CPA; John Bettes, Bay Bank Norfolk County Trust Co.; Peter Kehew, Price Waterhouse & Co.; Charles Rosenblum, Richardson Investments; Richard Colwell, Rockland Trust Co.; Serge Grandon, South Shore National Bank; Donald Tofias, Julius Tofias & Co.; Robert McCormack, Tyler & Reynolds & Craig; Timothy Reidy, CETA office.

Complete information on JET participation can be obtained from Walter J. Hannon at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd, Quincy [479-1111].

40 New Teachers

Educators Teach And Serve, Creedon Says

"Educators don't teach classes, subjects or grades,"

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told 40 new teachers last week, "they teach and serve other human beings who are all but totally dependent upon them, upon you."

Dr. Creedon greeted the new teachers at a three-day orientation session in the media center at Quincy High School.

"To be a teacher is not to have a job," he said, "It is to have a career. It is a way of life. It is not to arrive at 8 a.m. and leave at 2:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. It is not to have periodic vacations and summers off."

"To be a teacher is to dedicate one's life to others. It is to anguish evenings and weekends over the needs, the trials, the momentary setbacks of those under your care. It is to harbor silently yet proudly if not boisterously and jubilantly over individual and group successes."

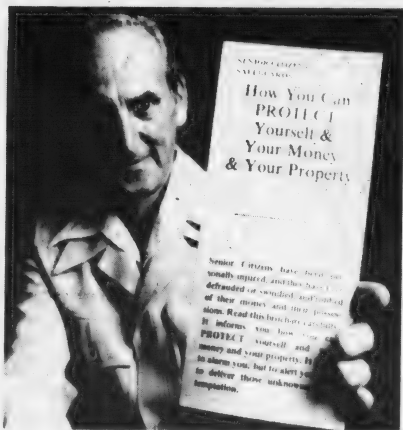

"Don't be alarmed if you don't grasp all that will come your way during these next few days," he warned the teachers, many of whom were starting their first school jobs since graduating themselves.

"Rome wasn't built in a day and no one expects you to arrive next Wednesday with the wisdom of Solomon; However, take it seriously because the business of teaching and learning is a serious business."

"In Quincy," he said, "we are committed to the development of a student centered learning system where the more humane treatment of little folks is our quest, our unreachable goal."

"We have admonished them that to do better is better than doing one's best. However, none of that has been done to our satisfaction and we welcome your expertise among us."

DEAR SENIOR CITIZEN, HERE'S SOME FREE ADVICE THAT'S PRICELESS.

The Quincy Council on Aging and R.S.V.P. have put together a brochure with hints for the senior citizen. The Quincy Cooperative Bank gladly paid for its printing so that it could be distributed free.

These aren't just any hints, though. They have to do with your safety and protection. And if you remember them, you'll be safer in your car, on the street, on the subway. Just about anywhere. The brochure even tells you how to protect your money and property.

It's available free to all senior citizens at any office of Quincy Cooperative Bank, or at the Council on Aging, 1 Cliveden St., in Quincy.

We offer this advice in the spirit of Josiah Quincy, Jr., the founder of Cooperative Banking in Massachusetts and the man for whom our bank was named. Josiah lived in a day when senior citizens were more respected and revered than they are today. At QCB, we think they still should be, and we're doing our part. We know for certain...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

SPECIAL NEEDS

OHS Business Ed. - 1st. Floor - M T W Th - 6:30-9:30 p.m.

The Adult Special Needs Center is unique in every way. It involves many kinds of life and educational experiences, such as: Reading for Everyday Living, Survival Math, Using a Calculator, How to Choose a Candidate in an Election (National, State, City, or Town), Preparation for Driver's License, Cooking, Sewing, etc. These experiences will be organized for each student so that when he leaves the program he will take with him something he did not have when he started. The Center will service adults from the South Shore area. The majority of students will be those who have attended special education classes, either in public or private sector, but many of the students will be those who have dropped out of school because of learning difficulties caused by perceptual dysfunctions. Some of these students may have received a high school diploma, but experienced extreme difficulty with learning and are having problems coping with life and furthering their education. The goals of the program are in three areas:

- (1) Development of a Positive Self-image for each student:
 - a. Each student must experience success in some area or activity.
 - b. Build on skills that already exist.
 - c. Create a positive learning atmosphere.
 - d. Provide opportunities for group and/or individual counseling.
 - e. Provide opportunities for development.
- (2) Improve Occupational Skills:
 - a. If student is not working, develop skills that could lead to employment.
 - b. If student is employed, improve skills that could lead to up-grading of job.
 - c. Initiate contact with employer or counselor.
 - d. Develop skills in food service preparation for employment.
- (3) Develop Alternative Approaches to Development of Functional Skills:
 - a. Identify learning style and build a program around it.
 - b. Proceed from what the student knows to what he needs to know.
 - c. Use appropriate materials that fit the student's style and needs.
 - d. Use community resources as learning stations.

FREE OF CHARGE

ADULT CIVIC EDUCATION / 7:00 - 9:00 P.M.

Quincy High - Rooms 114, 115, 117 M&W 7:00-9:00 p.m.

This program is offered to those people preparing for American citizenship. The program has three phases: basic, intermediate, and advanced - each reflecting the individual's language ability and closeness to citizenship eligibility. The origins of the American Republic, its governmental organization, and the civil rights and responsibilities of each citizen are explained and discussed. The advanced program is specifically aimed at preparation for the citizenship examination. The Adult Civic Education classes are in session Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at Quincy High School, offering:

English for Beginners Ms. Niesen
Intermediate English Mr. Niesen
Duties of Citizenship Ms. Boyce
Any foreign born person age sixteen or over may attend these classes FREE OF CHARGE starting MONDAY, SEPT. 27th.

SPECIAL OFFERING

William Connors Chairman United Fund Government Division Campaign

William F. Connors of Quincy, Director of the Veterans Administration, Boston Regional Office, has been selected Chairman of the Combined Federal Campaign in the Government Division for the 1976 United Way of Massachusetts Bay fund raising drive.

Announcement was made by Campaign Chairman David R.

Palmer. Connors will be responsible for organizing and coordinating the Combined Federal Campaign among Federal government employees in the Mass. Bay area. The United Way has announced a 1976 "Breakthrough" Campaign goal of $18.6 million, the amount needed to support more than 165 human service agencies in the Mass. Bay area. "Giving the United Way is a way of helping those who need help," Connors said. He is President of the 101st Infantry Association, a consultant to the Boston Federal Executive Board, and a member of the American Legion. Connors has received a Certificate of Merit for his participation in the United Way campaigns.

Point Community Center Opens After-School Programs

Life Can Be Beautiful In Retirement Years

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

One of the most heartwarming studies we have examined in many years presents the findings of a survey of retired men and women who were participants in a pension program for college academic and non-academic personnel.

While many corporate pension plans provide greater financial security in old age than does this college program, it is evident that the college pension, combined with other savings, has been enough to sustain most annuitants in comfortable living.

The researchers remark that, while there were notes of sadness and discontent among the respondents, the prevalent mood was "disgustingly cheerful."

"I think I am enjoying retirement more than any other period of my life," wrote an 82-year-old single woman. "I have discovered that, as I find myself face to face with the realization that my life on this earth is actually finite, that I have only a limited number of years to spend here, every aspect of existence acquires a deeper meaning, greater value, a new brilliance."

"Retirement is as natural [and as inevitable] as night following day - and night is in many ways a pleasant relief," observed a married man, age 71.

Another married man, also 71, commented, "This kind of freedom, with the means to live where we want to live - in the country and with every comfort - seems almost too good to be true."

Aside from health, the key factor is the kind of income the retiree can command. "I found retirement no problem," said a married man, age 84. "My wife and I had practiced thrift and economy down through the years and at retirement we had sufficient income to provide for us during our remaining years."

While 91 percent reported that their present standard of living compares "adequately", "well", or "very well" with their standard before retirement, there were instances of a desperate financial condition, as epitomized by an 89-year-old man, now blind, who said, "With those annuities and with what little savings I have left, I might be able to live three more years."

The survey demonstrates that life in retirement can be beautiful - if health persists and provision has been made for the finances that non-working years will require.

Atlantic Self-Help House

Painting Program Expanded Program

An expansion of the Atlantic Self-Help House Painting Program is announced by Mrs. Joanne Condon, chairwoman of the program.

"We are delighted with the recent Federal easing of income eligibility guidelines," said Mrs. Condon. "Under the new guidelines, an increased number of Atlantic area homeowners are now eligible for free house painting and minor exterior repairs on their single or two-family owner occupied homes."

Income eligibility guidelines now range from $9,600 per year for a family of one to $17,200 for a family of eight with deductions from that amount allowed for unusual expenses such as excessive medical expenses, etc.

Applications will be accepted at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., weekday mornings or Friday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. during the month of September.

HONORS AWARD - David A. Ham of Phillips St., Wollaston, a sophomore mechanical engineering student at Northeastern University, is awarded an honor certificate and a $100 check from Kenneth G. Ryder, president of Northeastern University. The check and certificate were awarded by Tau Beta Pi, the engineering honor society, in recognition of Ham's top ranking academic average.

LaRaia To Visit Atlantic Center Sept. 14

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia will visit the Atlantic Neighborhood Center Tuesday [Sept. 14] from 7-9 p.m. for a Little City Hall session of give and take with residents of Atlantic.

The program for the week:
Monday - Norma Barriere on Women's Health Information and Referral, 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Mayor LaRaia's Little City Hall, 7-9 p.m.

Tuesday - Food Coop pickup.
Wednesday - Senior's Day. Knitting from 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Lunch program for Seniors, 65 cents, reservations may be made by calling Mary Travers, 328-1708. Bingo, 1-3 p.m. Seniors sign up for trip to Dedham Mall on Sept. 23.

Thursday - Food stamp recertification, 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

Friday - Youngsters ages 8-12

QJC Offering Credit Courses On 6 Off-Campus Sites

Quincy Junior College is continuing to provide college-level credit courses in six off-campus sites for the Fall Semester, 1976.

The off-campus program allows students living in these areas an opportunity to take courses at a convenient location close to home. All students can participate in this program whether residents of a particular town or not. All credits become part of the student's official Quincy Junior College record.

At Braintree High School, 13 evening courses are being offered. In the Business Administration area students can take Accounting I and II, Business Law I, Economics I, Principles of Marketing and Advertising for Small Business. Also being offered is General Psychology, General Sociology, American Government, English Composition I, Introduction to Fire Protection and the seminar and television course, the Adams Chronicles. Registration is at Braintree High School Sept. 13 from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

At Hingham High School, Quincy Junior College evening courses include Abnormal Psychology, Children with Learning Disabilities and Introduction to Early Childhood Education. Registration is at Hingham High School on Sept. 8 from 6:30 - 8 p.m.

U.S. History I, Accounting I and Introduction to Philosophy will be offered evenings at Scituate High School. Registration will be Sept. 8, from 6:30 - 8 p.m. at the high school.

Five courses will be offered at the Weymouth Naval Air Station. Morning courses include Introduction to Law Enforcement and English Composition I. Evening courses are Human Relations in Organizations, General Sociology and U.S. History I. All courses are open to the public. Registration is Aug. 30-31 and Sept. 1 at Quincy Junior College.

Group Dynamics and General Psychology will be offered at Norwood High School along with a non-credit course entitled Marriage and Separation. Registration is at Norwood High School Sept. 8, 6:30 - 8 p.m.

At Hanover High School General Psychology, Accounting I, Business Law I and Principles of Marketing will be offered. Registration is Sept. 8, 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. at the high school.

For more information about these courses and other Quincy Junior College offerings call for an evening brochure at 471-2470.

EPA HONOR -- Bradford Hart, a fourth grade student at Gridley Bryant School, West Quincy, holds plaque presented to him by U.S. Senator Edward W. Brooke (right), and John A. S. McGlennan, Regional Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Bradford was one of 23 Massachusetts students recognized for their effort in the EPA's Fourth Annual Elementary Education Ecology Poem and Poster Program. In the background is Paul Keough, Director of Public Affairs at EPA and coordinator of the environmental education program now in its fourth year.

South West Community Center Programs Listed

The South West Community Center at Brewer's Corner announces several programs are available to residents of South and West Quincy residents.

Among available programs are:

Well Baby Clinic which provides medical assistance for children from infancy to six-year-olds; a housing law and tenant advocacy program dealing with all phases of housing; and the South West Federal Credit Union making funds available to area residents with one percent monthly interest.

The center also offers social services, family planning, and a program with an outreach worker from the RSVP office.

Bradford Hart Receives EPA Award

Bradford Hart, a fourth grade student at the Gridley Bryant School in Quincy, has received highest honors in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's fourth Annual Elementary Education Ecology Poem and Poster Program.

Bradford was among 23 students from Massachusetts to receive plaques from U.S. Senator Edward Brooke and EPA Regional Administrator

John A. S. McGlennan at a recent ceremony at the John F. Kennedy Federal Building in Boston.

"Bradford can be extremely proud of his accomplishment," Paul G. Keough, Regional Director of Public Affairs for EPA said. "Only eighty students in New England were selected for highest honors, and we received more than 5,000 entries," Mr. Keough concluded.

IT'S TIME TO SHAKE THINGS UP IN WASHINGTON.

"A lot of people think things are rotten in Congress these days... and they're right.

Too many Congressmen have spent their lives in Washington. To them - political payoffs, bribes, the Buddy System - are just a way of doing business.

That type of thinking is wrong.

It has to be changed. . . That's why I'm running for Congress."

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Burke, McCarthy Exchange Charges

Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) and his challenger, Patrick Henry McCarthy of Randolph exchanged charges at press conferences as their campaigns for the Democratic nomination for the 11th District went down to the wire.

Burke accused McCarthy of conducting a campaign of "California-type, Nixon-brand gutter politics."

The Congressman complained chiefly of a McCarthy campaign brochure that showed Burke with Congressmen Robert Sikes of Florida, Andrew Henshaw of California and James Jones of Oklahoma.

Sikes was recently reprimanded for the House and the others were convicted of felonies.

"Alongside my picture were the phrases 'a land swindle...a bank scandal... conflicts of interest,'" said Burke. "In all my years in public office I've never been charged with anything except two traffic violation - one of which was filed."

He said McCarthy is using "guilt by association" tactics.

Meanwhile, McCarthy continued to hammer at Burke's claims that he obtained large sums of federal money for the 11th District.

"Actually," he said, "our district ranks below the Massachusetts average. In fact, when it comes to attracting job-producing federal funds, Cong. Burke ranks eighth out of the 12 Massachusetts congressmen."

"If Congressman Burke, who's been in Washington for 18 years, was attracting as much money as the average Massachusetts congressman our district would gain an additional $106 million."

QCA Ready to Petition For Zoning Ordinance Changes

The Quincy Citizens Association is readying a petition for the City Council urging a number of zoning ordinance changes, including a building height limitation of 2½ stories in Residence B Zones.

Other changes recommended by the QCA's Zoning Committee include a prohibition on basement apartments and a limitation of dwelling units in Residence B Zones to four families.

The QCA also wants the Council to delete a zoning exception - permitting irregular-sized building lots with only 3/4 the yard requirements; and to count above-ground garages as building stories.

Petitioners will be QCA

President Arthur M. Chandler, Vice President Joseph N. Gileas, Treasurer Saul Lipsitz, Secretary Dorothy C. Kelly, former President Laurence J. Curtin, Anne M. Gaffey and Paul Kodak.

Kodak was named chairman of a committee to launch a membership drive. Mrs. Jennie Beatrice and David Colton will be on the committee.

Raymondi Seeks PW Funds For Fore River Clubhouse

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has nominated the Fore River Clubhouse as an ideal renovation project to submit to the federal government for consideration under the Public Works Employment Act.

Raymondi noted in letters to Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Planning Director Norman Lundin that the clubhouse, a landmark for many years in the Quincy Point area, is used by many civic, church, senior citizen and youth groups in the section.

Renovation of the clubhouse, said Raymondi, "would enable workers to begin immediately and it would also provide an excellent opportunity to rehabilitate one of the most extensively used buildings in the city of Quincy."

He said the use of federal funds "would allow us to improve the structure without overburdening the local taxpayer."

Four Quincy Residents Enrolled At Aquinas Junior

Four Quincy residents are enrolled at Aquinas Junior College, Newton for the 1976-77 academic year.

They are seniors Patricia DiCupolo, Elaine Harkins and Donna Mulcahy, and freshman Kathleen McEachern.

Aquinas Junior College opens its doors to the largest student body in the school's history Monday, Sept. 13. Orientation week will include student/advisor meetings as well as a luncheon and pool party. At a full assembly with Aquinas

President Sister Philomea Walsh presiding, administration, faculty, and staff will be introduced, and Student Association representatives will welcome new students. A highlight of the week will be an outdoor liturgical celebration on the school's Walnut Park campus.

The Aquinas Center for Continuing Education will also open its Fall Semester Sept. 13, with classes to be held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Courses will be offered in Accounting, English, History, Law, Psychology, Reading, Sociology, Science, Shorthand and Typewriting.

City Clerk

Burke, Brett Challenges Local Primary Highlights

McCarthy by a 4 to 1 margin.

The challenges to Brett, who also won his first term as a State Rep in 1958, come from Michael W. Morrissey, 22, of 88 Colby Rd., North Quincy, and John L. McIntyre, 49, of 40 Ocean St., Squantum. Brett is 69.

While Brett has a fight in the 3rd Norfolk District, Quincy's other state representatives, all Democrats, have a free ride into the finals: Thomas Brownell in the 1st, Robert Cerasoli in the 2nd and James A. Sheets in the 4th.

And if Brett gets by Morrissey and McIntyre, he'll face opposition in the November general election from Jens E. Thornton of 14 Orchard St., Squantum, who is the only Republican candidate for state representative on the ballot.

A flock of Democrats are running against Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who is seeking his third full term in the Senate. He was originally elected in 1962 in a special election to fill the seat vacated by his brother, the President.

Kennedy's sternest opposition is expected to come from Robert Emmet Dinsmore, a Milton lawyer who has been active as the attorney for the anti-busing people in Boston.

Others on the Democratic senatorial ballot are Boston City Councillor Frederick C. Langone and Bernard P. Shannon, a Stoughton businessman who recently dropped out of the race and announced his support of Dinsmore.

On the Republican side of the senatorial race, Michael S. Robertson of Berkley is unopposed. In fact, Robertson and Thornton are the only names on the whole Republican ballot in Quincy.

There is also a Democratic contest for county commissioner with incumbents James J. Collins of Milton and George B. McDonald of Quincy challenged by Paul E. Barry and Edmund P. Harrington, both of Quincy.

Governor's Councillor Patrick J. [Sonny] McDonough of Boston is unopposed for renomination as is State Sen. Arthur H. Tobin of Quincy.

Unchallenged for Norfolk

County posts are Clerk of Courts John P. Concannon of Braintree, Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannan of Braintree and Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt of Quincy.

Delahunt, who was appointed to the post by Gov. Michael Dukakis to replace the resigned George G. Burke of Quincy, is running to fill the vacancy.

Primary voters may also ask for an American Party ballot which contains no names but spaces for write-in votes.

The low estimated voter turnout is occasioned by the fact that there is no statewide election of constitutional office holders this year.

In 1974, when the ballot featured a battle between Dukakis and Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn for the Democratic nomination for governor, some 48.5 per cent of the registered voters appeared at the polls.

Voter registration is up over 1974 in Quincy, too, with Democrats showing the big gain and Republicans a loss.

The 1976 register shows: Democrats 29,793; Republicans 7,630; Americans 44; Independents 11,049; for a total of 48,516.

Two years ago it was:

Democrats 25,915; Republicans 8,270; Independents 12,877; for a total of 47,062.

'Big Bird' Artistic Hit

The page-one-photo in the Aug. 26th issue of The Quincy Sun showing a king-sized replica of Sesame Street's famed Big Bird in Quincy Cooperative Bank President John Herbert's office drew a number of inquiries from readers. Most wanted to know who created the work of art.

The bird was made by eight girls from the Bishop playground during a two-day arts and crafts program at McIntyre Mall.

The girls are Patty Dyer, Petty Nee, Karen Grener, Linda Chiampa, Janet McNeice, Laurie Barba, Lisa McCormick and Julie Baker.

They were under the direction of Regina Kelly, arts and crafts specialist, and Joanne Arcana and Joanne Leone, both members of the Bishop playground Park-Recreational staff.

Big Bird and his two friends, Skunk and Turtle, slept at the bank overnight.

Harold Plans Office Hours At City Hall

City Councillor Paul D. Harold will hold office hours in City Hall on the first and third Thursdays of each month from 6-8 p.m. starting Sept. 23.

"Since City Hall is going to be open on Thursday night until December," said Harold, "I thought it was my responsibility to be available to constituents who wish to discuss matters which are pending before the City Council or which they wish to be submitted to the Council."

Harold said he would meet constituents in the Council office directly behind the Council Chamber on the second floor of City Hall.

Ward 4 Republicans Lawn Party

Ward 4 Republicans will hold a covered-dish lawn party Sunday, Sept. 12 from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bowering, 65 Gridley St., West Quincy. Luncheon will be served at 1:30 p.m.

Republican candidates for state and federal offices will attend.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

McDonald, Harrington Clash Over Wollaston Recreation Facility Cost

Rival candidates for Norfolk County commissioner have clashed over the cost of the County Recreation Facility, the former Wollaston Golf Course on the Quincy-Milton line.

Edmund P. Harrington of Quincy, who is seeking a spot on the commission, has charged that, instead of costing the county $3.5 million, the real cost will be $4.9 million or more.

In a campaign statement, Harrington asked for figures on the original purchase price, contracts awarded for rebuilding the facility, cost of change orders, total interest on bond issues and loans and salaries paid to date.

"Incumbents are contending that the project will cost the county $3.5 million," said Harrington.

"They claim federal funding will cut that price tag in half. But these figures will show that the real cost - the dollars and cents out of the taxpayers' pockets - will be $4.9 million or more.

"The commissioners keep saying what a boon this project is going to be for Norfolk County. But, in fact, it is a boondoggle which will drain tax dollars and benefit only a small segment of the county.

"The incumbents should explain what this facility is going to do for people in Brookline, Norwood and Franklin.

"I fully believe in the concept of open space but the course should be sold to investors more qualified to run a recreational facility."

Commissioner George B. McDonald of Quincy, who is a candidate for re-election, expressed surprise that Harrington should ask for figures.

"The candidate is employed in the county treasurer's office and should have the figures at his fingertips," he said.

"We have revealed the true cost. The original purchase was $3.5 million. Fifty per cent of it was totally reimbursable by the federal government. The taxpayers of Norfolk County have already received it.

"The county commissioners have held change orders to a very minimum to the extent that it is almost at a break even point.

"The one-half of the $3.5 million which was reimbursed by the federal government has been invested and we are receiving interest on that until such time as we withdraw that investment to pay the contractors, thus reducing the bond issue.

"The candidate is also disregarding the revenues that we derive from the recreational facility.

"The candidate has stated that the facility should have been bought by private interests.

"He knows as well as all the people of Quincy that private interests would develop it with single homes for which the land is presently zoned.

"This would be a tremendous increase in taxes for the homeowners of Quincy because the city must provide an additional school, increased police and fire protection and utilities.

"Also we would lose open space and the recreational facility which the people of Quincy demanded.

"Every other municipal golf course is operating in the black. We project that the Norfolk County Recreational Facility will also operate in the black, thus lowering the county assessment on towns such as Brookline, Norwood and Franklin."

Morrissey Speaks At House Parties

Two house parties were held recently for Michael W. Morrissey, Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

One was at the home of Mrs. Beverly Ferrara, 63 French St., and the other at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Gerry, 509 Quincy Shore Drive, both North Quincy.

With more than 20 people in attendance at each, Morrissey discussed the issues of Wollaston Beach, the area crime problems, and the North Quincy Police substation.

Morrissey also discussed a recent letter he had written to the Director of Planning suggesting possibilities of obtaining federal funding for area projects, under the Local Public Works Employment Act of 1976.

Robertson Speaker At Local Candidates' Nights

Michael S. Robertson, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, was scheduled to speak at two Candidates' Nights locally Wednesday night.

At 8 p.m. Robertson was to be at the annual candidates' night sponsored by 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy Point Congregational Church Homes, Inc., in the auditorium at 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy.

At approximately 9:15 p.m. Robertson was to speak at the candidates' night sponsored by the League of Women Voters from Braintree, Milton and Quincy. The program at Central Junior High School, Washington St., Braintree.

Quincy Schools On Threshold Of Student Centered Learning System

By BRUCE McLAIN

Despite rumbles at the national level that educational institutions are failing in their task, "pessimism, an apostleship of doom is foreign" to the Quincy Public Schools, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told his returning administrators this week.

Delivering a major "white paper" on leadership, Dr. Creedon said that thoughts of crisis, doom and gloom would not be the focus of the Quincy Public Schools this year.

He said the school system would continue to achieve what educators John Goodlad and Ralph Tyler stated as the three significant accomplishments of the public school system:

- Maintaining a stable society during periods of strife and confusion.

- Providing social mobility for the young beyond the socio-economic status of their parents.

- Educating very diverse groups of people for citizenship and productive work.

Quincy is on the threshold of a singular success in implementing its design for a Student Centered Learning System [SCLS]. It is Quincy's principals, as the instructional leaders in their schools, who will determine if the design works or fails, Dr. Creedon suggested.

Quincy's design for learning does not mean, he warned, that the schools will be permissive and lack standards. The design does not mean that schools will fail to teach discipline, drill and respect for authority.

School systems must continue to be able to respond to public concerns about the cost of education, procedures for accountability, instructional programs and goals of the system.

Consequently, a major goal of the Quincy Public Schools this year, will be "the development and implementation of a management by objective process to provide a management information system for purposes of accountability and evaluation," Creedon declared.

To help reach that goal, the Quincy School Committee recently approved an administrative re-organization. Based on Dr. Creedon's recommendation, the Committee eliminated an assistant superintendency position and a coordinator's position in foreign languages. The positions of Director of Academic Education and Career Education Director were created, resulting in a net budget savings of $32,000 Dr. Creedon told the educators.

Now the school system has regrouped under two assistant superintendents; one for instruction and curriculum and one for personnel, business and plant affairs. When Creedon was appointed superintendent in 1969, there were four asst. superintendents.

He said he believes that the re-organization will provide the necessary processes for implementing Quincy's Student Centered Learning System.

"Copyright [c] 1976 by Oscar Weber, All Rights Reserved"

Confused In Studies

Q. I read your column regularly. I have bought books and tried to write my own horoscope but I get confused with all the charts. I was born in Waltham, Mass. on July 29, 1939 between 6 and 6:30 A.M. P.C.

A. It is not easy to study any deep or occult subject just by reading books. Astrology when taught by a competent teacher need not be occult [hidden] but must be mastered step by step in an orderly, systematic manner.

From 6 to 6:30 A.M., there is 30 minutes during which the Signs of the Zodiac on the Midheaven changed from Aries to Taurus and the various degrees of the Signs on the different Houses changed. The First House ranged from nine degrees of Leo to fifteen degrees of Leo, so you see a more definite time of birth is needed to calculate an accurate horoscope.

However, your Sun, Mercury and Pluto were in Leo; Neptune was in Virgo; your Moon and Mars were in Capricorn; Jupiter in Aries; Saturn and Uranus were in Taurus and Venus in Cancer. These indicate that you have good organizing ability and an instinct to achieve recognition.

You are capable of being very affectionate but tend to inhibit or restrain your feelings or you may find an outlet for your strong emotions by striving to accomplish some objective or ambition. Your intense energies, when directed towards a specific objective, have the drive to reach the goal.

You probably have much vitality, as a general rule you are optimistic, can generate considerable enthusiasm and take life philosophically. Early in life you may have had to overcome some difficulty but this has tended to give you experience and strengthened your ability to handle your duties and responsibilities with fortitude.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

ONE COUNCILLOR'S OPINION

By Paul Harold

Councillor-at Large

A New Hospital Director

In the next few weeks, the hospital Board of Managers will choose a new director for the city hospital. His or her qualifications should be based solely on professionalism, because the delivery of quality health care is too important to be overshadowed by political considerations. It's no secret that in recent years the heavy-handedness of city politics has been the curse of QCH.

The Board of Managers have been struggling to make QCH the best of its kind on the South Shore. They can do just that if they are allowed to act independent of outside pressures in the naming of a new director.

Quincy Opens Season At Weymouth S. Tuesday

Quincy's soccer team opens at Weymouth South next Tuesday and the Presidents' new coach, Jim McGuire, is hopeful for a winning season.

A year ago Quincy, under Ron Martin, had a 5-9-3 record but McGuire, who starred under Martin at Quincy and went on to excel at Babson College, has a fine nucleus of veterans headed by Mike Kennedy, a two-year veteran, in goal.

Other veterans include John

Golub, Pete Martin, Bill Norton, Joe DiCesare, Joe DiVello, Steve Ayer, Pete DiCenso, Jack Neaton and Bob Praetech.

"We have only 23 working out now, but I expect quite a few more when school opens," McGuire said. "I think a lot of sophomores will report but I'm also hoping for some more upperclassmen."

Jim expects the starting lineup to include Kennedy in goal, forwards Golub, DiVello, Norton, Martin and George Bourikas and backs Ayer, DiCenso, Vin Lorenzano and Jeff Harrison.

Rounding out the squad are Neaton, Praetech, Ron DiCesare, Dario DiBona, Steve Parsloe, Joe DiCesare, Mark LaFleur, Joe Zimmerman, Joe Chludcinski, Dave Giglio, Brian Donovan, Ed Regan and Chris McLaughlin.

The new assistant coach is another who starred for Martin at Quincy, Mike Priscella.

North Scrimmage With B.C. High Encourages Cochrane

North Quincy's new soccer coach, Bruce Cochrane of Hingham, has some big shoes to fill, but he is hopeful for a good season following a scrimmage with B.C. High.

North for the last two years, under Lou Ioanilli, made the state tournament after finishing a close second in the Suburban League. Last year the Raiders were 14-3-1 and won their first tournament game ever.

"I know I have a big job here but I have been happily surprised," said Cochrane, who starred at Hingham High and Eisenhower College. "We have had only about 25 boys working out but I expect a lot more when school opens, especially sophomores. The boys did an excellent job against B.C. High. I used a lot of the players at strange positions and they couldn't score on us until the last minutes of the scrimmage."

Cochrane likes the looks of goalie Rick Smith and he is pleased with the defense, particularly John Andrews, Rich Troy, Walt McGinley, Gary Stanley and Dennis Radley. He will be depending heavily upon veteran Jim McGinley on offense.

North's squad includes Andrews, Jim Conboy, Mike

North also has a new assistant coach in George McCall, who played his soccer at North.

The Raiders, who will use the Quincy field behind the stadium for home games this year, will open at home next Tuesday against Brockton.

Koch Club Opens Season

Richard J. Koch, Executive Director of the Koch Club, announced today that the Koch Club of Quincy will begin its fall and winter season of bowling activities starting tonight [Thursday] at 8:30 p.m. at the Merymount Daylight Alley as the women's league will open its 22nd year of competition.

The 100-member Koch Club Senior Girls Loop will start their eighth season on Friday at 5:30 p.m. at the Wollaston Boulevard Alleys.

On Tuesday at 1 p.m., the Koch Club Termites, with over 100 girls of elementary school age, will launch their 12th season, also at the Wollaston Boulevard Alleys. The Koch Club Men will start its 27th year at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The Montclair District Girls Bowling Loop will move into its 7th season Saturday Sept. 18 at 9:30 a.m. at the East Milton Bowladrome.

The Boys Bowling League, will begin its 13th season Saturday, Oct. 2 at 9 a.m. at the Merymount Daylight Alleys.

All the leagues bowl weekly and continue until May of 1977, each closing out the season with an awards banquet.

The Koch Club Married Couples League will start its 20th year, and several other couples leagues bowl once a month or semi-monthly and will be announced at a later date.

In January and February of

Must Bus To Pageant Field Practice

Burke Has Number Of Holes To Fill At North

Dave Burke, starting his second year as North Quincy's football coach, has a number of holes to fill as he seeks to approach last year's 9-1-0 record which gave the Raiders the Suburban League co-championship, first place among the Division I teams and a berth in the Super Bowl.

As if this isn't work enough for the former Raider standout, construction at North Quincy is putting more pressure on him and his squad. As a result of losing all locker space and the gym, the Raiders must bus daily to Veterans Memorial Stadium to dress and then go to Pageant Field, behind Adams Field, to practice.

"This is far from an ideal situation but we have to make the best of it and, I guess, it could be worse," Burke said. "There are no goal posts at the field so Ed McElaney, our fine kicker [he won two games in 1975 with overtime field goals] can't practice his kicks."

The stadium will "be the Raiders' 'home away from home'" this year. They have taken over the North locker room in which added lockers have been placed and the coaches will occupy the game officials' room. When they play away from home the Raiders will return to the stadium instead of the school.

A number of last year's players will be playing college ball this fall but Burke has some experienced personnel to replace most of them, although most were not starters.

He is particularly well off in the backfield with Mike Adams, Bill McIntyre and George Wallace returning. All are excellent ball carriers. Burke also had two good returning quarterbacks in Brian Donaghey and Dennis Doherty, who played behind Mike Halloran last year and both look good. Kurt O'Sullivan is another good quarterback prospect.

The lone returning starter in the offensive line is Harry Knudsen, although end Jim Frye saw a lot of action.

North has some experienced players on defense including Dick Kennedy, McElaney, John Ryan and Steve Bell, all of whom saw a good deal of service a year ago.

"We may have a depth problem," Burke admitted. "We should have a capable starting club but we must develop some reserve strength. The best thing is most of the players have been together since their sophomore year, so they know each other well."

About 80 turned out for practice last week and Burke hoped a few more would report when school opened yesterday [Wednesday].

On offense Burke has Keith Lindberg, Brian Balzarini, Frye, Mike Gallagher and John O'Donnell at end, Paul Ahern and Knudsen tackles, Russ Chisholm, Dave Cramond, John Baldech and Dan Butts guards and Tom Nee and Bell at center.

Donaghey, Doherty and O'Sullivan are the quarterbacks, Adams, John Wilkinson, Greg Zoia and Colin McEachern halfbacks and Wallace, Mark Robinson and McIntyre, fullbacks.

The defensive hopefuls include Steve Bonoli, Lindberg, Vin Furlong, Don McNamara, Mark Wentzell and Gallagher at end; Mark Nagle, Jim Marinelli, Bill Schaezel, Ed Boudreau, Ryan and Paul Corliss at tackle; cornerbacks Kennedy, Frank McGuinness, Mike Nolan, Fran McLaughlin and Bruce Wilson; linebackers Bell, Jim Hanrahan and Butts and halfbacks or safetymen Art Bertoni, Steve Sheehan, McElaney, Billy White, Kevin Doyle, Ed Evanson and Tom Burke.

Burke was pleased with the Raiders' performance last Saturday in their first scrimmage against Catholic Memorial. North moved the ball well and held its own on defense.

North's tri-captains are Adams, Bell and Ryan. Burke had words of praise for his veteran manager, Wayne Lawrence, starting his third year.

Dave has one new coach in Jack Raymer, who replaced Dick Meyer, who resigned. Like Meyer, Raymer will handle the defense with Ken McPhee. McPhee, Tom Fitzgerald and the "dean", Ted Sadowski, are back. This is Ted's 19th year as a North assistant.

North will open the season at home on Sept. 18 against old rival Milton, the non-leaguer scheduled for 10 a.m. at the stadium. The following week it will play at Taunton.

Squantum Wins S.S. CYO Title, Bows In Finals

The Squantum Community Association CYO baseball team captured the South Shore Intermediate championship and advanced to the archdiocesan finals before being eliminated by Our Lady of the Presentation of Brighton.

Winning the league title with a 12-2 record, Squantum opened tournament play with a 9-2 romp over St. Williams of Dorchester.

Mike Nee tripled with the bases loaded to highlight the attack and Bob McCabe and Josh Alberti had two hits apiece. McCabe pitched a three-hitter and received outstanding support from Bill McDonald, Mike Dimino and Tom Dow, who reeled off two double plays.

Squantum then nipped St. Anthony's of Allston, 2-1. A walk to Alberti and Dimino's double tied the score at 1-1 and in the seventh doubles by McCabe and Alberti won it.

Squantum dropped the first game of the finals to Presentation, 5-0, with Dimino, Mike Braun and McDonald collecting the only hits.

Squantum was eliminated in the second game, 3-2, despite a fine pitching effort from Steve Bowen. McDonald drove in one run and scored the other. Bowen gave up only four hits and struck out 12.

Throughout the season Squantum received fine efforts from Alberti, McCabe, Dimino, McDonald and Bowen. Pat Ennis, Dave Manning, John Collins, Pete Johnson, Jim Hanna and Scott Fitzgerald also did an outstanding job.

Fred Daly, Mike Dimino and Jim McCabe coached the team, which received great support from the Squantum community.

S.S. Youth Boxing Club Registration Underway

The South Shore Youth Boxing Club will hold fall and winter registration today [Thursday] and Friday from 4 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from noon to 5 at the boxing center in the rear of St. Ann's School, 1 St. Ann's Road, Wollaston.

The club is geared to the youth of the South Shore. Its purpose is to stimulate the interest of young people from the South Shore area in the art of boxing.

Treasurer George Kilroy said upwards of 400 to 500 youths between the ages of 8 and 18 are expected to participate in the program. The club plans to be open six days a week from 3 to 9 p.m. and will provide continual supervised instruction by both active and retired amateur and professional boxers and trainers. A total of 25 to 30 volunteers will be involved in the tutoring process.

"We plan to stage monthly boxing shows in our tournament hall, which will be open to the public," Kilroy said. "We will be bringing the Golden Gloves and Junior Olympic tournaments to the Quincy area for the first time."

The club's facilities include a regulation 20-foot ring, two large workout rooms, a locker room area and a large hall for boxing shows and tournaments.

Kilroy explained that the club needs funds to purchase an additional ring, mats, canvases, protective body and head gear, punching bags, gloves, uniforms and other equipment and anyone in or around Quincy wishing to contribute can make checks payable to the South Shore Youth Boxing Club and forward them to the club's headquarters, 1 St. Ann's Road, Wollaston 02170.

John Vafides is club chairman, William B. Halpin director, Kilroy treasurer, William P. Halpin secretary and William Jacobs youth counselor.

Jo Hinckley Class A Winner

In the weekly women's tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Club, Jo Hinckley was the Class A winner with two under par. Jenny Luffy and Elbie Mulroy tied for second with three over par.

In Class B Marie Corayer had low net, shooting eight over par and Marilyn Harris was second with nine over.

City Club Benefit Road Race

Richard J. Koch, president of the Quincy City Club, announces the club is sponsoring a three-mile road race Sunday, Sept. 19 at 2 p.m.

The race will start at North Quincy High School and the course will be out to the Jordan Marsh Warehouse in Squantum and back to North Quincy High School.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in four categories.

The categories include boys, 12-29 years old; men, 30 years and over; girls, 12-29 years old; and women, 30 years and over. The entrance fee is small [$1.]. Applications and fees will be accepted at 1 p.m. on the day of the event at the North Quincy High School starting point.

Michael E. Regan is chairman of the event assisted by Raymond C. Cattaneo, co-chairman. Other committee members include George R. Riley, Charles L. Alongi Jr., John Baker, Robert Woodman, Richard H. Meade, Louis G. Bertucci Jr., John Deschenes, James B. Moody, Thomas F. Holmes Jr., Paul F. Moody, Daniel O'Leary, Joseph J. Mullen Jr., and Joseph M. Lydon.

Proceeds will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Duggan Shoots Double Eagle

Donald Duggan of Water Street, Quincy, shot a double eagle two on a par-five, 505-yard hole at Wampatuck Country Club.

In accomplishing the rarest of all shots, Duggan played with George Murphy, Jim Palakas and Joe Broderick, all members of the Wampatuck Club.

McLaughlin Dominates City Tennis

Joe McLaughlin dominated the sixth annual City of Quincy Tennis Tournament by winning the singles for men and teaming with Steve Myatt to acquire the doubles crown.

McLaughlin, who lives in the shadow of Quincy High School and was raised on the Vocational Technical High tennis courts, dreamed of winning the city championship as a boy. His dream has materialized and he gained a bonus when he added the doubles crown to his men's singles title. McLaughlin attends Suffolk University Graduate School of Law.

In the singles competition, the new champ defeated Wayne Chatterton in straight sets 7-6, 6-3. McLaughlin and Myatt beat Neil Cronin and a former doubles champ Charlie Ross 6-4, 6-2.

Chris Cuniff defeated her doubles partner, Sue Coleman, to win the women's division. Chris and Sue had a close contest that went to three sets before Cuniff won, 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

Jim Wilcox, defending over-35 champion, retained his title by defeating John Durante 6-4, 6-2.

Chris Cuniff, the women's singles champion, teamed with Ed Riley, a Vanderbilt University undergraduate, to win the mixed doubles. They defeated Jesse Copman, a veteran and former women's doubles winner, and youngster Bob Toraco 6-3, 6-2. Mrs. Copman is a Quincy Tennis Club member and Boston teacher.

In the under-sixteen division David Hamburger, also of the Quincy Tennis Club, defeated Gary Wilcox, 7-5, 6-4.

In the girls under 16 division Sue Coleman, a finalist in the women's bracket, defeated Marcy Cuniff, the sister of Chris who won the women's title. Miss Coleman was victorious, 6-0, 6-1.

Franceschini, the tournament director, who gained the semi-finals in the doubles competition, stated that there were a total of 438 entries in all divisions. The Quincy Recreation Tournament sponsored by the Quincy Park and Recreation Board, has developed into one of the larger tournaments in the commonwealth.

Junior Baseball Registration Sept. 11

Commissioner George J. Derrane announces that registration for the 1977 Quincy Junior Baseball League season will be held Saturday, Sept. 11 from 9 a.m. to noon at Quincy Vo-Tech gym.

Anyone who played Junior Farm, AAA or 12-year old Junior League must register as well as any 8-15 olders wishing to join the program. Application fee is 50 cents. Information on tryout dates will be issued on registration day.

Registration is open only to Quincy residents who were born after July 31, 1961, and prior to Aug. 1, 1969.

Quincy Junior Baseball Leagues operate 49 teams in various age groupings and enroll almost 1,000 in their program.

Conroy: 'We'll Be Much Quicker'

Presidents Smaller But Swifter This Season

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy High's football teams have been noted for their huge linemen in recent years but this fall it will be a bit different.

Although Coach Hank Conroy has some good-sized players, the team will be smaller physically overall but Conroy promises the Presidents will be "much quicker".

"We have a few big boys such as Bill Daley [250] and John Carloni [230], but we don't have the size of teams of other years," Conroy said. "But we will be a lot quicker this year and I hope it will pay off for us."

Hank, starting his 13th year as the Presidents' head coach, hopes to improve on last year's 3-7 record.

A year ago Quincy's defense was superb in its last five games and most of the points against it were the result of errors by the offense.

After blanking Weymouth

North, 28-0, Quincy lost to Brockton in the final minutes, 14-13; Brookline, 7-6, Newton North, 12-6, and forced North Quincy's Super Bowl team into sudden death before bowing, 15-8.

Although he has only a few players back with any extensive varsity service, Conroy has a lot of returnees from the junior varsity and is depending heavily upon graduates of last year's outstanding sophomore team.

The only returning offensive backfield starter is Mark Buchanan, who started at quarterback but moved to halfback from where he did some good running. He will be at halfback this year with either Dennis Walter or John Houten starting at quarterback.

Other offensive backs with some experience are Wayne French, Len Picot, who did the kicking although only a sophomore last year, and Billy Brennan.

Conroy has high hopes for Mark Giordani, playing for the first time. An outstanding athlete, he excelled in youth football, hockey and baseball and Hank expects a lot from him.

Returning in the offensive line are Jim Conostas, who started the North Quincy game, and Wayne Gardner.

The only starting defensive players returning are end Sal Coscia and halfback Pat Gibbons.

Conroy had a fine turnout of 106 and it appears he will have pretty good depth at most positions.

The tackle corps includes John Barry, John Fahey, Dave Donovan, Mickey Thorley, Tom Sutcliffe, Carloni, Daley, Mike

Duggan, John Rizzi, John Donovan, Larry Calley, Ken Johnston, Mark Asard, Mike Corcoran and Greg Billings.

Trying for guard positions are Gardner, Bill French, Dennis Kearney, George Bush, Mike D'Andrea, Kevin Zambruno, Ron Ricciardi, Dave Eastwick, Pete Cassidy, Dave Grassi, Bob Pettinelli, Fred Vignali, Wayne Cascarano, Pat Bamberg, Shawn Gillis and Russ Stenbach. Conostas and Art Boudreau are the top center aspirants.

Walter and Houten are the leading quarterback hopes and, if necessary, Buchanan can fill in.

Among the other backs are Gibbons, John Milani, Bob Derbes, Joe Shea, Tom Bamberg, Jim Maze, Chuck Dedian, Don Heath, Bud Boyle, Wayne French, Brennan, Rich Gilbody, Steve Ohlson, Marc Merlis, Ed Towers, Scott Awed, Picot, Giordani, Vin Harte, Bill Shea and Scott Merlis.

Conroy is especially enthusiastic about the backfield. "Last year we had only one really outstanding runner but this year the backfield will be much more balanced and I think we will move the ball better," he said. "The line will be the key and I hope our quickness will help us."

Hank is also extremely pleased with the condition of the squad. "Everyone showed up in fabulous condition and this makes it much easier for us to get ready for our opener [Sept. 18 at home against non-league rival Dedham]."

Hank has a new coach, Billy Mavor, one of his former players who captained the University of Connecticut. He replaces John Skaldany, who has returned to school. Returning are John Bogan, Mark Conroy and Peter Chella.

5-Mile Cancer Benefit Road Race Sept. 26

Sundowner's Lounge of Quincy will sponsor its first five-mile road race for cancer sanctioned by the NEAAU Sunday, Sept. 26 at 1 p.m.

The race is open to all registered athletes 14 years of age and older. All New England runners should be registered with Frank Rull, registration chairman, NEAAU, 69 Canal Street, Boston 02114.

Prizes will be awarded to the first three men finishers, the top three women, first finisher in men's 40 and over and first in men's 50 and over.

The Sundowner's Lounge will donate the prizes and will also serve refreshments.

Race fee/donation is $1 a runner and they are asked to make money orders or checks payable to the American Cancer Society. Post entry fee is $2.

Entry blanks are available at Sundowner's Lounge, 53 Granite Street, in care of Paul Hussey [telephone 472-9198]. Entries with fee should be sent to that address.

The race will be run over the highest point in Quincy, along Quincy's shoreline and through historic Quincy Square.

Morrisette Bat Boy Star

Quincy Teams Sweep Montreal

old bat boy, Eddie Ryan, playing second base when Morrisette was caught short-handed. Eddie proved one of the game's stars with two outstanding plays at second and a line single to left in addition to a walk.

The Sun Youth Organization plans to have teams visit Quincy during the winter for hockey games with the Quincy Youth teams.

The visitors were taken to Paragon Park Saturday night and enjoyed a mini-tour of Boston and Quincy. Some of the adults took in a night at Wonderland Saturday night, as there is no dog racing in Canada.

The Sun Youth Organization's motto is "A small body with a big heart". President of the group is Sid Stevens. The organization's aim is participation for all of its 1,000 members.

Friday night at Adams Field Mayor Joseph LaRia threw out the first ball and welcomed the visitors. During the games the names and numbers of the Canadians were announced in French and then English.

Hatfield, Jacobson Win City Archery Shootoff

Michael Hatfield of Wollaston Playground has won the senior boy's titles in the city-wide archery shootoff sponsored by the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, announces recreation director Robert K. Beniers.

In the competition held at Save Gas and Money ... shop locally.

Merrymount Park, Lorraine Jacobson of O'Rourke won the senior girl's championship.

Junior winners were Scot Batson in the boy's division and Eileen Morrison in the girl's. Scot represented LaBrecque playground while Eileen, O'Rourke.

Beniers presented trophies to the winning archers at Field Day exercises Wednesday at Merrymount Park.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

Forecasting A Risky Business

Every once in a while, something crosses my desk, which says it better than I could ever imagine doing.

These recent comments by Richard Lesh, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the USA, on "Forecasting Technology" is such a piece that is worthy of attention.

"When King Archimedes III of Sparta learned about the catapult, he swore an oath and predicted there would no longer be a place in warfare for human bravery, that was roughly 365 B.C.

"The King has lots of company through history. During the reign of the Emperor Trajan, one of the leading technical experts of the Roman Empire, Sextus Julius Frontinus, advised against research on the weapons of war. He said there was no hope of further improvement.

"The crossbow was supposed to end war. Then the machine gun.

"More recently, a whole host of eminent scientists and weapons experts stated firmly that the atomic bomb couldn't possibly work.

"But why pick on the military? Civilian estimates of future technology have been at least as far off.

"In 1889, the director of the U.S. Patent Office urged President McKinley to close the office, because 'everything that can be invented has been invented'.

"Not long after the birth of the airplane, the astronomer William Pickering wrote, 'The popular mind often pictures gigantic flying machines speeding across the Atlantic carrying innumerable passengers. It seems safe to say that such ideas must be wholly visionary.'

"Wilbur Wright, who presumably believed in airplanes, didn't see any future for the horseless carriage. And Edison was convinced that AC electricity was too dangerous for general use [I wonder if the anti-nuclear power people know that?].

"Resource depletion prediction is a specialty in itself. It's positively amazing the number of times we are supposed to have run out of this-and-that by now.

"A little over 100 years ago, the noted British economist Stanley Jevons predicted an imminent shortage of coal.

"Theodore Roosevelt fretted, in 1908, that we were in danger of exhausting our mineral reserves.

"An expert study in 1929 forecast the end of the world tin reserves in 10 years. A similar study, made in 1944, said the USA would run out of tin, nickel, zinc, lead and manganese by 1973. In 1972, the Club of Rome was forecasting the end of tin supplies in 'only' 15 years.

"There's one school of scientists that predicts the end of civilization through a gradual cooling of the climate, because of man's activities. Another school of scientists predicts the end of civilization through a gradual heating up of the climate, because of man's activities. No doubt they've got some confused souls fearing the occurrence of both disasters simultaneously.

"And so it goes. Throughout history there has been a persistent tendency to underestimate the potential of future technology, and an equally persistent tendency to underestimate the available supplies of raw materials. Today, it seems worse than ever. The country is full of gloom and doom groups who hungrily grasp - and popularize every new intimation of disaster. It must serve some obscure psychological need.

"It would be foolhardy to ignore the existence of technology's dangerous byproducts. But they can - and will - be dealt with intelligently. It would be more foolhardy still to ignore the greater dangers technology has reduced or eliminated.

"I'll put my faith in the resiliency of Mother Nature and the ingenuity of mankind. As for the pessimists, Hamlet said it best: 'There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy.'"

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Inc.]

3 Candidates Nights In Same Evening

It was the kind of night that drives an office-seeker up the wall.

Three Candidates Nights were scheduled last night [Wednesday] within three-quarters of an hour of each other in Braintree, Quincy Point and Wollaston.

The Braintree League of Women Voters had one at 7:15 p.m.; there was one at 1000 Southern Artery at 7:30 p.m.; and the Atlantic Neighborhood Association had one at Wollaston Methodist Church at 8 p.m.

And how did the Congressional candidates plan to make all three?

"Quickly," said Gene Hartigan of Patrick H. McCarthy's campaign team.

"If Jim can get away from Washington, he'll do it," spokesman for Cong. James A. Burke.

promised Eddie Moore.

Many Prizes Offered For Answer

When Will Granite Co-operative Reach $20 Million In Assets?

Sooner or later the Granite Co-operative Bank in Quincy will have assets of $20 million.

What the Bank wants to know is will it be sooner or will it be later. And, they'll pay the person who tells them.

Bernard C. Cohen, president of Granite Cooperative, says the bank's growth has been phenomenal in the last few years. In April of 1975 the bank's assets were $14 million. Now he reports they're well over $17 million and climbing.

How fast are they climbing? That's the question. Anyone who can guess when the bank will reach that $20 million mark will share in some generous treasures.

Tell the bank the year, month, day and hour that its goal will be reached and you'll ride home on a brand new Moped. Yes, Moped. It's one of those motorized bikes you see in Bermuda. Having just been legalized for use in Massachusetts, the bank decided it was a fitting first prize. But there's more [and you don't even have to guess anywhere near the correct day to win].

Go to the Granite Co-operative bank and register in its "birthday book". If the bank gets that $20 million dollar on your birthday you get to split $500. with the others who have the same birthday and took the time to register. Five people would get $100 each and so on.

The person who deposits the $20 millionth dollar at the Granite Co-op will receive from the bank $100 to do with as the person likes [even to deposit towards the bank's $30 millionth dollar]. But that's not all.

Make a deposit on "twenty million day" and you, like everyone else on that day, will get one genuine dollar. One thousand people means one thousand dollars.

The bank's employees are not eligible to win, but...the lucky teller who takes in dollar number $20 million gets $100.

The public relations department of the bank created the contest to alert the public to Granite Co-operative Bank's unusual growth. "We want to show people how safe and solid saving at our bank is," Thomas A. Corcoran, advertising director said. "No co-operative bank has ever lost a penny of any depositors' money," he added, "There's no risk to Granite banking, we've got a 5 1/2% no notice account that makes money for our depositors so fast, and without tying up their money, that we think it's the most popular savings plan in Massachusetts."

Entry [guessing] blanks are available from any of the bank's tellers. If you're over 18 you may enter as often as you wish. Other rules are posted at the bank. Granite Co-op offices are in North Quincy at 440 Hancock St. and in Quincy Center near Grossman's at 100 Granite St.

BANK BY VAN - Donald R. Johnson, assistant treasurer, demonstrates the advantages of the Quincy Savings Bank's new automatic banking machine, called PLUS/24, which offers teller service 24 hours a day, seven days a week at three of the bank's branches. Mobile demonstration van was parked on Hancock St. during the three-day Sidewalk Bazaar.

24-Hour Automatic Teller Service At Quincy Savings

A revolutionary new banking service that allows subscriber to have access to their bank accounts any hour of the day or night, is now available for use at three offices of the Quincy Savings Bank.

The new service is Plus/24, an automated teller machine open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year, including holidays.

The automated teller handles nearly all routine banking needs quickly and easily. For example, a depositor can make deposits to, or withdrawals from either a NOW checking, or a regular savings account. The Plus/24 hour teller can also accept loan payments as well as transfer money from one account to another.

Currently there are three Plus/24 Teller locations, at the main office 1200 Hancock St., Quincy Center, in Quincy Point at 461 Washington St., and in South Quincy at 138 Franklin St.

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has developed a program bringing together representatives of the school systems of Quincy, Weymouth and Hingham and members of the business sector in a collaborative effort to deal with issues important to education for employment.

Primary objective of the program is to increase the awareness of students of the desirability of career and occupational goals and the necessity of preparation for such goals.

The Chamber's Education for Employment Task Force, comprised of educators and employers, has designed a program with two major segments:

The first is to bring educators and employers together to discuss mutual needs in the education for employment process and to increase understanding about each other's worlds.

The second is to provide students with exposure to the health care, manufacturing and business office fields with opportunities to visit facilities in each area.

James Carroll, of the State Street Bank & Trust Co., is chairman of the task force steering committee. Representing the schools are Michael Hurley and Pat Whelan of Quincy, Robert Clark and John Collins of Weymouth and Richard Burrell of Hingham.

the author of 40 technical papers. He is also a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers and the International Scientific Radio Union U.S. Commission II.

CARSON TSAO

Carson K. H. Tsao of Braintree, a principal engineer for Raytheon's Equipment Division, is the inventor of an electronic mine rescue system for locating trapped miners.

Patent for the invention, which consists of low frequency transmitting and receiving devices, was issued recently and assigned to Raytheon.

When deployed underground, the transmitting device sends out a signal which is received and processed on the surface, thus providing information to locate the trapped miners.

The system also can provide two-way communication between the surface and mine and has the means to guide a rescue drill.

Tsao, who is manager of the Ka-band airborne satellite communications terminal program at Raytheon's Equipment Development Laboratories in Sudbury, is married to the former Marion E. Eng of Quincy. They have a daughter, Terry, 17, and a son, Brian, 13.

Mr. Tsao is the sister of Robert Eng of Quincy, former commander of the Massachusetts American Legion.

Tsao, who was born in Shanghai, China, is a 1952 graduate of the University of California and received a masters degree from MIT in 1954.

He was a research engineer at Harvard's Cruft Laboratory from 1954 to 1959 and director of special research projects for Fickard & Burns, Inc., from 1959 until he joined Raytheon in 1962.

He holds five patents and is

Brett Upset By 22-Year-Old

Morrissey, Burke, McDonald Win

By TOM HENSHAW

JAMES A. BURKE

MICHAEL W. MORRISSEY

GEORGE B. McDONALD

Rep. Joseph E. Brett's long political career appeared to have ended Tuesday when he was upset by 22-year-old Michael W. Morrissey for the Democratic nomination in the 3rd Norfolk District.

Morrissey drew 2,373 votes to 1,525 for Brett, 69, who was seeking his 10th two-year term in the Legislature. John McIntyre, 49, of Squantum, a third candidate, had only 478.

Cong. James A. Burke prevailed by more than 11,000 votes over Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph, who gave the nine-term congressional veteran his sternest test in years.

Burke, 66, gathered 43,939 votes and McCarthy, 30, had 32,330.

Young Morrissey happily hung a sign on a fence on East Squantum St. near the Myles Standish School, Squantum, after the results were in. It said: "Good morning, thank you".

He pulled a good vote in the Squantum area.

Elated, he said early today: "I feel tired, but I feel great. I'm happy and grateful to all those who worked with me and voted for me."

"This was not a bitter campaign. Mr. Brett and I did not clash over personalities."

"I made a promise to be a full-time representative at all-times. I'm going to campaign actively for the final election in November and will keep my promise to be a full-time representative."

His opponent will be Republican Jens Thornton.

In a graceful concession speech, McCarthy said:

"In 45 years of public service, Cong. Burke has done a lot of good for a lot of people and I mean that. He's had many accomplishments and achievements and tonight he harvested his just rewards. He earned his victory tonight."

James J. Collins of Milton and George B. McDonald of Quincy defended their posts as county commissioners against two challengers, Collins easily and McDonald in a close race with Edmund F. Harrington of Quincy.

The county wide count, with Weymouth missing, was Collins 31,039, McDonald 25,004, Harrington 22,151, and Paul E. Barry of Quincy 19,192.

In Quincy the results were McDonald 6,599, Harrington 5,475, Barry 5,139 and Collins 3,726.

The Quincy voter turnout, apparently spurred on by the Morrissey-Brett and Burke-McCarthy races as well as the summery weather, was considerably higher than that predicted by City Clerk John Gillis.

A total of 15,965 showed up at the polls in the city, some 33.1 percent of those registered. Gillis had predicted 20 per cent.

LaRaia, Tobin Clash

Tax Rate To Be Set Next Week, But How High Will It Go?

The Quincy tax rate probably will be announced early next week although the Mayor and the City Council can't agree on how much it should be - or who gets the blame for it.

"I plan to announce the tax rate after the next City Council meeting," Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia told The Sun Tuesday. "The tax bills will go out by Oct. 15, payable Nov. 15."

"We have delayed it as long as we can to account for as much revenue as we can to offset spending and keep the increase as low as possible."

The Mayor said he still feels the increase will be at least $25 per thousand.

The City Council still says it doesn't have to be that much. And it now has less than a week to prove it.

Council President Arthur H. Tobin told a hearing of the Council's Finance Committee Monday night that he has conferred with high state officials and he is hopeful that the state might provide some relief.

He said the LaRaia administration should have done the same thing a long time ago. "There should have been some positive action by the present administration to go to Boston and see what areas we could seek to correct this situation," he said. "I don't think that has been done. There has been a lot of talk but no action."

"After listening to all the talk I decided to institute some action on my own. The individuals in very high levels of the state government I have talked to, inform me they will get back to me in a very short period of time but for me not to discuss it."

Tobin's efforts are centered around moneys owed by the state to Quincy City Hospital for services to general welfare patients.

"The deficit at the Hospital wasn't caused because receipts were over estimated," said Tobin. "It was because after the figures were established and accepted by the state, the rules of the ball game were changed."

"Through no fault of any previous administration and through no fault of any member of this City Council and through no fault of the hospital board of managers or city auditor, it was

Joe Collins In His Biggest Battle:

'We're Going To Plug In And Do The Best We Can'

By TOM HENSHAW

Joseph P. Collins, who defeated alcoholism himself and then went on to help others fight the same affliction, successfully held up under nearly an hour of praise heaped on him in the City Council Chamber last week.

Collins, 46, who lives at 109 Oxenbridge Rd, Wollaston, is resigning as director of the Quincy Detoxification Center at Faxon House to take on another fight. He is a patient at the Sidney Farber Cancer Center in Boston.

He was a co-founder of the Detox Center at 114 Whitwell St., which was opened Aug. 28, 1972 and has seen 6,252 men and women alcoholics pass through with a 35-40 per cent recovery rate, the highest in Massachusetts.

"Few people can say they have helped their fellow men like Joe has done," said Walter J. Hannon, a classmate of Collins at North Quincy High School and the former Mayor who appointed him director of Faxon House.

"In April of 1971 an order came before the City Council for the demolition of Faxon House and I asked that the order be held. I didn't see any reason why a beautiful old building should be torn down to make space for probably 12 or 15 automobiles. There must have been a better and higher use for that building."

"In the ensuing months, Norman Forde and Joe Collins among many others asked that this building be turned into a detoxification center, the first on the South Shore and the second in the state. With a lot of help from an awful lot of people, Faxon House was officially opened.

"Thousands of people have come and gone through the Faxon House. They've been cured. They've been helped. They've been counseled to go back out in society to lead useful, productive lives."

"I had the honor in 1974 of appointing Joe Collins director of Faxon House. Needless to say, like everything else he did in his life, he did an outstanding job as director."

"We grew up together in Wollaston. We went to high school together. Joe was an outstanding football player at North Quincy High School. I can remember so very well Thanksgiving Day in 1948."

"Pres Hobson wrote an article in the Patriot Ledger that said North had no right to be on the field with Quincy. In fact, they'd be better off if they forfeited the game and just went away. Joe Collins played the greatest game of his life that day and North went on to win 8-6."

"Later in life Joe faced another great battle. He faced the battle with alcoholism all by himself. He didn't have a squad of football players with him. Many said he would never make it. But there were a few of us who had a great deal of faith in him and he did make it. From that time on, Joe devoted most of his waking hours to helping men and women who suffered

New Germantown Youth Center Opens

The Germantown Youth Action Association announces the opening of a new youth service center at 9 Bicknell St.

In July, using a grant from the Department of Mental Health, Division of Drug Rehabilitation, a youth director was hired and operating plans that had been two years in the waiting went into effect. Use of the center will be limited to young people aged 12 to 20, living in public housing in the Germantown area.

During the summer, with the support and donations from neighborhood people and businesses, the center was painted and furnished. In addition to providing a much needed place for the young people to go for recreation, the center will also try to provide the means and facilities for area youth to meet their own social needs. In order to provide these services a network of communication is being established with local social service agencies.

Officers of the Germantown Youth Action Association are Steven Melzard, president;

Doreen Kennedy, vice president; Sandra Wright, secretary and Mona Boddie, treasurer.

A week-long membership drive will be conducted Sept. 20-24 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the youth center.

Howard Gunnison Named To Cemetery Board

Howard L. Gunnison Jr., 39, of 563 Furnace Brook Parkway, has been named to the Cemetery Board of Managers, succeeding Bernard Tobin, who requested that he not be reappointed.

Gunnison, a native of York, Me., who came to Quincy in 1967, is a part owner of Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy. He is a graduate of the New England Institute of Mortuary Science.

He is a member and former director of the South Shore

Viking Club, a member of Stenkil Lodge Independent Order of Vikings, Vasa Order, and first vice president of the Swedish Square and Compass Club of Boston.

He is also a 32nd degree Mason with the York and Scottish Rite Bodies and Aleppo Temple Shrine of Boston and a member of the Rural Lodge of Masons.

Gunnison and his wife, Melba, have three children, Cynthia, Wendy and Kristen.

Announcement Around Sept. 29

City Awaits 'Swine Flu' Vaccine To Schedule Clinics

Firm information on Quincy's role in the national immunization program against A New Jersey 76, popularly known as "swine flu", will be available about Sept. 29, according to Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon.

The vaccine, supplied by the federal government, will be administered free of charge at a clinic in the J. F. Kennedy Health Center and distributed free to physicians for patients who choose to have their family doctors get the vaccinations.

"I will select a date for the clinic once we get a commitment on the vaccine," said Dr. Solomon. "We will distribute information on the program about two or three weeks prior to the clinic. I would anticipate making the announcement about Sept. 29."

The first shipments of vaccine that Quincy will receive is the "bivalent flu" type designed to combat both the swine flu and the so-called A-Victorian flu, the kind that appeared last fall and winter.

It is recommended that the bivalent vaccine be given to high risk patients such as senior citizens and those with lung problems.

Later shipments will contain monovalent flu vaccine against only the swine flu.

The swine flu, which first was identified at Fort Dix, N.J., where 500 people came down with it, is so-called because it is a virus known for many years to have been the cause of illness in pigs.

Ground Broken For $100,000

Mound St. Beach Project

Ground was broken Monday for a $100,000 renovation project that will expand Mound St. Beach in Quincy Point by 2.4 acres, or roughly five times the current size of the recreation area.

The cost is 50 per cent reimbursable by federal funds from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

The ground-breaking was attended by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, Planning Director L. Norman Lundin, Executive Director Richard J. Koch of the Park and Recreation Board, Theodore DeCristofaro and Mrs. Phyllis Bagen of the Ward 2 Civic Association.

Koch said it is hoped to complete the project by next May with sanding the final phase.

Not Media's Job

Sun, Ledger, WJDA Turn Down Request To Probe Mayor's Appointments

The City Council's Oversight Committee apparently has run into a blank wall in its efforts to have The Quincy Sun and four other media organizations take over its investigation of some of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's appointments.

The Sun, the Patriot Ledger and Radio WJDA all turned down the offer to serve on a probe panel. Chairman James A. Sheets, however, isn't taking their no for an answer until he receives an official response to letters he sent to them on Monday.

The committee met with LaRaia Aug. 26 in a public session which broke up with the Mayor charging "inquisition" after aggressive questioning by Councillors Arthur A. Tobin and Dennis E. Harrington.

Henry Bosworth, editor and publisher of the Quincy Sun said:

"It just doesn't seem that is our job.

"We at The Sun have covered these meetings and taped them ourselves. We have used in our stories the quotes, the questions and answers from the tapes.

"I feel we have covered the story up to this point to the best of our ability. I really don't see what would be gained by this.

"A newspaper certainly has a right to conduct its own investigation, but at this particular point, at least, it is the oversight committee's business to investigate and the newspaper's business to report the progress of the investigation."

Said James D. Asher Jr., owner of WJDA:

"We have received no official invitation to take part. If and when we do, I think our answer will be that this is not a proper way to conduct the study.

"We are in the news reporting business. If we were to be involved in the study it would hamper our ability to report objectively on it.

"If they want to conduct any sort of investigation, I think it is the job of the City Council."

Donald C. Wilder, editor of the Patriot Ledger, added:

"I feel most strongly that the function of a newspaper is to report the news for its readers, not to make news while serving others."

Editor of the Boston Globe and Boston Herald American, who were also asked to participate in the probe, were non-committal in their answers.

The request for journalistic intervention in the Oversight Committee's problems also were opposed by Councillors Paul D. Harold and Warren A. Powers.

Said Harold:

"I voted against the proposal because I wanted a citizens' committee, not just an authorized press conference. The media asks the Mayor these questions as part of their regular routine; they don't need our authorization.

"I think a citizens committee would be effective in getting answers to questions left unanswered from the Aug. 26 meeting. It only makes sense that the Mayor would be more candid with a citizens committee than with a group of reporters.

"A serious mistake has been made, but it is not my desire to rub anyone's nose in it.

To Cover Wide Range

S.S. Chamber Sponsoring Consumer Affairs Series For Working Women

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will hold a series of five sessions for working women designed to increase knowledge and skill in a wide range of consumer affairs.

The series, on five consecutive Wednesdays beginning Sept. 15, will be conducted by Linda Dixon, Real Estate and Marketing Consultant, specializing in women's programs. Sessions will be held from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the Chamber's conference room, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

Miss Dixon says today's woman recognized her economic power and wants more knowledge about spending, saving and investing her earnings.

"She's ready and willing to take an active role in the management of her own financial affairs," she said.

She pointed out that the series, "Woman: The Competent Consumer," will help build skills, confidence and self-assurance in a number of areas of consumer concerns.

"The participants," she said, "will have an opportunity to analyze their financial priorities, compare alternatives, hear what the experts have to say and begin to set long-range goals.

The first session, dealing with banking and credit, will explore in detail the questions of choosing a bank, the various savings plans and checking account options offered and the types and costs of loans. Also, credit cards and how to establish, maintain and defend one's credit rating.

The session on housing will discuss home ownership compared with renting, the pros and cons of condominiums, and the selection of an apartment to fit one's lifestyle.

The third session will try to answer questions on the types of insurance available, the benefits of insurance as a source of credit or retirement, plus tax considerations, gifts and legacies. Stocks, bonds, mutual funds and the selection of a broker will be covered in the fourth session, while wills and trusts will be the subject of the final class briefing.

Women may select the sessions they wish to attend. Information may be obtained by writing the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Road, Quincy, MA 02169 or by calling 479-1111. Business firms are invited to enroll their employees.

Cerebral Palsy Benefit Autumn Dance Saturday

The third annual Autumn Dance to benefit the Cerebral Palsy woodworking program will be held Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Bryan VFW Post, Broad St., Quincy.

The woodworking program, which is a storefront activity located at 131 Billings Rd., North Quincy, provides a learning situation for multiply handicapped adults who have been through the system of rehabilitation and rejected because they are not gainfully employable.

The program which is in its third year of operation was funded through a grant from the Department of Education, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Division of Occupational Education. That grant expired in 1975 and the CP agency has been supporting the activity since that time.

"Funds raised as a result of the dance will be designated for the woodworking program solely," according to Sabina Stenberg, chairwoman of the event. She issued an appeal to merchants, individuals, groups etc., for donations of wood scraps, tools, paints, varnishes, etc., which can be used to make wall racks, magazine racks, plaques, deacon benches, end tables, coffee tables, etc.

Deena Wier is co-chairwoman of the dance.

There will be a number of door prizes.

Local LPN's Hear State President

District 17, Licensed Practical Nurses of Massachusetts, was scheduled to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the South Shore National Bank board room, Chestnut St., Quincy Sq.

All LPN's in the South Shore area are invited to attend. Mrs. Alice O'Connell, state president, was the speaker.

One of the prime concerns of the association this year is the probability that continued education points will be required for license renewal in the near future. In order to help meet this requirement, District 17 will offer a three-part lecture series on the heart to be held in Quincy beginning in October. All nurses are eligible to participate but re-registration is required. Continued education points will be given to those completing the lecture series.

For more information contact Mrs. Leona Knowles, President of District 17, 35 Whitcomb Terr., Weymouth.

District 17 holds its monthly meetings on the third Wednesday of each month and welcomes new members.

Bartholomew Gunning Quincy AMVETS Commander

Bartholomew J. Gunning III will be installed as commander of Quincy Memorial Post 7, Amvets, for 1976-77 at ceremonies Oct. 22 in the Post Quarters at the Fore River Clubhouse.

WHEN FAMILIES BANK WITH YOU FOR 4 GENERATIONS, THAT'S A PROUD TRADITION.

We're very proud to be able to make that claim. Quincy Cooperative Bank has been in business since 1889, serving many of the same families today that began banking with us way back then. Their loyalty is a great vote of confidence in us, and we're working hard to increase our services, facilities and abilities in order to meet banking needs today and in the future.

As proud as QCB is about having 4 generations of families do their banking with us, we'll be even prouder when your children and their children choose to follow the tradition of their parents. And you know something...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

SUNBEAMS

The Phone Rang And . . .

By HENRY BOSWORTH

I feel a little like the skunk at the lawn party. Just because I was polite and tried to answer the questions of a Boston Globe reporter. But she did a little tailoring to fit the story she was looking for.

And, in doing so, thrust a journalistic knife into Congressman James Burke and his administrative aide, Edward Moore, and left my fingerprints all over it.

That's how I feel about it—even if she winds up winning a Pulitzer prize. And here's why:

Last week I received a telephone call from her regarding that now famous full-page ad in The Sun's Thursday edition in support of Congressman Burke's re-election.

The ad, signed by a "non-authorized committee" also appeared in several other weekly newspapers and in The Patriot Ledger and Brockton Enterprise.

The ad was from "The Committee To Promote Jobs-Construction and the Economy" and signed by Thomas J. Geraghty, 1765 Canton Ave., Milton, as treasurer.

The ad carried the note: "This non-authorized committee was organized and filed in full compliance with the regulations of the Federal Election Commission."

Last Saturday morning's issue of The Boston Globe carried a page-one story saying flatly the ad "was actually placed by Burke's administrative assistant, according to the newspaper." [The Sun].

It went on to say that in an interview, I said Edward Moore, Congressman Burke's aide, brought the ad in.

I never said it. That was her conclusion.

There was no formal interview. She telephoned with some questions. I tried to answer them to the best of my recollection.

I explained to her that the time in question was hectic with a lot of people coming and going including political candidates and their representatives.

I confirmed that Mr. Moore had been in the office that day but that it was nothing unusual for him to be there. He drops in fairly frequently as do a lot of other people.

"We have a witness who saw Ed Moore hand you the ad," the reporter said.

I told her I did not recall Mr. Moore handing me an ad. I said that Mr. Moore had "something rolled up" when I saw him.

I told her it was a chaotic scene in The Sun office with much activity and confusion. Trying to remember who was there and who did what while they were there was pretty difficult.

"I know how it is," she purred. "I used to work on a weekly."

Her story in The Globe said flatly that I said the ad was placed by Mr. Moore. I did not say that. That was her interpretation.

I told her that as far as I was concerned, the ad was PLACED by "The Committee to Promote Jobs-Construction and the Economy". I told her I had a check bearing that committee's name and signed by Thomas J. Geraghty as treasurer.

I told her I did not see who brought the ad through the door. I said I could not say for sure who delivered it. I did agree Mr. Moore COULD have been the one who brought it in but in all the confusion, I could not be positive.

As far as The Quincy Sun is concerned, the person who PAYS for the ad is the one who PLACES it. Whoever DELIVERS it, is not necessarily the one who PLACES it.

I was sure who paid for it. I was not sure who delivered it.

The reporter, in my book, took a few liberties as far as quoting me is concerned.

I talked with another Globe reporter Saturday afternoon and took issue with the story—specifically that part flatly saying The Sun said the ad was placed by Mr. Moore.

I told that reporter that if I had to testify on a witness stand I could not positively say Mr. Moore brought the ad into The Sun office.

And that never did I tell the first reporter that Mr. Moore had PLACED the ad.

In the first edition of The Sunday Globe, that correction was made. But in later Sunday editions it was cut down to say I was "unsure whether Mr. Moore delivered the ad."

But, meanwhile on Saturday afternoon, Congressman Burke arrived in Quincy and says Mr. Moore DROPPED the ad off to both The Sun and to The Patriot Ledger.

"There was nothing clandestine about it," he said.

He called all the fuss over the ad "nitpicking".

He said Mr. Moore met Mr. Geraghty in an East Milton coffee shop and agreed—as a favor—to deliver the ads to The Sun and Patriot Ledger which are located around the corner from one another. And, around the corner from Mr. Burke's Quincy office.

Now, at this point, The Globe reporter is looking pretty good. Ah! Ha! Ed Moore DID deliver the ads to The Sun and to The Patriot Ledger.

"See, I told you so," she can now crow.

And, I must concede that she dug in and came up with a pretty interesting story.

O.K.! So why do I have my dander up? Because I never said Ed Moore didn't deliver the ad. But I also never said Ed Moore placed the ad or delivered it.

I just don't like the idea of someone planting words in my mouth—regardless of how a story finally ends. If she wants to put two and two together and come up with four—that's her four and it's o.k. with me. But don't put two and two together and say it's my four.

It is interesting to note that The Sunday Herald Advertiser quoted me as saying: "There were a lot of workers from different campaigns in the office the day the ad was delivered. Eddie Moore was there. But there was great chaos in the office and I can't say whether Moore brought the ad in or not."

Well, thank God there's still a Herald American-Advertiser around.

You know, if Eddie Moore himself tells me he handed me that ad, I'll believe him—but I still won't be sure. It was that kind of a day.

Eddie Moore is a well known figure around Quincy Sq. He's tall and stands out in any crowd. He has an excellent reputation.

The Sun's and The Patriot Ledger's offices are on street floors in the heart of Quincy Sq. with heavy vehicular and pedestrian traffic. If he thought he was doing anything wrong, why would he risk being seen? He would have had someone less known deliver the ads.

Frankly, I think someone is trying to build a scandal out of a technicality.

But this whole matter raises an interesting point.

If unauthorized committees are required to place ads without first consulting a candidate, what protection is there for the candidate if there are inaccuracies in the ad?

Such an ad placed to help a candidate could boomerang and open him to all kinds of counter charges from his opponents. And cost him votes.

And, why couldn't a real devious group organize and place ads with deliberate falsehoods to purposely damage the candidate they seem to be supporting? Sort of political cloak-and-dagger dirty tricks.

A candidate should have the right to see an ad beforehand to correct any inaccuracies to protect himself or herself.

This law could be a dangerous one in that respect.

Maybe unauthorized committees should be banned, period.

Anyway, it's something to think about.

Meanwhile, from now on, I must remind myself not to be in when certain people call.

decided general welfare payments would not be reimbursed to cities.

"Only communities with public hospitals are being penalized. Communities with no public hospitals do not have the problems we do. That was the argument I presented to the state officials."

"There was one other area we discussed but I don't know that I am at liberty to talk about it. It is in an area that, if we successfully presented our case, we would get credit to pick up another $450,000."

"Taking the two areas combined we are talking of receiving credits approximating $2 million. I don't know if we can get it but at least we tried."

Later, Tobin said the second area in which $450,000 in credits could be picked up involved the collection of excise taxes.

Such moneys owed to the city need not be collected to have an effect on the tax rate. They need only to be credited to expected revenues on the city's balance sheet, a move which requires state approval.

The City Hospital deficit was $3,908,000 at the end of the fiscal year, June 30. Not all of it is in uncollected state bills. The City Council placed that figure at about $1.5 million; LaRaia at about $1 million.

"We have asked the hospital controller to list the amounts outstanding on June 30," said the Mayor. "When we get the list we will be able to determine what percentage we can realistically collect during the coming year."

"They have banded back and forth up to $2 million they say is owed by the state. These figures have not been substantiated."

"The amount of money the state owes us, even if it is taken into consideration, will not substantially reduce the projected $25 increase that we feel is approximately a realistic figure."

"Even if we got up to 100 per cent of what the City Council is looking for, the money owed to the city from all sources, it would not substantially reduce the tax rate increase."

"Besides, it is unlikely that the state will reduce its outstanding debt to the city, judging by its past practices with all hospitals. If it did it for Quincy then it would have to do it for all communities."

LaRaia said it is not unusual to have a deficit of nearly $4 million at the Hospital at the end of a fiscal year.

He, and Budget Coordinator Sarah Saccone disclosed that the deficit at the end of June, 1975, was $3,964,000 and, on Dec. 31, 1972, before the fiscal year was changed, it was $3,605,000.

"The last time it was below $3 million for a 12-month fiscal year," said Miss Saccone, "was on Dec. 31, 1969, when it was about $2,900,000."

The heart of the problem, said LaRaia, is that Quincy has had to spend its reserves in order to operate.

"In the past few years," he said, "whatever balance and reserve we had, such as $3 million in investment money, has been depleted to such a point that we are now looking to other areas such as old accounts which in private industry would be called bad debts."

"Although some are collectable, it would be foolhardy to consider these funds as reserves. You can't operate a business on the basis of, 'Now we are going to collect all our bad debts.'

"Would you believe that one of the few areas left that the city can rely on is uncollected money brought about by a general economic situation which leaves people unable to pay?"

"That in itself should prove to the tax payers the situation we have in the city."

Mayor LaRaia further explained the hospital deficit in a statement issued Monday morning:

"There are two financial problems at the Hospital, both of which work against the taxpayer."

"The receipts of the Hospital were estimated to be $19 million. The actual receipts were $16.5 million. This overestimate in receipts of $2.5 million was used to lower the tax rate last year but now must be realized in this year's tax rate."

"This amount is equal to $10 on the tax rate."

[Council President Tobin, however, disputes the word "overestimate", saying it was simply the state's withholding of general welfare payments that upset the balance.]

"The second problem," LaRaia continued, "is that of a short budget last year."

"The Hospital ran out of funds in the late Spring and the City was faced with funding an additional $800,000 to the Hospital in order to keep it in operation through June 30, 1976."

"This amount of money is equal to $3 on the tax rate and has to be made up this year."

"In regard to the estimated receipts of the Hospital to be used in the tax rate computation this year, this administration will be realistic in the amounts anticipated so that a deficit in the amount of $2.5 million will not appear again."

"The budget at the Hospital was passed basically as it was submitted to the Mayor and Council. It is not incumbent upon the Hospital to live within what they requested."

"Three new people in the upper level of management at the Hospital should bring about an acceptable financial balance sheet at the Hospital as well as budgeting accountability."

Both the Mayor and City Auditor Charles L. Shea spoke of the role of Norfolk County in setting the Quincy tax rate.

"The Norfolk County budget has not yet passed," said Shea. "The original estimate of what we would owe the county is based on the county budget as submitted to the legislature."

"I have been told that the budget has not yet been approved but I have been further told it was cut almost $2 million which means if we wait until the county budget is passed we'd receive an adjustment which would reduce our county assessment."

"We are also in the throes of trying to settle the final adjudication of the amount the county owes us as a result of the Brookline-Weymouth case in which the county was found to have overcharged communities in their assessments."

"The county commissioners gave us a partial award of $604,000."

Mayor LaRaia said the city "should receive approximately $201,000 this year based on figures from the county commissioners' office. This receipt will benefit the city in the computation of this year's tax rate."

The Monday night hearing of the Finance Committee also brought out that a number of

Coast Guard Abandons
Search For Tingey

The Coast Guard abandoned its search for Richard H. Tingey, 52, of Squanto Rd., Merrymount, nuclear power manager for Bethlehem Steel Co., missing with his 38-foot sloop "Trani" since Sept. 6 when he sailed alone from the Quincy Yacht Club.

"Trani" was last sighted at 6 p.m. Sept. 7 proceeding on a southerly course off Monomet but the Coast Guard search extended over a wide area to a point some 180 miles off Cape Cod.

Later, the mystery deepened when Dr. Joseph Goldman of 39 Whitney Rd., Quincy, who was familiar with Tingey's sloop, reported sighting a yacht that resembled "Trani" sailing off Sea Cliff on Long Island, N.Y.

PLAN TO FENCE QUARRY

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced his intention to build a fence around Fallon's Lower Quarry in West Quincy, which was being drained in a search for the body of William Lakti, 45, believed to have drowned.

"When I saw the drop of 100 feet from the edge to the bottom I got goose pimples," said Della Chiesa after visiting the quarry during the draining operation.

ALL JUNIOR BACKFIELD

LOAN AUTHORIZED

The City Council voted 6-3 to authorize Mayor Della Chiesa to seek permission from the State Emergency Finance Board to borrow up to $800,000 outside the normal debt limit for the proposed "west of tracks" development in Quincy Center.

Some $675,000 was earmarked for the "west of tracks" development while the rest would go to construct a parking area in Norfolk Downs.

Voting against the authorization were Councillors Carl W. Anderson, Joseph E. Brett and Charles L. Shea.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

The Wisdom Of Big Brother

For all of us who have wondered whatever happened to Dick and Jane since we last encountered them in our first-grade reader: They are alive and well and editing pamphlets for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

In evidence, I quote from an OSHA booklet entitled, "Safety With Beef Cattle":

"The best way to not have an accident is to prevent it. Be careful around the farm. You can keep an accident from happening by following safety rules."

"Hazards are one of the main causes of accidents. A hazard is anything that is dangerous."

Some other gems from the same booklet:

"Don't get too tired. You can get too tired when working with cattle."

"Watch your step. Many people trip over animals and fall."

"Be patient, talk softly around the cows."

[And carry a big stick?]

"When you are hauling cattle, do not put too many in the truck."

"When you are working around wastes... you need plenty of fresh air."

"Be careful that you do not fall into the manure pits."

This sage advice—written at the reading level of your average cow—is part of a series of pamphlets that will cost the taxpayers about $500,000.

OSHA is having the last laugh after all.

While OSHA demonstrates a firm grasp of the obvious, the Internal Revenue Service is having the opposite trouble. In a random test, IRS taxpayer assistance personnel answered typical taxpayer questions incorrectly one out of four times, according to Rep. Charles A. Vanik (D-Ohio).

The staff of his Ways and Means Oversight subcommittee conducted the survey. In all, they asked 124 questions and got 32 wrong answers.

And that's comparatively good. The internal IRS survey conducted last year turned up an error rate of 72 percent.

But IRS, too, has the last laugh. If YOU make an error on your tax return, it's YOUR responsibility. And if incorrect IRS advice causes you to make the error, it's STILL your responsibility. Heads they win, tails you lose. Maybe the answer is to crossbreed the people who write IRS forms with the people who write OSHA pamphlets.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency has discovered—at a cost of only $4.2 million—that poorly tuned engines generate more pollution than properly tuned engines.

Speaking of pollution, EPA still provides subsidized parking for its employees, as do many other federal agencies. It's a practice EPA does not recommend for other employers. Too many cars in the center of town cause pollution.

And speaking of disapproved practices, the U.S. Customs Service recently nabbed an expensive foreign car that a government official was trying to smuggle into the country. Seems it didn't meet emission and safety standards. Guess which agency the official works for?

Not to be outdone, that other diligent guardian of our safety [if not our sanity], the Consumer Product Safety Commission, is still laboring away trying to write a standard that will prevent matches from burning your fingers [or much of anything else]. But not to worry: It took three years to produce its first standard, dealing with swimming pool slides.

That's enough for now, folks. Keep smiling through your tears. And until we meet again, try hard not to fall into those manure pits.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

Making Agreements

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

One of the trickiest obstacles to a good relationship between a man and a woman is the unwillingness of one or both to make agreements. Trickiness, I call it, because it is a crafty way of avoiding one's responsibility to the relationship. Here's the way it works... "Jim, when can we talk ... we've got to get this settled about the evenings I'm left alone... I've got to know what I'm going to do." Susan is half in tears and her voice quivers as she tries to talk with Jim on his way out the door. "Do whatever you want to do," he calls back over his shoulder.

"Do whatever you want to do" ... but what she wants he won't let her ... she wants a one to one adult, happy, companionship with this man. He's making this impossible, because he won't make an agreement with her regarding their leisure time together. She has options ... she can find something else to do ... play tennis, take a course, ceramics, have an affair with another man. But that's not what she wants, nor are any of those what she thought she was bargaining for when she married Jim. She thought she was marrying a companion ... a Total Man ... not a man who would in a short time be avoiding her and leaving her alone evenings. Her whole being is crying out for some kind of agreement between herself and Jim.

This non-agreement attitude in relationships is destructive. No total man can long endure it ... no total woman can. Why should either have to? It represents a negative attitude toward the relationship and an avoidance of life as a whole. It is a coward's way of dealing with life. It happens continually when two people do not reason through the difference at issue between them ... whether pertaining to money, the nature of their relationship with each other, how their evenings will be spent, sexual likes and dislikes, where you will live, work schedules, home chores, religious practices, visitation of parents ... you name it, even the simplest thing, such as what we shall do on Saturday night, calls for an agreement.

Agreements mean the avoidance of misunderstandings and suspicions, the reduction of frustration and anger. Agreements mean the relationship is functioning on the adult level of reason, of honest love and companionship. Agreements mean that the relationship is cherished by both persons, that the elements of reciprocation and fair play are prevailing.

Refusal of one or both to make agreements indicates a fear on that person's part of being alone ... or of a self attitude which says, "You don't count ... my idea will prevail ... you'll bow to me if you want any part with me ... you'll surrender to me." No self-respecting person can accept that ... only the masochist or the martyr.

How does a person deal with a non-agreeing partner? Try to reason with the partner ... find the most opportune time to talk it out. If she/he won't talk you may have no choice but to withhold something in the relationship which the partner values, thus forcing negotiation. You may even need a third party, a counselor, or a good friend whom you both respect, and who can lead you to a reciprocal agreement on the conflicting issue.

Remember ... without agreements reached to the mutual advantage of each, the relationship will be strained perhaps even to the point of breakdown ... maybe "irretrievable breakdown."

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Must Vet Declare VA Educational Benefits?

"Does a veteran, now a student, have to declare the VA educational benefits as part of gross income on the Federal Income Tax return?"

"No," answered the ViPhone volunteer. There is no need to declare benefits administered by the Veterans Administration. They are excludable from taxation under Section 61 of the Internal Revenue Code, and a veteran need not report this income on his or her federal tax return.

This question is one of many now being received by the Voter Information Phone, a statewide free public service of the League of Women Voters Lotte E. Scharfman Memorial Fund. Individuals with questions about government - local, state, or national - may call the ViPhone

S.S. Baptist Temple Seniors Hold Picnic Worship Service On George's Island

George's Island in Boston Harbor was the scene of a picnic-worship service recently as the Senior Citizen's Tag Ministry of the South Shore Baptist Temple held it's monthly outing.

The group of more than 50 senior citizens, with Rev. and Mrs. Larry Neff boarded the yacht Bostonian for the 45-minute excursion to the site of Historic Fort Warren.

Mrs. Ruth McLaughlin was coordinator of the program held on the grounds of the island fort, once used as a civil war prison.

A brief service was held at the Fort Chapel.

The Church, located at 40 West St., West Quincy, has a rapidly expanding and active Senior Citizens program, and provides free transportation to and from the church on Sunday mornings.

Rev. Neff announced that next month's activity will be a trip to Boston's Public Gardens and will include a ride on the Swan Boats.

All senior citizens are welcome to attend. More information may be obtained by contacting the South Shore Baptist Temple Church office, [471-1175]

Captain Allen Rustad Assumes Salvation Army Command

Captain Allen Rustad has assumed command of The Salvation Army Corps Community Center, Baxter St., Quincy.

There will be a "Public Reception" to welcome Captain and Mrs. Allen Rustad and their family, at The Salvation Army tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Captain and Mrs. Rustad, had been the Corps Officers of the Indiana, Pennsylvania Salvation Army for the past four years prior to the appointment to Quincy.

During that time in addition to all regular activities, Captain Rustad was instrumental in beginning a Friendly Visitors program, designed to provide friendship for shut-ins, and Community Sponsors, as aid to the court system and the offender.

Mrs. Rustad was the co-chairman of the YMCA Good Friday Prayer Breakfast, and was active in Church Women United and served as president of the Indiana County Soroptimist Club.

Captain Rustad is a native of New Britain, Conn., and his wife, the former Dorothy Huzhes, was born and raised in

New York City. Previous appointments include Pittsburgh, Pa. and Plainfield, N.J. Divisional Youth Secretary for Northern New England, and Home Officer for the Salvation Army School for Officers' Training.

Captain and Mrs. Rustad have two sons, Scott, 9, who attends Wollaston Elementary School, and Fred, 12, a student at Central Junior High School.

Delahunt To Speak At Ward 2 Association Meeting

Ward 2 Civic Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd, Quincy Point.

Guest speaker will be Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt.

The meeting was originally scheduled for Tuesday, but was postponed because of the primary elections.

The association's 10th anniversary dinner dance will be held Saturday, Oct. 23, at the Fore River Clubhouse. Dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Ticket chairmen are Betty DeCristofaro and Phyllis Bagen. Members wishing to be listed as a sponsor for the evening should contact association treasurer Dorothy Eaton.

City GOP Committee To Meet

The Quincy Republican City Committee will meet at The Hollow, Adams St., Monday Sept. 20, at 8:15 p.m.

Each of the six ward committees will also meet at the same place at 7:30 p.m., according to Leo F. Meady, city chairman.

Any interested Quincy Republican, or Independent, voters who would like to actively work with the party organization for the presidential election Nov. 2 are invited to attend the meeting.

Once you know the facts, there's no way you can vote for a State-run Power Authority.

No way.

Fact 1. If the State takes over the electric business your towns and communities stand to lose millions of dollars in property taxes.

Fact 2. There are no competent studies which prove that you will save one dime on your electric bill. In fact, you'll probably pay more. That's why other states rejected similar plans.

Fact 3. New power plants must be built. Yet the State has an almost perfect record of coming in late and over budget on everything it constructs. That's one reason for your ridiculously high State taxes.

Fact 4. Look at the way the State runs the MBTA, State pension funds, welfare, then ask yourself how they would run a complex business like electricity!

Fact 5. When a Nor'easter hits your area and your lights go out, whom do you call? The electric companies' ability to meet these crises is unmatched. Would the State be there in a big storm, climbing the poles at 3 AM?

Fact 6. If your electric company wants a rate increase it has to go before a government board to plead its case. A State-run power authority could raise the rates anytime it pleased, with absolutely no appeal.

A State Power Authority is a dangerous experiment. And once it's in, there's no turning back. You're going to have to learn to live with it. And you're not going to like it.

Don't let the State take the power from the people. Vote against creating another Politically-Appointed State Bureaucracy.

William McSweeney Retires From Navy

Yeoman First Class William J. McSweeney Jr. of 10 Windsor Rd., Quincy, has retired from the Navy at the South Weymouth Naval Air Station to end a 20-year career.

McSweeney, whose father lives at 336 Atlantic St., North Quincy, was graduated from North Quincy High School two years before starting his Navy career in 1955.

He enlisted in Boston and completed basic training at Newport, R.I. This cleared the way for duty tours in Hawaii, San Diego, Japan, Glenview, Ill., a return to Boston as a recruiter and, from April 1974 to his retirement, South Weymouth.

While at South Weymouth, McSweeney was assigned to the personnel office. His activities there earned him a letter of commendation from the Chief of Naval Reserve for "service to the customer" above and beyond the call of duty.

Her Secret: 'I Enjoy People'

Mrs. Ruby Bigelow A Young 100

Mrs. Ruby C. Bigelow of 42 Lunt St., North Quincy, celebrated her 100th birthday at her home Sept. 2.

The party, given by members and friends of the Union Congregational Church of Wollaston, was attended by neighbors, friends, and elected officials.

Rev. Francis Archer of Union Congregational Church, presented her with a plaque, and Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia presented her with a recognition scroll from the city.

She received a corsage from friends, and congratulatory letters from President Gerald R. Ford and Governor Michael S. Dukakis.

The former Ruby Neal, Mrs. Bigelow was born Sept. 2, 1876, in Newton, and later moved to Braintree where she graduated from high school.

At the age of three, Mrs. Bigelow contracted infantile paralysis and spent the next 21 years on crutches. The disease left her right leg permanently handicapped.

A member of the Wollaston Women's Club and the Women's Guild of the Union Congregational Church, she has lived in Quincy for 76 years.

Mrs. Bigelow sometimes lives with her only daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Marden of Hatherly Rd., Quincy.

She still loves sweets and her flower garden.

"I enjoy being with people. In fact, I can't remember ever disliking anyone," Mrs. Bigelow said when asked what her secret was for long life.

McInnis Would Limit

Terms Of State Representatives

Alley McInnis Jr., independent candidate for State Rep from the 3rd Norfolk District, who was not on the primary ballot, has kicked off his campaign with a call for a limit on the number of terms an individual can serve as state representative.

"Our present state representative has held public office for 20 years," he told a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Collins, 116 Landsdowne St., Squantum.

"We can no longer afford the luxury of returning elected officials to office year after year without some closer scrutinization and accountability."

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] now represents the 3rd Norfolk in the State House, and is seeking his 10th term.

Squantum Community

Association Elects New Officers

The Squantum Community Association has elected new officers.

Frank Buckley was elected president; Mary Gougian, vice president; David Mercier, treasurer and Janet Coughlin, secretary.

Activity plans are already underway for the coming year and there are openings on all committees. New members are always welcome and anyone wishing to join may do so by calling any member of the executive board.

The first general meeting of the new season will be Wednesday, Oct. 6, at 8 p.m. Meetings are held at the Squantum School gymnasium the first Wednesday of each month from October to June.

Jack Connors With Masterworks Choral

Jack Connors of 62 Pratt Rd., Squantum, will sing bass with the Masterworks Choral in Lexington this season.

Highlights of this years program will be a Beethoven Festival featuring the Mass in C Major and the Missa Solemnis in D. Other special performances will include Handel's Messiah and The Creation by Haydn.

from this same disease.

"Today Joe Collins is faced with another great battle. If it was up to him, he would win that one too, as on that Thanksgiving morning when they said he couldn't win and when some said he would never kick the disease of alcoholism. But this one may be up to God.

"Either way Joe Collins will take this decision like the man he is, for he is a good and decent man. Few people can say they have helped their fellow men like Joe has done."

"What stands out most about Joe Collins," said Dr. Edward Blacker of the Mass Division of Alcoholism, "is his dedication and warmth for the alcoholic in need of help.

"Joe's efforts to make the Detox setting conducive to sobriety and his respect and affection for the patients have been notable. Occasionally, he stretched his patients' nurturance. Serving them crabmeat salad may have been viewed by some as more than generous. But even this reflected his desire to make the Detox a comfortable and homelike place in which to be.

"Joe is a strong, tough administrator, often taking on tasks that at first he had reservations about but then going all out to make his effort a success. His innovative training programs for police in the area of alcoholism have been a model for other Detox Centers.

"The positive impact Joe has had on the quality of alcoholism services in Massachusetts cannot be overemphasized."

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, whose officers had a number of contacts with Collins in the days when he was a drinking man, recalled some of those incidents almost fondly.

"Joe was being booked for drunk one night by Sgt. Mulligan," said Finn. "Five other fellows came in and they were loud and boisterous and very difficult to handle. Joe yelled out from his choice cell in the block, 'Hey Sarge, I'll help you with those wise guys!'"

"Sgt. Mulligan didn't really need an awful lot of help but after the five were booked he went back to the cellblock to thank Joe for his offer. Somehow or other in the confusion Joe's cell was unlocked and Joe was gone.

"Johnny Morton was going to book Joe on one of those busy nights when he got a phone call. After answering the phone, Johnny came back to Joe and found the booking slip all filled out. Joe said, 'I thought I'd save you the trouble.'

"I guess probably if anything can be said about the Quincy Detoxification Center is that it has done a magnificent job. The problem is that it is not large enough to take care of the numbers of people that have to be taken care of."

Norman Forde of 258 Central Ave., Wollaston, was associated with Collins in the Detox Center right from the beginning.

"It was back in January, 1972," he said, "when I received a phone call from Mayor Hannon's office and they told me that a fellow by the name of Joe Collins was going to contact me. I never heard of Joe Collins before in my life.

"But in the next six or seven months I was certainly to learn a lot about Joe Collins and one of the things I found out more than anything else was that Joe didn't know what it meant to wait until tomorrow. I never saw such a dynamic individual in my life and I doubt very much if I ever will in the future."

Responded Joe Collins:

"This is an honor that you're really giving to the Quincy Detox and to the city of Quincy for looking ahead and going along with us when it was the kind of subject that was a little touchy. It's really opened up the doors like they say.

"I guess it's all been said. This is my city and you're my people. People have always been good to me.

"When I was down and out, my good friend, the honorable former Mayor...I went to his house one morning at three o'clock, hung over as hell. I knew he had some booze down there. My knock on the door was just like a Russian tank coming in. Walter came down the stairs and the lights went on.

"He took one look and he said 'What's wrong, chief?' He always called me 'chief'. I just shoved him aside and I went down stairs in the cellar and I said, 'I gotta have a drink!' He said, 'All I got is scotch.' I got the scotch and he said, 'What are you going to do with it?' I said, 'I'll take care of it,' and I went off into the sunlight with my quart of scotch.

"You know it's a sickness. There's no shame. The only shame is not doing something about it. Some of you are sitting next to people who got help at Faxon House and you can't tell them apart. This is the thing that people have to realize. The only shame is not doing something about it.

"I am resigning my job because I have an illness. It's a day at a time but we're going to plug in there and do the best we can. I hope in a couple of years I can apply for a job as an orderly at the Detox and start back in again. That's how strongly I feel about the way I'm going to attack this thing..."

Sheets Asks House Blast Debris Be Removed

City Councillor James A. Sheets has asked the city to remove immediately all the debris resulting from explosion that destroyed a house at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Reardon St., West Quincy, a few weeks ago.

"The continued existence of that debris is a threat to the young people in the area and others who are beginning to pick through the rubble," said Sheets.

Tax Rate To Be Set Next Week

vendors who supply City Hospital have threatened to shut off its credit over unpaid bills.

Auditor Shea said, however, that after a Saturday work meeting with Budget Coordinator Saccone, payment of the bills will be expedited and they should be cleared up within a week.

Councillor Dennis E. Harrington added a bit of gentle criticism for the Council itself.

"I don't think we should spend time being critical of the Mayor relative to the bad appointments he has consistently made. And I don't think we should even spend our time criticizing him for the bad budget he submitted.

"We ought to be criticizing him because he hasn't been in the State House and he hasn't been trying to include in our receipts such items as several million dollars which is due at the hospital.

"His failure to make any attempt to include those figures legitimately in expected receipts for the coming year is the reason why people are facing a $20 or $25 tax increase.

"Officials of the city of Boston were in Gov. Dukakis' office relative to a problem exactly like the one we have here in Quincy.

"They want to set their tax rate based on expected receipts for the coming year which are different from the amounts of money received in the past fiscal year. They are asking to use a more reasonable standard.

"Even if we can't collect those funds, the state could do one thing for us. They could at least let us list the $1.5 million they owe us even if they have no intention to pay us. That alone would cut $6 off the tax rate next year."

Councillor John J. Quinn, chairman of the Finance Committee, announced that the committee, with Auditor Shea, would meet tomorrow [Friday] at 7 p.m. with LaRia and Budget Coordinator Saccone "to see where the city goes from here."

Lt. Bruno Carloni To Be Honored Sept. 23

Quincy Fire Lt. Bruno Carloni will be honored at a retirement dinner Sept. 23 at 6:30 p.m. at Morrisette Legion Home, Miller St., West Quincy.

Carloni played in the former Quincy Park Baseball League for many years and later was assistant to Morrisette Legion

Coach Nick Malvesti for several seasons.

Malvesti, the dinner chairman, would like to hear from the many players with whom Carloni played in the Park League. He can be reached at 472-6476.

S.S. Junior Tenpin Bowling Registration Starts Saturday

The South Shore Juniors Tenpin Bowling League will open its 10th season at Quincy Wonderbowl on Southern Artery with registration this Saturday, and Saturday, Sept. 25 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Boys and girls from 6 to 21 are welcome.

The league bowls every Saturday and is supervised by adult volunteer coaches and certified instructors. The director of this junior program is Ernie Villeneuve, who will be giving class instruction to the new bowlers each Saturday during the month of September. Registrations also will be accepted through the month.

This program is sanctioned by American Junior Bowling Congress (National). The local association is "Greater Boston Junior Bowling Association" of which Mrs. Elinor Villeneuve of Weymouth is president.

The South Shore Juniors enjoyed their most successful season last year, more than doubling the number of participants. The season ends with the league banquet at which year end awards and trophies are given [each member receives a trophy]. Once a year there is Greater Boston Junior Bowling Association City Tournament and a Massachusetts State Junior Tournament in which the bowlers enjoy the competition of other leagues throughout the City and State.

Executive Hockey

Whites, Darcy's Win, Al's, Hofbrau Tie

The Quincy Executive Hockey League began its fourth season Sunday at the Youth Arena with the White team topping the Greens, 7-3.

Charlie Chambers had two goals and two assists to spark the Whites, with Ron Fletcher having two goals and Bill Sweeney, Bill Lewis and Ralph Freeman one each. Lewis, Bob Hayes, Fletcher, Ralph Younie, Freeman, Sweeney and Ed O'Riordan had assists. For the Greens Al Bonani had two goals and Fran Bonani one. Kenny Halloran, Fran Bonani, Paul Donahue and Hank Oberlander had assists.

Al's Cafe and The Hofbrau played to a 3-3 tie. Paul Lewis, Buster Robinson and Dave Towle had the Hofbrau goals with assists for Dave Bertrand, Fran Whelan and Jack Hurley. For Al's Dick McCabe, Ken Wright and Ralph Gibbs had the goals and Mike Haines, Jim Milano and McCabe had assists.

Darcy's Pub defeated Washington Tap, 4-2. Bob Donovan, Peter Lynch, Jim Daly and Jack McDonald had Darcy's goals with assists for Bob O'Connell, McDonald, Wayne Cooper and Donovan. John Emmott and Joe Gannon scored for Washington with Marty Tolson and Pete Laberge having assists.

By TOM SULLIVAN

Can Dave Burke, a former North standout himself, repeat his 1975 success when he made his debut as North Quincy football coach by leading the team to the co-championship of the Suburban League, the number one spot among Division I teams and a berth in the Super Bowl?

Burke, who led the Raiders to wins over rival Quincy in 1945 and 1946, isn't reckless enough to prophesy a similar 9-1-0 record this fall, but he does feel his team will be representative and will give a good account of itself.

The Raiders open the season at Veterans Memorial Stadium Saturday at 10 a.m. when they host an old non-league rival, Milton.

Milton is coached by former North assistant Jack Bowes. When the schools renewed their old rivalry two years ago [the teams were allowed to add a 10th game], Milton shocked North, 8-6, in the rain, but last fall North rolled, 27-0.

"We lost some awfully good players," Burke said. "Most of them are playing in college this year. We have only a few varsity starters but most of the boys have played together since they were sophomores, so they know each other."

Dave has something only a few schoolboy teams boast, an outstanding placekicker, Ed McElaney, who last year kicked five field goals, two of them in overtime for wins, and added 16 extra points for 31 points. Ed is also an excellent punter.

"Our big problem will be depth," the Raider coach said. "I think we will have a good starting club, both on offense and defense, but we have to develop some good reserves. I was pleased with our showing against Catholic Memorial, Wellesley and Scituate in scrimmages, and if we can just find the horses to give the starters some rest, we should do all right."

In the offensive line Burke expects to start Keith Lindberg, 185, at left end; Jim Marinelli, 200, left tackle; Russ Chisholm, 175, left guard; Tom Nee, 185, center; Dan Butts, 170, right guard; Harry Knudsen, 200, right tackle, and Jim Frye, 185, right end.

At quarterback it will be either Brian Donaghey or Dennis Doherty, both 170, with Mike Adams, 170, right half; George Wallace, 170, left half, and Bill McIntyre, 175, fullback.

Wallace, Adams and McIntyre are all fine runners with Adams, a regular starter last year, especially outstanding.

Among others expected to play on offense are Paul Cortiss, John O'Connell, Mike Gallagher, Mark Nagle, John Boldec and John Wilkinson.

North again looks strong on defense and the opening defensive line will probably see Steve Bonoli, 185, and Mark Wentzell, 210, ends; Nagle, 200, and John Ryan, 185, tackles; Cortiss, 185, middle guard; Dick Kennedy, 170, and Mike Nolan, 165, or Frank McGuiness, 165, cornermen; Art Bertoni, 175 and McElaney, 180, halfbacks; Jim Hanahan, 190, and Steve Bell, 180, linebackers, and Kevin Doyle, 160, safety man.

Also expected to see service on defense are Ed Evanson, Steve Sheehan, Tom Burke, Lindberg, Butts and Harry Donahue.

North has always boasted strong secondaries and this year seems to be no exception. The Raiders came up with several pass interceptions in their scrimmages.

GRIP ON THE BAT

The Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) has warned that certain aluminum baseball bats may be hazardous to player and fan alike. According to the CPSC, the one-piece rubber grip-and-knob component on these bats can deteriorate with use and separate from the bat. If this happens, a heavy swing at a pitched ball could send the bat flying sans handle.

The CPSC has accepted a consent order from the makers of the following brands: Adirondack, Easton, H & B/Louisville Slugger, Reynolds, A.J.D., Worth, Sears, Sunmacker, Wilson and Rawlings. Under terms of the order, anyone who has purchased one of these bats should go to a sporting goods store to get a pre-addressed postcard supplied by the manufacturer. On the card, write the name of the manufacturer, bat model number, length and color of bat, dealer's name and address, and the date of purchase. When the company gets the postcard, it will send you a free kit to safely modify the bat.

Presidents Entertain Dedham At 1:30 P.M.

Quincy's football team, hoping to improve on last year's 3-7 record, opens its season Saturday with a 1:30 non-league game against Dedham at Veterans Memorial Stadium, and Coach Hank Conroy is pinning his hopes on greater balance in the backfield and more speed.

The Presidents are seeking their first win over Dedham in three years. Two years ago, when the teams were allowed to add a 10th game, Quincy was smothered, 40-6. Last fall the Presidents fell, 22-14, despite an excellent effort.

"We are smaller overall this year but will be much quicker, which I hope will help us," the 13-year Quincy coach said. "I was satisfied with our showings in scrimmages against Somerville and Boston Tech, and I used many boys at different positions to try and find our best combination."

When Quincy takes to the field against Dedham it won't have many players with varsity experience, but does have a lot with junior varsity and sophomore experience. He has high hopes for many graduates of last year's strong sophomore squad.

There is a real dogfight for the starting quarterback spot between Dennis Water, 165;

John Houten, 155, and Mark Giordano, 160, playing his first year. Anyone of the three could start.

Mark Buchanan, 175, or Jim Maze, 160, will be at left halfback; Billy Brennan, 145; Rick Gibbody, 150, or Wayne French, 150, right half, and Lenny Picot, 175, or Vin Harte, 195, fullback.

Others expected to see action on offense are Bill French, Wayne Gardner, Ron Ricciarelli, Kevin Zambruno, Ron Donodan and Mike Farrell.

The starting defense is more definite and Conroy expects to start with Sal Coscia, 190, and Moore, ends; John Barry, 195, and Sutliff, tackles; Dennis Kearney, 175, middle guard; Thorley and Eastwick, line backers; Gibbons and Mark Merlis, 160, cornermen, and Giordano and Maze, safetymen.

Many others are expected to play on defense including Dave Shields, Farrell, Tom Conine, 240-pound Bill Daley, 225-pound John Carloni, Donovan, Fred Vignali, Bob Pettinelli, Scott Awed, John Milan, Picot, Bill Shea, Bob Derbes, Gibbody, Steve Ohlson, Wayne Cascarano and Larry Calley. Calley has missed most of the practice sessions after suffering a sprained ankle when he stepped in a hole.

"We have several juniors and seniors who haven't played any varsity ball, but I hope our speed will make up for the inexperience," Conroy said. "And we have better balance in the backfield. Last year we had only one really outstanding runner but this year we have several with fine running potential."

-TOM SULLIVAN

North Faces Cambridge Latin

North Quincy's cross-country team, which last season went 12-1 and won the state Class B championship, faces a tough job trying to equal that record with three of the 1975 top runners gone.

The brilliant Bart Petracca is now at Cornell. Ken O'Brien also graduated and Coach Lou Tozzi received a bad blow when Jim Gavigan was declared ineligible by the Principals' Association.

Returning are the other three top runners, Tri-Capt. Bob and Marty Levenson and Mike Morin, all three-year veterans. All were in the top 20 in the states last fall and placed high in the Suburban League meet.

North opens Friday at Cambridge Latin and Tozzi is depending upon "pride and a positive attitude" to carry the Raiders through.

"Our tri-captains have proven to be dependable, tough competitors and have the attitude we want," Tozzi said. "They work very hard in practice and have a great deal of pride in their performances. I just can't say enough about them."

Other returning veterans battling for the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh slots, are Ed Carll, Mike Ketzner, Jerry Keys and Andy Laskowski, all seniors.

Rounding out the squad are Mike Barrett, who could be a big surprise; Matt Breslin, who has excellent potential; Mike Edwards, Gerry Hurley, Ronald and Donald Morin, Mike's freshman brothers; Tom Fennessey, Bill Murphy, last year's junior high champion, and Peter Riggs.

"We expect Brockton to be very tough again with usual strong teams from Newton, Waltham and Weymouth South," Tozzi added. "The Suburban League continues to be one of the strongest in the state and we expect keen competition from everyone."

"We are very concerned with the loss of Gavigan, who had been running number one in practice, but we'll just hope to have our tri-captains provide a little extra leadership and hope some of our new people develop quickly."

Only five girls reported to Tozzi and he expects a tough season in a strong league dominated by Brockton. Last year the Raiderettes were 3-6.

Michele Seltzer is a two-year veteran who has done well, along with veterans Sue Yee and Joan Petkun. Also on the squad are Carol Seeger and Jody Silver.

Quincy Opens Against Brockton Friday

When Coach Joe Catalano leads his second Quincy cross country team in its opener against Brockton Friday at the Presidents' new course starting and ending at Pageant Field, he won't have the 1-2-3 punch of a year ago but expects more depth.

Catalano's first Quincy team had a 5-5 Suburban League record last fall and he hopes to improve on that mark.

"We lost two of our three top runners, Co-Captains Kevin O'Brien and Bob Thorne, but have the third, John Saville, back and he is one of the best around," Catalano said. "John and Donald Jones are the co-captains. Saville won the state Class A two-mile run last spring while only a sophomore and he should have a great year."

Catalano's squad includes seniors Paul Ladas, Steve Kane, Rich Walkama and Ed Graham and juniors Kevin Murphy and Gene Allen.

He had hopes of attracting more runners, especially sophomores.

"We should have more balanced scoring this year because of what I hope will be greater depth," he said. "The boys have been working very hard all summer, running between 60 and 70 miles a week and this will certainly help them."

"I think we can have a good season if everyone gives no less than 100 percent in every meet."

Quincy's girls at this writing had only five runners but Catalano hopes to get more out as they hope to improve on last year's 6-3 record.

The girls are Dottie Levine, Paula Constan, Ellen Caramanica, Mary Ilacqua and Kelly Tobin, all fine runners.

"We need more depth but one thing in our favor is that all five girls reported in excellent condition after a summer of hard training," said Catalano. "They are all determined runners and are very competitive when racing. They should be right at the top of the Suburban League. They will be running over a longer course [2.3 miles] this year but, because of their excellent conditioning, this should benefit them."

Dramatic Decisions

Q. Yours is the first column that I read each week. I am interested in Astrology although I am not well informed about it. I would be very pleased if you would kindly give me some sort of outline of my stars. I was born in Boston, Mass. on April 23, 1949 at 9:00 A.M. I am about to make a decision which will change the entire course of my life. I would appreciate knowing if the stars indicate a wise time for change.

J.M.M.

A. Based on exactly 9:00 A.M. birth as given, if correct for your birth date, the Sign of Cancer was on your Ascendant [rising]. The Moon [its ruler] was in Pisces in your Ninth House in very Favorable aspect to your Mercury [reason and decisions] as well as in Favorable aspect to your Venus and Sun.

These usually indicate that the feelings and instincts [Moon] can prove quite helpful when combined with logic and reason [Mercury] in making decisions. To obtain the most from this aspect it is necessary to be calm and relaxed, giving your deep inner instincts and hunches enough time and a fair chance to reach your conscious mind and make matters clearer to you and enable you to better understand how changes and actions may end.

Your Mercury in Quadrature aspect to the planet Pluto in Leo cautions that it may not be advisable to make decisions under pressure or when the nerves are tense. At such times neither your ability to reason clearly nor your instincts and hunches may function accurately.

Each House of the horoscope chart relates to a specific department of a person's environment and outlook on life. The Seventh House to Marriage, the Tenth House to profession, business and reputation, the Fourth House to the home and private life, etc. Since your question about the decision to be made was not specific the proper Houses can not be analyzed.

For questions to be answered in this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114 Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

Koch Club Scholarships Total $13,500

The Koch Club Scholarship Fund Committee has presented scholarship awards and invested funds totaling $13,500 since 1959, it has been disclosed by Richard J. Koch, the club's executive director.

The most recent donation was $100 from the Koch Club Women's Bowling League to the Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund, which brings its current total to $6,500, not to be touched until 1998.

The Permanent Scholarship Fund was initiated in 1973 on the 25th anniversary of the Koch Club when a $5,000 gift was presented by the club to the city of Quincy for the establishment of a trust under the jurisdiction of the City Treasurer.

Proceeds of $3,000 raised during 25th anniversary activities of the Koch Club and a $1,000 gift from each of the North Quincy and Broadmeadows Districts of the organization were combined to create the fund in December, 1973. Additional gifts received in the past three years and the interest on the original amount have resulted in the $6,500 total.

The Fund will begin providing scholarships in 1998 on the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club and will continue each year using the interest annually accrued.

Koch, who is executive director of the Koch Club, said the Permanent Scholarship Fund will not have any effect on the annual scholarship awards presented to high school graduates.

Each year, since 1959, the Koch Club has presented a $100 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of North Quincy High School. In 1964, a $100 award was added for a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School and it has been expanded since to include a $50 award to a boy and girl graduate of the Vocational Technical School. Seventy-six high school graduates have won scholarships since 1959.

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League has contributed more than $1,000 to the $13,500 total of scholarship awards and savings.

Organizations or individuals may contribute to the Koch Club Scholarship Programs by contacting City Treasurer Robert E. Foy at City Hall or Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Members of the Koch Club's Scholarship Fund Committee include: Chairman Anthony T. Delmonico; vice chairman Thomas P. Nestor; Mrs. Simone N. Koch, Mrs. Gerry Delmonico, Miss Ruth E. Scanlan, Howard F. Crowley and Koch.

Germantown Heritage Days

Activities Include Dance, Parade Dedication

Germantown Heritage Society announces the calendar of events planned for the second annual Germantown Heritage Days to be held Friday, Sept. 24 through Sunday, Sept. 26.

The Heritage Dance will be held Sept. 24 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at St. Boniface Church. Guests are invited to dress in colonial costumes.

Music will be provided by the Riverboaters. Chairman is Rev. Gerald Osterman. For ticket information contact Rev. Osterman at the church rectory, 479-6418.

Junior Heritage members will sponsor a field day Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Snug Harbor School. The youngsters are under the direction of co-chairmen Helen Bomar and Pat Petrilli.

A beanpot supper will be held Saturday at 6:30 p.m. at St. Boniface Church Hall, to be followed by a sing-along with Gay Sullivan and Frank Myett. For ticket information, contact co-chairmen Judy MacAuley at 479-1413, or Kathy O'Rourke at 472-0365.

More than 30 units will march in the Heritage Parade Sunday at 1:30 p.m. The Quincy High School Marching Presidents Band, the Renegades Drum and Bugle Corps, representatives of community organizations, military units, and children from the Snug Harbor School will be among the units in the parade.

A costume contest will be held. Prizes will be awarded for representation of an historic person. Bernie MacAuley and Harold Crowley are parade co-chairmen.

Dedication of the Shed Memorial will be held at 3 p.m. Members of the Quincy Historical Society, the Quincy Housing Authority, the Park Department, and city officials will attend.

Several individuals will be recognized for their assistance in the restoration of the site.

A souvenir booklet of the Heritage Days, prepared under the direction of Kay Flynn, will include photos and stories of Germantown, and will be on sale at the dance, the bean supper, and along the parade route.

Brett To Run On 'Stickers' In Nov. 2 Election

By TOM HENSHAW

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has refused to bow out of the race for reelection, despite his upset defeat at the hands of Michael W. Morrissey in the Democratic primary in the Third Norfolk District last week.

The veteran 69-year-old legislator, who has served in the State House since 1958, announced Wednesday he will run for reelection on a sticker campaign in the Nov. 2 final election.

Brett promised to work harder this time.

"You can call it overconfidence," he told The Sun, explaining his defeat in the primary. "I've been in office for 18 years and I'm beaten by a 22-year-old boy who just got out of college in June. It's unbelievable.

"You've got to give him credit. He ran a vigorous, aggressive campaign. His people got their vote out.

"People told me I had nothing to worry about. I ran a low key campaign. I spent only $284, all my own money. Most of that went for the printing and delivery of one flyer."

"I won the primary election fair and square," said young Morrissey upon learning that Brett planned to run as a sticker candidate.

"I am the rightful Democratic nominee—not Mr. Brett. And I will vigorously campaign as the Democratic nominee in the Third Norfolk District."

Brett noted that only 4,500 out of 12,500 voters in the district went to the polls in the primary.

"About 8,000 of them did not express a preference," he said. "And 8,000 people can be a tremendous influence on an election. Say 5,000 of them vote and I can pick up 1,000, I'm in. I only lost by 800 in the primary."

"Also there will be three names on the ballot. That will split up the vote and cloud the issue more. It will give me a better shake."

In addition to Morrissey, the names of Jens Thornton, a Republican, and Alley McInnis Jr., an Independent, also will be on the ballot.

Brett said he has ordered 15,000 stickers to be distributed personally house-to-house and by direct mail, and, in case anyone forgets his sticker, more will be available outside the polls.

"I expect the campaign will cost from $3,000 to $4,000 so one of my first moves will be a fund-raiser," said Brett.

A Committee to Re-elect Rep. Joseph E. Brett has been established with Joseph N. Gildes as chairman and Robert J. Granahan as treasurer.

LaRaia Names Historic Commission

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has named seven full time members and seven alternates to the Quincy Historic District Commission.

The City Council Monday night referred the appointments to the Historic Places Committee.

Full time members named were:

Planning Director L. Norman Lundin, David Day for the Quincy Historical Society, Virginia Crismond for the South Shore Board of Realtors, Paul A. Coletti for the American Institute of Architects, Doris Oberg, Ernest Montilio and Stephen Keeffe.

Alternates chosen were:

Maureen Caldwell, Louise Kalish, Austin Wickens, Dr. James Cameron, Mrs. Hall Carpenter, Lawrence Yerdon and Kenneth Trillcott.

QUINCY BAKER Ernest J. Montilio (left) and his son, George, created a 2000-pound cake replica of Faneuil Hall Quincy Marketplace which recently re-opened on its 150th birthday. The marketplace extends from Faneuil Hall to Atlantic Ave. Though this culinary art took three days to complete, the cake was distributed to over 5,000 visitors who finished it in two hours.

Slash City Budget 20%

Angry Council Tosses Tax Rate Into LaRaia's Lap

An angry and frustrated City Council voted Monday night to slash certain parts of the city's 1976-77 budget 20 per cent by amendment and force Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia to choose the higher or the lower figure on which to base the tax rate.

"He can veto the amendment if he wants," said Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, who introduced the amendment, "but he should be put on record by his veto whether or not he wants a $25 tax rate increase.

"It's not a pleasant alternative but if he is not going to do something about the tax rate he should be given the opportunity to do so where everyone can see."

The Council's unusual move, if it stands up under legal tests, would in effect give Mayor LaRaia the option of basing the tax rate on the $77 million budget passed by the City Council in May or on about $75 million after the amendment.

The Mayor has forecast a tax rate increase of at least $25 but announcement has been delayed while efforts are being made to hold it down by boosting revenues. The City Council feels a rate hike of $10 to $15 is more reasonable. The current rate is $159.90.

Several councillors characterized a $25 increase as "totally unacceptable."

Harrington blamed the proposed $25 increase on "a desire of this administration to prove itself right and to prove Walter Hannon wrong."

"For some taxpayers," said Harrington, "this would mean getting up an entire week's paycheck to pay the tax increase on Nov. 15. For retired people it means two whole Social Security checks. That's a tough alternative.

"This amendment can be vetoed. This amendment can be challenged. Let the person who can veto or challenge it make the decision if there is going to be payless paydays for Quincy taxpayers.

"I think it is intentional on the part of the administration. I don't see any well-meaning in this administration at all. All I see is a lot of vindictiveness carried over from the campaign slogans of the last election."

The City Council, at the behest of Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, also resolved to request the Mayor to send the budget back to the Council for reconsideration before setting the tax rate.

Executive Secretary John Salenius, speaking for the Mayor, said LaRaia "has no intention of sending the budget back. It has already been through that process." He denied that the administration wants a $25 rate increase.

The budget amendment was introduced by Harrington shortly after the Council suspended its rules to permit the meeting to go beyond 11 p.m. It

Blames His Opposition To DeFalco Appointment

Williams Plans Court Action To Block Ouster

Jack Williams says he's going to court to block his ouster as a member of the City Hospital Board of Managers and to prevent the Board from naming a new hospital director until the first case is cleared up.

Williams, a member of the Board for seven years, was fired by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia at 5 p.m. Monday, and replaced by Joseph M. Aristide of 13 Payne St., South Quincy.

John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, said Williams was removed from the job for "excessive absences and misconduct. I can't say any more."

But Williams could.

"They said it was misconduct in that I exceeded my authority as a member of the Board in the process of appointing a hospital director," he said. "I don't know what I did since it's up to the board to appoint a director."

Williams indicated that his ouster was a result of his opposition to naming Anthony DeFalco of Needham, former secretary of administration and finance under Gov. John A. Volpe, as hospital director.

"The Mayor knows my feelings," said Williams. "I am not for Mr. DeFalco. It's nothing personal. His resume reads well. I object to him because he lacks qualifications.

"During my seven years on the Board, this has been my position constantly. I have always sought the best qualified man for any position at the hospital. I find no fault with Mr. DeFalco. I don't even know him."

Williams said he will ask his attorney, Richard Barry of North Quincy, to seek a restraining order to prevent his ouster until a hearing is held on the charges.

He said Barry also will seek a restraining order to prevent the naming of a hospital director until his hearing has been held.

"It doesn't bother me," he told The Sun. "It's in such a mess up there at the Hospital that this is a blessing in disguise."

The Board of Managers was scheduled to have met Tuesday night to take another vote on the naming of a new hospital director, succeeding Harlan Paine, who resigned.

The last time the Board voted on DeFalco, it was reported that he lost by a margin of 5-4.

Rustic Steps Being Installed At St. Moritz

MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker, has advised Senator Arthur H. Tobin of an ongoing project at St. Moritz Pond in Quincy.

Steps made from railroad ties, in keeping with the rustic nature of the park, are being installed to connect the upper level parking lot at the tennis court with the lower road at the Little League baseball field.

At the present time a very steep grade prevented easy access to the ball field and encourage vehicular traffic into a prohibited area.

Senator Tobin said he expects to be notified by the MDC shortly of a new, significant addition to the playground equipment at St. Moritz Pond.

Over 200 Acres Acquired

City Gaining In Fight For Open Space, Recreation Land

Quincy is gaining in the fight for open space and recreation land.

Since 1970, more than 200 acres of land in Quincy, have been acquired or transferred to protective agencies for use as open space, conservation and recreation land.

Largest of the acquisitions was 50 acres of salt marsh and property adjacent to Merrymount Park on Fanno St. obtained in 1971 and, combined with Merrymount Park's 73 acres, providing a total of 123 acres of open space in the heart of the city.

The Wollaston Recreational Area, acquired by action of state, county and local legislators, protected 35 acres as open space, conservation, winter recreation and summer golf and tennis activity. The 35 acres, plus 60 located in Milton, provides 95 acres of scenic beauty.

In a drive to acquire waterfront land, 17.1 acres at Squaw Rock, nine acres at Germantown and 2.34 acres at Mound St. were obtained to insure the protection and development of each site for public use. Federal Funding provided 50 percent reimbursement of acquisition and development costs.

Seventeen acres of salt marsh land on Rockland St., Houghs Neck, and seven more acres of marsh on Lind St., were purchased providing an additional 24 acres of open space.

In 1970, approximately nine acres of land on Whitwell St., released by the School Department, was transferred to the Park and Recreation Board as park land.

The Mayor and City Council recently requested legislation to guarantee the retention of the approximate 45 acres of Furnace Brook Golf Course as public land forever, resulting from an agreement with the Furnace Brook Golf Club, that the property would revert to Quincy as park land after 45 years for public use.

Quincy, with the assistance of federal officials, are seeking the return of 6.6 acres of Merrymount Park previously occupied by the U.S. Army.

Quincy has also been acquiring small beautification sites at strategic locations throughout the city, including Bobby Burns Plaza, Pleasant and Water St., the site at Smith and Quarry Sts., and Freedom Park at Upland Rd.

Lt. Denneen 5th Veteran Police Officer To Retire This Year included:

Sgt. Edmund Nereo, 61, who received a number of commendations for baby deliveries during his 32 year career. He joined up May 12, 1944, made sergeant June 1, 1956, was acting lieutenant briefly in 1973-74 and retired April 30.

Ptl. Edward Griffin, 59, retired with a back ailment April 30 after nearly 35 years service which began Nov. 22, 1941. His commendations included three arrests and the discovery of a store fire.

Ptl. Morgan O'Regan, 65, who spent many years on the beat in Quincy Square. He joined the force Feb. 2, 1937 and retired last June 30, with commendations for two arrests and the rescue of a drowning woman from the waters off Southen Artery.

Sgt. John Malvesti, 63, who received many commendations for baby deliveries while manning the police ambulance. He was appointed Nov. 10, 1942, made sergeant Oct. 10, 1972 and retired last July 30.

Lt. John Denneen, who headed the Quincy Police liquor squad for many years, retires next Thursday [Sept. 30], the fifth Quincy Police officer with long service to hang up his badge this year.

Their combined service on the force totals about 180 years.

Denneen, who will turn 65 on the day he retires, joined the department on Jan. 1, 1936, more than 40 years ago. He became a sergeant June 19, 1947 and a lieutenant Nov. 8, 1962. Other veteran retirees

Hedges Re-elected To County Retirement Board

Former Sheriff Charles W. Hedges was reelected to membership on the Norfolk County Board of Retirement and immediately levelled a blast at the county commissioners who opposed him.

Hedges defeated present Sheriff Clifford Marshall, 1009 to 404.

"The recent childish actions by the county commissioners regarding my services was reprehensible," he said.

"Rather than question my integrity, the $15-20,000 per year directors, executive staff and administrative aides should devote their full time to county business and not harass members of the retirement board.

"It is such tactics that tend to destroy our faith in the usefulness of county government.

"Personal and political vendettas have no place in the proper and serious administration of the Norfolk County Retirement Board.

"For over six years it has been pleasant extra duty and most educational to serve with City Treasurer James Collins and retired County Engineer Wallace S. Carson."

Saccone Runs Into Flak

Council Bails Hospital Out Of Credit Bind

The City Council voted Monday night to bail the City Hospital out of its credit bind — after pausing along the way to put Budget Coordinator Sarah Saccone in her place.

The Council appropriated $416,000 to pay a number of overdue city bills, including nearly $370,000 worth of bills run up by the Hospital, and thus restore the Hospital's credit among medical suppliers.

"Nine or ten vendors representing large medical supply houses have shut off the city's credit for non-payment of bills," said Council President Arthur H. Tobin as debate on the appropriation order began.

"I got two phone calls this afternoon that alarm me. They were from Dr. Gerald Roenblatt and Dr. Elliott Schiffman. They were upset and concerned. They were in a state of wrath over the situation."

The Council itself was upset that the appropriation order arrived from the Mayor's office too late to be included on the printed agenda, nor was it spelled out in enough detail to suit the councillors.

Questioning by Tobin of City Auditor Charles L. Shea determined that the warrants for payment of the bills were held up in the office of Budget Coordinator Saccone, some since the first week in August.

Miss Saccone explained that she withheld the bills from Auditor Shea so that she could determine which ones were carryovers from previous fiscal years.

"Do you realize that your actions are costing the hospital more money?" asked Councillor Leo J. Kelly, noting that, without credit, the Hospital was forced to purchase supplies at retail prices.

"Yes," said Miss Saccone. "But we are bound by law. We cannot pay prior years' bills out of this year's budget. I can't let them go through illegally just to save money."

Verifying the bills, she said, was a "tedious" process.

Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, however, noted that the tedious process was expedited considerably after an angry phone call from Shea, who, as auditor, is responsible in the end for payment of the bills.

"By what authority do you receive warrants from the Hospital?" asked Councillor James A. Sheets.

"By a letter from the Mayor," said Miss Saccone. "I am the middle man to assure the Mayor that everything is being done."

"In my opinion," said Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., "you usurped the powers of the auditor. He is the chief financial officer of the city. He is responsible for the decision-making. I think we should request a ruling from the solicitor on this."

Solicitor Thomas F. Williams, after consulting his law books, agreed that the budget coordinator had no right to hold up the bills while she determined which bills were carryovers from previous years.

The city auditor is appointed by the City Council and the budget coordinator by the Mayor, which complicated the issue since the Council and the Mayor have been feuding almost since the Mayor's inaugural in January.

"In no way," said Harrington, "is the job of budget coordinator meant to be a control on the auditor. She has usurped the auditor's authority and let the bills sit for six weeks.

"This has caused problems at the hospital; it has caused loss of money; it has caused bad relations with vendors; it has caused bad credit ratings; it is intolerable. All on the decision of the budget coordinator to control the bills."

"If this city is to be operated properly," said Sheets, ever the peace-maker, "it's going to take the cooperation of the two branches of the government working hand in hand."

"It's time we bring this foolishness to an end."

The first time around, the appropriation order was defeated, 5-4, with Kelly, Lydon, Paul D. Harold, John J. Quinn and Warren A. Powers voting against it.

The second time, however, after a plea by Tobin that it was "vitally important that the hospital bills be paid here this evening," the order was approved, 7-2, with Harold and Powers still in opposition.

A GROUP of Quincy youngsters from Camp King and Camp Clark, two day camps affiliated with the Quincy YMCA, recently toured Boston Harbor as guests of Boston Gas. Among those who enjoyed the sunshine, salt air, and scenery, were, from left, Kristen Harvey, Michael Holt, Christine Kelley and Jeffrey Thompson. At rear is Camp Director Jacqueline Whitcomb.

WHEN FAMILIES BANK WITH YOU FOR 4 GENERATIONS, THAT'S A PROUD TRADITION.

We're very proud to be able to make that claim. Quincy Cooperative Bank has been in business since 1889, serving many of the same families today that began banking with us way back then. Their loyalty is a great vote of confidence in us, and we're working hard to increase our services, facilities and abilities in order to meet banking needs today and in the future.

As proud as QCB is about having 4 generations of families do their banking with us, we'll be even prouder when your children and their children choose to follow the tradition of their parents. And you know something...

JOSIAH WOULD HAVE LIKED THAT.

Today's Women

Film Festival, ERA Campaign Major Activities For Women's Commission

A film festival and work on the Equal Rights Amendment will be the prime activities this fall of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

At the group's first meeting of the season, Monday, Sept. 13, Ann Aronson who is coordinating the fall film festival noted that it is planned to encompass a wide range of subjects related to women, such as Equal Rights, Rape, Marriage and Divorce, and Aging.

"Daddy Don't Be Silly — A case for Equal Rights" will be the first in the series of four films to be shown Wednesday evenings, Oct. 27 through Nov. 17.

Following a presentation by Janice D'Avignon, Norfolk

County Coordinator and Christine Heeg, Quincy Coordinator of the Committee to Ratify the Massachusetts ERA, the Commission voted to reaffirm its support of the Amendment which will appear as Proposition Number One on the November ballot.

Commission members also agreed to conduct coffee hours, distribute literature and engage in other supportive activities for the ERA.

Programs for the upcoming year were also discussed by the Commission. Areas which the Commission intends to explore are: Women in non-traditional jobs and vocational training programs for Women; Women and Work — how to find a job and job opportunities for adult women; and Social Service Needs of Women and problems young mothers encounter becoming involved in the community. Task Forces to work on these issues will be formed at the October meeting.

The Commission was also addressed by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia who invited the members to become involved in the planning for the Oct. 30 Ruth Gordon weekend.

In other business, the Commission discussed its support for a Women's Center at Quincy Junior College and voted to send letters to the School Committee requesting their support for the proposal to establish a part-time position to manage the Center.

ERA Proponents Plan Information Coffee Hours

Many women on the South Shore plan to sponsor coffee hours for friends and neighbors to provide them information regarding the State Equal Rights Amendment.

Miss Toby Felton of Quincy, a member of the Norfolk County Committee to Ratify the ERA says there has been much misinformation circulated regarding the State ERA, the first referendum question on the November ballot.

The coffee hours are designed to give women and men an opportunity to ask questions about the amendment in an informal and relaxed atmosphere, she said.

"Many people erroneously think the ERA weakens woman's role in the family," she said. "Actually, it is just the opposite, the ERA will strengthen woman's role by recognizing in law the valuable contribution women make as mothers, fulfilling the all important child rearing function."

Anyone who would like to attend a coffee hour or who would like to give one is asked to call Janice D'Avignon of Quincy (773-7117).

H. Hobart Holly Room Dedicated At Quincy Historical Society Museum

The North Room of the Quincy Historical Society's museum in the old Adams Academy Building was dedicated Sunday in honor of H. Hobart Holly, who was president of the Society for 20 years.

"Many people of dedicated persuasion have walked on these sturdy wooden floors," said William A. O'Connell, president of the QHS. "And hundreds of promising young scholars deliberated within the security of these brick and granite walls."

"But neither masters nor students have left more lasting impressions on our city than the gentleman in whose name we dedicate this wing of Adams Academy."

The Holly Room will be a multi-purpose room featuring a gallery for art exhibits, facilities for meetings and an area for special exhibits.

Holly, a retired engineer, is currently historian of both the Braintree and Quincy Historical Societies with special interests in maritime history and genealogy. Forthcoming writings include an article on Capt. Wollaston.

He is a fellow and trustee of the Pilgrim Society and chairman of the History and Heritage Committee of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. He has engineering degrees from Yale and Columbia.

O'Connell unveiled the plaque naming the room in Holly's honor and Dr. James R. Cameron, first vice president, brought the tribute. Dr. Cameron was also chairman of the reception committee.

J. Davis Shuster spoke on behalf of the Braintree Historical Society, I. D. Geller represented the Pilgrim Society and Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia was invited to represent the city.

It was during Holly's long tenure as president that the QHS was able to secure a long-term lease on the Adams Academy Building. It spent $150,000 remodeling it for use as a library and museum.

Hannon-LaRaia Grudge Helped Morrissey Win?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

The big political question of the moment in Quincy is: How did Mike Morrissey do it?

The 22-year-old in his first campaign staged one of the biggest local upsets ever by defeating veteran Joseph Brett for the Democratic nomination for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

In doing so, he would seem to have brought Brett's long political career to an abrupt end. But the latter isn't throwing in the towel. He's going to run in the November finale as a "sticker" candidate.

You've got to give young Morrissey the lion's share of the credit for his smashing victory. He went out and worked. He campaigned, campaigned- and campaigned.

And, from the very start he was confident he would win. Not boastfully so, but matter of factly.

When friends tried to soften in advance his disappointment if he lost, he shrugged it off, saying quietly but confidently: "Well, I'm going to win. I know I am."

But some political observers read other things into Morrissey's stunning win.

They see, for example, some of the bitterness from the Joseph LaRaia-Walter Hannon mayoral battle of last year rubbing off in the Morrissey-Brett race of last week.

Last year, Brett supported LaRaia for mayor.

This year, young Morrissey had quite a few Hannon supporters in his camp.

Wards 5-6 which comprise the Third Norfolk District were strong wards for Hannon in his mayoral fight with LaRaia last year.

Some observers think Brett's support of LaRaia boomeranged on him in what has been-and apparently still is-"Hannon country".

If this is so, it could be even more interesting in the November final. Independent candidate Alley McInnis, Jr., also has Hannon people in his camp.

Another thing observers see in the Morrissey victory is positive proof that the North Quincy area is undergoing the greatest resident turnover with a steady influx from South Boston and Dorchester.

And to these newcomers, the old magical Quincy political names has lost [or are losing] some of their magic. Names like Brett and even McIntyre.

Brett, who has always been a sort of political Lone Ranger with little or no organization, apparently misread the situation. He campaigned this year like he has done for so many years in the past: alone and without signs and with minimal advertising.

For years he has issued a statement saying he will refrain from posting political signs and suggests that other candidates do the same.

That apparently doesn't work anymore. The people from Boston and Dorchester now living in North Quincy expect to see signs, campaign literature, advertising, and the candidate himself. Morrissey gave them all of it.

The fact that John McIntyre, a personable candidate, got only 478 votes in the Third Norfolk race is another indication, some observers, feel, that the old glamorous political names are losing their glimmer.

Once upon a time the name McIntyre would guarantee a strong vote in Quincy because of former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre. But to those new residents of Quincy-and to younger voters-the name apparently doesn't mean that much anymore.

Quincy is changing politically. New faces are coming along. Old faces are fading away. Time marches on.

WHETHER YOU ARE a Brett fan or not, you can't help feeling sad about his defeat. He was seeking his 10th term. Now his political career could be over unless he can wage a successful sticker campaign.

And whether you agreed with him or not on various issues, he was his own man.

JOHN MCINTYRE, is taking in stride the fact that he didn't do too well in the Third Norfolk primary.

"I got some frustrations out of my system," he says. "You can sit around and complain about things that you don't like. I at least got out and tried to do something about it. It was a good experience. I feel I came out a winner in that respect."

And, he muses: "I lost 15 pounds campaigning. That really makes me a winner."

LOOK ALIKES: John Herbert, president of Quincy Cooperative Bank and TV anchorman Walter Cronkite.

SMILE DEPT: Jack Silverstein, the North Quincy druggist, was in New York the other day and attended the Friars Club roast of Telly Savalas at the Americana Ballroom.

Savalas, of course, portrays the super-duper sleuth Kojak on TV. But Henny Youngman mused that Savalas really isn't that intelligent off camera.

"Someone once gave Telly a Zebra," noted Youngman. "And he called it Spot."

White's Payroll Tax Proposal 'Unthinkable'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In a time of high inflation, unemployment, taxes and the cost of life, it is unthinkable to think of another tax such as the Payroll Tax proposed by Boston's Mayor White.

The suburbs are now being asked to subsidize Boston's high cost of government, as well as the high cost of their own government. This really amounts to taxation without representation and is selective when federal and state employees are to be exempt. Also why should someone who does not commute to Boston pay the tax just because their paycheck comes from a Boston based firm?

The suburbs are having a hard enough time to pay their own taxes without having to pay for their neighbors also. Especially when Boston sees fit to load their administration with patronage and "no show jobs". This tax does not go toward the problem itself-the high cost of government and the resulting taxes. The degree or amount of taxes is related solely to the cost of government. This tax, in the long run, will not reduce taxes but will provide more money to spend. Yet we will get the same old story "it kept the taxes from being higher".

Boston's inept and inefficient policies and actions have played a large part in the giant movement out of the city to the suburbs. This, in itself, is causing local taxes to rise and to be expected to pay for Boston's taxes and problems is absurd. When the $60 increase in the Boston tax rate is finally set, the exodus will grow even larger, thereby increasing the problems in the suburbs.

Supporters of the tax are trying to convince us that the tax will be temporary for only 2 years at one percent. This same story was used when the State said the Sales Tax would be limited and be only 3 percent. The limitation has decreased and the tax is now 5 percent. The meals tax is now 8 percent on all meals. When one has a problem with the credibility of big government, there is no reason to believe any different now. You can holler "Wolf!" only so many times.

This tax also has all the earmarks of the cancerous growth of regional government. A large government out of reach of the people who pay for it has never been efficient or fair to all and there is no reason to think that this will be any different.

Ours is a government of the people, by the people and for the people and I hope that the representatives elected by the rest of the State will not vote for this new tax. This should be an election issue put to every candidate for the office of State Senate or Representative. When the vote comes up in the legislature, it should be by roll call so every official is held accountable.

Arthur M. Chandler, President Quincy Citizens Association 320 Belmont St., Wollaston.

Complains NQHS Doesn't Get Enough News Coverage

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to you about an issue that should have been brought out in the open a long time ago and I think it is about time someone took care of it.

Do any of you realize that there are two city bands and not just one. Just because the city we live in is called "Quincy" and you are "The Quincy Sun" does not mean that The Presidents should get more than their share of publicity just because they carry our city name. The Raiders Band is just as much a part of the city as they are. We should not be discriminated against just because we are "North Quincy", it is only because of the part of the city we live in.

I am talking about the many articles that have appeared recently in the "Quincy" section of your newspaper about Quincy's band being the best. I agree that Quincy is a good band but we are just as good, maybe even better. For example, in your Special Bicentennial issue around June 17th, page 16, there was an article naming Quincy as the best band in the Bunker Hill Day Parade. Maybe they were the best this past years parade, but two years ago [June of 74] we marched in the very same parade and came in fifth but there was no mention of it but there was a rather big article about Quincy being "first".

Also whenever we do anything Quincy's name is always first. Why is this? There may have been times when we were mentioned but as of now I can't recall any except maybe when we host the Thanksgiving games. Also there was the time when we played host to the Southeastern Auditions Festival this year and in the parade we came in first in the last division; beating The Presidents but again there wasn't any mention of us playing.

If there was ever any publicity about "The Raiders Band" it is always a very small article whereas Quincy has almost a whole half a page. You also send out reporters to cover the events Quincy sponsors but never that I know of have we had any reporters to cover our events. I'm not just talking about written articles, also, WHERE are our pictures in your newspaper.

While your reporters are covering Quincy WHERE may I ask is the coverage of North Quincy's Raiders.

This year plans to be an even better year than ever and we intend to prove it.

Kathy Mullaney
Publicity for North Quincy High School Band

[Editor's Note: We appreciate Miss Mullaney's concern for what she considers inadequate coverage by The Sun of the North Quincy High School band and other activities at the school.

We assure her, however, it is not because of discrimination. The Sun is as interested in what is going on at North Quincy High School as it is at Quincy High School and Quincy Vo-Tech.

We believe both schools have outstanding bands and have said so editorially in the past. And we in the past have even sponsored both bands in Quincy Christmas Festival parades.

We do not have a large enough staff to send reporters out to every event occurring in Quincy. We depend on groups and the schools for furnishing us with information about their activities.

If Quincy High School seems to be getting more coverage, than someone there is doing a better job furnishing us with the information than North Quincy High School is doing. It's as simple as that.

We have had similar complaints before about our coverage of youth hockey, baseball and basketball. Some parents want to know why certain teams get more coverage in The Sun than other teams do. Simple answer: Those teams furnish us with more information.

As for Quincy's name appearing before North Quincy name if an article pertains to both schools, there is a reason for it.

It is easier-and clearer-for us to write a headline that says: "Quincy, North Open Concert Season" than to write: "North, Quincy Open Concert Season." The little comma between North and Quincy in the latter headline may be missed by a reader who thinks the story is about North Quincy only. Or by typographical error, we may leave the comma out.

All we can say to Miss Mullaney and anyone else at North Quincy High School is that we cannot write news articles about what you are doing unless you let us know you are doing it.

Try us.]

She Wonders About Women's Center At QJC

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A few years ago, there was a Women's Center organized at Quincy Junior College. It was a non-profit, multi-service center providing personal, educational and career guidance for women. It sponsored programs, workshops and courses and provided a resource and referral center for women in such areas as counselling, health care, legal advice, recreation opportunities and volunteer programs.

The center was completely operated and organized by volunteers. It became very successful and expanded to the point where a director was needed.

The college suggested the Center move to the third floor, on the stage in the old auditorium and operate a day care center for women at the college. The women on the steering committee decided that they could not fulfill this obligation. They believed that a part time director was needed and that the third floor was not a safe place for children. The center came to a standstill.

There is now a proposal before the School Committee to reactivate the center and provide funds for a director. The question is why the women who were part of the original center were not notified this summer when reorganization was being discussed. Is this another patronage job being created to benefit a few politically minded and not the women?

War Bond Drives Top $7.8 Million Mark

By TOM HENSHAW

"This is the 656th day of the war! Make it count!"

The admonition was issued by the Women's Division of the Municipal Defense Council of Quincy as the city launched a massive drive to sell war bonds.

The Quincy Theater presented a special showing of "So Proudly We Hail", starring Claudette Colbert, Paulette Goddard and Veronica Lake, with admission gained only by purchase of a war bond. No tickets.

The Fore River Apprentices, coached by Ernie Cislighi, upset the 181st Infantry team from Camp Hingham, 12-0, at Municipal Stadium before a Sunday afternoon crowd that received two tickets for each war bond bought.

The grand climax was a war bond auction, sponsored by the Quincy Merchants Association in the Stadium, featuring the Quantum Naval Air Base band, entertainers Hum and Strum and vaudeville acts direct from Morey Pearl's Popeye.

It attracted 3,500 people who pledged more than half a million dollars and boosted Quincy over the top in its drive to sell $7,850,000 worth of war bonds.

MARINI STARS IN LOSS

Sophomore Lou Marini was the game star but Quincy High School lost to Brookline, 7-6, when a running attempt failed to convert the point after the Presidents' last quarter touchdown.

Quincy's starting lineup included:

Big Oil Is Big

Make no mistake about it. If there is oil off George's Bank, we all will become "experts" about the oil industry.

We'll be able to distinguish from a drilling ship, submersible rig, semi-submersible rig, a drilling platform, production platform, etc.

We'll know a lot about how much things go for "by the day," Oil Map, Brown & Root, ODECO, Europirates, and J. Ray McDermott will be names as familiar to us as General Dynamics, Merriman, and Boston Whaler.

Sixteen of us from this area traveled to the Louisiana Gulf Coast two weeks ago to meet with governmental officials, small and medium size suppliers to the oil industry, and "Big Oil" himself to assess the environmental, social and economic impact that the discovery of oil would have on this place we call home.

Chances are that the South Shore - from Quincy to Plymouth - could be the primary center of oil-related business activity if it weren't for the fact that other places - namely New Bedford, Davisville, R.I., and the Boston Naval Shipyard - are probably much more suited to handle direct activity associated with shipping, drilling, and barging.

If activity gets good enough, and the Fore River Bridge is replaced, the General Dynamics shipyard would be a primary candidate to build rigs and platforms.

Oil companies like to do business with reliable suppliers, so lots of local firms with good reputations for performance stand a chance to substantially increase their business.

My guess is that once us yankees get our hands on the exploration and drilling aspects of the oil business, lots of technology changes will be forthcoming and a sizable number of jobs will be created in manufacturing those improvements.

Oil companies, on the exploration, drilling, and refining side anyhow, seem to be run by environmentalists - the type that any member of the Audubon Society or Sierra Club would be very comfortable with. I never thought about it before, but it makes sense for "Big Oil" to have the type of people in charge that are going to keep them out of trouble with government and the public, as well as minimize the loss of oil due to human error.

The real personalities we met on this trip were the private entrepreneurs who have devised better and less expensive ways to accomplish tasks in the oil exploration-to-refining process and have become very well-to-do as a result.

Their enthusiasm for "Big Oil" is reminiscent of the Red Sox fever that existed last year at this time in these parts.

The sheer massiveness of the equipment used to go after oil - platforms an acre wide with 225 foot legs to hold them up - supply ships that look like battle ships - barges as big as football fields - helicopters and small airplanes by the hundreds, etc., is impressive.

The lead times - 7 years, and the dollars - $50 million, to establish one platform with maybe 30 wells, and the returns - sometimes $50,000 a day - for periods of anywhere between 6 months to 60 years, and the uncertainty - Exxon invested $211 million in leases off the Florida coast and came up with more dry holes than we have on all the golf courses on the South Shore. All of this is bogging.

The 16 of us who went to Louisiana are planning to get together this week and talk through what we saw, and develop an affirmative plan to maximize the positive aspects of an oil discovery off Georges Bank for this area.

There is little question that if oil is found on George's Bank, "Big Oil" is gonna come struttin' into town, and it's our responsibility, not theirs, to establish the ground rules on how the relationship will develop.

It could be good for the South Shore, but as the sign said on the drilling platform 100 miles off the Louisiana coast, "Stay awake here on."

LIVING TODAY

By DR. WILLIAM F. KNOX

You Can Be Happy Too

Replying to a woman in a Probate Court who had complained "I'm just not happy in this marriage," the Judge answered her, "Happy! Who's happy?" Was this reply a reflection of his own life... or the conclusion of the evidence he hears all day long in his courtroom? I don't know who counted them but I am told that 75% of all married people are unhappy. Little is being done to change this condition... as though assuming "this is the way it has to be." I just can't accept that!

We have unemployment... inflation... even the race question is still unsettled. But Unhappiness in Marriage is depressing more and more people. Many people feel Trapped, but unable to get out.

Why? Different reasons: "it would kill my parents"... Church rules... financial insecurity... fear of being on one's own. For whatever cause an unhappy marriage is a Trap... a prison... human misery.

With continual unhappiness, there follows the awful results of emotional and physical illness... exhaustion... fatigue... loss of sense of manhood/womanhood... loss of life drive... anxiety... depression. Such conditions take their toll. Great unhappiness upsets the social... chemical... organic functioning of the whole personality.

Why can't people be happy in marriage? They can, if... If they are prepared for marriage. This is the first big if. Many people aren't prepared... so they bumble along. Like James who grew up in a home where his mother was extremely domineering... told him everything to do... or not to do. His father was silent... and passive, turned over his check on Friday nights... drank his beer in the basement. Now at 30, James is a weak, indecisive man... married to Rene... both are unhappy because Rene is looking for him to take his part as a man... and no one ever taught or showed him how to do it, least of all his father.

The second If... If They Are Personally Mature and Secure. Persons cannot be the Possession of another person. "My husband"... "my wife"... must Not mean you Own that person as you Own your dog... to do your bidding... respond to you commands... provide emotional security for you. There must be maturity in each person which provides sufficient security that you don't have to cling to the partner for survival. This crushes Love. Love thrives not by being throttled... but I Freedom.

The third If... If Two People Want To B Together... Want to because they like each other... like to do things together... like to talk together... not "together" based on need. Companionship As Equals... that's the key. If you feel forced to be together... if you feel trapped... an uncomfortable it's probable that you're not unhappy in the marriage.

"What can I do about my unhappy dilemma?" It's almost impossible to analyze and counsel oneself successfully. It's wise to see a good Counselor... a competent person who's had enough trouble himself/herself to feel what you feel... and enough successful experience in counseling others to understand and lead you out of your unhappy dilemma.

Or go to a Marriage Therapy Group. More and more people are getting help in the group with a capable leader to guide. We see weekly how happiness is being restored... support felt for new decisions and new courses of action. If for others... why not for you?

"Happy! Who's Happy?" Maybe you can be... If you decide to do something about it. Start early in 1976 to make it happy.

Yom Kipper Begins Oct. 3

Quincy Jewry To Usher In New Year 5737 At Weekend Services

By LESTER GLASSER

Quincy Jewry will usher in the Jewish New Year 5737 with services Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Yom Kippur [the Day of Atonement] services will begin Oct. 3.

The schedule of services at Quincy synagogues follows: BETH ISRAEL, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point:

Rosh Hashanah tomorrow [Friday] and Saturday evenings starting with the Minchah service at 6:15 p.m., followed by Maariv at 6:45. Saturday and Sunday morning services will start at 8 a.m. Rabbi Jacob Mann will conduct the services and deliver the sermons.

Yom Kippur will begin at Beth Israel with the Kol Nidrai service Sunday, Oct. 3 at 6 p.m. An all-day service on Monday, Oct. 4 will start at 8 a.m., concluding at sundown with the sounding of the Shofar. The Shofar will also be sounded during the Sunday morning Rosh Hashanah service.

TEMPLE BETH EL, 1001 Hancock St., Quincy Center:

Rabbi David Jacobs and Cantor Morris Semigan will conduct all the services at Temple Beth El starting with a family service tomorrow [Friday] at 8 p.m.

There will be Saturday and Sunday morning services at 8 a.m. and an evening service Saturday at 6:15 p.m. The Shofar will be sounded during the Sunday morning service. Rabbi Jacobs will deliver sermons at the Saturday and Sunday morning services.

Scott Merlis, a student in his last year at Brandeis University, will conduct the services for school age youngsters. Toby Felton, public relations director at Quincy Junior College, will be in charge of the song and story sessions.

Yom Kippur services at Temple Beth El will start Sunday, Oct. 3 at 6 p.m. with Cantor Semigan chanting the Kol Nidrei. All day Yom Kippur services Monday, Oct. 4 will start at 8:30 a.m.

CONGREGATION ADAS SHALOM, 435 Adams St., Quincy:

Rabbi Samuel S. Kenner and Cantor Tewele Ring will officiate at all the services, starting with a family service tomorrow [Friday] evening at 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday morning services will start at 9 a.m. with afternoon and evening services at 6 p.m.

Rabbi Kenner will preach at the Saturday and Sunday morning services and will sound the Shofar during the Sunday morning service.

The Yom Kippur service will start at 6:15 p.m. Sunday evening, Oct. 3 with the chanting of the Kol Nidre by Cantor Ring. An all day service Monday, Oct. 4 will start at 9 a.m. with Yizkor [memorial service] during the morning. Rabbi Kenner will also preach during the service.

The Jewish New Year is celebrated the first and second day of the month of Tishri. It is based on a solemn and serious note. Throughout the ages it has always been a day of meditation, contemplation and introspection. It invokes serious reflection on the conduct of the Jewish faith the past year.

Themes for this day, especially emphasized in the prayers, are in sin, repentance and forgiveness. It teaches that the sinner who has gone astray, is not lost. He need but repent and turn away from his evil path and he will be saved. God does not desire the death of the sinner but that he turn away from his evil and live. This is also the appeal of the Shofar. A penitent, therefore occupies a very high position.

Yom Kippur the Day of Atonement marks the climax of the Penitential season. It is observed on the 10th day of the month of Tishri in fasting, prayer and penitence. The purpose of fasting is not to torment the flesh. It is rather a reminder that sin is often due to the gratification of bodily appetites.

Forgiveness, the teaching of this day, must be considered from two aspects - the relation toward God and toward fellow-men. Reparation and amendment are required to make forgiveness possible. Only when this is carried out will God forgive.

To climax the Holiday Season, the Festival of Succoth [festival of booths] will be celebrated with services at the three Synagogues in Quincy, starting Friday evening, Oct. 8 and concluding Saturday evening, Oct. 16. Succoth is characterized as "the season of our joy".

Christian Education Classes At Faith Lutheran Sept. 26

Christian Education classes are scheduled at Faith Lutheran Church on Homecoming Sunday, Sept. 26 at 9 a.m.

Arrangements have been made through the cooperative efforts of the Christian Education Committee and the Church Council.

Plans call for the following classes to meet in various parts of the church building itself:

Nursery, kindergarten, grades 1, 2, 3, 4, high school students and adults, while grades 5 through 9 are to meet at Faith

Lutheran Center, 65 Roberts St.

All young people having their classes at the center, will be bused to the church for a social hour at 9:40 a.m. Family worship for all will be at 10 a.m., ending the summer schedule.

'Reality' Christian Science Bible Lesson Sunday

"Reality" is Sunday's Bible Lesson topic at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy.

The Golden Text is from II Timothy 4:2 "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine."

Church service and Sunday

School begin at 10:45 a.m. A midweek Wednesday evening testimony meeting begins at 8 p.m. Child care is provided.

Unitarian Universalism Series At First Parish

Rev. Keith C. Munson of United First Parish Church will conduct a six-week program, "Six Wednesdays on Unitarian Universalism" scheduled to begin Oct. 13.

Classes will be held from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. between the parish hall and the parsonage.

Some points to be discussed will include: who the Universalists are and what they believe in, and what are the modern trends in the Unitarian Universalist movement.

Enrollment is limited to 15. Contact the church office for registration information.

Campaign Togetherness

Young Mike Morrissey's Victory A Real Family Affair

By TOM HENSHAW

There is one sentence that helps explain Mike Morrissey's stunning upset victory over veteran State Rep. Joseph E. Brett in the Democratic primary last week and it is this:

At various times during the day, there were 21 members of his immediate family standing for him at the polls.

If it were really necessary, he could have called up anywhere from 50 to 75, including distant cousins who bear the names Morrissey or Golden or descend from people who do. He's not precisely sure how many there are.

And then there is the Ross clan from Germantown, but that's getting ahead of the story.

"I had an advantage over my opponents," admits the 22-year-old Morrissey, who came out of Mass-Amherst in May on the run and simply never stopped. "I have a lot of relatives in the area."

"It's an important thing to have someone who is able to say: 'Hello, I'm Arthur Morrissey. Will you give my son, Michael, your vote.'"

"I'm young enough so that my grandfather and grandmother could stand at the polls for me. He is in his 80's and she is 79."

The Morrisseys date back to the early 1900's in North Quincy, immigrants from County Waterford in Ireland by way of a brief stop in Charlestown by Grandfather Morrissey around 1905.

His mother's people, the Golden's, however, go back some 110 years in the neighborhood — and there are 23 Golden's listed in the Quincy phone book alone.

As if to compound Joe Brett's election day problems, Mother Marion Morrissey was a cheerleader at North Quincy High, Uncle Paul Morrissey [the one they called "Gunner"] starred in basketball at North, Grandfather Morrissey was one of the founders of North's Boosters Club.

And Father Arthur Morrissey was once the youngest [at 26] president of a Building Trades Union when he was chosen to lead the Quincy local of the Pipefitters and Plumbers.

The end product of all this genealogy is a young fellow scarcely four months out of UMass with a degree in history and government, certification as a social studies teacher and an eye for an opportunity.

"I've always wanted to get into politics," he says, "ever since I was a youngster delivering flyers for candidates. I may even have passed out flyers for Joe Brett at one time. I don't know."

"But I do know he took me to a Red Sox game once. It was Joe Brett Day and he took a bunch of us kids into Fenway Park."

"I thought of running for a city office once before [he won't say which one] but the time wasn't right. This time it was. I had the option of going on with school, getting a job or going into politics. I had the time to campaign, so why not?"

He picked state rep, mostly because the state was involved so heavily in Wollaston Beach, an area of the city young Morrissey loves. The family has memberships in both the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs.

Five years ago, he went to Cherbourg, France, with the United States team in the World 420 class championships, competing against representatives from 23 other nations. He finished 30th in a field of 80.

He's had a boat since the age of 8 when he bought a Turnabout with money earned on one of the family paper routes. The Morrisseys have two routes now, managed by his brother, Stephen, 14. Once there were four routes in the family.

He has another brother, Patrick, 19, who works two jobs as a laborer and a truck driver, and a sister, Kathleen, who is called Katie, 16, a junior at North Quincy High. Stephen is a freshman at B.C. High.

Morrissey's campaign manager, Charles Kane, who lives a couple of streets away from the Morrissey home at 88 Colby Rd, Atlantic, provided the political expertise gained when he ran for state rep himself and lost many years ago in Boston.

"I knew what I wanted to do," says Morrissey, "and Charlie knew how to do it."

Under normal circumstances, winning the Democratic primary in the 3rd Norfolk District is tantamount to election. But Morrissey is taking nothing for granted.

"Joe Brett was in for 18 years," he says. "He probably felt the election was automatic. He took it for granted. I'm still going to put in a fulltime effort. I've done a lot of things right. I'm not about to let up this late in the game."

Having disposed of Brett and John McIntyre in the primary Morrissey now faces Republican Jens Thornton, a perennial candidate, and Alley McInnis Jr., an independent, in the November general election.

"Beating an incumbent is a big boost," he says, "but I have an even tougher fight coming up."

"Thornton gets more than 1,000 votes when he runs. A lot of people like what he stands for. That could be important in a three-way race."

"McInnis lives in Squantum where I did well in the primary. He's new to politics but so am I and you never can tell."

And, oh, yes, the Ross clan...

They became involved in the Morrissey-Golden family campaign because Mike has been going with Joanne Ross for the past three years. He met her at UMass-Amherst where she is studying to be a teacher.

The Rosses plunged into the campaign with enthusiasm.

Joan's brother, Robbie, 20, made signs; her mother, Joan, filed cards; sister Ellen, 17, canvassed; brothers Tim, 23, Russell, 14, and sister Janie, 7, delivered flyers.

"Her father, Harry, is an Elk," says Morrissey, "that's a good spot to discuss politics [as Past Exalted Ruler Joe Brett found out long ago.]"

And Joanne Ross? "She doesn't like politics very much," admits Mike, "but she puts up with it."

Council Tosses Tax Rate Size Into Mayor's Lap

was finally adjourned at 12:42 a.m., Tuesday.

Just before the end, Council President Arthur H. Tobin recessed the meeting while Salenius, Harrington and Raymond held an impromptu conference in the corridor. Then, Salenius conferred with Mayor LaRaia by telephone.

But whatever transpired failed to mollify Harrington, the perennially angry young man of the Council.

"We talked with the Mayor," he said when the meeting had resumed. "He tells us, like Jimmy Carter, that he's got a plan and we'll hear about it Thursday."

"I didn't buy Richard Nixon when he said he'd tell us his plan after election and I don't buy this one."

The Harrington amendment then passed, 9-0.

City Solicitor Thomas F. Williams and City Clerk John M. Gillis, the Council's parliamentary, offered clashing opinions on the legality of the amendment.

"I don't believe the Mayor can legally choose between two budget figures," said Williams.

"I believe the Mayor can do anything he wants in such a situation," said Gillis.

More cautious words were offered by Councillors John J. Quinn and James A. Sheets, both of whom referred back to the results of a five-hour meeting between the Council and the Mayor last Friday night.

The meeting was held in secret but apparently the Mayor promised some word or action by Monday.

"I see evidence that some of our suggestions are being listened to," said Sheets. "In the last three or four days I have witnessed more cooperation on the part of the Mayor. I had hoped to see some move today. I was disappointed."

"But I don't want to throw up my hands and walk away from this."

Quinn said he was inclined to side with Harrington but, he added, "such an amendment is not necessary at this point in time."

"I thought our meeting with the Mayor was very constructive. I thought we were moving in the right direction. We will continue to move if the ball is picked up by the Mayor. I think he will."

"If we tamper with the budget we will be tampering with services in the city of Quincy. The people of Quincy have been getting good services here for years. They deserve them at the most realistic tax rate possible."

Council President Tobin, usually one of the Mayor's harshest critics on the Council, permitted Harrington and Raymond to carry the ball for most of the meeting but he added one ominous note.

"I say this to the Mayor," said Tobin. "He will have a tough time in the future getting any financial order through this Council if he comes up with a tax rate increase over $10."

"Nothing is going to happen here until there is a meeting of the minds on the tax rate. Unless this happens I see bad days ahead."

Sean Dennehey In NATO Maritime Exercise

Marine Lance Cpl. Sean M. Dennehey, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Dennehey of 166 Pine St., Wollaston, is participating in a major NATO maritime exercise: "Team Work '76."

He is serving as a member of 2nd Marine Division which is a component of the 4th Marine Amphibious Brigade.

He is one of 6,000 U.S. Marines who will join with British and Dutch Marines for a major combined amphibious landing in central Norway and a secondary amphibious landing in Denmark.

The two-week exercise involves more than 80,000 personnel, 200 surface ships, 30 submarines and 300 aircraft from nine NATO countries and France.

The primary objectives of the exercise are to test and improve the combat readiness of the allied forces and to test plans for the defense of Western Europe.

A 1975 graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical High School, he joined the Marine Corps in May 1975. Dennehey's unit is homebased at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

MONEY TALKS

Your House Is A Piggy Bank If You Are Looking For Cash

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Families looking for substantial funds to accomplish special purposes may have to look no further than their own homes. The house they live in may be their piggy bank.

Here may be found the financing for home expansion or remodeling, payment for heavy medical bills, replacing an aged car, financing a son's or daughter's education, taking a Bicentennial summer vacation—in short, for any purpose the family considers important.

The money within their doors is the equity families have accrued through their home mortgages. Those whose mortgages are fairly long in existence have built up substantial value. Some may have begun with more than the conventional downpayment, which has grown with additions in payments toward principal. Almost all have enjoyed the increased valuation placed on their homes through inflation, scarcity of housing, and other factors.

The money available for special needs can reach a maximum of 80 percent of the original appraised value of the home less the principal balance still due. This amount can be increased if the home owner authorizes a new appraisal to establish present worth, in which case the total obligation can be increased to as much as 80 percent of the newly determined value.

There are advantages to this approach to financing special needs. For one thing, the owner does not have to go through the red tape and involved process of registering credit with a new lender. He or she has established credit with someone who already knows his or her financial integrity.

Another advantage is that the required cash can usually be acquired at a cost lower than what a personal lender may charge.

One of the beauties about home ownership that the majority of Americans have discovered is that their homes have made capitalists of them. At the end of a period of years of paying for family shelter, this enforced savings program has left them with a larger nest egg than many would have been able to acquire in any other way.

We do not encourage home owners, therefore, to invade this nest of funds which the years have built up. To do so extends the time when it will be completely theirs.

However, there are occasions when extra cash is necessary. It is therefore well to know that the equity in the home may be the best and easiest place to find it.

City Club Breakfast Meeting Set For Oct. 3

The Quincy City Club will open its third season Oct. 3 with a 9 a.m. breakfast meeting at Walsh's Restaurant, 9 Billings Rd. North Quincy.

David J. Donaghue is program chairman. President Richard J. Koch announced that the second annual dinner dance and ladies night will be held Oct. 28, at the George F. Bryan VFW Post with Joseph M. Lydon and Richard M. Morrissey co-chairmen.

A social hour will be conducted at 6:30 p.m. with dinner to follow at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available from Morrissey and Lydon.

Koch said the City Club will again conduct a Christmas charity program with Donald E. Conboy and Paul Lee responsible for raising the more than $2,000 needed for its projects. Dr. Allen H. Yacubian is chairman of the distribution committee.

Last year the organization spent $1,000 to purchase and donate items valued at $1,700, including wheel chairs, hospital gifts for patients and a Christmas party for retarded children.

The Christmas breakfast will be held Dec. 5 with James J. Moody program chairman.

SCORE Organizational Meeting To Be Held Sept. 28

The Director of the Small Business Administration in Massachusetts reports there are several firms on the South Shore that face pressing management problems and need someone with business expertise to point the way to sound and profitable business methods.

Dr. Al Prendergast said that capable retired business people are needed to volunteer their time to counsel firms that are faltering or not moving ahead profitably because of a lack of knowledge in good management techniques.

He said the South Shore Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring efforts by the Small Business Administration to establish a chapter of SCORE in this area. Score stands for "Service Corps of Retired Executives."

"This group of retired executives," Dr. Prendergast said, "are men and women who help the SBA carry out its commitment to give management assistance to those small business firms that need help."

"We know of no other way to carry out this program. Retired executives are the key. They have the knowledge, the expertise... and we hope they have the time."

Ruth Gordon 80th Birthday Tribute Oct. 30-31

Ruth Gordon, Quincy's First Lady of the Theater, will be honored by her hometown with a special weekend 80th Birthday Tribute Oct. 30-31.

Quincy's Bicentennial Ball Oct. 30 at 9 p.m. at State Street South auditorium, North Quincy, will be dedicated to her.

An 80th Birthday Banquet in her honor is scheduled for the following evening, Oct. 31 at the Chateau de Ville, Randolph.

Joseph Grossman and Ernest Montilio are honorary chairmen for the weekend tribute.

Simon Fireman and Sabina Stenberg, co-chairmen of the Ball, announced that there will be two categories of tickets for Saturday evening.

Sponsor tickets, available for $17.50, will include admission to the Ball and to a Sponsor Cocktail Party at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the Ball alone will be $5 each.

"The committee had a two-fold objective in setting ticket prices," said Fireman.

"In the first instance, we desired to show a surplus on the event so that proceeds could be used to provide seed money for the Quincy South Shore Cultural Commission.

"In the second instance, we realize that everyone in the community would like to join us in the salute to Ruth Gordon, therefore we have set the general admission ticket price for the ball at the lowest possible amount."

Mrs. Emma Delkranian and Hugo Fabrizio are co-chairmen of the Sponsor Ticket Committee and the General Admission Committee is headed by George Fay and Kathleen O'Donnell.

Other committee heads include:

Mrs. Joseph J. LaRaia and Mrs. Simon Fireman, decorations; George Montilio and Mrs. Hugh Lieberman, refreshments; Nissie Grossman and Blanche Rimmer, reception; Mrs. Addie Duane and Ethel Carlson, professional.

John Herbert is ball treasurer. Program arrangements are being handled by John Golden.

Dr. William Ridder and Mrs. T. Vincent Corsini, co-chairmen of the Ruth Gordon 80th Birthday Banquet, announced that tickets for that event will be $80 a couple to provide additional funding for the

SIMON FIREMAN

Cultural Commission.

"Since the outset," said Dr. Ridder, "it has been the goal of Mayor LaRaia that no taxpayers money be expended, either for the celebration or for the initial funding of the Cultural Commission.

"We have endeavored to follow those guidelines in planning the banquet."

Leo Meady is chairman of the Ticket Committee while the Table Hostess Committee is headed by Mrs. Helen Shea, Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald, Virginia Crismond and Mrs. William Ridder.

Lou Cassani heads the Speakers' Bureau; Ken Fallon, the Reception Committee; Bert Eckblom, the Program Committee; and Paul Benzaquin, the Publicity Committee.

Literally hundreds of internationally known personalities are serving on the Honorary Committee, which is headed nationally by Gregory Peck and Natalie Wood, in California by Jack Lemmon and Barbra Streisand, in New York by Joshua Logan and Julie Harris, in Boston by the Sherwood J. Tarlow and Dr. Trygve Gundersen, and in Martha's Vineyard by Alfred Hall and Shirley Booth.

Members of the Honorary Committee include:

ENC's Nancy Detwiler Makes History As Athletic Director

A college with a woman athletic director?

Virtually unheard of. That is, until Eastern Nazarene College recently named Mrs. Nancy Detwiler as the first woman athletic director of a coed college in New England and one of the first in the country.

The rare appointment came about two weeks ago when Nancy was offered the job after Jim Smith, the former athletic director who had compiled a brilliant record as basketball coach, suddenly left to become dean of students at Mid-America Nazarene College in Kansas.

"I won't be satisfied until we get complete equality with men and we are a long way from that right now," she said. "But, I'm not going to take money away from any men's sports and shift it to women's sports. That wouldn't be fair, but where there is money not budgeted to anyone else, I may take that for women's sports."

Stating she just wants to be fair, she expressed the hope she gets the same break from the men athletic directors with whom she will be dealing.

She faced her first big test Monday night when she hosted the annual meeting of the Colonial Soccer Conference.

Although she said she is not expecting trouble, she admitted, "I know with all the controversy over Title Nine and equal funding for women's sports, there might be some antagonism among the men."

A FIRST FOR ENC - Eastern Nazarene College is the first coed college in New England to name a woman athletic director, Mrs. Nancy Detwiler, who recently was named to the post vacated by Jim Smith.

Nancy, who coached at Norwell High before coming to ENC, has coached basketball and volleyball at the Wollaston college. Her volleyball team has compiled a three-year record of 49-6 and has been a New England power.

She is currently chairwoman for the Massachusetts Intercollegiate Association for Women [MIAW] and is in charge of all state-wide women's college tournaments.

One of her first big jobs at ENC will be naming a successor to Smith as basketball coach. The new coach will have some awfully big shoes to fill as Jim's teams have compiled an impressive record during his years at ENC.

Lincoln-Hancock Pool Schedule

The Quincy Bay and Recreation Board has announced the following fall schedule for the Recreation Department's swim program at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School Pool.

Ages 6-12 - Monday, Wednesday and Friday, 6 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday 1 p.m.

No Game At Stadium

Saturday will see a rarity in the annals of Quincy and North Quincy High football with both teams playing away from home.

While Quincy plays at Weymouth South, North will travel to Taunton.

"I won't know what to do with myself," said George Page, who gets Veterans Memorial Stadium in shape for the games, with a smile.

Last Saturday also saw a rarity, a stadium doubleheader. Because of the condition of Milton's field, the game with North Quincy was moved to the stadium at 10 a.m., while Quincy hosted Dedham at 1:30.

Stay Alive!

LESS CAR CARNAGE

At least one good thing has come out of the combined energy crunch and recession - there's less carnage on the highways. The Safety Administration says the 1975 figure on highway deaths was a "considerable improvement" over the previous year, even though there were approximately the same number of deaths reported - 46,000 plus - as in 1974. Why is this?

In 1974, the highway death toll dropped around 9,500 from the 55,700 recorded in 1973. Much of the decrease was attributed to the fact that people were driving less because of the gasoline shortage. But the death toll remained virtually the same in 1975, even though motorists were back on the road again at 1973 mileage levels. One reason, according to traffic safety engineers, may be that the 55 mile-per-hour (mph) national speed limit has slowed down drivers by at least 10 mph.

Presidents Hope To Rebound At Weymouth

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last year Quincy's football team had one of the best defenses around in its last five games but offensive mistakes cost it four close defeats in the five games.

Last Saturday the season unfortunately started off the same way for the Presidents, who displayed another strong defense against Dedham but costly mistakes by the offense cost it a last minute 7-6 defeat at Veterans Memorial Stadium as Dedham topped Quincy for the third year in a row on opening day.

Saturday Hank Conroy and his Quincy team will try to rebound when they face an old jinx team, Weymouth South, in a 1:30 p.m. game at South's field. It will be Quincy's second non-league game in a row.

"I told the boys if we could avoid penalties and other offensive mistakes, we could win, as I felt the defense could hold Dedham," a disappointed Conroy said. "But those offensive mistakes hurt us again and that holding penalty which cost us a second touchdown and set up their score really killed us."

With Quincy leading, 6-0, early in the final period, Dennis Walter threw a long pass to Wayne French for 53 yards and an apparent touchdown.

However, Quincy was called for holding, the touchdown was nullified and two plays later Dedham received the ball via a punt and drove 52 yards for its lone touchdown. Mark Dickson scored from the 16 with just 1:45 left to play and Jim Crowley kicked the winning point.

"I thought we moved the ball well on occasion but we still couldn't put together a consistent attack," Conroy said. "Mark Buchanan ran very well [he led the ground gainers] and Billy Brennan also did some good running. Len Picot showed signs of developing into a good runner and he continued his outstanding punting."

Walter, injured in the waning seconds and rushed to Quincy City Hospital with possible broken ribs, showed a lot of promise as a passer and Bob Valentini shaped up as a good receiver.

On defense backs Mark Merlis and Mark Giordani, playing his first year of football, sparkled. Giordani was especially effective on pass coverage.

Others singled out on defense were Tom Conine, Rich Coose, John Barry and linebacker Larry Calley.

"We'll just have to work hard on all aspects of our offense in preparation for Weymouth South, which always gives us trouble," added the Presidents' coach.

If Walter is out of action Saturday, Conroy will start either Giordani or John Houten at quarterback.

Neither team displayed much offense in a scoreless first half with Picot's booming punts keeping Quincy out of trouble.

Quincy's touchdown midway in the third period was set up by Merlis' fumble recovery on Quincy's 27. The Presidents drove the 73 yards in 10 plays, the march including a 20-yard run by Buchanan and a 15-yard pass from Walter to Valentini. Buchanan went over from the five but his kick for the point was blocked when the pass from center was low.

That's the way it stayed until the fatal holding penalty nullifying a second touchdown.

Quincy had a net of 74 yards rushing to 129 for Dedham. Dedham had 10 first downs, Quincy nine, and Quincy added 49 yards passing with four for 12 and Dedham had 37 yards on four for eight.

Quincy Midget A's Champs Open Against Milton Sunday

Quincy's Donnelly Advertising Midget A hockey team, last year's South Shore Conference and state champions, will attempt to continue its unbeaten conference streak Sunday when it opens against Milton at 3:20 p.m. at the Boston Harbor Marina rink in Squantum.

Eight players from last year's powerhouse are back, Brian Bertoni, Don Perdios, Jim Fitzpatrick, John Norton, Jim Moore, Mike Storer, Jack Campbell and Mike Gullizia.

Newcomers are Dave Lewis, Mike Van Tassel, Bob Hayes, Tom Brennan, Pat Bamberry, Mark Giordani and Leo Doyle. New Goaltenders are Kevin Cotter and Jim Deitsch, who were outstanding as Bantams.

Dick Reinhardt is again coaching the Midgets and John Donnelly of Donnelly Advertising has agreed to continue sponsorship of the team.

NORTH QUINCY quarterback Brian Donaghey gets off a pass during last week's 29-6 win over old rival Milton.

Raiders Seek Second Victory At Taunton

Most of the starters from last year's Suburban League co-champion and Super Bowl team are gone and are playing college football, but North Quincy displayed enough all-around strength last Saturday to rate as a league contender again this fall.

Saturday the Raiders will journey to Taunton to face a new opponent, as they go after their second straight non-league win in a 1:30 p.m. game.

Taunton opened a week ago by dropping a 7-6 squeaker to Plymouth-Carver's Old Colony League champions.

Last week in a morning game at Veterans' Memorial Stadium Dave Burke, starting his second year as coach of his alma mater, led North Quincy to a convincing 29-6 win over old non-league rival Milton.

"Boy, it was hot and humid out there and I just wanted to get through the game," Burke said. "I thought the boys did a good job for an opening game but there were a lot of rough spots and we had too many penalties. The offense clicked well and I thought the defense did a fine job."

Milton's only touchdown midway in the final period was a gift as North was hit with three successive 15-yard personal foul penalties before Milton even ran off a play and then helped the Whiz kids by being offside.

"Mike Adams and George Wallace did some excellent running and Bill McIntyre also did well when called upon," Burke said. "Adams and Wallace played a lot last year and they ran well today. [Wallace gained 100 yards and had two touchdowns and Adams picked up 62 and one TD]. "I also thought both quarterbacks [Brian Donaghey and Dennis Doherty] did well." Donaghey played throughout the first half and Doherty for the entire second half [except for a rush for two extra points by Donaghey].

Burke singled out Keith Lindberg, Tom Nee, Harry Knudsen and Jim Frye for their play in the offensive line. He also lauded Kevin Doyle and Art Bertoni in the secondary and his linebackers, Steve Bell, Kevin Green and Jim Hanrahan. Doyle intercepted a pass and returned it 25 yards for a touchdown.

"The entire defensive line did an outstanding job," Burke said. Milton was held to a net 28 yards on the ground.

North wasted no time as it took the opening kickoff and drove 64 yards in 13 plays to score with Wallace going six yards for the TD. Ed McElaney kicked the first of his three points. Three offside penalties hurt Milton during the scoring drive.

North changed to the shotgun offense in the second period with fair results. With 14 seconds left in the half McElaney's try for a field goal was blocked.

A poor Milton punt going only 15 yards set up North's second touchdown early in the final period. Wallace who had runs of 17 and 10 yards at the drive scored from the one and McElaney again kicked the point.

Doyle intercepted a pass and returned it 25 yards a few plays later and this time Donaghey rushed for the two extra points.

North's three successive 15-yard penalties moved Milton upfield following the kickoff and Doug Ross' five-yard pass to Jim Coffey was good for the touchdown.

North added another touchdown on the final play of the game when Doherty passed to Winter Haven for 15 yards and McElaney kicked his third point. Burke was quick to say he didn't call the pass play to add another touchdown. "I just wanted to run the ball and was very surprised when a pass was called," said Dave.

North ground out 179 yards on the ground to 28 for Milton, had 15 first downs to five and added 66 yards with four for eight passing to 27 yards for Milton on six for 15.

Mele Coaching Red Sox Rookies In Florida

Quincy's Sam Mele is in Sarasota, Fla., where he is again one of the coaches of the Red Sox Rookie team in the Florida Instructional League.

The team began workouts last week for the 45-game season which opened yesterday [Wednesday] and ends on Nov. 12.

Mele and Charlie Wagner are coaches for the team which again is managed by Rac Slider, manager of the Sox Winter Haven team.

This year two Red Sox farm clubs, Winston Salem of the Carolina League and Elmira of the New York-Penn League, swept both halves of their respective leagues as champions and each provides nine players to the instructional club, with four players coming from Bristol of the Eastern League and Winter Haven of the Florida State League.

One of the top prospects on the team is last year's first draft pick, first baseman Otis Foster, who hit .282 with 12 homer runs and 83 runs batted in at Winston Salem.

"This boy is a tremendous prospect and I think he has just as much power as Jim Rice at the same stage," said Mele, who worked with Foster as well as all the other minor league players during the season.

Another top prospect is pitcher Bob Stanley, who had a 15-8 record with Bristol in AA baseball with a .268 ERA.

"He is one of the finest pitching prospects I've seen in the Sox system," Mele said on a recent visit to Fenway Park. "I think he will be up in the majors in a short time."

Such Sox players as Fred Lynn, Rice, Cecil Cooper, Rick Burleson and Butch Hobson played with the instructional league team.

Last year, despite having the youngest team in the league as it usually does, the Sox team won the championship.

Quincy Hosts Weymouth N., North At Waltham Friday

Quincy's soccer team, with a win and a tie under new coach Jim McGuire, will host Weymouth North Friday, will be at Brookline Tuesday and will face North Quincy next Thursday.

North Quincy, with a win and loss under its new coach, Brian Cochrane, will be at Waltham Friday and host Newton Tuesday before meeting Quincy. Last Friday Quincy tied Cambridge Latin, 1-1, on a goal by Peter DiCenzo.

North defeated Weymouth North, 2-0, as Dave Harrow and Tom White scored and White assisted on Harrow's goal.

Earlier in the week Quincy romped over Weymouth South, 7-0, as Peter Martin had two goals and Steve Ayer, Joe DiVello, Bill Norton, Ron DiCesare and John Golub one each.

Goalie Mike Kennedy, starting for the third year, was outstanding for the Presidents.

North dropped a 3-2 squeaker to Brockton, overcoming a 2-0 deficit on goals by Bob Stack and Sean Jago, with Jim McGinley assisting on both, but Brockton scored late in the game to win it.

North goalie Rick Smith was superb as he turned back 32 shots.

Stinson ENC Coach

Jon Stinson of Saratoga Springs, N.Y., a 1976 graduate of Eastern Nazarene College, has been named varsity soccer coach at his alma mater to replace Neil Nicoll, who recently resigned.

Stinson, whose Crusaders open Saturday at Nyack, N.Y., lettered in soccer his four years at ENC, was named co-captain for three years and in his junior and senior years was chosen all-conference member of the Colonial Soccer League.

He has been coach for only three weeks but has gained the respect of his players. "It was hard to make the change from player to coach," he admitted. "One year I'm worrying about my own playing and now I'm responsible for the whole team performance. It is challenging and I enjoy it."

This year's team shows definite signs of being strong in the offensive thrust with Quincy's Walter Melton and Garth Davis from Buenos Aires returning to the forward positions.

Stinson's own aggressive style of play and this thorough understanding of the sport have characterized the daily workouts.

"To play a full 90 minutes adequately you must be in shape," he maintained. "Conditioning first, skills second; basic skills like trapping. You make a bad trap, you lose the ball, and that's all it takes to lose a game."

Doug Restrict is the new Sports Information Director at ENC.

● Cross Country

North Second In Northeastern Meet

North Quincy's cross country team, which last fall won the state Class B championship, turned in another outstanding performance last Saturday when it placed second in the Northeastern University meet.

More than 300 runners took part with four of Lou Tozzi's Raiders winning medals and North placed first among Eastern Mass. Schools. The meet winner was perennial powerhouse Springfield Cathedral.

North's first finisher was Marty Levenson in 10th place, followed by brother Bob, 13th; Mike Morin, 21st, and Mike Barrett, 23rd. All won medals, which went to the first 30 finishers. Andy Laskowski was North's other scorer.

Last Friday North opened its Suburban League season with a 20-35 win over Cambridge Latin, despite the fact Tozzi rested the Levenson brothers and Morin for the Northeastern Meet.

Barrett placed second, Jerry Keyes third, Laskowski fourth, Mike Ketzner fifth and sophomore Billy Murphy sixth.

North's girls, still without a coach, [Tozzi is handling the team until a girls' coach is appointed], lost, 25-32. Sue Yee was second, Mary Leonard fourth, Michele Seltzer fifth, Carol Seegraber eighth and Marie Voelkel 12th.

Quincy dropped its season's opener to Brockton, 20-39, but the Presidents' sensational junior, John Saville, was the winner, covering Quincy's new 2.6 mile course in 13:42. Brockton swept the next seven places, with Quincy's Don Jones finishing ninth.

Quincy's girls, being handled by boys' coach Joe Catalano until a girls' coach is named, also lost, 24-33. Paula Conostas was Quincy's first finisher in third place, while Dottie Irvine was fifth, Ellen Caramanica sixth and Mary Ilacqua seventh.

Track Club Opens Cross Country Meets Saturday

The Quincy Track Club will inaugurate its new cross country program Saturday at 10 a.m. when it will run the first of five meets starting at Pageant Field.

The races are open to any Quincy boy or girl eight years of age and older. Registration in the club is $2 and dues are 50 cents per race. The meets will be run along the high school course on the trails in Merrymount Woods. The meets will also serve as tryouts for the team which the QTC will send to New York in November.

Age groups are 11 and under, 12-13, and 14-15.

All boys and girls interested in joining should report to Pageant Field no later than 10 o'clock Saturday.

Ribbons will be presented to the top five finishers in each age group. For more information call Jeff Hennessy at 472-5537 or Joe Santo at 698-2959.

● Executive Hockey

Washington Taps Whites, Al's, Darcy's In 4-4 Tie

Washington Tap bombed the White team, 10-3, in Quincy Executive Hockey League action Sunday at the Youth Arena.

Kevin White sparked the win with two goals and two assists. Other scorers for Washington were Bernie Toland and Bill Malcho with two goals each and Ed Grogan, John Norton, Pete Laberge and Bob Duffy, one apiece. Bob Murray had three assists, Laberge, Grogan and John Emmott two each and Norton and Malcho one apiece. For the Whites John McNeil, Ralph Younie and Charlie Chambers had the goals and Ed O'Riordan had two assists and Ron Fletcher one.

Al's Cafe and Darcy's Pub played to a 4-4 tie. Alan Gullickson, Jack McDonald, Joe Chase and Jim Daly had the goals for Darcy's with assists for Bill Lynch, Chase, Wayne

Cooper, McDonald and Bob O'Connell. For Al's Joe Hoener and Dave McArthur had two goals apiece. Joe Milano and Ken Wright had two assists each and Barry Gibbs, Ed Holt and Jack Haynes one apiece.

Paul Donoghue scored four goals and assisted on another and Fran Bonani had the hat trick and added four assists to spark the Greens to a 14-2 runaway over the Hofbrau.

Al Bonani and Tom Roberts had two goals each and John Crossman, Dave Hickey, and Kenny Halloran one apiece for the winners.

Al Bonani had three assists, Jack Gardner had two and Pete Bertrand, Hickey, Roberts, and Bob Quintilliani one apiece. For Hofbrau Dave Bertrand and Dick Mills had the goals and Ron Erickson an assist.

Loves The Moon

Q. I have been meaning to write for quite a while to see if you might enlighten me on the reason that our granddaughter, born on December 13, 1968 in Winchester, Mass. at 3:04 P.M., seems to be so fascinated by the Moon.

Ever since she first noticed it at about one and a half years old she has consistently asked to go to the window and see it each night before bedtime. She just gazes and gazes.

This procedure goes on whether she is at home or visiting at the home of her grandparents. I will be grateful if you spare the time to look into this puzzle. I read your column regularly and find it very interesting.

E.F.

A. The Fifth House of a horoscope is indicative of one's love and pleasure among other conditions. At the time of your granddaughter's birth the Moon was in the Fifth House of her horoscope. The planet Pluto, indicative of intensification, was in the same degree of longitude with the Moon [conjunction aspect] in the Fifth House. Obviously your granddaughter derives much pleasure by just seeing the Moon.

Her Sun in the Sign of the Zodiac Sagittarius is indicative of an interest in far away places and this usually indicates a desire for distant travel. Perhaps when she reaches maturity she will be one of the early lady visitors to the Moon!

She has considerable intellectual potentialities and every effort should be made to see that she is given opportunities for a higher education. Whether she obtains such or not she should be quick in grasping facts, have a very active mind and probably will learn a little about a great many things. She will probably rationalize a great deal and be likely to talk herself into or out of anything.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered in this column.

PAUL C. GAY, [third from left], Register of Probate for Norfolk County, looks on as Governor Dukakis prepares to sign legislation which permits Massachusetts to join the national divorce registration system. The new law, Chapter 246 of the Acts of 1976, qualifies Massachusetts for federal funds to be used in developing information and programs related to children of divorced parents.

'Better Use For Money'

Powers Opposed To New City Hall, Civic Center

City Councillor Warren A. Powers says he is opposed to spending $5 million on a new City Hall and civic center "when the Quincy taxpayer is facing a possible tax increase of $25 to $35."

Powers said he opposed all of the sites that were proposed last Friday during a meeting held in the Public Works garage.

"There has been an argument put forth that these are federal funds and, therefore, there is no cost to the city," he said. "There is no such thing as free money.

Tax dollars are tax dollars no matter which pocket you take them from.

"A civic center may seem like a good idea at first but it would, in my opinion, become and expensive white elephant because there is no demonstrated need for one.

"If federal funds are to be requested, they should be spent on projects that will somewhat offset the burden on the local real estate taxes or on community-type projects that directly affect and improve the quality of life in our neighborhoods.

"People want to see money available for curbing, new sidewalks and flood control projects rather than to build memorials to those in public office.

"I think the Mayor should send the city planner back to the drawing board to come up with a practical people-oriented request for funds that can be applied for the benefit of those who pay the local real estate taxes."

Council Overrides Mayor On Police Strength Ordinance

The City Council Monday night override Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's veto and passed an ordinance fixing the minimum strength of the Quincy Police Department.

The ordinance was first passed May 3 in the midst of strong rumors that some 18 members of the Police Department were about to be laid off in an economy move by the LaRaia administration.

The Mayor's veto was overridden by a vote of 9-0 on the motion of Councillor Dennis E. Harrington, seconded by Councillor Daniel G. Raymond.

A mild impediment in the rush to passage by Councillor Paul D. Harold, who asked if any other communities had such an ordinance, was brushed aside by fellow councillors.

"The one purpose of this ordinance is to insure the strength of the Police Department," said Councillor Warren A. Powers. "If there is a dramatic drop in crime we could amend the ordinance down."

The ordinance fixes the strength of the Department at one chief and not less than five captains, 16 lieutenants, 26 sergeants and 188 patrolmen "or such larger number as are deemed necessary by the Mayor."

Chamber To Sponsor Water Quality Workshop Sept. 30

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce will co-sponsor a water quality workshop next Thursday [Sept. 30] at 3 p.m. in the South Shore National Bank Directors' Room, 19 Chestnut St., Quincy.

The object of the workshop is to provide information to water-related industries and those affected by the water quality standards and to permit them to have their voices heard by water quality planners.

Co-sponsors of the workshops include the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, the Neponset Conservation Association and the North and South Rivers Watershed Association.

Panelists and their subjects will include:

- "Impact of Water Quality Enforcement on Industrial Water Users," a representative of the Neponset Reservoir Co.

- "Interaction of Industry with State and Federal Agencies," J. Ross West, manager of engineering, Ocean Spray Cranberry Co., Hanson.

Primary Election Analysis

Anti-Busing Feeling Reflected, Incumbents No Longer Shoo-Ins

Following is a precinct-by-precinct breakdown of the vote in Quincy for three of the most interesting contests on last week's Democratic Primary ballot:

U.S. Senator, Congressman [11th District] and State Representative in the Third Norfolk District.

The figures seem to reflect local anti-busing feelings in the vote for U.S. Senate. And in the Congressional and Third Norfolk District state representative contests indicate that incumbents no longer are automatic shoo-ins if seriously challenged.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy polled 8,574 votes to 4,283 for challenger Robert Dinsmore—a margin of 4,291 votes. A few years ago, Kennedy would have swamped any opponent here.

Of the 4,283 votes received by Dinsmore, more than half of them [2,275] came in Ward 5 [1,113] and Ward 6 [1,162] both of which have had an influx of new residents from Dorchester and South Boston in recent years.

In Ward 5, Kennedy received 2,088 votes and in Ward 6, 1,926.

Kennedy's margin in Ward 5 then was only 975 votes and in Ward 6 it was but 764.

Then add Frederick Langone's 237 votes and Bernard Shannon's 40 to Dinsmore's total and Kennedy has won by only 698 votes in Ward 5.

In Ward 6, Langone's 290 votes and Shannon's 32 votes added to Dinsmore's total, cuts Kennedy's win to 442 votes.

Shannon dropped out of the race and threw his support to Dinsmore. However, his name stayed on the ballot.

Kennedy, it is interesting to note, gets stronger in Quincy the further geographically the other four wards are from South Boston and the busing problems.

In the 11th Congressional District, incumbent James A. Burke carried Quincy by only 1,877 votes over challenger Patrick H. McCarthy. Burke got 7,949 and McCarthy, who waged a rock-'em sock-'em campaign got 6,072.

In the Third Norfolk District young Michael W. Morrissey defeated veteran incumbent

In staging his upset, young

Morrissey carried all but one of the 10 precincts in the district. Here are the figures by precinct:

$242,000 For Riverview Housing

The federal government is contributing $242,000 for the modernization of the Riverview Housing Project in Germantown.

The Quincy Housing Authority plans to re-side several of the buildings in the project to eliminate lead paint problems.

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia signed the contract for the money with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development last week.

Danielle deBenedictis got one write-in vote in 1-9. Paul D. Harold got one write-in vote in 6-5.

Mayor, Council Still At Stalemate

$25 Still Minimum Hike In Tax Rate, Says LaRaia

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and the City Council were still at a stalemate over the tax rate this week.

Despite a series of meetings with state officials and an opportunity offered by the Council to slash his $77 million budget by another $1.8 million, Mayor LaRaia told The Sun Tuesday:

"Based on the figures we have, $25 is still the minimum increase in the tax rate."

"The figures can't be fabricated unless we want to create an unstable financial situation."

The City Council last week challenged the Mayor to slash $1.8 million from the budget already passed by the Council by offering him a budget amendment with a lower figure on which to base the tax rate.

But, the Mayor refused to take the bait.

"An arbitrary cut like that only creates a situation whereby sometime next March we would be repeating the same problem we had this year in appropriating money we didn't have to finish out the year," he said.

The Mayor and members of the City Council were scheduled to meet late Tuesday to discuss the figures on which the new tax rate would be based but LaRaia held out little hope that a rate below the predicted $25 increase would result.

"I told them last time that I would call them in when I was close to setting the rate," he said. "It is strictly to explain to the Council what figures we are working with in setting the rate."

LaRaia indicated that the rate might not be set until well into October.

"By the end of the week 90 per cent of the communities will have set their tax rates," he said. "We want to be able to establish our rate in the same time period."

"But it is possible we might have to postpone the announcement to next week to allow time to include revenues to be added which require Congressional approval [that is, revenue sharing]."

[Meanwhile, negotiators from the U.S. House and Senate hammered out a compromise agreement that would give local communities $25.6 billion in revenue sharing over the next four years. Now the compromise goes to the House and Senate for approval.]

"It's all in the Mayor's hands

Few Side Effects From Vaccine

City Plans Free 'Swine Flu' Clinics For Late October

By TOM HENSHAW

A free mass clinic to administer swine flu vaccine in Quincy is tentatively set for sometime during the third week in October.

"We expect supplies of the vaccine to arrive in Massachusetts between Oct. 1 and 11," said Pamela McNeice, R.N., area swine flu coordinator, who is based in the J. F. Kennedy Health Center.

"We hope to run a clinic in Quincy sometime after Oct. 18 - but even that date is indefinite."

Meanwhile, Nurse McNeice is busy with the printed forms that have to be signed by persons requesting the vaccine and answering questions about the flu itself and the vaccine against it.

Some of the answers to questions most frequently asked may be gleaned from the following summary issued by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare:

"Influenza [flu] is caused by viruses. When people get flu they may have fever, chills, headache, dry cough or muscle aches. Illness may last several days or a week or more, and complete recovery is usual. However,

Hospital Board Expected To Appoint DeFalco Oct. 5

The Hospital Board of Managers is scheduled to meet next Tuesday [Oct. 5], probably to name Anthony DeFalco of Needham as the new director of City Hospital.

The appointment was postponed last week to permit a panel of doctors to question DeFalco before he is appointed to succeed Harlan L. Paine Jr. in the $32,500 post.

Meanwhile, John T. Williams, who was fired from the Board of Managers by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia the day before the Board was to have voted on DeFalco's appointment, was still demanding a hearing on his ouster.

"My attorney, Richard Barry, sent a letter to the Mayor demanding a hearing," said Williams. "But the Mayor has not given us the common courtesy of a reply. Mr. Barry is preparing another letter."

Williams earlier said he planned to seek a restraining order to prevent the Board of Managers from appointing DeFalco until after the hearing was held. He said Tuesday, however, that no restraining order would be sought.

"We checked the city ordinances and the Mayor is within his power to remove anyone from the Board," he said. "Except for the charges made against me, he is within his rights. It is spelled out pretty clearly."

Further action, including possible damage suits against LaRaia and Board Chairman Edward V. Cronin for accusations made in the dismissal order, will have to wait until the Mayor replies to Barry's letters, Williams said.

Bids To Go Out For New Germantown Park

Bids are expected to go out within a week for construction of a 9.7-acre mini-park off Bicknell St., Germantown, which will include community garden plots for senior citizens.

The area also will include a Little League baseball field, horseshoe pitching courts, a wetlands area and improvements to the beach at Germantown Point on the Fore River.

The work will be done under a $70,000 grant of federal funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

MBTA Red Line Design Contract Hiked $402,409

MBTA directors have authorized a $402,409 increase in the contract awarded the design engineering firm of Parsons, Brinckerhoff, Quade and Douglas for their work on the Red Line extension from

"It will be a walk area," says City Councillor Leo J. Kelly. "Vehicles will be banned from the walks, except for those of the Park and Recreation Department."

It was at Kelly's insistence that the garden plots were included to enable senior citizens, many of them from the Oceanview project across Bicknell St., to supplement their diets with cheap fresh vegetables.

Kelly said the project should be finished in June.

Quincy Center to South Braintree.

The supplementary agreement was made necessary by design modifications and additional consultant services.

QCBPA In United Vote

Downtown Backs Upland Road Extension

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has voiced unanimous support to Frank Remick in his efforts to protect the Upland Rd Extension as a member of the Mayor's Task Force on the South Quincy MBTA Station.

Remick reported to a meeting of the QCBPA last week, at La Cucina Restaurant, that he "discerns some obstruction" on the part of some members of the Task Force, on which he is the only representative of downtown Quincy merchants.

"There is a line of reasoning that the extension of Upland Rd will only make it easier for our customers to get to the South Shore Plaza," he said.

"Some people have a negative approach to downtown Quincy. They think it is done, over the hill, so why make it easier to go to the Plaza. We have to counter that philosophy."

"We should be alert to the danger of someone throwing a monkey wrench into the works."

"The Upland Rd Extension must be built along with the MBTA Station. If the MBTA Station is built without the Upland Rd Extension, then forget it!"

"We should adopt a very aggressive stance in support of the Upland Rd Extension because it is one of the keys to the growth of the downtown Quincy business district."

"Upland Rd would provide easy access to downtown Quincy. The present access roads [Independence Ave., Furnace Brook Pkwy, Water and Granite Sts.] are ill-recognized."

The proposed Upland Rd Extension would accept traffic from the Southeast Expressway around Capen's Bridge in Braintree and carry it along in the vicinity of the old railroad tracks to Granite St. near Grossmans.

Remick said someone missed the ball for Quincy when the Expressway was built since "inadequate access roads have isolated Quincy Square from the flow of traffic south of Boston."

"It is a serious handicap," he added, "in the fight to maintain Quincy's position as a shopping center for people who live to the south."

The first meeting of the Task Force concerned itself with flood control problems rather than the Upland Rd Extension.

Delahunt Requests Federal Funds For District Courts Prosecutors

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has requested $110,936 in federal assistance to maintain prosecutors in Quincy and the other four district courts of Norfolk County.

The funds were requested from the Governor's Committee on Criminal Justice, which administers $10 million dollars in crime control funds authorized under the Safe Streets Act of 1973.

Delahunt explained that the federal funds would provide for nine assistant district attorneys to prosecute in the district courts located in Quincy, Dedham, Brookline, Stoughton and Wrentham. He said:

"These funds will put prosecutors where they are vitally needed - in the District Courts. I anticipate that the application will be approved, and this program will continue. In 1972, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts' Committee on Criminal Justice funded an LEAA pilot program to utilize lawyer prosecutors in the district courts of Norfolk County. Since its initial funding, the grant has been reviewed and expanded each year. If this request for assistance is approved, it will mean that nearly $400,000 in federal funds has helped put prosecutors in the courtroom.

"These prosecutors handle all felonies and serious misdemeanors at the district court level. Daily they work closely with local police departments' and witnesses to prepare and present cases. They also assist police in the preparation of warrants and the evaluation of evidence at the local level."

Delahunt noted that several major changes have been made in the program in Norfolk County's district court prosecution. In the past several months, several assistants have been full-time rather than part time. They have also begun a "vertical" prosecution program whereby district court prosecutors also try a case in the Superior Court. Maintaining the same prosecutor for both the original trial and the appeal permits a greater familiarity and preparation for the District Attorney's office.

Koch Club Already Receiving Used Toys For Needy Children

Used toys have already begun arriving at the Koch Club for its annual Christmas project, "Gifts for Needy Children."

Each year the Koch Club collects toys, games, books and dolls that are in usable condition requiring only minor repairs or cleaning to be distributed to needy youngsters at Christmas.

The program was started in 1971 with the distribution of gifts to children who lost their possessions in fires during the Christmas season. It has expanded to the point where more than 10,000 items have been given out in the past five years.

The dress-a-doll program is scheduled again for the third year.

Used dolls are being sought for reconditioning, cleaning and hair grooming. Women or girls interested in participating in the dress-a-doll program should contact Mrs. Simone Koch of North Quincy or Mrs. Ginny Derringer of South Weymouth.

Some 300 dolls were distributed last year.

The Christmas programs are sponsored by the Koch Club but other groups of individuals are invited to participate. Those interested may contact Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, at 328-8286.

Seeking Public's Reaction

Coast Guard Would Forbid Opening Of FR Bridge During Peak Traffic Hours

The Coast Guard has proposed a regulation that would forbid the opening of the Fore River Bridge during peak traffic hours and is seeking comment on it from interested parties.

The proposed regulation reads:

"State Route 3A between Quincy Point and Weymouth. The draw shall open on signal except that from 6:30 a.m. to 9 a.m., and from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays, the draw need not open for the passage of vessels. The draw shall open at any time in case of emergency or during storm conditions."

Anyone wishing to submit written data, views or arguments relating to the proposed regulation may do so by contacting the Commander [obit], First Coast Guard District, 150 Causeway St., Boston 02114.

Comments received before Oct. 29 will be forwarded with recommendations to the Chief of the Office of Marine Environment and Systems at Coast Guard headquarters in Washington for evaluation.

The Coast Guard in Boston said it has heard and read of traffic problems resulting when the Fore River Bridge is opened for the passage of boats during the commuter rush hours.

"At the present time," the Coast Guard said, "there are no regulations which restrict the operation of the drawspan. Consequently, the drawtender is required to open the span whenever a vessel gives the proper call signal."

"After observing the operation of the draw span, examining the log of openings that is maintained at the bridge, and reviewing vehicular traffic counts, it appears that it may be beneficial to the general public if the drawspan on Route 3A did not open for the passage of marine traffic during the peak traffic hours."

HN, Point Sewerage Odors Being Probed

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] and City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi are attempting to halt odors emanating from sewerage plants around the city.

Brownell has relayed to MDC Commissioner John Snedeker complaints from Houghs Neck residents about odors and possible illegal dumping at the Nut Island Sewerage Treatment Facility.

Raymondi met recently with city and state officials to discuss solutions to the problem of odors wafting from the Quincy Point pumping station at the corner of Chubbuck St. and Des Moines Rd.

Brownell's chief complaint to Snedeker was that personnel at the facility "have dug a pit and have deposited in it foul smelling screenings from the plant which have now attracted a rat population."

"It would appear to me that such a practice would be illegal without appropriate permits. Currently, I am unaware of any permits being issued for dumping at this plant."

Brownell asked that Snedeker visit the plant with him "so that we can review its current operation and procedures because I feel this is a serious problem."

Raymondi said he too had received "many complaints during the past few weeks regarding strong odors that are coming from the station" in Quincy Point.

His meeting with city and state officials, he said, "was an excellent opportunity for all the parties to get together in an attempt to arrive at a solution to this problem."

"The meeting was an extremely productive one and hopefully in the near future we will have some recommendations that we will present to the Commissioner of Public Works and the Mayor for their review."

OCT. 5 DEADLINE FOR VOTER REGISTRATION

The deadline for registration to vote in the Nov. 2 election in Quincy is next Tuesday [Oct. 5].

City Hall is open daily, Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in order to enroll new voters.

The final special registration days in the city's six wards was held last night [Wednesday] from 7-9 p.m. in Ward 5 [the new auditorium of the Wollaston School, Beale St.] and Ward 6 [the Quincy School, Newbury Ave.].

An extra registration day for the entire city will be held Saturday [Oct. 2] from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. in City Hall.

And for last minute registrants, City Hall will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Tuesday [Oct. 5].

Quincy Family Planning Project Expands Clinic Hours

The Quincy Family Planning Project has expanded its clinic hours at the Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St.

In addition to its regular Wednesday evening clinic hours (4 to 9 p.m.) it has now added clinic hours on Friday afternoons from 11:15 to 5 p.m. The Project also conducts a clinic Wednesday afternoons at the Quincy City Hospital Outpatient Department from 1 to 4 p.m.

The Quincy Family Planning Project is a family planning agency approved by the Department of Public Welfare and Medicaid patients are welcome. There are no financial or geographical restrictions and all residents of the South Shore are eligible to receive services. Many patients may be treated at no charge if they qualify under the sliding scale guidelines.

Each clinic is staffed by a physician, a Family Planning Nurse, and two health aides.

Services provided at the clinics are a complete gynecological exam, including Pap testing, breast exam with self-instruction, blood pressure and urinalysis. Other services provided are V.D. screening, pregnancy testing, and family planning counseling in medically approved birth control methods, as well as information and referral.

For an appointment, call the Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., the Germantown Health Clinic, 9 Bicknell St., or the Atlantic Neighborhood Clinic, 150 East Squantum St.

Carter Pledges His Support Of ERA

In a telegram to the State Committee for the Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, presidential candidate Jimmy Carter expressed his support of the ERA.

Toby Felton of Quincy, a member of the Norfolk Committee reports the telegram said:

"Today, as we celebrate the ratification of the 19th amendment to our constitution giving women the right to vote, it is a good time for all of us to reflect upon the status of women in our country. It is a time for us to focus on the importance of the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment as a matter of social justice for all women of this country.

"The Carter/Mondale team will make it clear to the American people that, despite charges to the contrary, the ERA is not an elitist issue but one that affects the economic and social well-being of all Americans. While we have seen some progress in changing our laws to prevent discrimination against women, these steps must not be used as an excuse to withhold from women the full guarantees of the constitution.

"As a candidate for president, I am fully committed to equality between men and women in every area of government and in every aspect of life. I am proud of the Democratic Party's platform to urge ratification of the ERA. In addition, I have sent telegrams to the Democratic leadership expressing my support for ratification of ERA.

"Be assured of our continued support and our personal conviction that equal rights and equal opportunity must clearly be national goals for all Americans."

Quincy Woman To Teach Workshops On Helping Cancer Patients And Families

Mrs. Ruth Roseland of Quincy will teach two workshops and courses dealing with helping and working with cancer patients and their families.

The course and workshop this fall will be part of the Boston Family Institute's Continuing Education Program. The Institute is a non-profit center for family studies.

Mrs. Roseland, a family specialist for the American Cancer Society as well as a clinical psychologist and marriage counselor, said her workshop and course is primarily designed for persons counseling cancer patients and their families.

She said the focus will be on clarifying and evaluating the emotional strains with which each member of the cancer family is faced as they attempt to deal with their individual social situation.

The workshop and courses is part of a series of more than 20 different programs starting in October for area residents and professionals in the mental health and social service fields offered by BFI, 1170 Commonwealth Ave., Boston.

"The aim of our courses is to help individuals and families understand more about themselves and the people they live and work with," Mrs. Roseland said.

"Our courses are not a substitute for therapy. They are meant simply to help people learn to live their lives with more satisfaction and less pain."

In addition to Mrs. Roseland's course, there are courses and workshops on such topics as "Couple Communication" and "Massage for Families and Couples".

Also, "Child Development Problems in Family Therapy", "Feeding Ourselves; Confronting Weight Problems", "The Jewish Women: Identity and Context, Myth and Reality", and "Family Interviewing".

A complete listing of courses for the general public and professionals may be obtained by contacting the Family Institute by letter or phone 731-2883.

BFI was among the first family Institutes established in the United States and the first in New England to train people to see families as a group.

FOR SAFER CYCLING

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety recently conducted a study of some 888 police reports of bicycle accidents in Maryland, and concluded that cyclists were "probably responsible for the initiation of 78 percent" of the crashes, and that the percentage of "probably responsible" cyclists "diminished sharply with increasing ages over 12."

Researchers said older cyclists were less likely to be the cause of their crashes because they were better able to localize sounds, perceive movements out of the corners of their eyes, and were more competent at reading, understanding and obeying road signs.

In a separate report, the Consumer Product Safety Commission advises parents: "If you're buying a bicycle for a child, choose one to fit his size as he is today, not one he will grow into later on." The report gives detailed instructions on how to select, use, and maintain a bicycle. You can get a free copy of "Fact Sheet No. 10 - Bicycles" by writing: Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

George Dewey Dalton:

Quincy's Dr. Christian

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Years ago in the movies, Jean Hersholt portrayed the role of kindly, wise, always available and professionally honest and astute Dr. Christian.

And for 48 years in Quincy, a real-life doctor actually lived—not played—the same role. His name: Dr. George D. [for Dewey] Dalton. Dr. Dalton did it all quietly and without fanfare. But there were witnesses—thousands of them: his patients who came to admire him as both a doctor and friend.

He has always shunned the limelight—even though as Norfolk County medical examiner for 28 years headlined murder cases often thrust him to center stage.

So, I don't know whether he is going to like me writing this tribute about him. But I don't care. I consider him a good friend of mine going back 30 years. So I'm writing it anyway and he will just have to eventually get over it.

A group of about 50—medical colleagues and personal friends in other fields—were to get together last night [Wednesday] to honor him at a little dinner at the new Wollaston Golf Club, Randolph Ave., Milton.

Joining them were to be his three brothers: Rt. Rev. Augustine C. Dalton, Dr. Kenneth Dalton and Dr. John Dalton.

The affair was for just male friends and quite informal. So three sisters, Lucretia, wife of Dr. John Corrigan; Leah, wife of Dr. Leo Amrhein and Sister Kenneth, Order of St. Joseph, were not present.

Nor, of course, his lovely wife of 44 years, the former Mary Granahan.

That was the way it was planned, anyway.

And the reason it was planned that way was because Dr. Dalton did not want anyone making a fuss over him. And if women were present, it would look like a formal affair and somebody would insist that he make a speech.

When he found out his friends wanted to have the get-together, he insisted on "no speeches." Not only no speech by him, but no speech by anyone else, either. Period. The latter part of that may have been too much for him to hope for. It would seem once they got him there, somebody was bound to say something nice about him somehow, before he could get out of there.

And, in keeping with his wishes, there was to be no head table.

In a way, the dinner was a tribute to not only Dr. Dalton, but all the Daltons. They're quite a family.

Their parents, Mary and Thomas Dalton, brought them up to love God, respect others, to know right from wrong, and to set—and reach—a goal in life. Each older child helped the next younger to reach his or her goal. There were 10 children in all—six of them now living.

Certainly a most successful family, professional-wise. But more importantly, a successful family as human beings.

Dr. Dalton started his medical practice in Quincy in 1928. For years he and the late Dr. Richard Ash delivered perhaps half the babies born in Quincy.

It is hard to realize that Dr. Dalton is now 78 [a young 78], retired, and planning to move from Quincy to Falmouth. He was born in Braintree in May, 1898 during the Spanish-American War.

And if memory serves me correctly, he was named after Commodore George Dewey, Naval hero of that war.

The D. in his middle name though, could also stand for "Dedication." Because, he was a dedicated doctor every hour of his 48-year career.

He climbed out of bed many a night to go to a patient in need.

And although he'll never admit it—and he'll probably chew me out for even suggesting it—there were a number of people he "forgot" to send bills to down through the years—people who just couldn't afford a doctor when they needed one.

"He certainly was dedicated," one friend notes. "He took everything seriously and gave every case his all—even if it were only a cut finger."

"Money never interested him. He didn't become a doctor to make money. He became a doctor to serve his fellow human being."

And if that sounds corny, then we should all have some more corn.

Too bad George Daltons don't come along more often in life.

Harold Commends Ryan For

Wheel Chair Ramp At Courthouse

City Councillor Paul D. Harold has commended Clerk of Court Dennis Ryan for his efforts to have a wheel chair ramp installed in front of the Quincy District Court House.

Harold noted the importance of making public buildings accessible to handicapped persons.

"As far as the city is concerned, we still have a long way to go to make our libraries, health center and shopping areas more accessible," he said.

"New public buildings are required by law to provide facilities for the handicapped, but I think we should also formulate plans to adapt our present buildings."

"In particular, I think City Hall and the Council Chambers should be made more accessible so that all interested citizens can attend meetings of the city council, license board, zoning board of appeals, etc.," he said.

Getting Boston's Business

When we hired former Quincy Mayor Walter Hannon earlier this year to manage the Chamber's Economic and Industrial Development programs, I recognized that we might get an occasional assist from one of his former political colleagues.

Not in my wildest dreams did I think it would be Boston Mayor Kevin White who would be doing the most for us, but he is, and he should be recognized for his efforts on behalf of the South Shore, the Chamber, and especially his former Quincy counterpart.

The Chamber's program of attracting new jobs and businesses to our Region can only be successful if business firms in other communities want to move somewhere else other than where they are located.

The reason for wanting to move mostly has to do with a firm's perception of how that community views them as a neighbor—in other words, are they welcomed and wanted in town.

If a city administration proposes obscene property tax increases and then forwards an unrealistic proposal to the State Legislature, which stands very little chance of adoption, to add a one percent payroll tax on top of it all, then that administration is providing business with a signal to look elsewhere for a new address.

Between the 35 salespeople we have working for us via our Job Expansion Team [JETeam] and the help we get from our bankers, accounting and real estate members who help us identify prospective new businesses and the off-the-street walk-ins and telephone calls we're receiving from weary Boston businesspeople who are sick of fighting the traffic and, more than that, the psychological war, the prospects for new job development in this marketplace have never looked brighter and our Economic Development department has never been busier.

It's a sad way to grow. At the expense of a neighbor who is trying to deal with its problem in a traditional political way and not recognizing that maybe there is a real opportunity to obtain a solution that can obtain broad-based support.

No responsible citizen wants to see Boston go down the tube. Most of us recognize that their property tax is ridiculously high, but such is the case in all our communities.

I personally feel that I should be more directly participating in sharing the cost of government here in Quincy where my job is located even though I live and pay a beefy property tax in Hingham.

If I thought that a new income tax would be imposed that would help me share in paying Quincy's bills while at the same time reducing my property taxes in Hingham, then I just might support it.

Kevin White's tax proposal offers no one relief except Boston. If White could mobilize the elected officials, mayors and selectmen in metro-Boston to talk about a tax in which they both share as a way of reducing property taxes, then he might have something.

His current plan is simply scaring the hell out of a lot of businesses who look at the payroll tax as something they are going to have to absorb.

We appreciate White's efforts to make sure we have lots of prospects with which to deal, but we're all in this for the long run and would like to see a more practical solution being developed.

[Eric Swider is the Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Sees Bottle Bill As 'Ill-Timed, Ill-Conceived Social Experiment'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Re: THE OTHER SIDE OF THE BOTTLE BILL

I have read with interest the September 9 column by Stephen Morgan, Director, Massachusetts Public Interest Group.

Mr. Morgan reminds me of two young men who came to visit our Pepsi-Cola plant in Milton in a small car with California plates [one resided there until a few months ago] with the impressive titles of Project Researchers of the Committee for a Bottle Bill in Massachusetts. Both admitted they had never been in a soft drink bottling or canning plant before.

If this is true of Mr. Morgan, I would like to invite him to visit our bottling and canning plant at his convenience.

Mr. Morgan disagrees with facts set forth in a previous column by Mr. Eric Swider, the Executive Director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, and then he proceeds to cite another set of facts which can also be disputed.

I am glad to see that most of the other proponents are getting away from the "Oregon Story", the "Vermont Experience" and the "discredited" Federal Reserve Bank Study and are now complaining about the amounts of money being spent by "Big Business" to defeat this "Social Experiment".

I am in the business of manufacturing Pepsi-Cola products for the people of the South Shore. In 40 years, we have never supplied a package that our customers, the retailers, did not want, or their customers, the consumer, would not buy.

The American consumer over the past 20 years has become very convenience oriented. They buy shaving cream in spray cans, when they could use soap and shaving mugs. Just look in your laundry room, your medicine cabinet or in your pantry and count the number of convenience packages that could be purchased in other less convenient forms.

Now, about the huge sums spent by "Big Business", a bad word these days — it is Big Business that pays big taxes, supplies jobs to thousands and provides them with most of their everyday needs. Through contributions to fight the Bottle and Can Bill in Massachusetts, all big industry is doing is protecting their investments and interests in this State. It is another form of insurance.

Our business is a small business employing 60 people, and one of our insurance policies is our contribution to the Committee to Protect Jobs and the Convenience Containers in Massachusetts. The threat to our business is so great that I would gladly contribute five times the amount, which would about total all other forms of insurance our company carries for all other protection.

I know very few people are interested in my problems or those of our employees, but for the life of me I cannot understand the reason why a forced deposit should be put on beer and soft drinks and make them the only item out of 8,000 items in a nice clean supermarket that would be in a second hand used container.

Please help defeat this ill-timed, ill-conceived "Social Experiment", the bill for forced deposit on bottles and cans. VOTE NO ON QUESTION 6.

Congratulations On 8th Anniversary

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to congratulate you on the occasion of the 8th anniversary of the establishment of The Quincy Sun.

The Sun has provided a great service to the people of Quincy by keeping them aware, through various news items, of happenings in our community. As a Quincy resident, I am appreciative of the efforts extended on your part by providing Quincy with a weekly newspaper that is both interesting and informative.

At the start of this, your 9th year, I want to take the opportunity to wish you good luck and continued success.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS

Sept. 30 - Oct. 6, 1931 - 45 Years Ago This Week

When Soccer Was The Talk Of The Town

By TOM HENSHAW

Soccer was the most talked about sport at Quincy's two senior high schools.

Coach Tommy Fleming's Quincy eleven was being touted as possible national champions after a record-setting 9-0 victory over Watertown.

Capt. Johnny Brown booted five goals for the Presidents, who won the New England schoolboy title the previous year.

In the QHS lineup were:

Goalies - Finn Follum and Lefty Wilson.

Fullbacks - Al [Tarzan] Paine, Bob MacArthur, Art Downton and Bat Battiesini.

Halfbacks - Jake Littlewood, Charlie Anderson, Robert Sullivan, Red Bowman, Johnny [Battling] Nelson and Barney Swartz.

Forwards - Tommy Chisholm, Charlie MacGibbon, Alex Mitchelson, Dave Page, Johnny Brown, Tommy McBride, Johnny MacGibbon, Paul Reilly and Alex McGuire.

Meanwhile, North Quincy High, playing its first soccer game ever, bowed to Plymouth, 2-0, at the Ward Six Playground. Fleming also coached the Raiders.

SHIPYARD BUSY

Keel was laid at the Fore River Shipyard for the 630-foot Lurline, the third passenger liner to be built for the Mattson Lines.

Sister ships Mariposa was at the fitting dock and Monterey was scheduled to be launched Oct. 10.

Also under construction at Fore River were three ships for the United Fruit Co. and the heavy cruiser USS Portland.

Outside the gates of the Yard, labor agitators from the Trade Union Unity League were passing out flyers urging workers to organize for a strike against an expected 10 per cent wage cut.

TANK FARM FOR MONTCLAIR

The New England Terminal Co. filed an application to establish a $2 million, 74-acre oil storage plant with a total capacity of 860,000 barrels on the Neponset River in Montclair at the Milton line.

NETCo. President Matthew P. Sheahan said the plant would consist of 32 tanks, two administration buildings, two warehouses, a garage and two truck loading stations. It would be used for storage, no refining.

PARKING LOT VOTED

The City Council authorized the purchase of the so-called Shikes-Long property on Granite St. for $68,000 as a public parking lot.

Councillors also voted to permit the balance of the city's $140,000 parking fund to be spent for other purposes, which alarmed downtown merchants.

Unless the Council restores the money for parking purposes, said President Henry J. Hickey of the Chamber of Commerce, "they will be killing the goose that lays the golden egg."

$25 Still Minimum Hike In Tax Rate, Says LaRaia

now," said City Council President Arthur H. Tobin. "We have justified our figures. I hope the Mayor and his aides can work toward them. His advisors have been operating on a different set of figures."

The City Council has expressed the hope that any tax rate increase can be held to $10-15.

"Our figures," said Mayor LaRaia, "are based on reasonable estimates as well as actual experience with receipts from the preceding year. It also considers budget expenditures that will carry us through the year. We have to have a budget adequate to do that.

"Last year the previous administration not only violated the basis I refer to in legitimate budget and estimates but proof shows in the $4 million deficit we had at the end of June. By law we have to put it in this year's tax rate. And that's close to $16 on the tax rate."

Brett Changes Mind, Will Now Use Political Signs

Rep. Joseph E. Brett, who is running for reelection on "stickers" after losing the Democratic primary, is going back to using political signs after swearing off them during the primary campaign and in past elections.

Since other candidates did not follow his lead, he said, voters did not think he was very interested in reelection.

"Back in July, several weeks before the recent primary elections," he said in a statement, "I issued a public statement that I would again refrain this year from posting political signs throughout residential neighborhoods because of their damaging effect on the appearance of the community."

"At the time, I also expressed the hope that other candidates in the area would subscribe to the same theory in the interest of keeping our neighborhoods attractive."

"Unfortunately, all of the candidates for representative in the Third Norfolk District did not subscribe to that theory, with the result that the incumbent representative emitted a low-key image in the campaign which resulted in many voters believing he was not strongly interested in being reelected to another term.

"Therefore, because of this lack of agreement by all of the candidates to abstain from littering the community with political signs, I must regretfully withdraw from my previous stance and proceed to locate advertising signs throughout my community for the purpose of making sure that all citizens will be aware of my candidacy."

Brett, who is seeking a 10th consecutive term in the State House, lost the Democratic primary to Michael W. Morrissey by some 800 votes.

Children's 'Enchanted Hour'

"The Enchanted Hour", a special series of children's storyhours at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center, will begin Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The programs are especially for children from age seven through 10.

Storytellers, Jane Granstrom and Carol Hallisey, have planned each program around folk and fairy tales, using both illustrated versions and collections. The programs will offer storytelling, reading aloud, book talks and book games and will emphasize the rich traditions of folklore.

Participants in the series will receive a frog mobile to which pieces will be added at each successive story hour.

"Tellers of Tales" begins the series Friday and will be followed by:

"Trickster Tales" Oct. 8; "Russian Folk and Fairy Tales" Oct. 15; "African Folk Tales" Oct. 22; "Spooky Stories" Oct. 29; "American Folk Tales" Nov. 5; "Fables and Foolishness" Nov. 12; and "Stories in Song" Nov. 19.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Get Ready For Winter

It's Time To Fix Up Your Home For Savings Sake

As the fall season sets in, homeowners will be getting out the hammer and nails, taking advantage of the last of the good weather for home repairs and improvements.

Though the recession may be easing off, the cost of building or buying a new home is still beyond the reach of most families. So, the continuing trend is to make the most of the old house rather than move.

Winter planning

Remodelers are thinking ahead toward winter, and planning for the increased time spent indoors. They'll be converting basements, porches, attics and other "spare rooms" into extra living space. And, fixing up existing rooms — a fresh coat of paint, new paneling — raises the spirits when it's chilly outside.

The rising cost of fuel for home heating will be another major factor motivating homeowners to make improvements this season.

Many Americans are conserving energy out of concern for the growing worldwide environmental crisis. But many more will be acting just to help make ends meet.

Fuel saving

With utility companies all over the nation asking for price hikes, and no letup in sight, homeowners are apparently deciding it's worth the investment now to save fuel — sometimes in sizeable amounts — later.

These fuel-saving improvements run the gamut from the minor to radical.

Proper insulation will reduce fuel bills by half — and at the same time help conserve the nation's energy supply, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

If a home is more than 15 years old, it is most likely inadequately insulated. As a consequence the homeowner may be paying almost twice as much as he should to keep his house comfortable, since poor insulation can result in the waste of 45% of all the fuel consumed.

Caulking, weather-stripping, storm windows and doors can save an additional 10% heat loss.

Creative alternatives

The more ambitious are exploring alternative sources of home energy, such as wind and solar power. Far from being Rube Goldberg pipe-dreams, these methods are becoming very practical choices — since after the initial outlay, the energy source is free.

The do-it-yourself trend is healthy and still growing, as homeowners find they can save substantial amounts of money by applying some elbow-grease. In addition to saving their wallets, do-it-yourselfers are reviving two great old American traditions: self-reliance and pride in workmanship.

Energy-saving appliances are helping to ease the energy squeeze in other areas besides home heating. There's better insulation on refrigerators and ovens nowadays, for instance, and many appliances have other power-saving features as well.

And then, for the homeowner who's truly dedicated to saving energy, there are still other newfangled inventions: the quilt, the comforter, the sweater...

Living in a haunted house? You may have a fire hazard

Does your house sometimes seem haunted? Do lights dim without warning... do whole sections of the place suddenly go completely dark... do toasters, lamps and other appliances act up without explanation?

You don't need "things that go bump in the night" to feel you're sharing your home with spooks, points out the head of the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

Things like dimming lights, blown fuses and balky appliances are genuine causes for alarm — not for fear of ghosts, but for the very real fear of an electrical fire which could destroy your house and everyone in it.

Faulty and misused electrical wiring and appliances are the leading cause of building fires in the United States, points out NFPA President Charles S. Morgan.

To help keep your home electrically safe, Mr. Morgan offers these guidelines:

Use the right size fuse in each socket in your fuse box.

Use extension cords as little as possible and, if they feed a heating appliance, make sure they are designed for heavy duty.

Replace appliance and extension cords at the first sign of cracked insulation or loose connections.

Also, never run electric cords under rugs or hang them over nails... and, if you have an outdoor antenna for your television set, make sure the antenna has a properly grounded lightning arrestor and is installed so it can't fall across power lines.

If the roof over your head isn't flame retardant, you could be in for some trouble. Flammable roofing materials can be ignited by sparks from your own chimney, or by flying bits of burning debris from a nearby building or brush fire.

Acceptable roof coverings are listed by recognized testing laboratories as Class A, B or C. Class A passes the most severe fire exposure tests, Class B intermediate, and Class C the least severe.

Slate or tile roofs offer the best fire protection, according to the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA).

Next best are those rated A, B or C. This includes most asphalt shingles as well as wood shingles which have been chemically treated to retard ignition and flame spread.

But beware of untreated wood shingles, warns NFPA. They quickly spread fire and endanger entire neighborhoods.

TUB SAFETY

The Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that more than 75 percent of all bathtub-shower fatalities were children under five years of age who were not supervised while bathing.

NO CHEMISTRY

Do not mix household cleaning products! When blended, even cleaners that are harmless when used as directed may give off noxious gases (this is particularly true of solutions containing bleach.)

Heat, cold and money leak through windows

With storm windows, homeowners can save as much as 15 per cent, even 24 per cent, on their heating and cooling bills. According to a study by the National Bureau of Standards, for example, storm windows saved a homeowner 24 per cent of the fuel bills in a test home in just one year.

The most important benefit of a storm window is that it provides a second layer of glass. That second layer alone will theoretically cut conduction loss through single glass — the biggest energy waster by far — by about 50 per cent.

And if a homeowner already has double-glazed prime windows, a third layer of glass in the form of a storm window will add another 15 per cent or so to that 50 per cent conduction savings.

A storm window also helps reduce conduction losses through the frame of the prime window. Besides saving energy, it will save maintenance by protecting the prime from bad weather.

And aluminum storm windows are all but maintenance free, standing up to the toughest weather conditions with virtually no care needed.

Storm windows are available in a wide range of styles and in practically any size. They can be made to fit any kind of window at all.

Double- or triple-track storm windows are self-storing; in other words, they can hold both the glass and the screen inserts the year around. The bothersome chore of putting them up and taking them down is eliminated, because changing from glass to screens is as simple as sliding one up and the other down.

If a homeowner has air conditioning, he can save between 20 and 30 per cent on cooling energy, in the summer by keeping the storm windows closed. This provides a second layer of glass to reduce the amount of outside heat that can be conducted in through the glass.

Storm windows can cost as little as $20 or less each, installed, and in about four or five years they'll have paid for themselves in fuel savings alone.

The exact savings on heating and cooling bills will depend on numerous factors, however. Whether it's 15 per cent or 24 per cent can't be determined until a homeowner has had the storm windows in for a year or so and has the chance to figure the savings for his windows in his home.

Only economical way to get rid of old window problems—ditch the windows!

The only economical way to get rid of old window problems is to get rid of old windows. And replace them with tight, double-glazed, maintenance-free new windows. made-to-fit replacement window. Custom measured and custom manufactured to the exact dimensions of a window opening, a made-to-fit window has to fit. Perfectly.

It installs quickly and easily, often in a half hour or less, from the inside of a home. Only the movable sash and three small strips of wood need be removed from the old window frame.

And there's absolutely no need for structural alteration. No bricking in, no carpentry, no plastering, no repainting, no re-decorating.

Made-to-fit windows can be built to literally hundreds of thousands of different sizes, and dozens of different styles. Once they're installed, they start saving money for a homeowner.

They practically eliminate air infiltration; that saves a lot of energy. If they're double glazed, they'll save even more energy. Insulating glass saves half of the energy that would be lost by conduction directly through single glass.

And new made-to-fit aluminum windows save a lot of maintenance expense and trouble. In fact, the only maintenance they may ever need is cleaning, and that can be done from the inside.

Old windows waste energy and cost a lot of time, trouble, and upkeep. The only economical answer to old window problems is the made-to-fit aluminum replacement window.

Make most of existing structures when converting attic or cellar

Faced with the need for more room, the average family can move or add to their existing space. The latter course of action is recommended by the National Home Improvement Council.

It recommends converting existing space, such as an attic or a basement, or adding to your present house with a room addition.

Converting an attic or basement into living space can be a highly satisfactory experience and it can save the homeowner money, since he will be utilizing existing space and structures.

An attic project can be approached in a number of ways. The homeowner can simply insulate the roof and then finish off the existing area with flooring and wall partitions.

This will probably involve window dormers which will suggest ventilating louvers in the peak of the roof prior to insulating.

A need for greater space with less sloping ceilings will recommend shed-type dormers at the rear or front of the roof. Another technique is to literally raise the roof.

When you decide to add a room, plan the addition so that it adds to, rather than detracts from, the usable space in the present house.

Remember storage space. Plan it carefully to accommodate the room's purpose, or you may wind up with your existing closets crowding you out of your pleasure in the new addition.

And make the most of your existing water and heat sources. This will save money — and time!

A final thought on room additions: think about the addition in relationship to other homes in your neighborhood.

Its appearance can affect your property values either favorably or adversely. And this is important for both you and your neighbor — and the neighborhood, as well.

Bricks not necessary for the look of brick

Restoring older homes, hunting antiques and do-it-yourself projects are more-than-popular pastimes for many homeowners.

But not everyone lives in an old house or has the money and patience to find the relics of the past they're looking for.

For those with a little dexterity and a few simple tools, though, the antique look of old, heavy brick can be theirs for interior and exterior accent walls.

Brick, yesterday's favorite building material, is making a strong return in home construction and remodeling. But finding used brick isn't very easy these days, and even with new brick, the cost can be high and the difficulty of brick-laying frustrating.

As a result, many homeowners are asking their building supply dealers how to have brick without these hassles.

The answer to this home improvement problem is decorative brick wall covering. Usually sold in cartons consisting of flat, tile-like bricks, decorative bricks are easy to install on any wall or flat surface.

All that's needed are an adhesive mortar, sealer, hacksaw, file, trowel, brush and the bricks.

The mortar is troweled onto the surface to be covered. The bricks are then slid into place with a side-to-side, wiggling motion. At corners, doors or windows, the bricks are cut to fit with a hacksaw, with edges dress cut with a file.

After the brick is in place, the mortar between the bricks is smoothed. The final step is brushing on a coat of protective sealer.

The company that pioneered the use of decorative facing brick for home improvement is the Z-Brick Company, a division of the VMC Corporation.

Z-Brick is completely fireproof, making it ideal for use in the kitchen, around fireplaces, barbecues and stoves. And the bricks are weatherproof, too, allowing them to be used out of doors.

Available in most hardware and building supply stores, Z-Brick comes in three different styles — Inca (a traditional brick design), Country Rustic (with the appearance of handmade brick) and fieldstone.

Twelve colors, variations of red, buffs, grays and whites, let you use the bricks or fieldstones to complement or coordinate with any color scheme.

Kitchen cabinets are moving into every room of the home

Storage space. Everybody needs more. When it comes to storing everyday needs, you should like what the designers at Excel Wood Products Co., Lakewood, N.J., have come up with.

It's the new kitchen cabinet storage system life-style you can have built into any room of your home, or, if you're handy with tools, can install yourself. And there's something in it for everyone in the family, from mother for her laundry and sewing needs, to dad for his workshop, and the son or daughter who is a budding artist or photographer.

Excel, a manufacturer of kitchen cabinets and bathroom vanities, has put it all together in a series of 10 designs that put fun into room planning whether it be for entertaining or crafts.

For example, to create a sewing room, Excel has an easy answer; attach four door cabinets overhead to the wall, place two drawer cabinets beneath on the floor, and the counter space in between handles your sewing machine and sewing aids.

Those new oak cabinets, in cherry, pecan or walnut, look great in a family room or basement game room. With just seven modular door units you make an arrangement that will provide space for sports equipment, serving sets, and shelf space for the TV and stereo.

The new concept in modular cabinets for the home is the way to go when remodeling. The most valuable features of the cabinet lines are all wood construction, wooden drawers, self-closing ball bearing drawer suspension, mortise and tenon joints and dove-tail assembly as found in the most expensive furniture. The cabinets and room plans are available nationally through kitchen dealers, home centers, contractors and distributors.

Liberated cooks will love compact portable oven

The easy way to update the cooking facilities in your kitchen is to add a Turbo-Oven, make it your first, second or only oven.

Due to its compact size, weight and swinging door, it can fit on a kitchen counter, on a shelf above the counter or on a cart that can be moved back and forth from family room to the kitchen.

To operate, it needs at least four inches of free air space on each side and at least eight inches above the louvers found on the top surface.

With the Farberware

Turbo-Oven it is possible to cook foods faster and better while using less energy. It roasts meat in two-thirds the time, broils with no turning necessary and bakes picture perfect food.

It works by continuously recycling heated air. Among its features are a removable tempered glass door for full visibility and easy cleaning, a stay-clean coating which continuously cleans itself during normal cooking. Plus a four hour timer programmed to shut off the oven while signaling that the food is ready.

Free Adult Education Courses On Energy Conservation

Free adult education courses on energy conservation will be given this fall in Quincy as part of a statewide program announced by Gov. Michael Dukakis.

The 10-hour course could help homeowners save an estimated average of $138 per year on their fuel bills according to the Quincy Community Action Organization.

Participants in the course will learn about the structure of their homes and about how to install insulation, caulking and weatherstripping.

The course will be held Monday evenings beginning Oct. 11. Persons interested in the course may call the Quincy School Department at 471-0100, Ext. 297.

Divided into three parts, the course covers:

1. how heating units work and affects the home; 2. how homeowners will be able to note features of their homes and evaluate energy improvements with the aid of their teacher; 3. techniques for improving the home will be offered.

Following completion of the course, persons meeting CSA poverty guidelines may qualify for materials needed to improve the thermal efficiency of their home. Quincy Community Action, its their Winterization Program, will work with homeowners who will be able to do their own repairs.

Those having a need for the services of this program, are asked to call: Energy Coordinator 471-0796, 9 to 12 a.m. or apply at: Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., West Quincy. Guidelines:

Family Size	Income for CSA Eligibility. Gross:
1	$ 3,500
2	4,625
3	5,750
4	6,875
5	8,000
6	9,125
7	10,150 - $1,025 for each additional member

Fix before you freeze

To paraphrase an old saying, "Don't put off until cold weather what you can do today!" Applied to maintenance of your household heating system, this timely recommendation comes from the President of the National Fire Protection Association.

"Now, before cold weather sets in, is the best time to have your home's heating system; individual room heaters and all portable heating appliances cleaned and put in good working order," advises NFPA President Charles S. Morgan.

"Then, if repairs or replacements are needed, you'll have time to get everything into top notch shape before the first cold snap."

Floors and walls offer decorating challenges!

Both solid vinyl and the less costly but no less attractive vinyl asbestos flooring are available in a variety of colors and textures never seen before, says the National Home Improvement Council.

These include simulated brick, slate and marble as well as many other unique designs. And self-adherent tiles that offer real ease of installation are also available.

Wood flooring comes in random-length strips and in parquet blocks in the same sizes as resilient floor tiles (9" x 9" and 12" x 12").

Only a few short years ago, the remodeling homeowner contemplating a change of walls had an easy decision: plaster or plaster board.

Now, in addition to the new colorful lightweight plywood panels, he can choose from a variety of other new products—metal and hardboard and even plastic and glass fiber panels.

Prefinished hardwood, plywood, cement board, stained lumber, ornamental tiles, marble, glass and masonry!

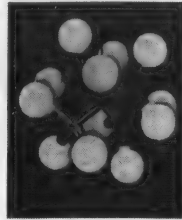

In addition, supported and unsupported vinyl coverings for unfinished walls, peel-and-stick plastics and pre-pasted papers are available.

For a colonial touch for windows, ornamental shutters have all the authentic charm of early-day designs with none of the inconvenience of installation and maintenance.

In a choice of vinyl or aluminum, they come ready to hang, and can be installed in a short time.

AN EASY WAY to change the personality of a room is by having several sets of light bulbs in colors which can be changed to match your mood or decorative theme. Available in Tru-White, clear, yellow, chrome, copperstone, gold, transparent red, black, smoke, green, blue, purple, amber and other colors, these Globelite bulbs by Duro-Lite also come in five sizes and wattages ranging from 25 to 300. They're available at hardware, electrical supply, department and specialty stores.

Wallcoverings come of age in variety of patterns and styles

Remember when your mother hauled out the ladder and the paste pot to wallpaper the living room?

Decorating with wallcoverings is a lot different today. The do-it-yourself decorator has more options now than ever before.

Today's wallcoverings are made of grasscloth, bamboo, cork, cloth, synthetic-backed vinyl and traditional paper. Many come pre-pasted, strippable, stainproof and scrubable.

Chris Wearsch, national decorating consultant has some tips for do-it-yourselfers embarking on a wallcovering project.

"First decide which wallcovering material is best suited for the room where it will be hung," Wearsch advises.

Next, consider the decor. "Wallcoverings come in regular prints, engraved or embossed prints, wet looks, flocks, fols, florals, textures, weaves and stripes," Wearsch says.

If you intend to change your decor often, as in a child's room, Wearsch recommends using a strippable wallcovering that can be peeled off easily.

How to hang wallcoverings is another subject. "It really is not all that difficult," Wearsch says.

TODAY'S WALLCOVERINGS come in a wide assortment of patterns, textures and materials. Shown here is an oriental reed pattern from the new Empress Grasscloth by Style Perfect® line imported from Korea by Sherwin-Williams.

Stepladders: stepping up safely

You can't climb very high on a stepladder, but you can still get hurt if you don't follow these stepladder safety rules:

- Always open the ladder wide enough so that the spreader locks itself in the open position.
- Never stand on top of a stepladder; use a ladder tall enough to let you stand at least two steps from its top.

- Always make sure that the feet are on a firm, level foundation.
- Never lean a stepladder against a wall and use it as a straight ladder.
- Don't overreach. Move the ladder.
- Never use a defective ladder. Never patch up a ladder with wire or make-shift steps.

Durable ceramic tile lends bright new spark to kitchen

The look of obsolescence comes to the kitchen faster than to any other room in the house.

Appliances look outdated in just a few years, and there's no other area that needs repainting and a general overhaul quite as frequently.

But there's ONE material that never grows obsolete: ceramic tile! So if you're about to remodel your kitchen, it makes sense to think tile.

Put it in as many places as possible. For every area that's tiled is one less surface to worry about through all future overhauls and remodeling jobs. That's a lot of dollars saved!

"For ceramic tile can stand up to incredible abuse," says the Tile Council of America.

"A tile floor won't show distinct paths from stove to refrigerator to sink. And chopping onions or parking hot pots right on a tiled counter is perfectly OK."

Also think tile for the walls... at the very least for those behind the stove and the sink.

And what a lot of paint jobs you could save if you put tile on the walls of that center work aisle. Not to mention the breakfast bar!

Ceramic tile will save energy, too. Namely yours. Once-over with a damp mop or sponge will keep those tile surfaces spank-

CERAMIC TILE COUNTERS and floors make beautiful sense in kitchens. They add a distinct note of luxury, they're the easiest of all surfaces to keep clean and never need waxing, they'll last for forever, and not even the hottest pots or vigorous chopping can mar those tile counters.

ing clean. No waxing needed either. Not ever.

And now that you're convinced that it's time to tile, you'll be pleased to find that great fashion has come to this classic product.

Gone is tile's square image... Literally! Today's ceramic tiles come in a fabulous range of shapes and sizes.

Secondly there's color... bright poster primaries as well as quiet earth tones and pretty pastels.

Even tried and true quarry tile now comes in such colors as caramel and black walnut.

Then there's design. Such as floor tiles with the looks of flashed bark, pebbles, shells, tide-rippled sand, used brick, cobble stones, parquet and wicker. And wall tiles hand-somely decorated in the tradition of Delft and Lisbon or with up-to-date nature motifs, such as cane or bamboo.

So whatever your kitchen decor — city-slick or countrified, serene or zesty, stream-lined or funky — you'll have no problem finding the right tile to amplify its mood.

For more tile ideas—for your kitchen as well as the rest of your rooms, send 50 cents to Tile Council of America, Dept. M, P.O. Box 2222, Princeton, N.J. 08540.

Home security systems a sound investment

According to the National Home Improvement Council, security systems for the home continue to enjoy popularity among the nation's homeowners.

Some excellent crime and fire deterrent security systems have been developed and are currently doing a brisk business on the market.

Generally smaller than the average stereo component, these units include provision for both fire and burglar alarms tied in with a local central station.

When the system detects an intrusion or smoke, it immediately relays a signal to the station from which security personnel notify police or fire departments.

The system is prevented from disrupting normal family activity by a personal code tapped out on a series of keys.

Another more elaborate system actually senses the presence of intruders by means of ultrasonic waves. This same system can also detect when secured doors and windows are opened.

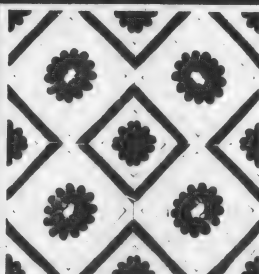

KID STUFF

Teach your children that electrical appliances, lights, outlets and cords are not playthings. The best teaching method by far is to let them learn by your good example.

Brett Protests Sharp Turn Off QSD

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has again protested to the MDC about a sharp right turn from Quincy Shore Drive into Fenno St. which has created a hazardous condition on the drive.

And new construction along the drive is making it even more hazardous, he said in a letter to MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker.

"The turn was so sharp that one would almost have to come to a complete stop in order to make the turn into Fenno St.," said Brett. "This automatically created a dangerous situation as traffic on the boulevard travels at high speed."

"Now, with a new reconstruction project underway along Quincy Shore Drive, a major change is being made at the junction of Fenno St. and Quincy Shore Drive which is going to result in an even more dangerous condition than heretofore.

"The turning corner into Fenno St. is now designed to be even sharper than before, thereby making it even more difficult and dangerous to maneuver."

"I realize it may be too late now to hope for a change but I would sincerely suggest that more care be taken in selecting the architects and designers who make the plans which create such dangerous conditions."

"This new intersection is going to cause unreasonable and hazardous conditions for the neighbors and other motorists who will have to negotiate that turn."

A free blood pressure clinic will be held tonight [Thursday] at 7 p.m. in the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., and, if the response is great enough, more such clinics will be held in the future.

Next week's program at the Center:

Monday - Norma Barriere will be available from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon with information on the Women's Health Clinic. Ceramic classes for 15 youngsters who have already signed up will be held from 6:30-8 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Carol Bray.

Tuesday - Knitting classes for girls will begin at 2 p.m. under the direction of Mrs. Grace Ilaqua, a senior volunteer. Girls may sign up for the classes any day before Tuesday. Tuesday is also Food Coop pickup day at the Center.

Wednesday - Senior Citizen's Day. Knitting 10:30 a.m. to 12 noon. Hot lunch will be provided for 65 cents for Seniors who have made reservations by Tuesday noon by calling Mary Travers at 328-1708. Bingo 1-3 p.m.

The South Shore Council for Children will hold a meeting of its Child Abuse and Neglect Committee in the Center at 7 p.m. Persons interested in serving on the committee should attend. The committee will explore ways to help deal with problems of child abuse and neglect.

Thursday - Sign up day for a bowling league for boys ages 8-14. League play will begin in November and continue each Friday evening from 6-8 p.m.

Friday - The last opportunity is being offered to apply for the Atlantic Self-Help Home Improvement Program this year. Questions or applications will be accepted from 7-9 p.m. New income-eligible guidelines mean that many more Atlantic residents will be eligible for the program.

Wollaston Businessmen Attend Security Workshop

Wollaston area businesses attended a Police Security Workshop held recently at Wollaston Legion Post.

The workshop was sponsored by the Planning and Research Division of the Quincy Police Department in conjunction with City Councilors Warren A.

Powers and John J. Lydon Jr., and Rep. James A. Sheets.

The workshop was aimed at helping small businesses which are traditional targets of burglary, vandalism, shop lifting and bad checks.

Sheets said he, Powers and Lydon believe the workshop will not only increase the awareness of the business community to these problems but will also result in the development of a cooperative spirit between the police and the business community. The cooperation, he said, can lead to a reduction in crime.

Dance For Morrissey Oct. 15

A fund raiser dance will be held for Michael W. Morrissey, Democratic nominee for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, from 8 p.m. till midnight at State Street South. Tickets may be obtained by calling 328-6039. Due to this fund raiser, the cocktail party scheduled to be held Oct. 1 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Kane has been canceled.

Morrissey held a meeting at his home Sunday night with over 50 workers in attendance. He discussed the Auto Insurance Reform Bill and its effect on the car owner and operator. He also discussed his upcoming fund-raiser and various other campaign strategies. He also thanked all those people that made his campaign a success through their help.

Quincy, North Square Off Today

Quincy's unbeaten soccer team, with three successive 1-1 ties after an opening day win, faces North Quincy today [Thursday] at the Stadium field.

Saturday the Presidents will play at Newton and the Raiders host Rindge Tech in 10 a.m. Suburban League games.

Next Tuesday it will be Waltham at Quincy and North Quincy at Weymouth South and Wednesday Quincy at Rindge and Cambridge Latin at North.

Last Friday Quincy played to its third straight 1-1 tie, this time with Weymouth North. Pete Martin scored the Quincy goal.

North Quincy nipped Waltham, 1-0, to make its record 2-2 as junior goalie Wayne MacDonald made his first varsity start in fine style.

Jim McGinley scored the lone goal on a penalty kick while MacDonald stopped a Waltham penalty kick with five seconds left in the first half.

Earlier in the week Quincy tied Brockton, 1-1, on a strange goal by John Golub. Brockton goalie Brian Sciarini stopped a Quincy penalty kick late in the second period but when he went to throw the ball away from the goal area, he hit Quincy's Golub on his back swing, the ball popped loose and Golub booted it in for the tying goal.

North Quincy dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Brookline as the winners scored both goals in the first period and North's Jim McGinley, with an assist for Sean Jago, scored in the third period.

THEY RAN TO AID CANCER - Bill Rodgers, center, former BAA marathon winner who ran in the past Olympics, won last Sunday's 5-mile road race sponsored by Sundowners Lounge for the benefit of the cancer fund. Charles Ratti of Weymouth, left, was the winner of the 40 and older division and John Campbell, right, was the 50 and over winner. The women's winner was Patricia Latora.

BAA Marathoner Rodgers Wins Quincy 5-Mile Road Race

Bill Rodgers, former BAA marathon winner who ran in the past Olympics, won the 5-mile Cancer Benefit Road Race sponsored by the Sundowners Lounge last Sunday, covering the distance in 26:41.

The race was extremely close with Mark Duggan second at 26:42 and Fred Doyle third at 26:43.

Patricia Latora tops among the women with a timing of 32:07, followed by Patricia Robinson and Denise Beresnewicz.

Charles Ratti was first among the men over 40 and John Campbell paced those over 50.

The race attracted 175 runners and more than $300 was raised for the American Cancer Society.

Red Cross Course At Hancock Pool

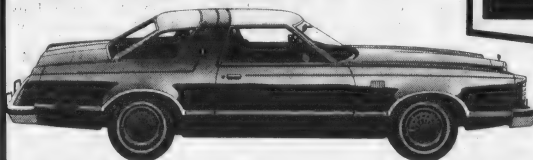

The Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor an American Red Cross Advance Lifesaving Course for Quincy residents Wednesday and Friday evenings at the Lincoln Hancock Community School Pool.

To be eligible, persons must be 15 years of age and pass a swimming pre-requisite at the pool.

Persons interested should appear at the pool to be tested by the Recreation Department staff. This may be done during any Recreational Swim sponsored by the Recreation Department.

The fall program will begin Wednesday, Oct. 6, at 8 p.m. and run for a minimum of 30 instructional hours.

Raiders Host Weymouth N., Seek Win No. 3

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's football team is 2-0 in non-league competition and Saturday the Raiders will seek win number three when they open their Suburban League season against Weymouth North in a 1:30 p.m. game at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Weymouth opened with its first win in two years, 7-3, over Braintree but last week dropped a 14-6 league decision to Brookline.

Mike Adams and George Wallace have been receiving most of the raves as North's ball carriers, but last Saturday Bill McIntyre stole the show as he ran for 104 yards and scored the game's only touchdown on a 55-yard run in a 6-0 win at Taunton.

McIntyre broke loose for his game-winning run in the second period which highlighted a bitter defensive struggle.

"This was a fine defensive battle but our defense won out," said Coach Dave Burke. "This was a fine Taunton team and we had all we could do to pull it out."

North did stage several promising marches but each time a penalty stopped the threat.

North's strong defense pretty well bottled up Taunton's attack except for one drive which reached the Raiders' three where North dug in.

"Wallace, Adams and McIntyre all ran well and Keith Lindberg blocked well from his end position," Burke said. "Tom Nee also was outstanding at center on offense."

"McElaney did some more tremendous punting," said assistant coach Tom Fitzgerald. "His booming kicks and the defense gave Taunton poor field position most of the game."

McElaney's kick on the try for point was partially blocked, his first miss in four attempts.

One time McElaney boomed a long punt out of bounds on the Taunton two-yard line.

Toland's Hat Trick Sparks Washington Tap, 5-1

Bernie Toland's hat trick sparked Washington Tap to a 5-1 win over the Hofbrau last Sunday in Quincy Executive Hockey League action at the Youth Arena.

Other scorers for Washington were Pete LaBerge and Bob Murray. Murray had three assists, Toland two and Jack Curran one. Fran Whelan scored for Hofbrau with Frank McAuliffe assisting.

The Green team topped Darcy's Pub, 4-1, on goals by Fran Bonani, Dave Hickey, John Donohue and Al Bonani. The Bonani brothers and Oberlander had assists. Bob O'Connell scored for Darcy with Bob Donovan assisting.

Al's Care and the White team played to a 4-4 tie. Charlie Chambers, Ron Fletcher, Bob Hayes and Ralph Younie scored for the Whites with Chambers having two assists and Fletcher, John McNeil, Younie and Ed Dwyer one each. For Al's Mike Haynes had two goals and John Gibbs and Dick McCabe one apiece. Ed Holt and Paul Milot had assists. Al's had a 4-2 lead in the final period but the goals by Hayes and Younie tied it up.

Midget A's Long Win Streak Snapped By Milton

Quincy's Donnelly Midget A hockey team, defending South Shore Conference and state champions, suffered its first league defeat in a year and a half last Sunday when it bowed to Milton, 4-3.

Elks Defeat Scituate Pee Wee A's, 7-2

The Quincy Elks Pee Wee A hockey team lost to Scituate, 7-2, in its season's opener.

Kevin Chase and Paul McCabe scored Quincy's goals with assists by Mike Cullen, Mike Sullivan and Kevin Craig.

Jim Moore, Dave Lewis and Brian Bertoni scored Quincy's goals with assists for Bob Hayes, Tom Bamberg, Jack Campbell and Mark Giordani. In goal were Kevin Cotter and Jim Deitch.

The Midgets play every Sunday at the Boston Marina rink in Squantum.

SOI Bantam A's Bomb Scituate

Quincy Sons of Italy Bantam A hockey team romped over Scituate, 8-1, in its first game of the season with Jim Campbell and Chuck Dooley sharing the goalies chores.

Neil Shea, Paul Dunphy and

Bobby Beniers had two goals each and Bobby Currier and Robbie Craig one apiece. Robbie McHugh had three assists, Craig two and Currier, Tom Joe Connelly and Scott Richardson one each.

Presidents Go After Second Win At Revere

It was hardly an artistic win but Quincy's football team came away from Weymouth last Saturday with a 12-7 decision over always troublesome Weymouth South and the Presidents Saturday will seek their second win in a row when it plays at Revere at 1:30.

It will mark the third straight non-league game for Quincy before opening its Suburban League season the following week against Waltham.

Again it was Quincy's defense which carried it at Weymouth. The offense was stopped with five first downs, 55 yards rushing and 34 yards passing, but the defense recovered five Weymouth fumbles and the first two recoveries led to the touchdowns.

"I thought we played well in the first half and in the final period and the defense, as usual, was outstanding," Coach Hank

QUINCY SCORING

	TD	PAT	Total
Buchanan	1	0	6
Valentini	1	0	6
Houten	1	0	6

Conroy said. "Weymouth is always one of our toughest opponents and they threw several defenses against us today. Despite the statistics [a big edge for Weymouth], we didn't move the ball too badly. But we still have to work on the offense."

Quarterback Dennis Walter, injured late in the Dedham game, was out of action and Conroy used John Houten for three periods and inserted Mark Giordani in the final quarter. Hank felt both boys did all right for their first games at the position.

"Right now I think all three quarterbacks are about even and the competition between the three is good for us," Conroy said.

Hank hopes the attack will perk up at Revere. Revere opened with a 6-3 overtime win over Haverhill but dropped a 6-0 decision last week to Arlington. Houten accounted for all the Quincy points as he passed to Bob Valentini for 10 yards and then scored himself from the two.

Despite Quincy's failure to move the ball, several players were praised for their offensive efforts including Ron Moore, Mickey Thorley, Dave Eastwick, Tom Boudreau, Jim Conostas, Pete Cassidy, Wayne Gardner, Mike Duggan, Pat Gibbons, Houten, Giordani, Mark

Buchanan, Len Picot and Bill Brennan.

Picot continued his outstanding punting and his booming kicks kept Weymouth in its own territory for much of the afternoon.

The entire defensive unit was lauded and among those mentioned were the secondary of Gibbons, Jim Maze, Gardner and Mark Merlis, Larry Calley, Rich Coose, Eastwick, Bob Pettinelli, Thorley, John Carloni, Duggan, Tom Conine, Lou Rizzo and Sal Coscia.

In the first period Quincy recovered a fumble on Weymouth's 18 and six plays later Houten passed to Valentini for the touchdown.

In the second period the Presidents recovered on the Weymouth 38 and three plays later Houten scored from the two.

Later in the period Weymouth scored on a two-yard run by Bill Schultz, capping a 12-play 59-yard march and John Manning kicked the point.

The teams exchanged fumbles early in the third period, with Maze recovering for the Presidents. Following a long Picot punt Weymouth drove from its 20 to Quincy's 20 where it fumbled again and Calley recovered.

Following another long Picot punt Weymouth moved from its 31 to Quincy's 35 with a disputed pass interference call playing a big part, but the Presidents held and with 1:12 left a fourth down pass failed and Quincy took over and ran out the clock.

Registration Starts Oct. 5 For Instructional Skating Program

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that registration for its Instructional Ice Skating Program will start Tuesday, Oct. 5 at 9:30 a.m. in the Recreation Department Office at the J. F. Kennedy Health Center.

The program, open to Quincy residents age six and over, is under the direction of Mrs. Anne Eagles, a professional member of the U.S. Figure Skating Association. The instructed classes feature the basic levels of U.S.F.S.A. programs. Special groups are formed for those with no previous skating experience.

There are three separate times each week of instructional programs: Monday from 4 to 4:50 p.m., Wednesday from 3 to 3:50 p.m. and 4 to 4:50 p.m. All classes are held at Quincy Youth Hockey Rink and will begin the week of Oct. 18.

Registration is limited and is on a first come, first served basis. There is a fee charged for this program and it is payable at the time of registration. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department.

Brockton Snaps Raiders Streak, Quincy Bows To Weymouth N.

Last fall North Quincy's cross-country team suffered its lone loss in 13 meets at the hands of Brockton.

Last Thursday the Raiders again lost to Brockton, 25-32, in a Suburban League meet, ending a 14-meet Raider win streak.

The loss should come as no surprise, however. It marked the 42nd successive win for Brockton, giving it a phenomenal four-year record of 105-1.

Four runners broke the Brockton course record of 15:09, held by Quincy's John Saville, three of them being Brockton runners. North's Mike Morin, who finished second, did the distance in 14:59. Other North scorers included Marty Levenson, fifth; Bob Levenson, sixth, and Mike Barrett, seventh.

In girls' competition North was shut out, 15-45, as Brockton swept the first five places. The Raiderettes' Sue Yee was sixth, Debbie Couits seventh and Mary Leonard 10th.

Quincy dropped its second meet in a row, bowing to Weymouth North, 27-29, although the Presidents' Saville won for the second straight time.

Quincy's Don Jones was third, Rick Walkema fifth, and Steve Kane ninth.

Quincy's girls upset

Weymouth, 24-31, as Paula Constan finished on top, Dottie Irvine was third, Ellen Caramanica fifth, Mary Ilacqua sixth and Kelly Tobin ninth.

Next Tuesday Quincy will host Weymouth South and North will be home to Rindge Tech.

Track Club Opens First Cross Country Season

The Quincy Track Club opened its first cross country season last Saturday over the 1.3 mile course at Pageant Field.

More than 50 boys and girls signed up for the program, the first of its kind in New England, and 37 ran last week. Some of those expected to run were competing in a track meet at Kavanagh Stadium sponsored by Sacred Heart Church.

"The program was developed to give kids a chance at distance running," said director Jeff Hennessy. "It is especially for those normally not fast enough to run the 100 or 220. Harry Williams and Joe Santo have devoted a great deal of time to make the program a success."

The program is still seeking more boys and girls ages 8 to 15. Registration fee is $2 and entry fee in the races is 50 cents. All interested should report to Pageant Field Saturday at 10 a.m. Races will be run each Saturday morning.

Last Saturday's summary:

Bowling Little

The Quincy Bowling Little Loop will start its 23rd season Saturday, Oct. 9, at 8:30 a.m. at Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

All boys 11 through 16 years of age wishing to join are asked to register by mail and state full name, address, telephone number, age and date of birth. Send to League President Joseph N. Gildea, 45 Division St., North Quincy.

Bowling is NOT restricted to Quincy residents.

Little Loop bowlers enjoyed their most successful season last year when the junior team won the world candlepin championship at Haverhill after finishing fifth in the state at Stow.

Members of that team were Chris Butler, Fred Norton, Joe Crifo, Paul Anastas and Dick Hallberg. Hallberg rolled a five-string 557 to win the MBA state junior title and Mike Regan's 447 was good for fourth

Two new records were set in league competition when Mike

Regan's 109.9 average eclipsed George Habel's mark of 107.1 set during the 1964-65 season and Joe Piazza's 401 high three erased Dick Quinn's 374 set in 1961-62.

Ken, Dot Fallon

Scotch Foursome Winners

Ken and Dot Fallon of Wollaston shot low net of 60, while Bob McDonough of Furnace Brook and Margie Faherty of Wollaston and Mario and Joyce Serafini of Furnace Brook tied for low gross of 88 in last Sunday's Big Scotch invitational tournament at Furnace Brook Golf Club. More than 100 players took part.

Lou and Pat Cugini of FB had second net of 66 and Bert and Dolly Nogler of FB and Dick Corbin of FB and Joan Martin of Bear Hill tied for third net of 68.

Third gross of 89 was shot by Kent and Mary Sokolowski of Meadow Brook and fourth gross of 90 by Walter Hendrickson and Edna Phelps of FB.

Church School Basketball

League Meetings Oct. 6-7

League Director Jim Rendle

announces the annual orientation and rules interpretation meetings of the South Shore YMCA Church School Basketball League have been scheduled for Oct. 6 (Boys Division), and Oct. 7 (Girls Division) at the Quincy YMCA at 8 p.m.

All South Shore churches planning to enter teams in the league this coming season are urged to be represented by at least one delegate at each meeting. A question and answer period will follow the discussion of the rules and regulations. Appointments to the separate advisory boards will be made each night.

Entry blanks will be available at the meetings, and can be obtained at the main desk of the YMCA following these dates. The completed blanks must be submitted by Saturday, Nov. 13, at the latest. Late entries will not be accepted. The league season will begin Saturday, Dec. 4.

Girls A Hockey

Team Edges Beverly

Outstanding goaltending by Lynn McGoff and Joanne Ruane sparked the Quincy Youth Girls A hockey team to a 2-1 win over Beverly Sunday at the Town Line Twin Rinks in Danvers.

Shawn O'Leary and Nancy McDonald scored for Quincy with assists for Eileen Marr, Lisa Norling, Sue Gallery and Kathy Flynn.

New P.A. System Presented To City For Council Meetings

The new public address system in the City Council Chamber at City Hall was officially presented to the City of Quincy Monday night - and tax-conscious citizens will be pleased to learn that it didn't cost them a cent.

The money for the system, which was installed by Signet Electronics of 350 Copeland St., West Quincy, was donated in equal shares by the following public-spirited citizens:

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Antonelli, L. Antonelli Iron Works, West Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Aristide, Bradley Manor Nursing Home, South Weymouth; Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Fabrizio, Flip's Oil Service, West Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Forde, Norm Forde and Associates, South Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Maher, Maher Plumbing and Heating Co.,

Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Montilio, Montilio's Bakery, Quincy; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen K. Richmond, Happy Chef, Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reppucci, Herbert's Hairstyling Salon, Wollaston; Jack Savits, 33 Newton Ave., Wollaston; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Slawsky, Capital Supermarket, Quincy; the Quincy Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Flaherty, Cobblestone Restaurant, Charlestown; Mrs. Sabina M. Stenberg, Sabina's Hanover Beauty Academy, Quincy; and Robert Crosby, Body-Craft Inc., Wollaston.

Each donor was presented a citation from Council President Arthur H. Tobin and a plaque is being made acknowledging their contribution to be hanged in the Council Chamber.

4 Students Collect $520

For Equipment To Aid MD Children

Four Quincy students have donated $520.50 to the Quincy Public Schools for the purchase of special equipment for children with muscular dystrophy.

The students are Karen Fee, Quincy High School, and Ellen Macdonald, Irene Stevens and Lori McGrath, all of North Quincy High School. Last year the group collected $300 for the handicapped children by running a carnival at Central Junior High School.

The young women are planning to expand their efforts this year by starting a walkathon.

In the meantime, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Director of Pupil Personnel Services for the Quincy Public Schools, is scheduling visits for the group with MS children in local schools.

Neighborhood Youth Corps Has New Name, Address

The Neighborhood Youth Corps has a new name and a new home.

Now called the Youth Work Experience Program, it has been absorbed by Quincy CETA and its new address is 1073 Hancock St., where it will be functioning by Monday (Oct. 4).

The new program manager will be Kathleen Linehan and the phone number will be 773-3983.

complications may lead to pneumonia or death in some people. For the elderly and people with diabetes or heart, lung, or kidney diseases, flu may be especially serious.

"It is unlikely that you have adequate protection against swine flu, since it has not caused widespread human outbreaks in the past 45 years. You may or may not have adequate protection against Victoria flu, although many Americans had flu last winter. It was responsible for over 12,000 deaths.

"The vaccine will not give you flu because it is made from killed viruses. Today's flu vaccines cause fewer side effects than those used in the past. In contrast with some other vaccines, flu vaccine can be taken safely during pregnancy.

"One shot will protect most people from swine and Victoria flu during the next flu season; however, either a second shot or a different dosage may be required for persons under age 25. If you are under 25 ... this information will be provided to you wherever you receive the vaccine.

"Most people will have no side effects from the vaccine. However, tenderness at the site of the shot may occur and last for several days. Some people will also have fever, chills, headache, or muscle aches within the first 48 hours.

"As with any vaccine or drug, the possibility of severe or potentially fatal reaction exists. However, flu vaccine has rarely been associated with severe or fatal reactions. In some instances people receiving vaccine have had allergic reactions. You should note very carefully the following precautions:

* Children under a certain age should not routinely receive flu vaccine. Please ask about age limitations.

* People with known allergy to eggs should receive the vaccine only under special medical supervision.

* People with fever should delay getting vaccinated until the fever has gone.

* People who have received another type of vaccine in the past 14 days should consult a physician before taking the flu vaccine."

Nurse McNeice said the first shipments of vaccine will be given to persons of "high risk" - those 65 and over, those 25-64 with chronic diseases such as heart trouble, respiratory illnesses and kidney problems.

The first shipments are expected to be a bivalent vaccine, effective against both swine flu and the Victoria strain.

The vaccine is being provided by the federal government under a $135 million appropriation designed to prevent a pandemic outbreak of the swine flu [also known as A New Jersey 76] in this country.

President Real Estate

WHAT IS 'GRI'?

Have you ever noticed the letters GRI following the name of a Realtor? Not unlike the names of some insurance specialists, GRI is the indication of a great deal of extra, concentrated study in all aspects of the intricate field of real estate.

The GRI title confirms that the Realtor has successfully completed the Graduate Realtor's Institute - a three year course of study given by top professionals in the field of real estate. It is sponsored by the Prestigious National Association of Realtors and conducted by the state boards in 48 of the 50 states.

In real estate, the very foundation of success, and the ability to render greater and broader service, is in keeping abreast of the dynamic changes occurring in the concept and handling of real property. The Realtor with the GRI certificate is doing just that.

... ..

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

Through our nationwide network of ERA Realtors, we can help you relocate anywhere in the country.

Also, we have available a one year warranty on all plumbing, heating, mechanical, electrical systems and built-in appliances on homes that we sell.

'Good Merchandise, Fair Prices, Friendly Service'

Naborhood Pharmacy Celebrating 25th Anniversary

When Jack Silverstein took over the Naborhood Pharmacy 25 years ago there were more than 30 drug stores in the city of Quincy.

Today, in the face of an invasion by the discount chains, there are less than 20 remaining and Naborhood Pharmacy is one of the most successful of them.

"Price alone does not determine where an intelligent and discriminating shopper goes," says Silverstein, by way of explaining his store's popularity.

"Convenience, delivery service and charge accounts are some of the important features that people consider when they are choosing a family drug store."

"Our secret is a good mix of merchandise, fair prices and friendly service."

That philosophy has enabled Silverstein to enlarge and remodel his store at the corner of Hancock St. and Billings Rd., North Quincy, three times since he purchased the business from Harold Fratus Oct. 12, 1951.

During the last remodeling six years ago, he gave up the successful soda fountain and lunch bar, magazine rack and liquor in order to concentrate on the real business of a pharmacy.

In addition to himself, Silverstein has two full time pharmacists who have worked in the store for many years. John Valante and Alvin Goldberg are experts in dispensing pharmaceutical advice.

Naborhood Pharmacy was the first in the Quincy area to institute complete prescription records for tax and insurance receipts.

It is currently the only drug store in the area offering 24-hour emergency service and is in the process of becoming the ostomy

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

South Quincy and Faxon Park Wastewater Treatment Project

The City of Quincy will hold a public hearing on October 21, 1976 at the Lincoln Hancock School Cafeteria, at 7:30 P.M. The purpose of the meeting will be to invite public comments on a proposed wastewater treatment project in the South Quincy and Faxon Park section of the City [the project area]. This meeting is open to all City residents with residents from the above mentioned project area particularly encouraged to attend.

The overall objectives of the proposed project is to provide for future capacity for anticipated growth in the study area, and to eliminate present problems of surcharging in the main interceptor sewer system. Major elements of this proposal include the rehabilitation of portions of the existing sewer system, the construction of new segments of sewer piping and the construction of an on-line pumping station. Funds for the proposed activities shall be sought pursuant to Title II of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972.

A description and analysis of these activities is contained in the report, "Infiltration/Inflow Analysis and Wastewater Facilities Planning Report for the South Quincy and Faxon Park Area" which is available for review at the Quincy Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Room 206. Also available for inspection is the draft "Environmental Assessment" associated with this proposed project, the findings of which will also be reviewed at the above noted hearing.

Further details on this hearing and the proposed project can be received by calling the Department of Public Works at 773-1380, extension 201.

$34 To $35 Hike

Tax Rate Expected To Be $194 - Plus

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy's 1976 real estate tax rate was expected to be set Wednesday at just under the $195 mark. It would mean a hike of just shy of $35 - over the 1975 rate of $159.90.

Assessor Chairman Elmer K. Fagerlund and Budget Coordinator Sarah Saccone left for Boston late Tuesday to meet with the State Department of Corporations and Taxation.

However, the pair and representatives of the State Department of Corporations and Taxation were unable to complete a study of the figures in time to set the rate Tuesday.

Fagerlund and Saccone were to return to Boston late Wednesday morning for final approval of the new rate.

Fagerlund told a stunned City Council Monday night that the figures he had in hand added up to a $40 increase but Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia said Tuesday concessions expected from the State would bring it "closer to $30 than $40."

The two city officials went to Boston despite the bitter protests and fervent pleas by City Councillors to postpone the trip and consult with the Council to see what could be done to hold the rate down.

"Jack, please don't go in to Boston tomorrow and set a $40 tax rate," said Council President Arthur H. Tobin to John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, as the Council meeting went past midnight. "Don't do this great injustice to the city of Quincy."

The Council brought out its biggest guns and trained them on the LaRaia administration through Salenius, who sat through what must have been the most uncomfortable hour and a half of his life in the Council chamber.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea trotted out all possible sources of revenue which he said the LaRaia administration was not taking into consideration when presenting its case to the State officials.

He ticked off cuts in the Norfolk County budget [not then approved by the legislature], a possible $518,000

$300,000 Management Consultant Fee Plus--

$600 Per Week Clerk Of Works At NQHS Draws Council Fire

Financially pressed Quincy is paying $300,000 for a management consultant firm to supervise $13 million worth of work on North Quincy High School.

Does it also need to employ a clerk of the works at $600 a week to serve as liaison between the city and the contractor?

The question alternately intrigued and outraged the City Council Monday night after Council President Arthur H. Tobin disclosed both figures, offering documentation in the form of a letter to the unnamed clerk of the works signed by Public Works Commissioner Vincent R. LoCicero.

"If the Mayor is unaware of this then someone ought to bring it to his attention," said Tobin. "If he does know, then he had better stop it immediately.

"If we don't have an explanation coming, I'm going to call for the resignation of the Budget Director [Sarah Saccone] and the Commissioner of Public Works."

John Salenius, the Mayor's executive secretary, apparently caught unaware by Tobin's disclosure, told the Council:

"I intend to look into it and determine the facts. It bears serious looking into."

He resisted, however, a Council attempt to team him with Councillor Leo J. Kelly in a joint investigation.

Tobin made his disclosure to the Council like this:

"It has come to my attention that this administration has signed a contract on the North

Quincy High School for consulting fees in excess of $300,000.

"I attended a meeting at which, in order to facilitate the construction, it was suggested that we should have some sort of management consultant to work with the contractors and the architect and school officials to expedite the project."

"It was suggested we could probably get a management consultant team somewhere in the vicinity of $100,000. We have learned that a consultant contract was signed in the vicinity of $300,000."

"And now it has come to my attention that a letter was signed by the Commissioner of Public Works okaying a clerk of the works for $600 a week, over and

LaRaia Urges MBTA To Assign Police Officers

Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia has urged the MBTA to station police officers, day and night, at the Quincy Center Station and along the line between Wollaston and North Quincy to prevent vandalism.

He also requested that the parking lot at the North Quincy Station be limited to one entrance and one exit on Hancock St., so attendants can check parking tickets and thus reduce the chance of auto theft from the lot.

The Mayor pointed out in a letter to MBTA Director Robert Kiley that Quincy has been heavily committed to the presence of the MBTA and such presence should be balanced by necessary safety precautions on the part of the authority.

Freedom Park Second Phase To Be Completed Nov. 30

The second phase of Freedom Park between Upland Rd and the MBTA tracks will be completed Nov. 30, it was announced by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

The parcel of land, 1,200 feet long and 80 feet which was part of the estates of Presidents and John and John Quincy Adams, will be landscaped with benches and a scenic pathway.

Eventually, Freedom Park will serve as a pathway of relaxation and recreation between the Adams Academy, home of the Quincy Historical Society, and the Adams National Historic Site.

'Young Ideas' Returns With Visit To Renovated Webster School

By CATHY CONLEY

The Quincy Sun's highly acclaimed "Young Ideas" is back for the new school year with a visit this week to newly renovated Daniel Webster School in Quincy Point.

The four-page children's newspaper which has been a supplement to The Quincy Sun for the past year received special unanimous commendation from the Quincy School Committee for its content and for the contributions of elementary school students. In his own tribute, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon said "Over the years the Sun has been most generous in allowing young people to express their ideas in a variety of ways."

Sixteen issues of "Young Ideas" were published during the last school year. Subjects included fire safety, banking, folk heroes, each child's individuality, baking, eye safety, the Thomas Crane Library, the Bicentennial, bike safety, kindness to animals, Christmas and Halloween. Several special school projects were highlighted including Immersion Week, the Cranch School 75th anniversary, the student exchange between Quincy, Mass. and Quincy, Ill., and Project LINC, and a field trip to the General Dynamics shipyard.

Each issue of "Young Ideas" is sponsored by a local business or civic-minded organization. Last year's sponsors included Riley and Rielly Insurance Agency, The Quincy Sun, Howdy Beef 'N Burger, The Thomas Crane Library, Hancock Bank, Montilio's Bakery, State Street Bank, the North Shore Business and Professional Association, the Quincy School System, the Massachusetts Society of Optometrists, the Quincy Cooperative Bank, Burger King, the Animal Rescue League of Boston, General Dynamics and SGM & Co.

This week's pullout section of "Young Ideas" features a visit to the newly renovated Daniel Webster School. It is sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools and starts on Page 15.

Through artwork, interviews, games and puzzles, our assistant editors, Gail Shlager's fifth graders, explore how the children feel about their newly renovated school.

Daniel Webster is unique in the city of Quincy because the elementary school is connected to a junior high -

Tot Finder Decals To Be Distributed In Houghs Neck

Tot Finder Decals will be distributed throughout Houghs Neck Saturday and Sunday by Houghs Neck Legion Post.

The decals on the outside of children's bedroom windows alert firemen where rescue work is needed in case of fire. The safety program is recommended by the Fire Department, but distribution is only through American Legion members. Only one decal per bedroom is needed.

The Houghs Neck Post fire engine will travel each street during the weekend. Because of the cost of the decals and the responsibility involved, they will be given only to parents, who are asked to replace any that have faded since the last distribution.

D. Paul Shaw, past commander, is chairman of the project, carried out under direction of Commander Mary H. Timcoe.

INTRODUCING CAPT. NOBURN - The cartoon character who is to become the Smokey the Bear of fire prevention in the home visits Quincy for the first time. Left to right, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon; Wilfred Nolan, supervisor of elementary curriculum; Capt. Noburn; Capt. Francis M. Daly of the Fire Prevention Bureau; George Riley of the sponsoring Riley and Rielly Insurance Agency; and Fire Chief Edward F. Barry.

New Program Launched

Capt. Noburn To Help Quincy Youngsters Prevent Fires

Capt. Noburn has come to Quincy.

And it is hoped he will do the same for fires in the home that Smokey the Bear has done for fires in the woods.

Capt. Noburn is a cartoon character, who could well be a cousin of the famed Smokey, designed to impress upon school children that it is as important to prevent fires in the home as it is to put them out.

The program was begun in Quincy in conjunction with National Fire Prevention Week [Oct. 3-9], which is observed each year in commemoration of the Great Chicago Fire of 1871.

"This is only the beginning," says Capt. Francis M. Daly of the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau. "We hope that Capt. Noburn will catch on and become sort of a mini-course in fire prevention in the schools."

Capt. Noburn, created by Mabel Van Delinda of West Springfield and promoted by the Western Massachusetts Fire Prevention Association, works like this:

The basic causes of home fires are presented to the school children, third graders for a start, by way of a film strip and a tape-recorded message from Capt. Noburn, whose voice resembles that of a Down East sea captain.

The youngsters also are supplied with Capt. Noburn coloring books to serve as guides for continuing classroom discussion and to be taken home to aid them as they check, with their parents, the "fire danger spots" in their homes.

As the program progresses, members of the Quincy Fire Prevention Bureau will join the teachers in answering questions raised by the children following their initial introduction to Capt. Noburn.

Capt. Daly and Wilfred Nolan, elementary curriculum supervisor in the Quincy School Department, have been commissioned to develop the program further into other aspects of fire prevention.

"We hope eventually to include home evacuation in the program," says Capt. Daly, "and develop a course to point out fire hazards in other locations."

A contest for the best coloring books is also in the planning stage.

And youngsters who collect a full set of the Capt. Noburn cartoons that start running each week for 24 weeks in The Quincy Sun and turn their collections in at the Fire Station will receive an autographed picture of Capt. Noburn.

The Capt. Noburn program in Quincy is being sponsored by the Riley and Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc., 380 Sea St., Adams Shore.

Hey, Kids!

Collect all 24 in this series of Capt. Noburn cartoons appearing each week in The Quincy Sun. Then turn them in at the Central Fire Station and receive an autographed picture of Capt. Noburn.

Cerasoli Would Place Limit On Doctor's, Hospital Fees

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli of Quincy, noting the latest increase of $10 in Quincy City Hospital rates, has advocated placing a legal limit on doctors' and hospital fees.

"It's about time we stop listening to the wealthy medical beneficiaries who tell us they won't be making a profit, but they have to raise their rates to stay solvent," he said.

"There has to be a limit placed on how much doctors and hospitals can charge the average citizen, who must pay $200 per day in an intensive care unit and $100 per day in an open ward.

"In light of the fact that Quincy City Hospital has raised its rates for the second time in 90 days, it is important to establish regulations that would stop hospitals from exceeding appropriate cost levels and from implementing costly new programs at the expense of patients.

"Doctors and hospital administrators tell us that hospitals do not make large profits and we have been told that July's increase at Quincy City Hospital was too low an increase to make up for rising costs.

"Someone must be making a lot of money somewhere, because the people who use these hospital facilities certainly are paying through their noses."

Cerasoli noted that the State House of Representatives passed on Sept. 30, a bill to curb rising hospital rates by a vote of 141-71.

"The bill," he said, "is only a small beginning in curbing rising medical costs but at least the legislature is trying to do something about it."

Election Reform Committee Public Meeting Oct. 13

The Mayor's Committee on Election Reform will hold a public meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 P.M. in the City Council Chamber.

Quincy voters are invited to attend and offer suggestions for improvement of the election procedure in the city, announces Chairman Leo F. Meady.

Members of the committee visited all of the precincts during the primary Sept. 7 and found no serious violations of the election regulations. In fact, Meady said that all of the members were highly impressed with the attitude of the wardens, clerks and other poll workers.

"Without exception all of them were not only co-operative but seemed very anxious to ask questions and seek advice in the best way to perform their duties," he said.

Following the public hearing Oct. 13, the committee will meet once again to prepare a report for Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia with certain recommendations for changes in future elections.

PERILS IN THE PARK

Of more than 200,000,000 visitors to national parks and historic sites last year, 155 were accidentally killed and another 3,400 injured, more than half of them in motor vehicle mishaps. Many of the drownings, fatal falls and other accidents occurred in spite of elaborate warnings issued by the Park Service in some 50,000,000 safety pamphlets. When you visit a national park, there is virtually no excuse for not getting the safety word.

The general rules are these: Lakes, rivers and streams often have tricky currents, icy water and other unexpected conditions. Don't equate conditions in unfamiliar waters with lakes and swimming pools at home.

Never pet or feed bear cubs, fawns or other animals, no matter how cute and harmless they look. Their mothers are protective, almost certain to be nearby and likely to attack if they sense a menace to their young.

Be aware of the dangers of high cliffs, loose and sliding rock, hot thermal pools and, in parks of volcanic origin, the sharp edges of hardened lava.

ERA Speaker Says It's:

'Not About Draft, Abortion, Or Common Restrooms

The state Equal Rights Amendment is "not about the draft, abortion, or common restrooms," according to Janice D'Avignon of Quincy who spoke last week at the opening meeting of the Altruism Club of Quincy at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Mrs. D'Avignon said that one of the biggest problems in informing voters about the ERA is that individuals seem to confuse the Federal Equal Rights Amendment with the Teachers Workshop.

Oct. 12

The first afternoon workshop for this year for Quincy Public Schools secondary teachers will be held Tuesday, Oct. 12, announces Arthur S. Woodward, Coordinator of Secondary Education in Quincy.

Students in the junior and senior high schools will be dismissed after the last lunch period next Tuesday.

Senior High School Lunch

Monday, Oct. 11 HOLIDAY.

Tuesday, Oct. 12 - Fruit punch, cheeseburger on a bun, french fries, condiments, fruit jello, beverage.

Wednesday, Oct. 13 - Pork sausages w/gravy, whipped potatoes, glazed carrots, apple sauce, Knott roll, chocolate macaroon cake, beverage.

Thursday, Oct. 14 - Hot turkey sandwich w/gravy, whipped potatoes, buttered peas, cranberry sauce, jello w/topping, beverage.

Friday, Oct. 15 - Vita-ade punch, Italian pizza w/cheese topping, bag of potato chips, spice cake, beverage.

State. Also, she cited fears of the opposition as "just not happening" in states that have already ratified the amendment.

"The very women who would benefit most by the amendment," according to Mrs. D'Avignon, a part-time teacher in Quincy, "are the ones who are afraid to vote for it because they do not understand what it means to them."

"Women who stay at home have a really hard, responsible job. "They are the ones who are most discriminated against...especially in the case of inheritance and divorce where they have no claims. They are not recognized."

"Women should have personal choices. ERA will not disrupt these choices."

Mrs. D'Avignon read a 1916 advertisement arguing against women getting the votes.

"We have the vote and should use it now," she said. "ERA will eradicate the laws which discriminate against women, and where benefits are extended, they will be extended to both sexes."

Mother of a boy and a girl, Mrs. D'Avignon said she didn't want to see doors closed to her daughter in the future just because she's a female.

Dancing Courses For Boys And Girls

A new course in tap, ballet and jazz dancing will be held for grade school and junior high school boys and girls at the Quincy YMCA, 79 Coddington Street, starting Oct. 9. The course will be held for 10 weeks, from 9:15 to 10:15 A.M., under the direction of Nancy O'Donnell. She has performed in dinner theaters on the North Shore, and this past summer studied at Emerson College in Boston, taking movement and theater courses.

Junior High School Lunch

Monday, Oct. 11

HOLIDAY.

Tuesday, Oct. 12 - Fruit punch, cheeseburger on a roll, french fries, condiments, fruit jello, beverage.

Wednesday, Oct. 13 - Pork sausages w/gravy, whipped potatoes, glazed carrots, apple sauce, fresh baked roll, chocolate cake, beverage.

Thursday, Oct. 14 - Hot turkey sandwich w/gravy, whipped potatoes, buttered peas, cranberry sauce, cookie, beverage.

Stella del Nord Celebrates 50th Anniversary At Dinner

Stella Del Nord Lodge celebrated its 50th anniversary at the Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St., Quincy, at a dinner Saturday attended by state and city dignitaries.

Introduction of the Mistress of Ceremony, Mrs. Adeline C. Ricci and the guests was made by Mrs. Judith Mayo. Invocation was by Most Rev. Joseph J. Ruocco, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston and grand chaplain. Main speaker was State Secretary Paul Guzzi. Other speakers were Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Congressman James A. Burke, Quincy Lodge Venerable A. Mario Salvatore, Grand Venerable Louis W. Salvatore and Second Assistant Supreme Venerable Aldo C. Cair. Benediction was by Rev. Joseph J. Tierney of St. John's Church.

Presentations were made by Senator Tobin to Syria Mayo, Adelaide Fabrizio and Mary Johnson for services to the state.

Grand Trustee Mary Johnson made presentations to Elsa Zanolli, Etta Settemelli, Leah Shea, Syria Mayo, Dora Ceriani, Lydia Buonfiglio, Madeline Arienti, Adelaide Tapella and Helen Testa. The citations read "Testimonial of Appreciation for your dedication, loyalty and service to your lodge and to the order."

A cocktail hour was held in the Venetian Room before the dinner.

A roast beef dinner followed in The Golden Lion Suite decorated with floral arrangements of gold chrysanthemums with a touch of purple and garlands at the head table. Individual tables were decorated with small center pieces of the same colors and flowers. Place cards at the head table were in gold and purple with a silk yellow rose attached with purple ribbon. Each lady received a corsage of a silk yellow rose.

A sweet table and coffee was served in the Venetian later. Dancing in the Venetian Room was to Lou Napoli's orchestra.

One founder, Mrs. Marie Antonelli, who was unable to attend due to illness was sent a bouquet of flowers to the hospital.

Quincy JWV To Honor AFS

The Quincy Jewish War Veterans will honor the American Field Service as the 26th annual "Citizen of the Year" at an awards breakfast. The breakfast will be at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St., Quincy Point, Sunday, Nov. 7, at 9:30 a.m.

The AFS will be recognized as a worldwide organization which works to promote understanding and peace through an inter-change of living and learning experiences.

Mayor Joseph LaRia, other city officials, past recipients, and friends will be among the invited guests.

Miss Darlene D'Olimpio is president of the Quincy AFS group. Bernard Pokat is Commander of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans. Past Commanders Irving Isaacson and Allen Kofman are co-chairmen of the program.

Broad Meadows 'Information Nite'

Broad Meadows Junior High School will hold its "Information Nite" Thursday, Oct. 7, at 7 p.m.

Parents will receive an overview of all academic programs from teachers in the various discipline areas and will have an opportunity to join as members of this year's Parent Board.

Main purpose of the Parent Board is to establish an open line between the home and the school.

To do this, board members meet monthly with school personnel in an advisory capacity. Agenda at these meetings consists of topics called to the attention of the board by the school administration and citizens in the Broad Meadows district. The format at all meetings allows free and open discussion of all topics.

Ward 2 Civic Association To Meet Oct. 12

The Ward 2 Civic Association will meet Thursday, Oct. 12, at 8 p.m., at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

The tentative speaker will be Congressman James A. Burke.

The Ward 2 Association's 10th anniversary dinner dance will be held Oct. 23, at the Fore River Clubhouse with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tickets may be purchased from Betty DeChristofaro, 472-1265, or Phyllis Bagen, 479-7917.

Those wishing to be listed as a sponsor for the event are asked to contact Dorothy Eaton, 79 Whiton Ave. There will be a limited number of tickets for the dinner dance.

On Oct. 28, the association will hold its annual Halloween Party for the children of Ward 2, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

Adams School PTA To Meet Oct. 19

The first meeting of the Adams School PTA executive board was held in the school media center recently with Robert Foy, president, presiding.

The first general meeting of the PTA will be held on Oct. 19 at 8 p.m. in the school media center. An informal reception will take place for the school staff and members.

Brief remarks will be made by Dr. Henry F. Paterson Jr., Principal, regarding the coming year's activities and he will introduce the teaching staff to parents.

Coffee will be served and refreshments will be provided by the Executive Board.

Mrs. Robert Foy will be asking for volunteer Room

Mothers for the school year.

The Ways and Means Committee will hold a bake sale on Election Day, Nov. 2. Parents are asked to donate baked goods.

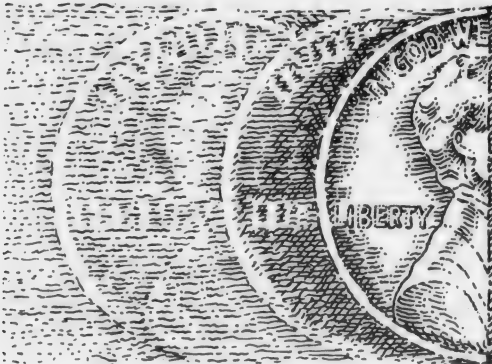

S.S. Cancer Unit Seeking Volunteers

Fact: Nuclear power generates electricity at about half the cost of oil.

Oil is used to produce electricity in most of our generating plants. The average cost to generate a kilowatt hour of electricity, in those plants, is 2.37 cents.

In our nuclear plants, the average cost to generate a kilowatt hour of electricity is 1.32 cents.

We know electric bills will not be lower in the future. But, we also know this: With more nuclear power, electric bills will not be as high as they would be if we have to keep using high-cost foreign oil. That's one of the basic reasons nuclear power makes sense. Remember, the energy crisis is still with us. We must develop all available sources of energy. We're in this together.

Let's solve it together.

*This figure includes all costs; all the costs to build the plants and all the costs to run the plants.

SUNBEAMS

Hannon To Run For Mayor Or Council?

By HENRY BOSWORTH

A mayoral preference poll was taken last week and the exact results are being as well guarded as Fort Knox.

The political grapevine, however, has it that Senator-City Council President Arthur Tobin, Mayor Joseph LaRaia and former Mayor Walter Hannon came out "pretty close" to one another. And, according to usually reliable sources, in that order.

According to reports only 140 or so persons were questioned in the telephone poll so just how good a preference barometer it was may be questionable.

But it does show that Hannon could be back in Quincy's political arena next year.

Big question: Is a mayoral or council at-large candidate?

A LaRaia-Hannon rematch would be quite interesting to say the least. Hannon isn't saying anything publicly to indicate he is planning to run against LaRaia. He seems happy with his duties at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

But many friends and followers would like to see him take on LaRaia who unseated him in a bitter campaign last year.

Some of them think that if Quincy voters had a second chance to choose between LaRaia and Hannon, they would take Hannon.

The margin between the pair was only 483, certainly no mandate for LaRaia. The question is: has LaRaia's popularity with the voter and taxpayer climbed or skidded since then? And you could get into a day-long argument over that one.

But it's an old political adage that if a mayor were unanimously elected, he would start losing ground on his first day in office.

Hannon people think LaRaia has been slipping every day. They contend he has had a nine-month mayoral pregnancy and hasn't produced anything yet except turmoil.

LaRaia people counter that LaRaia is trying to do a good job but others—like the City Council—are setting up roadblocks trying to keep him from doing so.

At this point, nobody knows for sure how the voter really feels about it all. Some no doubt agree with the Hannon people and some no doubt agree with the LaRaia people. The question: how many feel which way? Time will eventually furnish the accurate answer.

But maybe Hannon won't run for mayor. He's probably got more peace of mind now than when he was at City Hall and can spend more relaxing evenings at home.

But some close to him think he's really itching to return to the arena. And there's speculation he might run for council at-large instead.

If Tobin should run for mayor next year, this could bring Hannon in as a contender for his council at-large seat.

Tobin as a mayoral candidate could also open up other interesting political goodies: Ward 6 Councillor Dennis Harrington might go for the at-large seat. Harrington is also a mayoral candidate possibility.

And there's already speculation that Mike Peatridge, Mayor LaRaia's information officer, might run in Ward 6 against Harrington if the latter seeks re-election there. Harrington has been booming salvos of criticism at LaRaia off the City Council chamber walls.

Ah, politics. There's nothing like it. Certainly a lot more interesting than the Red Sox.

QUINCY'S RUTH GORDON will appear on WBZ-TV's "Woman, 76" Oct. 12, 12:30-1:30 p.m. She'll discuss with hostess Sharon King her new autobiography "My Side" and her career. Her hometown, meanwhile, is busy readying a big 80th birthday weekend tribute to her Oct. 30-31.

A FUND-RAISER reception for Rep. Joseph Brett is set for Oct. 27, 8 p.m. to midnight, in the Adams Room at The Hollow restaurant. Tickets, $25 per person, may be obtained by calling Mae Lane, 479-9562. They'll also be available at the door.

Politically, this is somewhat of a unique event. Brett has rarely had any fund-raising activity in his entire political career.

He's running on "stickers" for re-election in the Third Norfolk District after losing the Democratic nomination to young Michael Morrissey in the September primary.

ONE OF OUR best gals [and pals], WJDA's Mary Johnson is a patient at Brooks Hospital. Mary, of course, does the "Stork Report" on JDA and is also a receptionist there. Anyone who would like to drop her a card should send it to her at: Brooks Hospital, Division Lahey Clinic Foundation, 227 Summit Ave., Brookline Mass. 02146. Get better quick, Mary. We're all rooting for you.

SAD STORY: You hate to admit that we have creeps in Quincy. But we really do...and real sick ones. Like the nutcases who have written stinking letters to a well known political family following a recent death in the family. You wonder how some of those people sleep nights.

A REGIONAL ECONOMY

By ERIC SWIDER

'More Government . . .'

Government, in the first 150 years of this nation, was carefully structured, nurtured and designed to encourage freedom, cooperation, trust and economic growth. I am not so sure that is any longer the case.

In the last 15 years, no less than 236 new federal agencies have been created. And what good has it done?

We have agencies that cause unemployment, and other agencies to correct it.

We have agencies to promote the growth of tobacco and agencies to condemn its use.

We have officials causing inflation so others can try to halt it.

There are: Seven different federal programs for outpatient health centers.

Eleven programs for child care.

Fourteen programs of education for the handicapped.

And at least 25 different federal units dabbling in water pollution research.

The National Labor Relations Board can't get along with its own employees' union.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has been convicted of racial discrimination.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development is one of the country's biggest slumfords.

And so it goes...and goes...and goes...

What does it go for? The following are some choice examples of recent federal expenditures:

- $5,000 for an analysis of violin varnish.
- $5,000 for the author of a one-word poem.
- $6,000 for a study of bisexual Polish frogs.
- $58,000 to study the measurements of airline stewards.
- $68,000 to the Queen of England for not growing cotton in Mississippi.
- $375,000 for a Pentagon study of the frisbee.
- And a $2 million yacht for Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia.

Does it all add up? You bet it adds up. The President himself said federal tape costs us $130 billion a year. That's $2,000 for each and every American family.

But the cost of this nonsense is not the major danger. The real peril is the condescending paternalism the bureaucracy assumes toward a free and self-reliant people.

Do we really need a federal guardian to tell us that people can get hurt by slipping in the bathtub? That matches can burn? That knives can cut?

Murray Weidenbaum says: "Liberals should wake up to the fact that there isn't a sharp cleavage between civil liberties in the personal sphere and civil liberties in the business sphere." Amen.

Is anyone listening?

Tocqueville told us a century ago how we will lose our freedom. We will lose it gradually and willingly—to an "administrative despotism."

Its power, he said, would be "absolute, minute, regular, provident and mild."

Under this kind of despotism, he said, "the will of man is not shattered but softened, bent, and guided; men are seldom forced by it to act, but they are constantly restrained from acting. Such a power does not destroy, but it prevents existence; it does not tyrannize, but it compresses, enervates, extinguishes, and stupefies a people, till each nation is reduced to nothing better than a flock of timid and industrious animals, of which the government is the shepherd."

Our government is getting bigger, doing more and more for us, and insisting still yet that it be allowed to do even more, whether or not we want it done.

Conservative and liberal politicians no longer battle over whether or not government solutions are the answer, but instead about which of their plans should be used to address an issue.

In a month, we'll be voting to decide what type of government we think we want, and not whether or not we think we want more government. More government appears to be an irrevocable trend that has bipartisan support.

It's comforting, isn't it, to know that 1984 is but 8 years away and we're right on schedule.

[Eric Swider is Executive Vice-President of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.]

THE READER SPEAKS OUT

Dr. Dalton 'Like A Father To Us'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

You cannot imagine how happy I was to read your tribute to Dr. Dalton.

He was our doctor for 43 years and we loved him. We [as you wrote] could call him at any time when our children were small, and he would be at the house in just a short time. If he said the children would be well within a certain time, they were.

He was like a father to us as a family.

He will be a great loss to the people of Quincy. God grant that we could have more Dr. Daltons.

Jack Williams Termination 'Great Loss'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was shocked and deeply grieved to read about the termination of Jack Williams from the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers. I am compelled to express my feelings regarding Jack Williams.

Jack Williams devoted eight years of service to the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers. During that time, I was fortunate to serve with him in the capacity of Chairman of the Board of Managers for two years. Jack Williams accepted several of my committee appointments, all of which he handled with maximum efficiency.

Jack Williams' experience was gained during World War II when he was engaged in hospital administration. During the time in which he served on the Board, his knowledge was indispensable.

The time and countless efforts which he gave to the hospital is unprecedented. Jack Williams was striving not only to serve as a dedicated member but was interested in insuring that the Quincy City Hospital would best serve the people.

Jack's termination, in my opinion, is a great loss. It was both a pleasure and an honor for me to have served with such a dedicated man.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Can Surnames Be Combined?

"My wife and I would like to combine our surnames for our new-born daughter's last name. Are there any special procedures for doing this in Massachusetts?" a caller from Marblehead recently asked the VOTER INFORMATION PHONE.

The ViPhone volunteer replied that, under common law, a person has the right to be known by the name of his or her choice. No special action is required to assert this right. Similarly, parents may combine their surnames for their children if they wish—or even choose a completely different last name for their child.

Atty. Gen. Francis Bellotti and State Secretary Paul Guzzi issued a joint memorandum in December, 1975 explaining and clarifying the law as it applied to situations of name choice. Persons with specific questions about name choice may call either the Attorney General's Women's Rights office [727-2238] or the Secretary of State's Acting Registrar of Vital Statistics, Herbert Riser [727-2838] for additional information.

MTA Extension Opposed By Yarrington

George A. Yarrington called on South Shore businessmen to oppose attempts to extend the Metropolitan Transit Authority lines to Braintree or Greenbush in Seaside.

Yarrington predicted a new attempt would be made after George A. Alpert, president of the New Haven Railroad, said he is considering abandoning passenger service on the Old Colony Division.

Opposing the MTA because of its large publicly funded deficit, Yarrington is the author of a bill in the legislature that would create a South Shore Transit Authority to Greenbush, Plymouth and Middleboro.

NEW GYM RECOMMENDED

Educational Consultant John E. Marshall, former director of the State School Building Assistance Commission, recommended that the city build an additional gym at North Quincy High School for an estimated $200,000.

"Very little land-taking would be required," he said, "as the building would be so sandwiched in between the back of the school and the other buildings nearby that the most inexpensive sound construction could be used."

McGEE STAR IN NORTH WIN

Larry McGee scored touchdowns on runs of 61 and 13 yards as North Quincy High defeated Taunton, 12-6, in a Saturday morning game at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The North Quincy lineup included:

Ends - Jim Baldwin, Doug Grutchfield, Jim Fontaine.

Tackles - Bob Dixon, Don Polvere, Tom Flanagan.

Guards - George Robbins, Ralph Frazier.

Center - Bill Sweeney.

MYSTERY CAR IN QUARRY

A Rolls Royce automobile, raised from a depth of 51 feet down in Echo Lake quarry on the Braintree line, produced a mystery when a nickel-plated revolver was found under the seat. The car bore Florida license plates issued in 1931.

It was discovered in the quarry by skin divers and was the behest of C. Aston Cox, a Wollaston auto dealer at 60 Beale St., who wished to study the effect of water on a long-submerged vehicle.

Tax Rate Expected To Be $194 - Plus

federal grant, a $700,000 saving through the coming sewer users charge, possible sale of the parking garage to the MBTA, past due hospital bills.

Shea even suggested that the possible election of Jimmy Carter as president on Nov. 2 possibly could be used to talk the State into allowing the city to claim a larger share in anticipated federal revenue sharing money.

Tobin appealed to the Mayor's sense of charity.

"I feel sorry for the taxpayers of this city," he said. "This has never happened before in all my years in city government."

"There are going to be a lot of senior citizens and widows and handicapped and just people who are unemployed. Where are they going to get the money....

"This is a terrible situation. And it could be easier. There is no reason why we have to pay this tax rate. I'm convinced it could be lower."

Councillor Dennis E. Harrington used scorn.

"I am concerned that this Council is being shut off from participation in the setting of this tax rate," he said.

"I suppose I ought to take publicly some blame for that. I was informed within the past two days that the Mayor would meet with certain councillors so long as Councillor Harrington wasn't there."

"I think because I've been accused of shouting that they decided that they don't want me at meetings anymore with them. I think they should avail themselves of the education because they're going to hear plenty of it come the next few weeks when this tax rate is set."

"They have account clerks advising them on a $75 million corporate appropriation - and that's what this city is, it's a municipal corporation with a $75 million annual budget."

"I would suggest that in private industry there would be advice sought from people at different levels."

"They have failed to take the initiative to make any pitch to try to sell the financial condition of this city to the state agencies to keep the rate down within the law."

"They don't do it because they don't choose to do it or because they're too incompetent to do it."

Even the normally gentle Councillor James A. Sheets spoke bluntly.

"The question of the fiscal understanding on the part of the administration has come to my mind," he said. "I'm not sure that the whole system of setting the tax rate is understood by the administration."

"It's impossible to manage a city the size of Quincy and have such a rapid turnover of personnel as this administration has had and not make mistakes. They have introduced a lot of inexperience into the city government."

"This is what we have had to deal with."

The Council left an opening for the Mayor by recessing at 12:15 a.m. to reconvene at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday, as Harrington put it, "to await an invitation from the Mayor to meet with him on the tax rate."

The invitation never came. "We thrashed it out all before," said LaRais late Tuesday afternoon.

"To delay the tax rate any further would only be more expensive to the city. We have borrowed $12 million this fiscal year and that is high."

"We waited this long to set the tax rate because of the insistence of the Council. When they presented their views it was just a rehash of the same figures."

"The question now is for the Mayor to exercise leadership. I have to account for my actions more than anyone else. The Mayor stands alone."

"We have to be realistic before the state commission. We have to be able to meet expenditures. We had that problem last year. I don't want to experience it two years in a row."

Sees Richardson As Candidate

By TOM HENSHAW

"I'm a non-political person," said Atty. Gen. Francis X. Bellotti, who was once viewed - probably correctly - as one of the most political persons in the state of Massachusetts.

"I don't have the same ambitions I had 10 years ago."

It was exactly 12 years ago that a maverick Frank Bellotti, then lieutenant governor, upset the balance of Democratic power by beating Gov. Endicott Peabody in the primary before losing the election to Republican John A. Volpe.

"I'd never run against Mike Dukakis," Bellotti said on a visit to The Quincy Sun Tuesday. "I can't see that happening at all."

In fact, he had an encouraging word for the current governor, who has been under fire almost since the day he entered office in January, 1975, for his tax increases and economy moves in state government.

"Dukakis is going to come back," said Bellotti. "He's potentially stronger than people think."

"He took a hard line. He got the state budget in shape. Now he has two years to do the things that will make him strong again."

Bellotti said he sees Elliott Richardson - "probably one of the strongest political people in the state" - as a potential Republican candidate for governor against Dukakis in 1978.

Bellotti and Richardson are not exactly friends, the residue of the 1966 campaign in which Richardson defeated Bellotti for attorney general by a narrow margin amid a welter of last minute charges by the Republican that were withdrawn after the election.

So it's not easy to think of Bellotti as a non-political person, which is how the subject came up during the course of a conversation on his new plans to dispense more information from the attorney general's office.

"It won't be coming from me," he promised. "It will be coming from the attorney general's office."

"We have done a pile of things but we haven't sent out many press releases. We have found it is detrimental to the things we do when it looks like we're trying to get publicity. People question your sincerity."

"There has to be a delicate balance between letting people know and the appearance of seeking publicity."

If you don't think that sounds like Frank Bellotti, you're right - not the old Frank Bellotti, anyway.

But perhaps Frank Bellotti, the non-political person.

Hearing Tuesday On State Street Subdivision

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing Tuesday [Oct. 12] at 7:30 p.m. in the Public Works Building to consider a proposed subdivision of land at State Street South.

The area to be subdivided is bounded by Newport Ave., Sagamore Creek and the Neponset River, the Quincy-Milton line, and Harriet Ave., Division St. and John St. Plans may be seen Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the office of the Department of Planning and Community Development.

Delahunt Makes Assistants Available To Police On 24-Hour Basis

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt has directed that his assistants be made available on a 24-hour basis to the police departments of Norfolk County with legal advice and assistance in criminal investigations and prosecutions.

Four assistants, Judd Carhart, 115 West Squantum St., North Quincy; John C. Prescott, 21 Ryden St., Quincy; Thomas E. Norton Jr., 105 Faxon Park Rd, Quincy; and A. John Pappalardo of Rockland, were assigned to Quincy.

Two other assistants from Quincy, Warren A. Powers and Gerald Kirby, received assignments to other towns.

"A criminal case is often won or lost in the first few hours or days after a crime," said Delahunt. "This way, local police can receive immediate legal advice in the difficult technical areas of the law which are changing every day."

"They will have available to them a professional team approach' with our assistant district attorneys so that the likelihood of a successfully completed investigation and prosecution is greatly increased."

Delahunt, who once served as counsel to the Quincy Police Department himself, said the program has already been used in Quincy to help police bring the correct charge against criminals and to iron out problems with search warrants.

"Often bringing the right charge against a criminal is the key to a successful prosecution," he said. "And proper search warrants are also particularly important because evidence may be lost if the slightest technical error is made in a search."

'Presidential Election' Topic For United Nations Council

Geoffrey Godsall, Overseas News Editor of the Christian Science Monitor will speak on "The Presidential Election and the World" at the first of seven discussions on World Affairs sponsored by the United Nations Council of the South Shore this season.

The first will be Thursday, Oct. 14 at 8 p.m. in the Parish Hall of First Parish Church, Quincy Sq. Admission is free, and all may participate in the question period. The public is welcome.

Godsell is an honorary member of the Council and has been an advisor to the organization. His last talk last May was on "The State of the Great Power Game" and this one will be a follow-up on that topic. The seven discussions in 1976 - 1977 emphasize peace-keeping in a troubled world. Chase Kimball is chairman of the U.N. Council.

Before the lecture there will be a catered dinner at 7 p.m. For reservations call Miss Eleanor Brown, 59 Andrews Rd, Wollaston. There is a reduced price for students.

'Sin, Disease, Death' Christian Science Bible Lesson Sunday

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of Sunday's Christian Science Bible Lesson-Sermon at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy.

The Responsive Reading is from Romans 12: "Be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable and perfect will of God." Church Service and Sunday School begin at 10:45 a.m. A midweek Wednesday evening testimony meeting begins at 8. Child care is provided. All are welcome.

Survival Seeks Volunteers For Crisis Line

Survival, Inc., The Quincy based youth and drug program serving the South Shore, is seeking new volunteers to help operate the agency's 24-hour crisis-intervention line.

The program is open to area residents over 18.

A volunteer will take part in an initial 12 hour training program, leading to active participation on the crisis line. The line averages 600 calls per month and deals with problems such as depression, drugs, suicide, loneliness, and the like and is an integral link to Survival's treatment program and other helping resources.

New volunteers seeking further information are asked to call 471-7100. Persons are especially needed for daytime and weekend shifts.

Miss Schlager's Fifth Grade
At Daniel Webster School
Mr. Joseph Long, Principal

A NEWSPAPER BY AND FOR THE CHILDREN OF QUINCY

What's New At Daniel Webster School?

There's even a new roof!

Every room and hallway has a beautiful, new paint job.

Debbie Bonvie, 10

We have new, bright yellow lockers in the junior high.

Terry McDonough, 10

We have a lot of new furniture.

Theresa Miller, 10

We have colorful new tiles instead of the old wooden floors.

Billy Heeney, 10

And we have a new responsibility to keep our school as nice as it looks today.

Roger Westhaver, 10

Daniel Webster School

Did you see how Pretty our school looks, Debbie?

School drawing by Eric Nord, 10

What's new at Daniel Webster School? New lockers. New furniture. Colorful new tile. A bright, new paint job. And as fifth grader Tommy Aldoupolis says, "a new pride in our school."

In this issue of "Young Ideas" sponsored by the Quincy Public Schools, we visit brand, spanking new-looking Daniel Webster with the help of our assistant editors - Miss Schlager's fifth graders.

The Daniel Webster

School is sixty years old - a big, square, brick building like your parents and grandparents attended. In fact many of the students' parents did attend Daniel Webster.

It is unique in the city of Quincy because the elementary school is connected to the Quincy Point Junior High.

It is called the Point complex. And children from kindergarten to the ninth grade are all in together. There is no other school like this in Quincy.

What's it like to be in the same building with the junior high?

How do you feel when you come back after summer vacation and your school has undergone a complete facelifting?

And, most important, what is the student's responsibility to his school building and to ALL property, for that matter?

These are some of the questions this issue of "Young Ideas" explores.

By Debbie Bonvie, 10

What's Your Responsibility?

I think kids have a responsibility to keep their school clean, neat and do the least possible amount of damage. The only reason the school is here is for us. The only reason a kid would do damage is to prove he's so great. I wouldn't think he's so great. Because I like the school to look nice.

Alan Peters, 10

I think the older you get and you have things you want to keep nice, the more you realize you should respect other people's property too. I have a kit and you make things out of matchsticks. I've spent hours making things like spinning wheels and towers. I don't want anybody to wreck them. I can understand why the people who fix up the schools don't want anything to happen to them either.

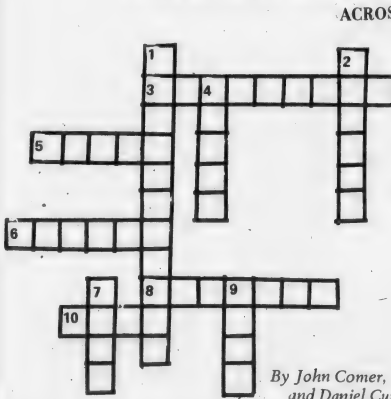

Larry LeCours, 10

We have to think of other children too, like the kids who will come to Daniel Webster after us. My mother went to this school. Maybe my kids will come here. Who knows? I would like it to be in good condition if they do. This school has been here sixty years already. And now that it's all fixed up, it will probably be here for sixty more.

Daniel Webster fifth grader Debbie Moscone likes being able to use the big, beautiful junior high gym. Help Debbie find her way to the gym. Hurry up! Gym class starts in two minutes!

Ability to Your School

Another reason we should keep our school in good condition is our parents paid for the renovations anyway. The school got the money from the city of Quincy. The city got the money from the taxes. The taxes are paid by the people who live in the city. And they are our parents. Lots of visitors are coming to see what they paid for.

John Comer, 11

I'm much prouder to be in a place when it looks nice. Like my bedroom. We just got new wallpaper and furniture. I take care of it. I don't want it to look like a junkyard so I'm careful. I don't put my feet on the furniture either. The school looks so nice now I'm proud of it too. I'd like to keep it this way.

Lila Abraham, 9

I think most of the damage done in school by kids is by accident. I think we should be careful with rulers, pencils and pens because we could bump up against the walls. When we get lockers next year we'll have to be careful not to scratch them. The only damage kids do on purpose is when they write on desks and walls. They're just trying to be tough.

Robert Breen, 10

Thanks, Quincy, For Fixing up our School!

Here's the way Debbie Bonvie, 10, feels about her school now in our lead editorial.

The Daniel Webster School was renovated over the summer. There have been some real nice changes. New lockers were put in because the others were old and broken. At the front door they put new steps in the hallway. We got new desks to replace the ones that were all cracked and dirty. Also, we had old wooden floors and now we have new colorful tile ones.

That's a real big improvement.

The best thing of all is that the whole school was painted. The teachers picked their own colors. From my point of view, it's much more cheerful to walk through our school.

We, the kids, of the Daniel Webster School say, "We'll try to keep our school staying the way it looks now." Our teachers and our principal Mr. Long want to keep it this way too.

Thank you, Quincy, for fixing up our school!

An Interview with Kim

There's Nice-Tough and There's Mean-Tough

Kim Folk, 10 [right] was on the Student Advisory Board at Daniel Webster last year. She worked with students from the fourth to the ninth grade on school problems. Here, a classmate Melissa Flaherty, 10, interviews Kim.

Kim, what are some of the things the Student Advisory Board talked about?

We knew the school was going to be renovated during the summer. We talked about how to keep our school looking good. We decided all students will have the same lockers for three years so they will take care of them. We talked about a program called Point with Pride that will help everybody be proud of our school. We're going to have buttons, stickers and a big poster contest.

Why is it important to keep the school in good condition?

School is everybody's business, especially kids. Learning is a part of everybody's life and school starts you on your way. But who wants to come to an untidy place five days a week?

Do you think most children have respect for school and other property?

Yes. There are only a few who would damage other people's stuff.

Why do you think kids would write on walls, desks, buildings or destroy any property?

To get attention. Probably none of the other kids think this kid is tough. So he tries to prove it by doing something he shouldn't. On the Student Advisory Board, we talked about teaching kids to be "nice-tough" instead of "mean-tough". You don't have to destroy anything to get attention. You can get much more attention in the long run if you become a leader doing things other kids look up to.

Do You Like Being Connected to the Junior High?

We learn all about woodworking in shop -- Cindy Page, 10

Daniel Webster is the only school in the city of Quincy that is part of a complex. It is connected to Point Junior High. Both junior high and grammar school have the same principal and assistant principal. I think we are lucky because we have the advantage of using the facilities of the Junior High such as the cooking, sewing and shop rooms. The music room is used by third grade to ninth. Fifth grade and up are able to use Point's gym and equipment also. Our Media Center serves kindergarten to ninth. That's the way we share activities at Point Webster.

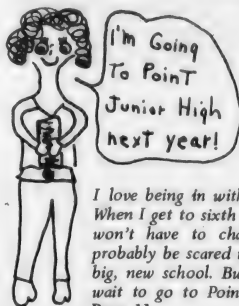

Ann Carroll, 10

The thing I like best is we change classes. Sometimes you get bored in the same class. This way, you like some things about one teacher and other things about another. I love to go to science. You do different things with Mr. Ezickson. One time he gave us seven "mystery powders" and we had to figure out what they were.

--James Stasio, 10

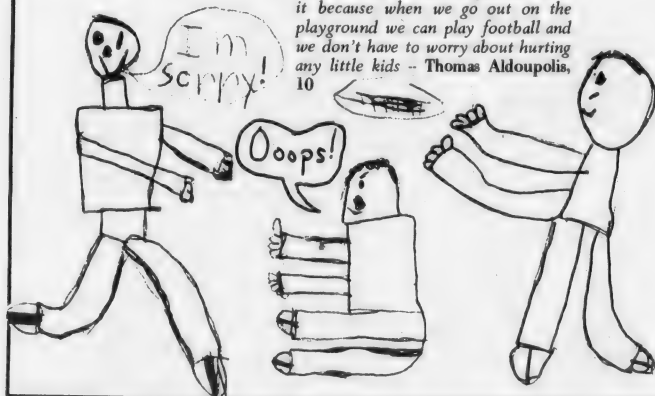

I think changing classes gives teachers a break too. In the afternoon we are always in our own class with Miss Schlager. You feel you're part of a class even though you move around --

Brian Durante, 10

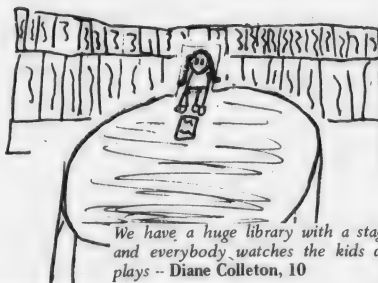

I love being in with the junior high. When I get to sixth grade next year, I won't have to change schools. I'd probably be scared if I had to go to a big, new school. But I'm not. I can't wait to go to Point Junior -- Cindy Page, 11.

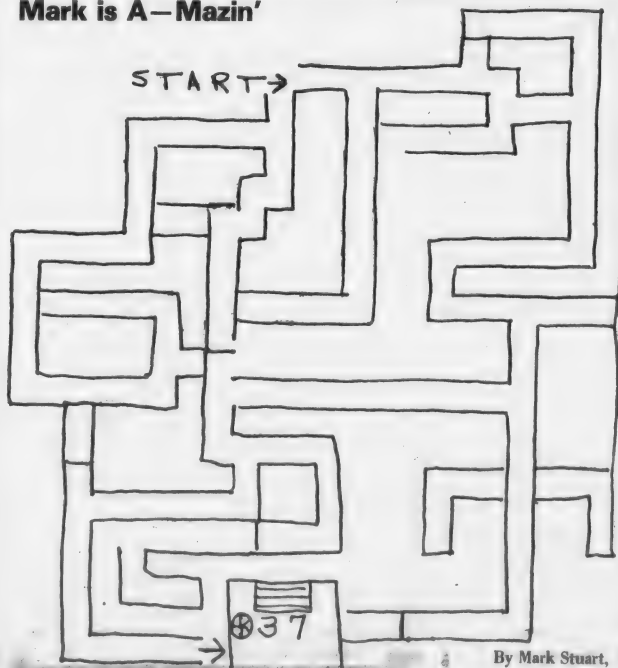

We eat with the seventh graders. I like it because when we go out on the playground we can play football and we don't have to worry about hurting any little kids -- Thomas Aldoupolis, 10

We can use the junior high gym and all its equipment -- Dianne Colleton, 10

WOLLASTON / NORTH QUINCY

Assistant State Secretary Speaker

9 Referenda Questions Topic For Atlantic Neighborhood Assn.

The Atlantic Neighborhood Association will present a speaker from the office of State Secretary Paul Guzzi to discuss the nine referenda questions that will appear on the November ballot.

John Grace, Assistant Secretary of State, will present the details and answer questions regarding each of the referenda questions at the association's monthly meeting, Wednesday, Oct. 13 at 8:30 p.m.

A general business meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Methodist Church, 50 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Explanatory literature will also be provided for all in attendance.

"Our reason for requesting an objective presentation from a representative of the Secretary's office was so that we could avoid heated debates from proponents and opponents of the nine questions and gain maximum information and understanding of these issues that could so drastically affect us all," said Tom Nutley, Public Relations Director of the Atlantic Association.

The meeting is open to all Quincy residents. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Brett Suggests Closing E. Squantum St. To Large Trucks

Rep. Joseph E. Brett (D-Quincy) has asked the Quincy Police Department to study the possibility of closing East Squantum St. in North Quincy to large commercial vehicles.

He suggested opening Quincy Shore Drive from the Neponset Bridge to East Squantum St. to the big trucks instead.

"East Squantum St. is very narrow and a particularly hazardous situation exists in the area of Rotolph St. where there is a sharp curve in the road," said Brett in a letter to Capt.

Roy T. Cavicchi, head of the traffic division.

"Many nearby residents and other users of that section of East Squantum St. have spoken to me about the possibility of closing off East Squantum St. to large commercial vehicles and having Quincy Shore Drive between Neponset Bridge and East Squantum St. made available for their use.

"Many of them headed for the Boston Harbor Marina area or the Jordan Marsh plant could be diverted to the Commander Shea Boulevard.

"I realize this is a rather difficult solution to a difficult problem, but I would hope a serious study could be made of the situation in order that a reasonable solution may be found."

Brett, who is chairman of the Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee, offered to use "whatever influence I might have with the MDC to help arrive at a reasonable compromise with the Commission relative to using a section of Quincy Shore Drive as a bypass for trucks."

6 NQHS Seniors National Merit 'Commended Students'

Principal Peter J. Chisom announces that six seniors at North Quincy High School have been named "commended students" in the Merit Program by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation [NMSC].

Letters of Commendation were presented to Nathan Belofsky, Geoffrey Chamberlain, Lorraine Conroy, Jean Ferreira, Cindy Levine, and Ruth Salomaa.

These students are among 35,000 commended students nationwide, recognized for their outstanding performance on the 1975 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test [PSAT/NMSQT]. Commended students represent less than two percent of the nation's secondary school senior class. Although Commended students scored below the level required for the 15,000 Semifinalists who will continue in the Merit Scholarship competition, their test performance indicates exceptional academic promise.

More Evidence On What 'Expert' Stock Advice Is Worth

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association
of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

"Listen to this," a friend said, reading from an expensive stock advisory service he had purchased: "Fertilizer supplies are TIGHT, and demand for them is still soaring. It takes a bundle of money and of time [3-5 years] to build fertilizer plants. So for the present and for the near future, fertilizer makers are kings on golden thrones. These companies are harvesting bumper profits—profits rising so fast as to put petroleum companies to shame."

The report went on to recommend one fertilizer company that "the stock market hasn't discovered — Beker Industries."

The date of the report was February 15, 1974. "Now listen to this," he went on, picking up a July 1976 issue of a national financial magazine. After noting that Beker stock, which was selling in the high 20's early in 1975 [up from 20-3/4 at the time of the report], he read on:

"Then a funny thing happened. Farmers decided they didn't want to plow more into their crops than they would get out, so they cut back fertilizer consumption in 1975. The industry, meanwhile, had put in lots of capacity—and it watched in horror as prices crashed for the second time in a decade."

The result: According to the magazine, Beker lost $4.7 million before taxes in the first quarter of 1976, is badly in need of cash, with heavy inventories and plenty of short- and long-term debt coming due. Its stock was worth less than $9 a share in mid-1976.

The magazine quoted Beker: "I respect the economists. But I respected them 18 months ago, when they said we were going to have a shortage for the next decade and maybe the rest of the century."

So what do you do with your money to keep it working for you, my friend inquires. We called his attention to a study recently concluded by two University of Chicago professors, funded by the American Bar Foundation, which observed that there is "an impressive amount of evidence that says you can't consistently outperform the market; despite the enormous and costly amount of market analysis now employed, data show that success rests largely on luck."

Since feeling lucky is a fleeting experience for practically all human beings, usually experienced at a race track or crap table, we suggested he would be more prudent to place his savings with us, where he knew his capital would remain intact and its earnings predictable and assured.

Keeping car longer? Here's what to watch

You've owned your car almost three years and it is practically paid for. Now you are debating whether to trade it in for a new one or hold on to it for a while longer.

If you have been maintaining your car regularly, chances are there is still lots of life left in it. However, if your maintenance has been hit or miss, then you should give your vehicle a bumper to bumper and roof to tire tread physical at your favorite service outlet.

Use the following check list to determine the condition of your car. If you decide to hang on to it, make certain these items are in good condition to assure yourself of continued worry-free, safe performance.

Check:

- ☐ Battery and cable
- ☐ Condition of tires, both tread and side walls
- ☐ Transmission linkage
- ☐ Condition of brakes
- ☐ Condition of shock absorbers
- ☐ Exhaust system
- ☐ Cooling system including radiator hoses, cap and thermostat
- ☐ Belts
- ☐ Wiper arms and blades

In addition, make sure these routine maintenance services have been performed recently:

Engine tune-up, oil change with new filter, lights checked and aligned, wheels aligned, chassis lubricated, fresh antifreeze installed.

Also, if there are nicks and bumps in the car, have them repaired.

Check tires if

When a sudden cold spell hits, remember to check your tires' air pressure. For every 10-degree (F) drop in temperature, mercury drops

a tire may lose a pound of pressure. Harder steering, tire wear and gasoline mileage loss may result.

OPENING THE HIGHWAY TO BETTER WASHING

Tune-up called best insurance against no-starts, by AAA

Motorists who have followed the regularly scheduled program of car care prescribed in the owner's manual can forget about winterizing, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Most 'can't start' calls for assistance are the result of vehicle neglect rather than vehicle failure," AAA notes.

"Poorly tuned engines and weak batteries are responsible for 80 per cent of all wintertime emergency road service calls."

For vehicle owners who have not followed the detailed maintenance instructions in their car owner's manual, AAA offers this 10-point check list for keeping a car in peak operating condition, once it is properly tuned:

1. Check plugs and points regularly. Dirty or worn plugs waste gas and put an added strain on the battery because they require more electricity than clean plugs. If points are worn, they cannot deliver peak power to plugs.
2. Have car's automatic choke cleaned and adjusted. If automatic choke doesn't cut down when engine is warmed up, gasoline is wasted.

3. Inspect the cooling system. Hoses, radiator, pressure cap and thermostat as well as the antifreeze level should be checked regularly.

4. Make sure car battery is fully charged, with terminals clean and secure and water covering battery plates. Battery should be free from cracks or corrosion. Periodic inspection will assure that battery is properly charged.

5. Check voltage regulator. An undercharged battery will fail and an overcharged battery will buckle its cover and bulge the sides, causing leaks.

6. Is the exhaust system noisy? A rusty or leaky muffler or exhaust manifold is a carbon monoxide hazard.

7. Check windshield wipers and washers for proper operation. Worn or poorly functioning wiper blades cut visibility and should be replaced. Water in the windshield washer reservoir should have an added solvent all year long. It not only prevents freezing, but helps wipers remove slush or accumulation for better visibility.

8. Make sure defrosters and heater are working properly.

9. Check fan belt and other belts for proper adjustment and replace them if worn. A slipping belt affects the alternator and operation of the car air conditioner.

10. Have a periodic general safety check made every 10,000 miles, including inspection of brakes, headlights, hoses, turn signals, back-up lights and tires. Check brake and transmission fluid levels and fluid level in the rear axle.

Auto Club points out that a further benefit of a well-maintained automobile is fuel savings. A properly tuned engine will help cut gasoline consumption by one or two gallons per tankful.

Youth Commission Auto Education Program Starts Thursday

What do you do when the car won't start?

Young people in Quincy can find out tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. when the Quincy Youth Commission begins its auto education program designed to give youth a basic background in auto mechanics.

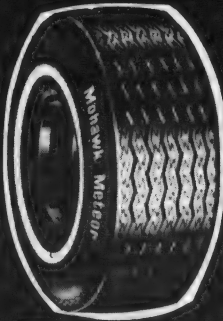

Some of the questions to be answered include: How does a car work? What do I do when the car won't start? How do I use these danged automobile tools?

"The purpose of the program is not to teach a boy or girl to be an auto mechanic but to serve as an alternative to idleness or delinquency," said Youth Coordinator Thomas R. Mullen. Mullen announced that Nicholas Zarelli of Quincy will be deputy youth coordinator for the program.

Further information on the program can be obtained by calling the Youth Commission at 479-3942.
